HAIR DYE.

LADIES and gentlemen wishing to have their hair or whiskers of a beautiful dark brown or jet black, can do so by calling at Samuel L. Fithian's drug and chemical store, and purchasing his superior Hair Dye, at a cost of 25 cts. per bottle. The dye is warranted not to injure the hair, but rather to improve it's growth, and to make an unchangeable and natural color with but very little trouble or expense. Try it, and if it does not give satisfaction, if used according to directions, you can have the money refunded.

WEST JERSEY ACADEMY.
BRIDGETON, N. J.

DAVID THOMPSON, A. M., Principal and Instructor in the Classics.

J. B. WOODARD, Instructor in Mathematics and the English Branches.

HENRY NEFF, Instructor in Music.

THIS institution is located near the pleasant and healthy town of Bridgeton. It is believed that it possesses advantages enjoyed by few similar institutions in our country. Being in the outskirts of the town, it furnishes retirement to the student, and withdraws him from many temptations to which he would otherwise be exposed, yet is sufficiently near to allow a punctual attendance at church on the sabbath. The building is of recent construction, and has all the modern improvements designed to promote the health and comfort of the pupils.

Facilities will be furnished for acquiring a thorough English, mathematical and classical education, preparing the student either for college or for the more active duties of life. Students will find all the comforts of a home in the family of the principal, with whom they will be required to attend church on the sabbath, unless a wish to the contrary is expressed by their parents.

For board and tuition in the English and Classical branches, together with light and fuel, $80 per session of 22 weeks. Washing $5.

The next session begins on Wednesday, May 6.

For circulars address Rev. Samuel Beach Jones, D. D., Wm. Elmer, M. D., or the principal.

THE EAST END.
Gentlemen and Ladies' Boot & Shoe Store.
BENJAMIN THOMPSON,

WOULD inform the citizens of Bridgeton and the surrounding country that he is still at the trade that he commenced learning in this place the day after Bridgeton was illuminated for peace, (1815), and has taken of Mr. Samuel Reeves his old established Boot & Shoe Stand, next door to Daniel Fithian's store. Being farthest east on Commerce street of any in the trade, I name it the East End Boot and Shoe Store,

and as the sun rises in the east to enlighten and advance the day, so will I endeavor to enlighten my fellow-citizens where they can buy the cheapest and best Boots & Shoes, such as I made for many of you 27 years ago, while some of you were children, who are now heads of families & strangers to me; and feeling an interest in your welfare, I respectfully invite you to call and see me, that we may renew our acquaintance, and if you are in want of either Boots or Shoes, I would like to sell you, if I have the article on hand that will suit you, if not, I can measure and make to suit your fancy, at the shortest notice. My stock on hand consists of men's fine calf skin Boots, good quality, and 20 per cent. cheaper than I could make for the money now; fine kip of the same stamp, and others at a less price, but not so cheap; men's French calf, patent leather, and drab cloth top Gaiters, and a general assortment of men and boy's patent leather and calf skin gaiters. Prince Albert half Gaiters for men, and Queen Victoria for the ladies, and a fine assortment of children's Boots and Gaiters of different sizes and colors. Some of my work was made rather further east than I am, and the brethren of the craft down there understand how to make both good work and poor work, and I understand how to discriminate & inform my customers which to buy. Having had forty-two years' experience, I know what good stock is & when & how it should be made in good Boots or shoes; to prove this try me, & if I should be mistaken, I will make all right.

N. B.—Being a little hard of hearing, you will have to speak louder if you ask for credit, but if cash is talked of, my hearing is better, which makes it more pleasant for both parties, therefore I have invariably made my terms Cash on delivery of the goods, & I will put the price so as to make the inducement to pay the day taken.

P. S.—Mending and repairing of all kinds done at short notice and as cheap as the price of stock will admit of. May 9, 1857-3m.

THE WARNING.

BY GEO. R. TOMLINSON.

When from the busy cares of life,
We turn to muse awhile alone,
The mind with thronging thoughts is rife
Of joyous scenes forever flown.
When thus I turn my longing gaze
Back to the time of budding joys,
In memory sweet of halcyon days,
I often think of a circumstance that occurred one day last summer.

Clear was the sky and fair the scene—
A-down the hill the village lay,
Just peeping through the waving green,
Half hidden from the eye of day,
Leading new beauty to the view,
The sounding Mohawk flowed along,
The scene our rapt attention drew,
And in fact it was about as pleasant a landscape as we ever had the privilege of beholding.

Walking along the College-green,
In merry mood and full of glee,
A fine young maiden might be seen,
In dress that spread our-rageously.
While gazing on the view around,
Her soul expanded LIKE HER FORM;
Her eyes up-turned to Heaven's profound—
And just then a pipe of gas connected with the Laboratory burst in her immediate proximity.

And lo, an angel bright she rose,
Aloft she swifely winged her way,
And left behind earth's fleeting shows;
And sought the realms of endless day.
Now heavenward fixed each gazing eye;
A breathless throng we gathered round;
A speck she seemed, far in the sky,
And then we couldn't see her, so we ran and brought out the telescope.

Again she seemed an angel bright,
Still soaring to the sky serene;
Her form was clothed with radiant light—
Such light on earth is rarely seen.
More dim and faint her outline grow,
As upward borne on wings of light,
And mingling with the distant blue
She disappeared, and then I came away in a very meditative mood!

LINES.

BY C. D. STUART.

As distant lands beyond the sea,
When friends go thence, draw nigh,
So heaven, when friends have thither gone,
Draws nearer from the sky.

And as those lands the dearer grow,
When friends are long away,
So heaven each, through loved ones dead,
Grows dearer day by day.

Heaven is not far from those who see
With the pure spirit's sight,
But near, and in the very hearts
Of those who see aright.

CHAPTER I.

AN INTERRUPTED WEDDING.

It was the first of May, the marriage day of the Viscount Montressor of Montressor Castle, Dorsetshire, and Estelle, only daughter and heiress of Sir Parke Morelle, Hyde Hall, Devonshire.

A glorious morning! the cloudless, blue sky smiled down upon the green hills and dewy dales and deep wood of Devon; and the park around the Hall was all alive and musical, with the joyous songs of birds, and the merry laughter of young men and maidens gathering to celebrate their May-day festival, and to do honor to the marriage of their landlord's daughter.

The elm-shaded, winding avenue that led from the highway to the house, was arched at each terminus by a mammoth wreath of flowers, and many were the carriages that passed under them, on their way to assist at the wedding; and these contained only the bridesmaids, and the nearest friends and relatives of the family, whose relationship or position gave them the right to attend the bride to church—for a still more numerous party had been invited to meet her at the altar.—The villagers and tenants, grouped about under the shade of the great old trees, or wandering over the greensward on either side the avenue, watched these equipages as they rolled on, commenting as usual on such occasions.

"Oh—dear me! the weddingers won't pass till nearly twelve! and here we are to wait two mortal hours! said a young girl to the gamekeeper.

"Hush! my darling look, here comes his Lordship's carriage, itself, just as sure as you're the prettiest lass in the country."

It was Lord Montressor's carriage.

Early that morning a note from his affianced bride had been put in his hands summoning him to a private conference with her at the Hall, before they should proceed to the church. Surprised and filled with vague uneasiness, his lordship lost no time in obeying the behest.

Within the most secluded of her suite of richly furnished apartments at the old Hall, half buried in the depths of a cushioned chair, reclined the bride expectant, in bridal array.

She was alone, her attendants having, by her own desire, withdrawn.

Estelle Morelle—or "la belle Estelle," "Beautiful Stella," "the Midnight Star"—as, for her resplendent dark beauty, she was poetically named—was at this time twenty-five years of age, and more lovely than a poet's or artist's ideal. Her form was of medium height, and very slender, though well-rounded, with a graceful head, over which fell rich masses of jet-black silken ringlets, shading a face of pure, pale olive complexion with large, mournful dark eyes, habitually veiled by the long, drooping lashes, except when, though full, curved lips, ever patiently closed as in silent resignation. The prevailing expression of her dark, brilliant countenance was a profound melancholy.

The announcement of Miss Morelle's approaching marriage with the Viscount Montressor had created a profound sensation in the fashionable and aristocratic circles. A peerless beauty, the only child and heiress of the oldest, wealthiest and haughtiest baronet in the west of England, her heart had been as much the object of aspiration to the youthful and ardent, as her hand and fortune had been the end of desire to the mercenary and ambitious.

At the early age of seven years, Estelle had been placed at one of the first class female institutions of learning at Paris, then as now, considered among the very best of their kind in the world, and there had been left to remain until her sixteenth year, when the sudden and calamitous breaking up of the institution, and her own severe illness, had occasioned her removal. That illness had been attended with marked changes in the constitution and temperament of the young girl.

Estelle, previously the most careless, light-hearted and capricious of children, left her chamber of convalescence a subdued, thoughtful, melancholy woman! The laughing lips of girlhood closed in patient sadness; the sparkling eyes sheathed their beams under long, shadowy lashes, now seldom lifted; the silvery, elastic voice, sank into deep and thrilling tones; the free, glad motions were measured and controlled.

She never entered another school, but completed her education under the best masters, at home. To dissipate what was considered a transient melancholy, her parents traveled with her over Europe, pausing at each capital and chief town, to show her all that was interesting and instructive. But though their daughter repaid their attentions with the sweetest gratitude, and obeyed them with the gentlest docility, she showed no interest in the passing scenes. And though everywhere her extreme beauty and sweetness of disposition, not less than her fortune and position, drew around her many friends and admirers, Estelle remained alone in her isolated thoughts and feelings. Every most distinguished physician in Europe had been consulted upon her case, and the result of their wisdom was a decision that this melancholy was not the effect of ill health, still less of secret sorrow, but that it was a constitutional phase that would probably pass away with maturing years.

They returned to England, presented their daughter at court, and introduced her into all the gaieties of fashionable life. But with no happy effect upon the spirits of Estelle, who remained profoundly unmoved amid the eclat that greeted her debut. Her picturesque beauty was the theme of all tongues—her mournful glance was fascinating—her deep tones thrilling—her touch magnetic; all felt her power, yet she who could move all others, remained unimpressed. She who sought no conquests, for that very reason perhaps, made many. A peer and two commoners, in succession, laid their fortunes at her feet, and were in turn kindly and firmly rejected.

So passed her first season in London, at the close of which her parents took her down to their seat in Devonshire. Here, in her thoughtful, quiet, unostentatious manner, she engaged in works of benevolence among the villagers and the tenantry. And her father, hoping much from this employment, gave her full liberty of action, and smiled to see that she seemed less pensive than before.

At the beginning of the parliamentary term, the family went up to London.

And it was here in her second season in town that Estelle formed the acquaintance of Lord Montressor, a young nobleman but lately acceded to his titles and estates, but already known as a man of the most high-toned moral and intellectual excellence, as a righteous, as well as a rising statesman, and as one, who in the event of a change of ministry would be likely to fill a high official position in His majesty's cabinet. Aside from the glare of rank and wealth and power, Charles Montressor was a glorious specimen of the Creator's workmanship. Above the average standard of height among his countrymen, broad-shouldered and deep chested, with a noble head, and a face full of wisdom and goodness, his appearance truly indicated the warm benevolence, clear intelligence, and pure spirit of the man. His presence soon inspired Estelle with a faith that she had not been able to feel in any other that approached her. He drew nearer to her than any other had been permitted to come; he crossed the magic circle of her isolation, and conversed with her as no other had been allowed to do. The world looked and said that the beautiful Stella had at last met her master and was conquered.

At this stage of affairs, the parliamentary term being over, Sir Parke Morelle and his family left London for Hyde Hall.

Lord Montressor asked and received permission to follow them, and in less than a month availed himself of the privilege to do so. Thus it was in the home of her ancestors, after having obtained the cordial sanction of her parents, and believing himself sure of the affections of their daughter, Lord Montressor offered his heart and hand to the lovely Estelle, and was to his profound astonishment instantly and firmly rejected. In thus rejecting his suit she wept long and bitterly, praying his forgiveness, that the happiness she had experienced and exhibited in his society should have betrayed him into making this declaration, and beseeching him never to renew his suit, but to leave and forget her.—There was something in the tone of her refusal which confirmed and deepened his previous conviction that—even in rejecting him—she loved him! But with his high-toned sentiments he would not in the least degree presume upon that knowledge. Raising her hand with deferential tenderness, he said—

"Stella! a man never but once in his whole existence, loves a woman as I love you! I will not inquire the cause of the emotion which you have certainly a right to make without assigning any reason for the act. And after having received this rejection I may not hope distress you by pressing my suit. But this I may and do say to you—that, though a [illegible] out of the reach of your friends, I shall never address another woman; so if ever, in the course of future weeks, or months or years, however long, you may think proper to review the decision of this evening, Stella, I implore you to let me know! Write but one word, 'Come,' and I will return to lay an unchanged heart at your feet!"

Estelle was weeping too bitterly to reply.

"Stella! will you promise to do this?"

"Lord Montressor, best and dearest friend! do not seek to bind yourself to one who can give you nothing in return! Try to think of the melancholy girl that you have pitied and loved—only as a shadow that fell for a moment across the sunshine of your path, and then passed away forever!—and so forget her!"

"Stella! I have pledged my honor never to renew this suit, unless you reverse in my favor the sentence you have pronounced upon it; but, inspired by the deep and deathless love I bear you, and 'hoping against hope,' I feel impelled to implore before leaving you, that, in the event of a favorable change of sentiment or purpose towards me, you will not hesitate to give me leave to return. Stella, will you promise me so much as that?"

"Noblest friend that I have in the world! how gladly would I promise, but I must not, Montressor. Were I to do so, you would fell bound to wait the changes of my mood, and so, for a most undeserving love, might miss, in some nobler women's affections, the happiness in store for you!"

"Stella, will you raise your sweet, mournful eyes to mine, one moment, that you may read my soul while I speak?"

Estelle lifted her dark orbs to meet the clear, pure, blue eyes bent with so much love and candor upon hers, and read the deep, unchanging truth of the constancy of his soul as he said—

"Stella, in the presence of the heart-searching God who sees and hears me, I assure you that I shall never love another woman as I love you, and, therefore, of course, can never wed another; so that whether you give me this slightest of hopes or not, I am equally and forever bound! Now will you promise, Stella? Remember, it is only to let me know in case of a change in your sentiments."

For an instant the light of an unutterable love and joy broke on her beautiful, dark face, and the quivering lips parted to speak—when—as if a sudden memory and warning had gripped her very heart—she uttered a low, sharp cry, turned paler than before, and then said—

"No! no! my Lord! Stella cannot even give you that! She is poorer than the poorest, in gifts to you! She can only pray that you may forget her, and be happy."

He looked profoundly disappointed and troubled. But soon mastering his despondency he said hopefully—

"Well, dearest Stella, although you reject me without apparent reason, and refuse to give me the slightest promise or the most distant hope, yet I repeat—should you in the long future, change your purpose, and write to me one word—'Come,' I will hasten to lay at your feet an unchanged heart! Good bye! God be with you!" and raising her hand, he bowed over it, pressed it to his lips, turned and left the room.

Some moments after Lady Morelle, who came to seek and congratulate her daughter upon what she imagined to be the only possible result of the interview—found Estelle lying in a swoon upon the floor! It was followed by a long and terrible illness, terminating in a tediously protracted convalescence. The town season was at hand before Estelle was able to re-enter society.

They went up to London, and once more the "star of beauty" arose upon its world.—And though the cloud upon her life settled darker and heavier, day by day, she was more followed, flattered and courted than before.

Thus three years had passed away, when one morning, while the family, then occupying their town house in Berkely Square, were seated at a late breakfast, and Sir Parke was engaged in reading aloud from the London Times, an account of the saving of the French Ship—Le Duc D'Anjou—wrecked off the coast of Algiers—Estelle uttered a low cry and sank fainting from her seat.

This attack was not, as the other had been, followed by illness; on the contrary, from that day, the cloud seemed lifted from her head, and even those who had most admired her face in its shadow, were enchanted to see how brilliant was her beauty in its sunshine! Her health and spirits daily improved, yet in the midst of all this flowing tide of new life, Estelle astonished her friends by suddenly, in the height of the London season, returning to her father's country seat, where she remained in strict seclusion from the world for eighteen months.

At the end of this period, Lord Montressor, who had never left England, or lost trace of his beloved Stella, and who was now staying at his castle in Dorsetshire, was one day seated at breakfast when the morning mail was brought him. Among a score of letters, the first that attracted his attention was a dainty white envelope superscribed in a delicate hand writing. He took that up first and opened it—it contained but one word—"COME."

The light of an ineffable joy broke over his face! Oh! he had waited, patiently, hopefully, years, for, that word, and at last received it! Thanks to heaven in the first instance! and then pushing all the other letters unopened aside he sprung up, rang for his valet, and ordered his valise packed and horses put to the carriage.

In twenty more minutes he had reached the railway station just as the cars were about to start, and in three hours he was at Hyde Hall and standing in the presence of Estelle!—she looking so beautiful and happy!

With the old chivalric enthusiasm of devotion, he dropped at once upon his knee, and raised her hand to his saying—

"For fourteen years I have hoped and waited for one word from you, and at last, beloved, you have written—'Come,' and I am at your feet, as I said, with an unchanged heart!"

"But!" the old shadow crept in as he spoke, she held both hands to him, as, with a beaming face of unchanged heart, he continued—"Not a word of your unworthiness! I have loved you more than woman's tongue may tell, and never more, than at the hour in which we bade farewell, as I thought, forever!"

"I know it, beloved, knew it then! knew it always! I never doubted it! Could I be deceived in the dear heart of the woman I loved! No! and that was the secret of my patience!" he replied, taking his seat on the sofa by her side.

"And yet you never inquired and do not even now inquire, why, without explanation and without hope, I sent you from my presence, and why now, without apparent reason, I summon you back!" she said, as a shade of the old sadness fell upon her beautiful face.

"Your motives, dearest, were, and are your own. Not until your spirit moves you to do so, shall you give them to me! I have full confidence in you, beautiful Stella!"

"Confidence! oh my God!" she exclaimed in a low, deep, thrilling voice.

"Why, what is the matter, dearest?"

She looked up suddenly, a smile of worshipping love, breaking like sunlight over her dark face, and said—

"Nothing, nothing, my lord! but that all your thoughts and feelings are so elevated beyond your poor Estelle's! And yet she would almost choose it so! for could she be an angel, she would wish you to be something far higher—a god!"

"Sweet enthusiast! moderate your aspirations, or the world and its people will disappoint you! Be not an idolator, worship only God, my Stella."

Such was their meeting!

Yet, occasionally, throughout the interview, a sudden shadow like the recurrence of a painful thought, would fall upon her bright face and then pass as it came.

They were engaged, and within a few days the marriage was announced to take place on the first of May.

But it was observed by the nearest friends of the bride, that from the day of her betrothal, her spirits had been marked by the strangest fluctation. Sometimes with her beautiful dark face illumed with a deep, still, almost religious joy, she moved about, as it were, on "winged feet," or sat brooding in a happy trance. At other times, she fell into deep gloom and anxiety, as inexplicable as it was alarming to her friends, who greatly feared her relapse into the deep melancholy that had so long overshadowed her, and that they had grown to dread as a constitutional malady. But they hoped everything from her approaching marriage with the man she loved. Lord Montressor observed with the deepest interest the uncertain moods of his betrothed; but with the high-toned sentiments that distinguished him, refrained from inquiring, and awaited her voluntary revelations.

At last the first of May, the marriage day, upon which I have presented the parties to the reader, arrived, and all the haut ton, as I said, were gathered at the Hall or at the Church to do honor to the solemnities.

And the expectant bride, in her bridal robe and veil, waited within her boudoir the arrival of the bridegroom, whom she had summoned to a private interview before they should proceed to the church. She had not long to wait. He who quickly responded to her slightest inclination, immediately obeyed her call.

Yet when she heard his firm elastic step approaching,

"Now God have mercy on me!" she prayed, and covered her face with her hands.

He entered, unannounced, and saying,

"My beautiful Stella! I am here, you perceive, by your commands!"

She dropped her hands, and revealing a face pale with misery, spoke in a thrilling, deep, impassioned tone—

"You are here by my supplication, my lord! I have no right to command."

"We will waive that! What is your will, my dearest Stella?"

My prayer, my lord—is first, for your forgiveness."

"Forgiveness?—my Stella!"

"Ay! my dear lord! you see before you a penitent and a suppliant, who may soon be something far more wretched!"

"My Stella! what mean you?"

"Come to the window, Lord Montressor!" she said, rising and preceding him. Look out," she continued, putting aside the rose-colored hangings, and revealing a view of the park below, alive with its restless multitude "What are all these people waiting for, my lord?"

"What are they waiting for, my Stella?—for that, for which I also wait, with how much more impatience!" he answered, while a deep flush of love and joy, for an instant, supplanted the anxiety on his face.

"They wait to see a bride pass, where a bride may never go!" she said, in a solemn voice.

"Stella! great Heaven! what say you?" he exclaimed, gazing on her with profound astonishment.

"That the bride they expect is unworthy to stand before God's holy altar beside Lord Montressor!"

"Unworthy, Stella! You."

"Most unworthy, my lord," she said, dropping her arms, and dropping her head in an attitude of the deepest misery. "I should have made this confession long ago, Lord Montressor; but I have deceived you—I have deceived you!"

"In what respect, Stella? My God! It cannot be! No, it cannot be, that while betrothed to me, you do not love me!"

"Not love you! Oh, my dear lord!" she murmured, in a voice of thrilling tenderness that carried conviction of her truth to his deepest heart.

"What mean you then, dearest one! if indeed you return my deep love."

"Oh! I do, I do, Montressor; whatever happens, wherever you go, take that assurance with you! I love you, my lord! shall ever love you, even though after what I shall have told you, you repulse and hate me, and go to our friends and say, "That woman whom I was about to wed, is but a whited sepulchre, whom I have proved, and whom I now reject"—and so leave me to the scorn of men, all Pary—Ever shall say I love you, Lord Montressor, I love you and the recollection of this moment in spite of your contempt, the bitterest element in my punishment!" she said, in a voice of such profound misery that Lord Montressor could scarcely continue to believe her agitation unfounded or exaggerated.

He dropped upon a seat, and sitting still and white as a carved image of stone, gazed upon her, waiting her further communications.

The above is all of this beautiful and highly interetting story that will be published in our columns. We give this as a sample. The ontinuation of it can be found only in the New York Ledger, the great family weekly paper, for which the most popular writers in the country contributed, and which can be found at all the stores throughout the city and country, where papers are sold. Remember to ask for the New York Ledger of May 30, and in it you will get the continuation of the story from where it leaves off here. If you cannot get a copy at any news office, the publisher of the Ledger will mail you a copy on receipt of five cents. Fanny Fern writes only for the New York Ledger; Sylvanus Cobb, Jr., writes only for it; Emerson Bennett writes only for it; and nearly all the eminent writers in the country, such as Mrs. Sigourney, Mrs. Emma D E. Southworth and Alice Carey, contribute regularly to its columns. Mrs. Southworth will write for no other paper hereafter. Geo. D. Prentice, Esq., of the Louisville Journal, prepares the wit and humor department in the Ledger. It is mailed to subscribers at $2 a year, or two copies for $3. Address Robert Bonner, publisher, 44 Ann st., N. York. It is the handsomest and best family paper in the country, elegantly illustrated, and characterized by a high moral tone.

The Movement Westward.

"The movement Westward is remarkable at the present time. It is not confined to emigrants from the Old World, and to the enterprizing sons of New England, but it is seen and felt in nearly all the middle States, and particularly in Ohio, Pennsylvania and New Jersey. In some cases such a change of residence is every way commendable. The young, the active, and the industrious, who have their fortunes to make, and who are willing to toil on for years, not as speculators, but as mechanics, farmers, laborers and storekeepers, may venture Westward with some confidence. But not so those who are stricken in years, who have accumulated a moderate independence, who have formed fixed habits, and who cannot encounter, but at great risks, a radical change in diet, climate, and the modes of living generally. Nevertheless, many of these, not satisfied with the comforts of home, or deluded by some wild story of sudden fortune in the new States and Territories, have sold their property at a sacrifice, and determined to move hundreds of miles Westward. The extent to which this fever prevails is almost incredible. Our exchanges abound with articles upon the subject, and most of them in a tone of admonition. The following, for example, from the Pittsburg Gazette, groups together a few facts which are well calculated to startle:—"

GOING WEST!—Yes, of course, every body is going West. We look at no newspaper now-a-days, but the columns are overrun with accounts of this emigration. We clipped from the Cincinnati Gazette of Tuesday, a notice of the numbers going West through and from that city, but we have mislaid it. The account was, however, startling. One county in Ohio, Belmont, we think, actually shows the depopulation. We could add similar items in reference to this State. A steamer left our landing yesterday, with a large company of leading active men of the first respectability from one county (Perry) in this State. They represent a large sum of money which is to be drawn from circulation here, and invested in Nebraska, somewhere about Omaha. We were told by a manufacturer in Massillon, a short time since, that he had found it necessary to double the wages paid, in order to keep anybody to do his labor.—With difficulty he succeeded even then. They will go West. So it goes.

Now, in what we have to say, we shall be deemed a sort of Cassandra, a prophet of evil no doubt; but we think we see tokens of a grand smash approaching in the speculations now raging in the West. If those people were going out upon new lands to till them, to raise crops and add to the substantial value of the national wealth, it would be a far different case from the present. Every-body is raking together their cash, more or less, to speculate with. Everybody is crazy. We read in the money article of the St. Paul Times about a week since, that money had commanded us high as 12 per cent, a month in that place, and in one instance which had fallen under the notice of the editor, 15 per cent! How long can such a state of things continue?

You will hear everybody saying now that they have no doubt about a final explosion, but "after me—I will get ready for it and leave my successors to stand from under." Men doing a sound and healthy business in this city and in the East, are already scenting the breeze; we know of some who refuse to fill orders for houses in the West, which have embarked all the money they can spare in lots, cities and towns, and who prefer to wait a little and sell to sane men, rather than risk their property in the hands of men paying cent per cent, and more even for money to speculate upon.

Going West. Well that is all right, but go young man and know that you are a son of Adam, and you must pay the penalty—you must work. There can be no shirking.

Legislative Journal for 1857.—The Trenton True American says the Journal of the debates, proceedings, lists of acts, and State reports of the two houses of the Legislature is now ready for sale and delivery to subscribers. THE BRIDGETON CHRONICLE.

In our article of last week, in reply to some of the base and slanderous falsehoods manufactured by the editor of the Chronicle, or his paid writer, we promised to after they had published another column or two of personal abuse, and laid before their readers all they had been gathering and arranging during the past week, to present to the public some well substantiated facts." As they have published more of their scandal and personal abuse this week, (not being able to make up the complement of lies!) and as the Annual Statement of the County, a Communication in reply to Union, and other matter crowded in at a late hour, we shall defer publishing our reply to the Chronicle, which is now in type, and shall appear next week, together with a reply to the scandal and falsehoods which will undoubtedly appear in the Chronicle this week.

Spanish Quarters Levys and Fips.

In accordance with the new coinage law of the last Congress, these coins will be received at the mint, after the 25th inst., in quantities of not less than five, nor more than fifty dollars, in exchange for the new cent. All Spanish or Mexican quarters, in packages of five dollars by count, if weighing four dollars and twenty cents of American coin will be received at par. Levys and fips, in packages of five dollars by count, and weighing respectively four dollars and fifty cents, and four dollars and thirty cents, will also be received at par. All coins weighing less than these sums will be received at another part of the building, at a reduced value. When it is remembered that these pieces have been in circulation till they are already much worn, and are continually reducing in value, we presume our citizens will willingly aid the general government in getting them out of circulation. This reduction in their value is a result inseparable from their use as a circulating medium, and consequently the longer they are kept in use, the less they will be worth. Those in business have it in their power as a general measure, to get them into the hands of the government. By receiving them at par in exchange for their goods, and paying them out again to their customers, they can eventually clear the county of them altogether. The best of them now in circulation will weigh more than the value fixed by the government, while those the most worn will probably weigh less; By mixing them together judiciously, we believe they may be all disposed of in exchange for the new coin without loss, and the community thus relieved of a currency that from its course continually depreciating. All coin is lost, and must wear itself away by abrasion, wherever it is continually used. Some writers estimate the loss annually from this cause at five per cent. With our natural currency this occasions no loss to individuals, because the stamp of the government gives it a fixed value, no matter to what extent it may be worn. But with the coin of another country it is entirely different, although the country to which it belongs and which has given it its nominal value might be willing to redeem it at that value, yet it would be difficult for any except a very few individuals to get it to that country, without a considerable expense. If the coin continues in the country constantly depreciating, there must of necessity be a continually increasing loss which must fall somewhere, and it is not probable the government will ever be more willing to pocket the loss, than it now is, the conclusion must be that it must fall upon individuals. The desire to get the new cent into circulation, has prompted the government to offer to relieve the country of an inconvenient currency. The decimal system adopted by the United States, is the very best in the world and is rapidly becoming the system of other countries, and will undoubtedly be ultimately universally adopted by all.—The benefits of the plan we have proposed does not end merely with the removal of foreign currency from our midst. The bill goes further and provides for, and substitutes a new and much more convenient coin, in the place of our old cent, a coin always objectionable and inconvenient from its size and weight. The new cent is much smaller and lighter, but will notwithstanding buy as large a mint stick as its ponderous predecessor.

In short the interests of all classes of the community would be much promoted by the change. We do hope therefore that our business men instead of handing out the foreign coin in change to their customers, and keeping the American, will reverse their practice and pay out the American quarters, dimes, and new cents, and send the others to the mint. We understand that this has already been attended to by some of our storekeepers who have on hand a large quantity of the new coin, which they will cheerfully dispose of in change. Those who desire a specimen of the new coin, or wish to procure some splendid Dry Goods, will be accommodated by calling at Taylor & Newkirk's Ladies Store.

We are requested to say that the Dennisville Carding Machine is in successful operation, with an experienced carder, and all the facilities for making good rolls. The inhabitants of Cape May and adjoining Counties can be accommodated at any time, at former prices of carding wool at this well known establishment.

Fire in the Woods.

On Tuesday afternoon last, a fire was discovered in Fairfield township, near Coney run, which destroyed about one hundred acres of thrifty timber of 18 years growth, together with cord wood and other property. The fire originated on Adam Pierce's property where he had been burning brush in the morning. In the afternoon he went a fishing, leaving the buring brush in charge of a small boy, who was unable to extinguish the fire after it commenced spreading. From Adam Pierce's property it crossed to John Trenchard's, from thence to Jonathan Dubois's and Samuel Reeves, and continued burning during the whole night. It had not been burning long, before Mr. Reeves and two of his men who had been in the swamp near by, discovered it, and with the help of others from Fairton, Bridgeton, and Gouldtown, succeeded in preventing the fire from spreading over more than one hundred acres.—

Without their active exertions, several hundred acres at least, would have been destroyed. Much praise is due those who aided in extinguishing the flames. The Gouldtowners turned out en-masse, and fought the flames manfully until the poor fellows were almost exhausted. The loss is estimated at over a thousand dollars, most of which, is sustained by Mr. Reeves. He also injured himself to some extent, by over-exertion in endeavoring to quench the flames. Most of the fires which originate in the woods, are caused by carelessness or neglect.

The last number of the Camden Democrat contains a paragraph from a late number of the Chronicle, which is presented to the readers of the Democrat as a specimen of "a choice dish of personalities" manufactured against us by the unprincipled scribbler in the Chronicle. If our brethren of the Democrat will copy the reply we made to the Chronicle on this point, we will give them credit for manifesting a disposition to do us justice at last. Our reply was as follows: "The base and slanderous insinuations which they dare not assert, are manufactured in the imbecile and corrupt mind of the scribbler in the Chronicle. We charge the perpetrator of such wilful and slanderous misrepresentations, as being too mean an object to be treated with respect, even by the besotted blackguards who sustain him, and thus encourage him in his villany.

The people of Shiloh and vicinity have during the past Winter and Spring, been favored with a course of lectures upon various subjects, by gentlemen from different parts of our own county. The last lecture of the season will be delivered on Thursday evening next, (June 4th) by the Rev. J. Spencer Kennard. The public are invited to be present.

Harper's New Monthly Magazine.

With the June number of this highly interesting Magazine, commences the fifteenth volume. The unparalleled success which has crowned the efforts of the publishers of this work, is sufficient evidence of its value and popularity. Copies may be had at the news agency of Mr. J. S. Thomas, who has laid on our table a sample copy.

The New York Ledger.

On our first page will be found the commencement of an interesting story from the pen of Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth. Those who wish to see the remaining part of it, can procure copies of the Ledger from the news agency of Mark Bradway in Millville near the Post Office, or of J. S. Thomas, second story of Grosscup's building, in this town. These gentlemen have established news agencies where may be obtained any periodicals published in the United States.

Money Found.

A friend of ours residing near Fairton, requested us to say in the Pioneer that he had found a purse of money containing from ten to twenty dollars in Silver and Gold. It was picked up in Commerce Street one day last week, and will be returned to the owner by calling at this office, or on Mr. David Husted near Fairton.

REPLY TO UNION.

"We never back out of a position that we have taken, until we are convinced that it is wrong, then we are willing to do so. Our opponent has not proved our statements wrong. Because he has a different opinion is nothing. Every man has an opinion of his own, or ought to have. He says "he could wish for no stronger advocate for the cause of Union, than to have our communication published." We ask; Why all this hubbub? If such pieces strengthen the Union, why not encourage them? If our writing favors the Union, his of course, favors Disunion—the only conclusion is, every time he takes up his pen to write, he takes up the sledge hammer to knock his own brains out. Again he says "Surely no man in his sober reason could put together so much raving folly and expect a rational community to regard it as argument." We inquire, why then attempt to answer it by argument? We conclude again that he must be one of an irrational community, which explains in toto why his writing is so irrational. We say without fear of successful contradiction that there is no Union, only such as exists between vultures and lambs. There is no Union when a southern bully like Brooks makes a cowardly attack upon a northern Senator. Almighty God proclaimed in unmistakable words that there was no Union, when he sent the angel of Death to sever the heart-strings of Brooks, and restored the vivacity of Sumner's intellect. If Jehovah is with us, we care not who is against us. Mr. Union prates about the Slave's good home, kind master, and plenty of food and clothing and et cetera. We have information that in Kentucky, a slave was chained with a long chain on the 25th ult by his owner, and whipped every morning daily for six days, from fifty to one hundred stripes—it was to be repeated on the seventh day, but he found the poor outcast dead—the horrible outlet for ever to his guilty, was going to see his wife after his work was done. White men are put to death for murder, black ones for love and true affection. O Slavery! The devil will get you.—Mr. Union snorts and froths at the mouth, about amalgamation, and the direful time when there will no longer be a white man living on this continent. What meek eyed malignity about color! Let me inform him (for he has already shown his ignorance of Ancient History) that civilization began among people whose complexion was darker than the darkest; it was from them that the rays of knowledge emanated to other portions of the earth. It was a black man that founded the first library mentioned in History. Nimrod the man who founded the mighty Babalon, was what our opponent would denominate a big Nigger, fit only for Slavery. At that time the progenitors of the caucassian race, were complete savages. In the revolving wheel of time, the black race may again be noble and honorable, and the pale faces ignoble. It is in the hands of an Onipitent God.

Mr. Union insists that the community ought to know the character of the Pioneer. Its character is already known, or else it would not be read so extensively.

A Roman Emperor once wished that all the people of Rome had but one neck, so that he could sever them at one blow. We might infer that the seven different pieces in the last Chronicle attempting to damn the Editor of the Pioneer, shows the spirit that would wish the Editor and all his subscribers had but one neck, so that they could be severed at a blow, but we suppose there would be one question asked before they were beheaded; viz: Will you immediately subscribe for the Chronicle, and promise to love, cherish, and abide by its doctrines.

An insatiable love of money and aggrandisement can convert an Editors sanctum into a public nuisance.

Avarice can soon overthrow a government It has destroyed our Union—it has gagged the pulpit—it is the fatal Upas tree that has changed our "Citadel of Liberty" into a Citadel of Bedlamites and Slaves. Ships engaged in the African Slave trade, go to and fro upon the ocean, with their human merchandise, and our model Republic is accessary thereto.

The champions of chattelism such as Rose of Alabama, and Senator Douglas, invoke the Bible as incontestable proof that the "Sum of all villians" is right and righteous, while they at the same time, utterly repudiate the principles of the Declaration of Independence, thereby attempting to prove that these two moral compasses, which have hitherto been considered in exact unison, are now exact antipodes.

It is reserved to the nineteenth century for political huxters, partisan tools, and D. D's to promulgate with a sham missionary spirit that the Bible denies the equality of man, and that the creator never endowed them with life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. A blind infatuation is the raging epidemic of our country. A defiant air of serving the devil in the name of holiness appears to be the latest fashion in religion Either our fathers who bled and died in freedom's cause, must have been possessed of unclean spirits, or else a large portion of the literati of our land.

It is the jingling millions in our public treasury that keep men gaping and swallowing every thing that comes from the city of magnificent distances, whether it be good, bad or indifferent It is the effeminate, high bred, lily white hands that shuffle the money, yields to temptation, treads upon the Declaration of Independence, and makes the Bible prove everything, even their own infallibility. If a band of study yeomanry had possession of the archieves of our country, there would be more consistancy, and less diabolism.

How long before we can assert our manhood and the manhood of mankind? How long must we be drilled in passing under the ignominious yoke? How long must we succumb to the tortures of modern inquisitions? How long is our Rip Van Winkle nap in Sleepy Hollow to last? How long are we to be unconscious of the sword suspended by a hair over our heads, and likely at any moment to deprive us of our Independence, and make us life long drudges. O, tempora! O, moras!

SABBATH BREAKING.

Some of our Millville neighbors appear to think that we have no Sabbath here in Cape May, but they are very much mistaken, as those men who fished on our shores last Sabbath, may find out if they try it again. For their benefit we will inform them, that we have officers at hand, who are always ready to attend to those who break the laws of God and man, by desecrating the sabbath.

Cape May, May 26th, 1857.

Letter from Cedarville.

The following letter from a correspondent of the Woodbury Constitution, gives a just and true description of one of the most thriving villages in South Jersey. Cedarville is a desirable place as a residence for those who wish to enjoy good society and live happy.

"Cedarville is about seven miles south of Bridgeton. The village is more than one mile in length, the street wide and level, many vacant and beautiful building lots offer strong inducements to enterprising men, if there were some thriving manufactories to justify building on an extensive scale. The land is high and healthy; there are many dilapidated buildings scattered through the village; yet there are many first class buildings, handsomely built and neatly painted giving a cheerful appearance, and indicating an unmistakable progressive spirit.

The people throughout this vicinity are well provided with church accommodations, within the space of five miles we have five churches, two Presbyterian, two Methodists, and one Baptist.

The people are a church going people, an order loving, and law abiding temperate and industrious community. School houses too, are numerous, showing that the educational interests of the youth are not forgotten.

In the place we have good stores, good mechanics, and in the vicinity good farmers and truckers. A daily stage to Philadelphia, and we now see the noble steamer Express wending her way up the Cohansey to Bridgeton, [illegible] means of communica-

Judging from the number of old persons that I have met in this session, it must be a healthy part of the country. A venerable minister of the Presbyterian church, has attained to the age of 93 years, loaded with years and honors; this man of God has long sent forth the fragrance of a good life to cheer and bless his race in this community. His memory fails in almost everything save in the reverence due to his God, he forgets earthly friends and things, but God, and his duty to God, he never forgets, what an alay on the religion of Jesus Christ! Peace to the good old man in his last hours, may his sun go down in a bright sky."

Clerk of Board.

Bridgeton May, 30,

Bridgeton Woolen Factory.

THE Subscribers having made arrangements for doing an extensive business the present Season, at their old established

WOOLEN MANUFACTORY,

In Bridgeton N. J., invite Farmers and others to their facilities for manufacturing, which are probably superior to any other in the State.

Having introduced the latest improvements into their establishments, for the manufacturing of Blankets, Flannels, Satinetts, Stocking Yarn, Carpet yarn, &c., inducements are here offered to those that wish to have their wool manufactured unsurpassed by any other establishment.

WOOL CARDED INTO ROLLS,

And coloring neatly and expeditiously executed and warranted to give satisfaction.

N. B.—Farmers before parting with their Wool are requested to call at the Factory and learn our prices, as we intend to pay the highest cash price for Wool.

TWENTY GOOD REASONS WHY

Ketchum's Combined Reaper and Mower,

For 1857, is the most complete Machine in use, and the one best adapted to the wants of the farmer.

First. Being made wholly of Iron, it is more durable than any other.

Second. It is so simple that any person can readily manage it.

Third. It is so strongly and well built, that it cannot readily get out of repair.

Fourth. It is neat and compact, occupying less space than any other.

Fifth. The frame is so evenly balanced that there is no weight on the horse's neck.

Sixth. There is little or no side draft.

Seventh. It will cut heavy and light grass equally well.

Eighth. It cuts wet grass as well as dry.

Ninth. The new Cutter Bar Wheel acts like a charm, lessening the draft at least one fourth in weight.

Tenth. Two horses will work it with ease in any kind of grass or grain.

Eleventh. It is the only machine with the cutter-bar directly opposite the shaft of the driving wheel.

Twelfth. The open cutting blade effectually prevents clogging.

Thirteenth. It is changed in a few minutes from a Mower to a Reaper.

Fourteenth. It is the only machine with a Rear and side delivery for grain.

Fifteenth. It is the only machine which gives the Raker entire control of the grain both before and after it reaches the platform.

Sixteenth. The adjustable spring seat, and the new Reaping Shoe, are admirable improvements.

Seventeenth. Seven years of severe practical trial, with more than 12 000 machines, has proven its decided superiority. Like wine, it grows better with age.

Eighteenth. All the improvements for 1857 (and there are a good many, have been practically and thoroughly tested.

Nineteenth. Every part of the machine is made by master workmen, and in the most substantial manner.

Twentieth. Ketchum's Combined Reaper and Mower is warranted to cut all kinds of grass and grain as well as it can be done with a scythe or cradle.

In a word, it is just the machine which the farmer can buy without any risk, because ample experience has proven that it is reliable in all its parts.

Farmers, send in your orders early, as the sales for this season thus far have been more than double that of last year.

The cut at the head of this advertisement represents the Reaper with rear delivery, as they were made last season. The Reaper of the present season has been greatly improved.

Price of Reaper and Mower, 135 dollars. Mower alone 115 dollars.

More Goods! Better Goods, and CHEAPER GOODS

Having procured the services of a first rate set of hands, and made arrangements for manufacturing the most of the ready made clothing that I sell, I have now on hand a large and splendid stock of clothing, manufactured under my own supervision, of the most durable materials by the best workmen made equal to customer work, and warranted to give satisfaction to all that try them, and at the same time am enabled to sell cheaper than any other house in Bridgeton, as there is but one small profit on my goods, whilst those goods that are manufactured in the city must have two profits; the manufacturer must have a profit, and the retailer must have his, so it must be obvious to all that I have the advantage over those who sell city-made work.—All I ask is a call before you purchase elsewhere, and if you are not satisfied that my goods are better made, and cheaper than you can buy elsewhere. I do not ask you to buy, nor do I consider it any trouble to show you my goods.

We're not afraid to tell it;
Come friends and neighbors, all around,
For we are bound to sell it.

Now, gentlemen in want of shoes,
Of gaiters or of boots;
We send to you the cheering news,
We have them just to suit!

The ladies, too, have heard the news,
They look so very sweet,
Then rush to Reeves & Davis' where
They make their fits so neat.

Old people, too, with tender feet,
They rush to Mr. Reeves,
Because they know he can't be beat
In making shoes for ease.

For forty years he's kept the course,
Tending to people's feet;
By some he's called the great war horse
That never can be beat!

Come, rich and poor, come young and old;
Come every one that can;
We're bound not to be under-sold
By ANY LIVING MAN!

To be continued as circumstances require.

HOVER'S LIQUID HAIR DYE.

THIS Hair Dye needs only a trial to satisfy all of its perfection as a Dye, and the following testimonial from that eminent Analytic Chemist, Professor Booth, of the U. S. Mint, will only conform what thousands have previously born testimony to.

"LABORATORY FOR PRACTICAL CHEMISTRY,
No. 1 Stephen's Place,
Philadelphia, February 17th 1857.

"Being well acquainted with the substances composing Hover's Liquid Hair Dye, I am satisfied that by following the simple directions given for its use, it will not injure the fair or skin, but will give a natural and durable color to the Hair. JAMES C. BOOTH, Analytic Chemist."

Hover's Writing Inks, including Hover's Fluid, and Hover's Indelible Inks are too well known and introduced to require any additional testimony of their character. The sales have been increasing since their first introduction. Living evidence that the articles truly possess that intrinsic merit claimed at first for them by the Manufacturer.

Orders, addressed to the Manufactory, No. 416 Race street above Fourth, (old No. 144,) Philadelphia, will receive prompt attention by JOSEPH E. HOVER,
April 18, '57.–y. Manufacturer.

Cheap Spring Clothing!

Clothing, clothing, clothing for all,
At the United States Clothing Emporium Hall!
Come, then, men and boys,
And you can have your choice.
There was once a stranger calling at my hall,
And he will tell you what happened to him all.
He was getting such a nice suit that nobody knew him;
Friends politely passed and spoke not;
And arriving at his dwelling,
He kissed the smiling matron.
She repulsed him, and informed him,
If such liberties were taken,
She should surely tell her husband.
One more look and all was settled,
In the gay, genteel intruder,
She beheld her own dear husband,
So completely changed by clothing
That at first she did not know him.
Then the wife asked questions:
Tell me, dear, where the suit was purchased,
Tell me where they got that style of making,
Where, and when, and how they got you
Arrayed in such a handsome fashion?
Tell me, tell me, all about it,
Tell me, tell me, tell me all.
Did he answer? No, sir-ee, Bob,
As the questions thus did fall;
But he murmured at BAMBERGER'S,
Bamberger's Clothing Emporium Hall.

E. BAMBERGER,
[U. S. Clothing Emporium Hall, Bridgeton, two doors above the Post Office, sign of the big red Coat. April 11.

THE CHEAPEST

PRESERVING CAN

IN THE MARKET.

THE advantages of this can over all others, are the simplicity in the manner in which it is sealed up, and the impossibility of corrosion, the can being glass. The top is so constructed that any one can seal it up without any difficulty.—The groove in the top is to be filled with cement, which stops it perfectly tight, and if tight it will keep for years.
