The unlucky Thief .- A thief in Mary land, having stolen a hog, had tied its leg-together after killing it; and for the convenience of carrying it, he let the hog rest on his shoulders, while the rope with which it was tiedwent over his breast. On his way home, finding himself fatigued, he laid the hog in the crotch of a tree, about the height of his shoulders, in order to rest him self—But the hog slipping through, the rope that was around the man's breast slipped up to his throat, and immediately choaked him to death; and in the morning they were both found dead, the one on the one side, and the other on the other side of the tree. Thus the thief killed the hog, and the hog in his turn hanged the thief.

Whether the had success which has attended the efforts to meliorate their disposition; as well as condition, has been owing to an erroneous system of operation, to the injudicious management of the agents employed for the purpose, or to insuperable difficulties arising out of the very nature of the subjects to be operated upon, are questions of no ordinary consequence, and worthy the most mature consideration of Congress. Missionary and benevolent efforts have sought the introduction of christian faith and practice, and the exchange of the hunter state, for the less precarious and more rational comforts deriveable from agricultural industry. Whilst they depend prin-cipally upon the sacrifice of animal life for subsistence, they may be oftentimes readily prompted to hunt out and destroy human life; if not from mere sport, yet to gratify slight resentments. It is more than probable, that they must be drawn from the chase, and their carnivorous diet, before they will be induced to lay aside the tomahawk and scalping knife. To this great object, then, ought the interference of the government to be directed .- Seve ral memorials have been presented Congress, since the commencement of the present session, soliciting more particular attention to it, which have been referred to the select committee on the subject of Indian Affairs. Col. John Anderson. This man, about whom so much was said last oession, thought proper, some months ago to bring an action against Mr. Dunn, Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives, for the alledged unlawful detention of his person under a charge of an attempt to bribe a member of said House. As Mr. Dunn acted under the orders of the house, and as the period for the trial is not far distant, he addressed, on Monday, a letter to the Speaker, stating the act and asking the support of the house. This letter was referred to the Judiciary committee who yesterday reported, a resoadequate Counsel to defend said Dunn and that the expences be paid out of the contingent fund of the house.—It is scarcely necessary to add, that the reso lution was agreed to Nem, Con.

I canno forbear expressing, through the nedium of your useful paper, the pleasure and satisfaction I experienced on reading a short essay entitled "thoughts on te nets." The sentiments there expressed are well calculated to remove that obscurity which envelops the divine character, and to convey consolation and comfort to the heart longing to have some comprehensible object, to whom to address the grateful incense of prayer and praise. From the tenets which prevail on the subject of the Divine Character, that He is a Being without body. parts or passions; it is much to be feared, that the human mind is greatbewildered in its addresses to this and that the eye ofthe mind, Gister Dof to ing fixed on any definite object, is wandering (towards the ends of the earth." it must remain an eternal truth; that no attribute or quality can exist without existing in some form, and that the human mind can have no conception of a thing, without at the same time conceiving of some form. If this be so, what has the human mind to fix on, if God is a Being without body, parts or passions?

It is surely matter of much surprise, that such sentiments respecting God should have obtained so long in the church; when it is so expressly declared by the Saviour, that He Himself is the only proper and legitimate object of worship! Hear His own words, "I and the Father are One," "No man cometh to the Father bur by Me," I am the way, the truth and the life," "I am the door by Me if any man enter," &c. He is called by the Prophet Isaih "the Mighty God, the everlusting Father!" In the Revelation "the first and the last "and to crown tion " the first and the last," and to crown all St. Paul bears testimony to the same important truth in the following remarkable passage; "in Him dwelleth all the ful-ness, of the God-head bodily!". The mind therefore, which does not, in acts of worship look to the Saviour alone, enters not by the true door, but "climbeth up some other way." In consequence of entertaining the notion of three persons in the Gudhead, christians address their prayers to God, and beseech Him to grant their requests for the sake of His Son Jesus Christ. Reader enquire with yourself what you mean when you thus address the Almighty. Do you mean according to the doctrine of the tri-personality, to include the whole of the persons in the term God? If so, why do you add at the end of the prayer, grant this for thy Son Jesus Christ's "grant this for the son sease christs sake," for this is making Christ the Son of the three persons. Why do you mention one at the end of the prayer, if all along you were addressing the whole three in unity? But if you mean by "God," the first person only, called the Father, surely you mistake in addressing thus your prayers; for if the Father be a distinct person from the Son, He has no power of granting your requests, for the Son declared when in the world, "ALL power is given to Me in heaven and in earth" Matt. 28. 18. therefore the Father (if distinct) can no longer have power to grant petitions, having entirely transferred it to the Son. Any form of prayer, therefore that does not place the crownexclusively on the head of the Redeemer, and approach Him alone, is antiscriptural and contrary to the only form of prayer given us by our Lord Himself.

These few thoughts are not written with view to controversy, but with a sincere desire to unite to a rational investigation of the scriptures of truth; to see "whether these things are so." And if I should be the happy instrument of conveying that comfort and satisfaction to the mind of any one, which my own enjoys on this most interesting subject, I shall be abundantly rewarded. Should this be thought worthy a place in your useful paper, you will by permission probably hear again rom a

[FROM THE UNION.].

That the trading part of the community is suffering the inconveniences arising the information attainable, in respect to from a scarcity of money is acknowledge our relation with Spain, the conduct of the ed by every observer; but the best method of remedying or palliating the evil not yet been agreed upon by the political physicians. If we can ascetain the original cause of the disease, it will probably lead us to the adoption of the means of curing it. By some it is ascribed to the banks—by others to the absorption of our specie by the East India trade; some think the effect is chargeable to the decay of our manufactories, together with an excessive importation of foreign produce and manufactures. Beyond all doubt, the last mentioned has been the primary and most powerful agent, and has genetrain of natural; if not inevitable, consequences, following the existence of he first, as the shade follows the substance.

That we have been following an un-profitable business is clearly deducible from the facts before us,—which we daily see and feel, and must continue to see and feel, until the only remedy shall be applied which can have any permanent effect.—The balance of trade is against us. Were this not the case, the present state of things could not exist, unles our funds were locked up in foreign countries by some not unusually existing cause. Let us turn to private life for an illustration.—While the merchant or the mechanick follows a business which yields the usual (living) profit, now can he become a debtor, unless his funds are not at his command? The same question may with propriety be asked respecting a community, and will apply with the same force: the evils necessarily resulting from our past transactions, will continue until the balance of trade becomes even, or turns in our favour. We have bought too much, and sold too littles and though we may have can we discharge our debts. In our tempts to do this, our produce or our arcie must disappear. If the first.wan named by pur creditors, all would soon well; but as this is not the case, the set will take unto itself wings and fly .wa," in spite of legislative restrictions to prevent it; and whenever we shall be placed on the croditor side of the ar-count, no restrictions will be necessary, as the natural course of the specie current will then be inward.

The excessive importation of foreign goods since the peace of 1815, caused a decline in the prosperity of domestick manufactories, and also a demand for a reat quantity of circulating medium. This was soon satisfied by the numerous banks which were about that time esta-blished, and increased the facility of making additional importations, by keep-ing up a delusive appearance of wealth; while money, except by its representa-tive, Bank Bills, was in reality scarce. Thus the prices of all articles of domestick produce and manufacture became enhanced, while those of articleo of foreign origin were reduced; and as far as these circumstances extended to Manunetures, the saie of the foreign and domestick were regulated. Thus our real wealth was diminishing, while our expenses were proportionally increasing. The mania of speculation raged on, as it will rage while it has any thing to sup. port it. Our traders speculated beyond the line of common prudence, supported by issues of worthless paper, until the glutted state of the-market, and the diffaulty of making pap, arrested their progress. By this time our manufacturers were nearly ruined. Our produce had increased in price so much at home that it could no longer be sold to a profit in foreign markets; and perhaps the crisis would then have arrived; but the esta-blishment of a Bank, with an enormous capital, gave fresh vigour to speculation, which freely indulged in _____, pay day has at last arrived; the Banks want their money, or fear they will be involved in the distress which may overtake many a mad speculator, or imprudent trader, and now the "hue and cry" is raised "the Banks," the cruel Banks—the wolf, the wolf-would be equally just; they did indeed offer us money. They wished to lend it;—it is the life of their business, but who compelled us to borrow it? Did not our wisdom sleep? were we so thoughtless, so imprudent as in forget to calculate on repaying them? What part of the profits of our speculations was to be theirs if they had been successful? None certainly.-Then why complain, if like the man in the fable, who not sharing the prize (an axe) which the other found likerise, refused to participate in the danger of a discovery. — We night to have fore-Been the consequences of such conduct and been, prudent while prudence could avail us; some knowing ones said long ago: "If voo purchase so much foreign goods, and discourage domestick manufactures -unless you can sell' sufficient produce to pay your expenses, you will impoverish the country. They predicted what has come to pass; but, "who hath believed when report?" they were like the daughter. of Priam, laughed at; yet the evil has come, and the smile of derinion is changed to the gloom of regret.

. 7 am not satisfied with any of the nos-

tiums which the quacks recommeded by way of remedy, hecause none of them can do more than put off the evil day a little longer. While we are in debt our produce or specie will be absorbed by the discharge of it. Loans from government to our merchants must be repaid, and in that case we only change our creditor, and add to the quantity of paper currency. Yet we need not despair, the re-action of the causes which have produced our embarrass-ment will effect its removal. The banks from motives of apprehension and corpo rate interest, aided by other causes will withdraw part of their notes from circulation, and make the remainder more valuable, because they will then be the legitimate representatives of specie. The East andia trade as well as that to Europe, will probably become less in the nomina amount, but afford a larger profit. We shall then ponder over the value of our dollars, before we pay them away for our foreign luxuries, and those who deal in them will cease to import largely what they can no longer readily sell. Some manufactories may revive from their ashes; our expenses will be lessened; and as a people, we shall again be the creditors But before these results can be expected, the commercial standing of all will be severely tested, and that of some destroyed: but publick good will result from partial evil. The storm which wrecks many a fair fabrick passes off, and a tranquil atmos phere succeeds.

A late Liverpool Advertiser says " the bank of the Willow tree burnt to ashes mixed with strong vinegar and applied to the parts, will remove all WARTS, CORNS, or excrescences on any part of the human body."-Perhaps the above retipe may be worth an experiment.

The grand jury of Burke have present ed Mary Cammell as a common scold, and disturber of the peaceable inhabitants of that county. We do not know the penalty or if there be any attached to the offence of scolding—but for the information of our Burke neighbors, we would inform them that the late lamented and distinguished Judge Farly, decided some years since, when a modern Kantippe was brought be-foire him, that she should undergo the punishment of lustration, two immersion three several times in the Oconee. Accordingshe was confined to the tail of a cart, and accompanied by the hootings of the mob, conducted to the river, where she was publicly, ducked, in conformity with the sentence of the court. Should this punishment be awarded Mary Cammel, we hope however, it may be attended with a more salutary effect, than the case we have just alluded to-the unruly subject of which, each time as she arose from the watery element, impiously exclaimed, with a ludicrous gravity of countenance, "glory to G-d.
