The following report was incorrectly noticed in the proceedings of Friday the 28th ult. we now publish it corrected.

Mr. Foster from the committee raised on the 1st Nov. last to enquire into the expediency of extending by law the appellate jurisdiction of the Inferior Courts of Common Pleas in this state; to cases tried by juries in the Courts for the tria of small causes, antl to cases adjudicated in the said courts in the defendant's absence;" and to whom was also referred the resolution of Nov. 3d, relative to the constitutionality and expediency of se faraltering the law and practice of trials by juries in civil causes, in the respective court? of this state, as respects the qualifications of the jurors, and requiring unanimity in the members in order to making a verdict effectual," on the 28th of Jan.

made the following REPORT:

That in their opinion it is inexpedient o extend by any legislative act, the appellate jurisdiction of the said courts to the cases above mentioned.

It is considered tlint the rights of the parties are amply protected and secured by the salutary provisions of existing laws; and an appeal from the verdict of a jury would he an anomaly in our long establish ed system of jurisprudence.

The committee further report: That to legalize, by any legislative provision, a verdict rendered by the agreement of any less. number than the whole of a jury. would, in their opinion, be unconstitutional, ip any case—the committee consider unanimity essential to a verdict. As relates to the qualifications of jurors, the committee are of opinion; that it would be inexpedient to alter the present law and practice - Which report was read, and ordered to lie on the table. On the 1st Feb. this report was called up, discussed, and unanimously concurred in by the house.

Barley Coffee.—It is a fact perhaps unknown to most of our farmers, that Bar ley, when properly prepared, affords a beverage so similar, both in taste and color, to the bestgreen cotfee, that nine persons out of ten cannot discover the differ ence. This fact I now know by experi ence. At first it was with difficulty overcame iny-own and the prejudices of my family in favor of colfee so far as to give the barley a single trial; but having clone so, I tested the truth of the experiment, and have continued in the use of it ever since, which is now about six months. The savins which this has made fur one article of family consumption is considerable. My family formerly used two pounds of coffee per week, which for six mouths, at 50 cents per lb. the lowest price it has sold for some time past, would be 52 lbs. or 26 dollars; now for the same term of time they have used at the rate of half sive. a bushel of barley per month, which, at one dollar per bushel, the retail prices would be three bushels, or three 'dollars.' In other words, the use of foreign coffee, torone year, will cost me fifty two dollars in specie, whereas the use of barley raised that the deficiency, for a number of sucin my own neighborhood, will cost me onlly six dollars in the currency of the state making an annual saving of 46 dollars to me family. Now it will readily be admitted, that there are in Ross at least same proportion, the deficiency might be 1000 families—these, if they would aban-readily supplied. Bur reason and exdou the use of coffee for barley, would proportion, the deficiency might be perience, forbid the expectation of such a duce a saving of 46,000 dolls, annually to tlie county. It is ascertained that the inerchants of Chilicothe alone, import coffee to the amount of 40,000 dollars — this certainly requires 40,000 dollars of our products to pay for. Is it not very plain, then., that if we stop the use of Coffee, by substituting Barley in its place, there will he an annual saving to the country of 40,000 in favor of our own products, which must be returned to us in specie instead of coffee. This sum alone kept in circulation among us, would in-sensibly relieve the difficulty of the times. Economy is progressive, aid goes from individuals to families, thence to counties, states and governments. In times like the present, when we are hedged in with difficulties, none should hesitate to try an experiment so simple, where the advantages are obviously so great. Beware of little expenses, and remember 'that a penny saved is two pence earned. The manner of preparing barley is as Follows:—Take clean good barleyand wash it well through two or three waters, in order to seperate the dust, light and blight ed grains; thes put it into boiling water over the fire, and let it holl until it swells sufficient to burst some of the grains; then take it off, and drain it and dry it in tile sun, or in any oven after baking, or it may be dried slowly by the fire. It is then ready to parch as coffee, but be careful not to burn it; grind and use it, as you would coffee, clearing it with eggs. Barley used in this way, I have known to deceive some of the best judges. Rve anti wheat, treated in the same way, answers the purpose, but it is not so good as-bar-

A receipt for making Manure from Clay. On a spot of clay ground take half a cord of good dry wood, cut it of different over the pile of wood one thickness-uext make a channel from, the centre of the wood to the outward edge of the circle in tended to be occupied by the hody of clay-This channel must be formed of sads or turf, and a foot in height by a foot in breadth, in form of an arch—it is for the purpose of setting fire to the pile and keeping up a current of air to tlie centre. Thus prepared, dig up the clay round about, and throw it on the pile, covering the whole with an equal thickness, two four, six, eight, ten or more feet, and set the wood on fire, keeping the channel open tu admit air; tlie mass becomes heated in a short time, and the whole bo dy of clay burns until it decomposes and is reduced to ashes; the longer it burns the greater tlie heat, and tlic quantity may be increased at pleasure without any additional fuel—care must be taken night and day that tlie fire does not break forth, and some sods or clay should be kept constant ly ready to prevent the heat from escaping until a sufficient quantity, is obtained. (as long as it is fed it will never cease burning.) When enough is burned, let it alone, the fire will break out and soon exting guish. When cool, the ashes thus produced are fit for use, and may be put on clay land in the same manner as wood ashes, and will have an astonishing effect in producing prodigious crops of either grass, grain, or any vegetable substance. It is a cheap and very lasting manure, and was communicated from a quaker in England to Mr. Meriott, near Hudson, from whom i learned this, and, by actual experiment last year, proved its astonishing utility. Prohibitory Duties.

OFFICIAL' REPORT ctter from the Secretary of the Treasury, trans-mitting to Congress a report on the subject of prohibiting the importation of Cotton, woolen, and Iron Manufactures, and his opinion of the effect such prohibition will have on the Revenue of the United States.

Treasury Department, 27th Jan. 1820. SIR: In obedience to a resolutiori of the House of Representatives, of the 4th instant, directing the Secretary of the Treasurv "to inform the' House what reducin his opinion, it will matte in the revenue, if the importation of cotton and woollen manufactures, and iron, be prohibited, and in what manner, the deficit in the revenue may be supplied, should the prohibition be made." I have the honor to submit statements of the amount of revenue which accrued from those articles, from the year 1815 tu 1818, inch-

'I'he very great difference in the amount, of revenue which accrued during those years, renders it difficult to determine what the reduction would be, should the prohibition be enforced. It is probable Pig and castings Sheet, rod & hoop ceasive years, would amount to the average sum of six millions of dollars.
If an increase of the rate of duty would necessarily augment the revenue in the perience, forbid the expectation of such a result. The importation of foreign merchandise is regulated by the capacity of the importing country to pay an equivalent for them: Any increase of duty diminishes this capacity. When carried to an extreme, it amounts to prohibition. But the revenue will frequently be dirninconsumption of the article is riot diminshed. Whenever the duty is raised so high as to equal the risk incurred by an attempt to introduce dutiable articles illicitly smuggling, upon an extensive and systematic plan, commences. In that case, not only their consumption, but the capacity to pay for them, mag be increased, whilst the revenue may be diminished.

Considering the facilities which the ex tent of our coasts and frontiers, and the numerous harbors, bays inlets and river., by which they are indented furnish for the illicit introduction of foreign merchandize, the settled policy of the government has been to diminish, as far as practicable the temptation which high duties would furnish & take advantage of those facilities. Should the existing duties he consid erably raised, there is just ground to apprehend that the revenue would he reduc ed, rather than augmented, by the change. Indeed, there is jus: reason to believe, that with the present rate of duty, the practice of smuggling is gradually increasng. Any attempt to raise the deficiency is would create to employ a great number of officers of the customs, ro guard against

From the National Intelligencer, Feb. 8. The Macedonian Frigate. Letters have been received from the Macedonian, (fated Valparaiso, Oct. 12th, 1819, from which we learn that she sailed on the 25th of April, from that port for the islied by an incréase of duty, when the coast of Mexico, and in consequence of a rrquest on the part of the Chinian governmerit, passed the port of Lima withoutera-tering it. This, captain Downs was in-duced to do in return for the friendly reception and great civilities he had met with at Valparaiso, and from a desire to avoid every thing like collision with the officers of the government. The port of Lima being at the tirne blockaded by the naval forces of Chili, and the anxiety expressed on the part of the commanding officer of the British forces in that sea, that Capt. Downs should first attempt to force the blockade (added to having no business there which required he should do so) this discreet conduct must command our approbation. After leaving Valparaiso, Capt. Downs ran down the coast and anchored at Arrica, for a few hours, and thence proceeded off the port of Lina, where he fell in with the Chilian Brig of war, Galvarino, the only vessel then blockading the port. She was commanded by a Lieut, of the British Navy, who stated that it was not the intention of the Admiral to enforce the blockade of Peru which will he produced by the prohibition under consideration, by an increase of duty upon the articles which will still be imported, will greatly increase the expense of collection, by the necessity which it would create to employ a great number. and plundered Payta, and several plantasmuggling, and eventually fail to augment tions on the coast, of sugar, rum and house-the revenue te the required extent. In aid of either of these modes of auginent, or setting of the dew-water, were in a system of internal duties, or several others were trading at other ports at Guaruney—the Beaver, at Truxillo, and in a greater quantity, blacker and richer, than that of the rain-water.'

Dew is therefore, more fertilizing, and this is the reason why lands will be more benefited by being constantly ploughed when the dewis on them.

To ascertain whether any of these ships had been molested by the Admiral, Capt. Downs proceed to Guaruney, where he arbenefited by being constantly ploughed articles. If a system of internal duties, or several others were trading at other ports at the coast, to witt the brig Macedonian; at Guaruney—the Beaver, at Truxillo, and the ship Two Catharines' at Guaruney—the Beaver, at Guaruney—the Beaver at Guaruney—th should be deemed, at this time, advisea. Governor great civility.

After refreshing at Goyaquil, the Macedonian sailed for St. Blass, where she arrived on the 20th July, add found the Lwo Catharines.

During her stay at St. Blass they were visited every night by severe lightning, in which the Two Catharines suffered severely, and to the assistance rendered by Captain Downs may be attributed the sal-

From St. Blass Capt. Downs proceeded o Accapulco, where she took in water and refreshments, and returned to Valparaiso.

It was expected that the Macedonian would sail in a few days for the Gulf of California, running down the coast of Chili and Peru, and touching at Panama, ts well with a view to ascertain the inten-tions of Lord Cochrane as regards out com'merce, as to afford such assistance and com merce, as to allow such the such any protection as might be required by any 36,863 American ships he may fall in with: On the Macadonian to Valparai. the return of the Macedonian to Valparateso, she there found the British commodore, where he had been laying ais months without lifting his anchor. District of Columbia. Mr. Pinkney rose to offer a resolution. He remarked, that in the year 1812 the legislature of South Carolina passed a law to prevent duelling, which had had great effect in putting a stop to; but it was discovered that, in certain cessions of territory in the harbor of Charleston and elsewhere, to the Uiiited States, the stare had omitted to retain a proper jurisdiction over the ceded ground, upon which, consequently, the state authority could not go, either to prevent the violation of the state laws, or to arrest those who liad fied from justice. With the view of remedying this evil, he moved the adoption of the following resolution, which was read and agreed

Resolved, That a committee he appoint ed to consider of the expediency of restoring to all the states the jurisdiction of the territory ceded to them for forts and arsenals, so far as respects the execution of their state laws for the prevention and punishment of crimes, and recovery of

SINKING FUND. There is a law of the United States appro. priating annually of the receipts into the Trea. sury, ten millions of dollars for the payment of the interest, and the gradual redemption of the Public Debt. This is called the sinking fund, and is placed at the disposition of the commissioners of this fund, for the purpose of applica. tion to the object above specified. There has ilot for some time past, antl there will not for some time to come, a sufficient amount of this. debt fallen due to absorb the whole of the sum sei apart. The commissioners were therefore authorised by act of Congress to buy in debt not due, provided it could be obtained at par. Notwithstanding the extreme embarrassment of the times, it has been difficult to procure it on these

If this fund is continued, and undue debt cannot he obtained, at par, it seems by a report of the Secretary of the Treasury, made in pursuance of certain resolutions adopted by the House on the 17th ult. that on the 31st of January 1824 there will remain unapplied of this fund the sum of $22,074,339 77 cents, as very little of the funded stock falls due before that time-A question seems to be presented, whether a portion of this fund shall be diverted to the current purposes of the government, or whether it be suffered to accumulate.-Ly ought to be kept in view, that after 1824 the war loans falls due as rapidly as we shall probably be enabled to manage them.

A number of expedients seems to be entertained in order to avoid additional taxes.—The only effectual method of preventing it for any considerable time; however, must be a reduction of the public expenditures-A thing which will be attempted on a pretty large scale before the :lose of the Session.

, FOR THE WHIG. From a Father to a Son. Letter II.

I early discovered even when you was quite a child, that your disposition was too irritable, for your own comfort, and that it often disturbed the peace of those about you. That you was inclined to be offenued without due reflection, and to carry your resentment when raised to an unreasonable height. This was sometimes manifested by an unwarrantable demean. or towards your school-mates, and even your brothers and sisters, to the inffliction in a few instances of corporeal punishment, thereby usurping the authority of your superiors.

These circumstances gave me.uneasi ness, and indicated the performance on my part of the imperious duty, of endeavoring to make you sensible of the impro-priety of such indulgence. You recollect the many chidings and expostulations received from me in regard to it—How that I warned you of the unpleasant effects in yourself—that must necessarily ensue from countenancing such a spirit, as well as the pain it would inflict on others -was happy to observe as you advanced in age, that you imposed considerable restraints upon this constitutional sin. Does it comport with a manly spirit, to fly in a passion, and unmercifully heat an irrational animal because of a little restiveness or perversion? Is it becoming an intelligent and social being, to be petulant, antl illnatured, ever ready to resent arid chastise conduct in others, not altogether agreeable to our expectations or wishes? The wise will not do thus.—Do you imagine yourself badly treated by the slanderous tongue of another? — May be he hath not said it—a tale bearer may have aggravated the expression, at which you are offended, but if otherwise, how would you fare if the truth was given in evidence. If a great deal lias been said injurious to your reputation, it is ten to one but that part of it is true. If the innocent were commissioned, would you, dare throw the first, stone—are pour irritated at what you esteem an overt act of injustice? Remember you are an interested judge -The person to whom you complain views the transaction E dare say through a different medium. I would not wish you insensible to injuries and insults, when wantonly inflicted, they ought to be resented and resisted. I only ask that this should be done in a suitable manner, that you should not receive more harm in avenging yourself. than your enemy lias done to you. - In jour future intercourse., with the world, let the preceding consideration serve as a check to a tetiiper naturally impetuous. and which I know it will require much watchfulness to keep, but do not despair of success; you will be amply rewarded far every victory' you gain—and thus by degrees bring your passions into that sub. jection, which io essential to your happi-Yours, &c.

anth sides of the subject in as concise a manner a could conveniently be done.

The Appendix is designed to illustrate the last consideration in the work, by shewing wherein confinement for grand farceny has failed of producing the beneficial effection templated.

The price when bound and lettered in a neat disolecimo volume, will be one dolfar.

To this will be added the essays of the celebrated late Dr. Rush on the punishment of death, for crimes and the effects of public punishment for grand larcency.

RECOMMENDATION.

for grand larcency,

I have read a manuscript treatise of Mr I homson, on the subject of capital punishments The arguments are judicious and well arranged and the deductions from them are, in my opinion First. It is well calculated to disseminate correct principles on the subject, and I therefore recommend it as worthy of general perusal and patron, age.
