We are sure that no ministry could be tolerated by the cortes, who should have been disposed to make such concessions as would aone satisfy the French government .--One letter from Paris contained in the London papers, says-It is expected

The last advices froni Mexico, were of the 14th of March; tile emperor was then at Tacebays, hearing of this, despatched to Puebla two commissioners, gen. Negrete, and Herrera, secretary of state, to treat in some manner for the preservation of hunself and his crown. On their arrival, gen. Negrete immediately embra-ced the popular cause, and Herrera returned without any particular audience with the republican chiefs. The empe-ror then proposed to establish the con-igress and to proceed agreeably to its decrees. This was refused, and a denand was made of his crown, with a promise of protection to hu person, until a congress should convene, who alone sliould direct in what mauner he should be disposed of.

On the 21st of March, a despatch was received at Vera Cruz, dated at Puebla, on the 14th, stating that' the army was to move from that place on the following day to surround lturbide. BRIDGETON, SATURDAY, APRIL 19, 1823.

Agricultural Society .- Our paper last week contained a statement of tlie premiums offered by the board of man agers of the agricultural society. To us they appear judicious, but we know not how far we are competent tojudge. But the object of our present remarks death, but to a merciless imprisonment is intended to draw the attention of for 10, 20, and 30 year+-nag, even bur readers to the communication of for life, without their being able to as Mr. WELLS of Dividing Creek, on tbe culture of Sweet Potatoes. That previously but an imperfect knowledge uf the method of raising them, worth several years' subscription to the agricultural society. We do not exaggerate when we say, that if the society were to gain nothing more by their efforts than that article, they would be well compensated .-- but they have more to gain, and the time is not distant, when, for the little trouble and expense each member incurs, he will reap a golden collected from our enterprizing and enlightened fellow citizens in every section of our county.

> ceves, of the town of SALEM, nas pro tieen for a long time a regular correspendence between our neiglibours of izens, desirous to pass on business, or n visits, from the one place to the othir, are unable to do so for the want of public conveyance, they having no rivate one. To promote a geaeral inercourse between the two places must certainly be productive of much good. makes us better known to and more social and friendly with each other. Indeed the difficulty of communicating between these towns has long been, and continues to be felt. Such an establishment as is now proposed to be undertaken, should be encouraged by the citizens of both places. How much can be saved to the inhabitants of both towns by a stageman of approved character who would serve as a factor for passions is surely an evidence that the now conducted, they do honor to our listrict. It has always afforded us great pleasure to observe the unlimited confidence of the public in the drivers employed, and the high character they sustain for honesty and punctuality. On a late occasion, in making some necessary observations on this subject to a gentleman in Philadelphia, we discovered that our veracity was put to risk by his incredulity, supposing it impossible to find a driver of stages in any place fit to be trusted. We convinced him of his error, and the gentleman after admitting our statenients said, that if we did not stand higher, we must at least stand as high in this respect as any place in the world ! We do not by these observations, intend to compliment either the drivers of our stages. or the stage owners for considering so deeply as they do their own and the public interest by making such a discriminating acd judicious choice ; our remarks were occasioned by the circumstance noticed above-the proposal to run a stage to and from Salemand in making these observations we have no objects or interests to subserve.

The late gale, which has been so destructive in other sections of our country, did but little injury in this district. We have not heard of any damage being sustained by it in this neighbourhood. Several vessels belonging to this harbour were however sunk or otherwise injured on ttie Delaware river and in the harbour of Philadelphia. One vessel driven ashare on the river Delaware, while her bands were attempting to dig a passage for her to float into the river when the tide would rise, rolled over suddenly, before the workmen could escape, by which three of them were killed.

Duel .- A meeting, or affair of honor, (as it is usually called) lately took place near Newport, (Del.) between gen. Cadwallader, of Philadelphia, and prdfessor Pattison, of Baltimore, in which the former was wounded in the arm, The ball has not asyet been extracted, but the danger is supis intended to draw the attention of posed to be over, as the general is said to be on the recovery. These combattants stood nine feet apart. Before the professor took his station, report says communication is, to a farmer who had he informed his second that it was not his intention to kill thegen. but that he would knock the pistol out of his hand -and his ball took a direction within an inch of the spot he intended to strike. The gen. was taking deliberate aim when he received the wound ; his pistol was not discharged; he fell, and on the doctor's advancing, offered his hand in token of reconciliation.

Fighting duels seems to be a magical way of teaching politeness. A Frenchman once said that an Englishman never learned the rules of politeness until he visited Paris - was shot five times, and run seven times through the body.

The origin of this duel will go far to We understand that Mr. Thomas show that the terms honor, politeness, he gentleman, dignity, nobleness of posed, (if sufficient encouragement be mind, and all those words intended given to warrant the undertaking,) to to denote qualifications of an intelun a stage between that town and lectual or moral character, aye not this place, once a week. There has riot always well understood by those who make the greatest pretentions to them; that they are in fact mere epithets, or Salem and us. Many of our fellow. cit. fools, it ypu please, which some men make use of - and very adroitly too-to mask feelings and purposes which, were they 'exposed, would rank thein no higher than those plebian qualifications would, which they so much pretend to despise. Fighting duels is an outrage on religion, and on morals. It is a public declaration by the parties that they hate each other-that forgiveness, temperance of feeling, charity, magnanimity, reconciliation, &c. make up no part of their characters, and that in their hearts they cherish the ranklings of animosity, which is the offspring of pride and malice. It is an evidence that the laws of man are preferred to the laws of God, and that while they use all possible precaution to avoid violating the letter of the one, they shew the utmost possible contempt for the other. The indulgence of the vindictive

Profes or Pattison, who came a few years since from Edinburgh, has had, since his arrival in the United States, a very unpleasant controversy with the Medical School of Philadelphia, bat more especially with Dr. Chapman, who appears to have volunteered his

for the sake of destroying his reputation if he had any, or of proving had none where it was supposed he had. In the free exchange of abuse which passed between them, from which neither of the parties had any thing to gain, and both much to lose, Dr. Pattison defended himself so ably. flat professor Chapman, who began the dispute, and who was up willing to sustain a defeat, was compelled to enter into the business with all the spirit of a man who had his eye steadily fixed on the end, without at all times attending to the means. In the early part of this quarrel with pen and types, Dr. C. in the ardour of his zeal, forgot his accustomed politeness and insulted Dr. P. Something in the character of a challenge was sent to Dr. C. who refused to fight on account of religious scruples. Dr. P. was arrested by the municipal authorities of Philadelphia, but soon afterwards liberated at the instance of Dr. C. Some time after this, Dr. P. was called to a professo ship in the Medical Collage of Mar land. Keoccasionally visited Philadelphia, and one time while going along one of the streets of tliat city alone, Dr. C. while walking with his wife, discovered him. After recommending to his spouse to proceed ance such diabolical and murderous on her course, telling her he had a sud- proceedings, and they will soon be no den call to attend to some business, he left her, turned a corner, antl overtaking professor Pattison, and at the same moment forgetting his religious scruptes, le began, sans ceremonie, with his walking cane to convince his friend by argumentum baculinum that he was a scoundrel, and deserved his wrath. Professor P. not consenting to this method of demonstration-feeling unpleasant under the cane plaster, and president having declined the appoint believing like an experienced professor, that this subsultory application might, if continued, prove detrimental, took the liberty to remonstrate with his brother, who, tenacious of the doctrines of his school would not be persuaded of it, until professor P. by superior forc hegan tu demonstrate by an a posteriori argument, that he was wrong. However, before he had fairly proceeded through more than one syllogism, the spouse of Dr. C. who had followed to the scene of combat, fearing the life of a valuable officer. argument might make too forcible an impression, interposed, and the gallant Scotchman yielded to her eloquence, what he would not do to the Professor's practice. This affray was followed up by volumes of recrimination and abuse, and so indefatigable was Dr. C: that he had many editions of some pamphlets, written with an intent to destroy the moral reputation of professor P. printed and published simultaneously in different sections of the U. States, in order, as he said, that all or. ders of society down to the very sweep chimney might peruse his history. These circumstances were the ori gin of the late duel. Dr. Chapman is brother in-law to gen. Cadwallader, the following manner to transfer the ling them one word about how much guarrel to himself, that he might avenge it, as he had fewer scruples against fighting .- Let it be remembered that we think every man ought to have scruples against fighing, but then they should be consistent scruples it. heart which does so is allied to all Washington, some gentlemen in Phitimable quality. It is like persuading Of the dancing committee gen. C. was the devil to be worse than he is, and a manager. Professor Pattison was giving him assistance to secure his desirous to attend, and directed a friend to make application for a ticket.

It is perhaps no more tlian' we owe Gen. C. hearing that such an applicaour readers, to give a brief bistory of tion was about to be made, requested the cause of this quarrel. Our reason the other managers not tu given ticket, for so doing is this-the gentlemen and he would be responsible. A refuwho have fought are in respectable and sal was given on the ground that Dr. 1. high standing in society; and many of was no gentleman, and of course was mose who do not rank so high in life. followed by a letter from the Doctor think it no barm to follow a:: example, for an explanation. The soldier, anti pract sed by those whom the world call cipating this, replied that he was ready virtu us and honorable, and whom it sive an explanation if the Doctor build appoint the time and place of seeting. The result we have stated.

The above particulars are as nearly prect as the last information afloat ill afford. The strangeness of gen. 's, conduct in considering Dr. P. as o gentleman, anti then meeting him as uch, subjects him very justly to cenure. But this part of his conduct aside, was there riot an absurdity in risking his life with a young man. while 'Re had a wife arid five or st children, of whom he was the natural uardian, and to whom he owed supeior obligations? Surely it was not he path of honor to sasrifice, or even o place at bazard, thie happiness of a ife of n fellow being, merely because e or any other person had a quarrel vith him. Surely there is no magnalimity, no greatness of mind, no digniy, in running headlong info broils to tain it. new bravery; or give an evidence that he person doing so is not afraid to die. True courage consists not in this. The uan who cannot gain a victory over he intemperance of his own feelings, will never rank high io the scale of excellence. We sincerely regret that zen. Cadwallader, a gentleman who stands high in the estimation of the public, should tarnish his fame by such conduct. We have been told that this quarrel is not ended-that others are about to open anew the campaign and that professor P. will have anothe opportunity to try his skill. Such be ing the report, it should be the duty o every individual who has the ability, te use his utmost exertions to discounten mure known among us.
