[From the Charleston Times.]

Messrs. EDITORS,

I had indulged a hope, that an abler and better correspondent would have before this, furnished you with a faithful portrait of the great and good man, to whose talents and whose virtues I have inscribed the following brief memorial of my affection. His long and successful labors in the vineyard of the gospel, and his unremitting attention to the godly health of the church over which he presided, presented the most authoritative claims to public notice. It is meet and proper that such a man, so amiable in all the exercises of his duty, should not pass away, without presenting to the view of those who did not know him, the very "form and pressure" of his genius and his virtues. To those who have shared the pleasure of his social intercourse, and listened to the mild and instructive flow of his conversation, it would be unnecessary. Though he has departed, and the eye can no more see him, the light of recollection pierces through the gloom of the grave, and mantles o'er those endearing traits of mind and heart, which rendered him so beloved by such as knew their value, while he was present with us.

OBITUARY NOTICE

OF THE LATE REV. WILLIAM HOLLINSHEAD, A. B. AND D. D.

Departed this transitory life, on the evening of the 26th January, in the present year of our Lord, 1817, the venerable and pious Dr. William Hollinshead, for thirty years and more a Pastor of the Independent or Congregational Church in this city. After a long and distressing period of mental as well as bodily affliction, the united effects of persecution and disease, he closed an useful and honorable career, in the 68th year of his age, and 33d of his pastoral charge. To those of his congregation who loved and visited him in the last seasons of his earthly pilgrimage, he exhibited one of those endearing spectacles, to the contemplation of which the fondest feelings of the heart return with mournful satisfaction. Through the long and protracted period of his excruciating illness, he was never heard to murmur or repine, or manifest the slightest degree of impatience. He suffered in silence, and awaited the moment of his dissolution with that calmness and serenity of mind which philosophy first implants, and religion perfects.

He was early devoted to the Gospel of his God and Saviour, and preached it with a fervency of zeal, a benignity of soul, and an eloquence of manner, that at once bore ample testimony of his faith as an Apostle, his love as a Philanthropist, and his accomplishments as a scholar. In the hearts of those of his congregation who in life revered his virtues and honored his intelligence, his melancholy and untimely death has left a sensation "too big for utterance, and too deep for tears."

Some time in the year 1783 or 4, in consequence of the repeated applications of the members and supporters of the "Independent or Congregational Church" of this city, the reverend subject of this Biographical Sketch, assumed its pastoral charge. He left a religious community in a spine part of the state of New Jersey, who loved and honored him, and it was with the utmost difficulty that they would permit him to accept his call. They held a public meeting, and entered into an unanimous resolution, expressive of their sincere and unaffected sorrow in parting with so excellent and well-esteemed a Pastor. It was without the advice of the General Presbytery, that he did finally leave them.

The church over which he was called to preside, at that time exhibited the most melancholy and repulsive aspect. It was torn and agitated by dissension, rent asunder by the conflicts of brother against brother, while a spirit, very unlike the spirit of the gospel had poisoned the fountains of their waters of life. The number of the faithful was daily diminishing, and the evil one was rejoicing in the gladness of his heart. At this momentous crisis he commenced his pastoral labors, and such was the success of his ministry, that many were added, as jewels to his crown of glory—numbers were recalled from their backsliding—charity again brightened the bands of affection, and Zion no longer mourned in sack-cloth and ashes.

As a Pastor, he was uniformly zealous, and distributed the bread of life with fidelity and love. The lustre of his belief, whose shining was as "the brightness of a light from Heaven," has directed many a thirsty soul to those wells of Salvation, whose pure and renovating waters have healed the leprosy of their sins. He was nothing of a Cynic—nor was his devotion sullen, unsocial or melancholy. It was the sacrifice of an heart that loved, adored and apprehended the spirit which it worshipped. It was the offering of feeling on the altar of affection, the homage of a rational being, to the inconceivable virtue and intelligence of the God-Head. Though free from the austerity and gloom of the cloister, it was chastened with sobriety, and tempered with all that is beautiful in holiness. His heart was warm, generous and social—"open us the way to all the melting charities of life." It was always serene and unruffled, and when indulging in the luxury of the social circle, it dilated with love and good humor.

As an Orator, his eloquence was of the highest and most distinguished order of excellence. Though decorated and adorned with every image that classic elegance could pencil on the tablet of the mind, it was by no means gaudy or affected. It embraced in its character, all the simplicity and energy of the Gospel, ornamented with every flower of the ancient scholols. It was persuasive in the fullest acceptation of the term. He won us to the contemplation of things to come, and bade us look more to the beauty of holiness, and the loveliness of mercy, than to the tenor of the law, or the horrors of the final judgment. He presented to the "mind's eye" but few, if any of those ghastly and terrific pictures, which bewilder the weak, and distract the ignorant, into a temporary and maddening belief of their religion. He drew us gently, as with a chord of love to a view of the beneficence of Heaven showering down its blessings to prolong our existence, and make it happy; He led us to the Cross of our Saviour, and presented to us his sufferings for the redemption of our race, and his exceeding love in this his last act of affection. No heart was there so unfeeling that remained unmoved—no bosom that did not dilate into gratitude.

Such was his affability, that all who approached him, loved him.

In the polished circles of the first orders of society, his conversation was elegant and instructive—his manners easy, graceful and accomplished. They were not modelled upon any established rules of etiquette, but were the offspring of the natural urbanity of his mind.

In the desolate room of sickness and disease, he was ever kind, affectionate and tender, pouring the balm of consolation into the wounded mind and broken spirit.

In the sacred Pulpit, from which he spoke of things to come, like another Paul he spoke to the hearts of his hearers—rouped the slumbering from their repose—cautioned the careless in their deceitful security, and confirmed the steadfast in their faith.

Around the remains of this departed Saint, crowded the Widow and the Fatherless—the rich and the opulent—the poor and the afflicted—for, to all who were distinguished by their worth or talents, he had been a companion, a friend and a benefactor.

The Reverend Clergy of this city, with many of their Congregation, performed the last sad offices of love to their departed Friend and Brother. The Funeral Oration was delivered by the Rev. Mr. Forster, in his usual eloquent and pathetic manner, and the tears of a numerous assembly of various denominations of Christians, evinced the general grief which pervaded all classes of our community. He lies interred in the Family Mausoleum of Wm. Matthews, Esq.

Peace be to his reverend remains.

OBITUARY.—On Friday, April 4th, at Hanover, N. H. after a distressing illness, departed this life, with the cheering hope of a blessed immortality, the hon. John Wheelock, L. L. D. President of Dartmouth University, aged 63 years.

From the National Intelligencer, April 19.

A shocking accident occurred yesterday at Bladensburg, between ten and eleven o'clock; an explosion in the powder mill belonging to Mr. Bussard of Georgetown. The ignition of the powder took place in the pounding mill, as we understand, probably from the friction. Two men passed in a moment from time to eternity, and two others were dreadfully mangled or wounded—the one a white man with a family, the other a man of color. The injury to the works, it is understood, cannot be repaired at a less expense than five thousand dollars. The explosion, it is believed, occasioned no injury beyond the limit of the works.

Extract of a Letter, dated Rio Janeiro, 22d January, 1817.

"Two Russian ships, the Suwarrow, capt. Punfudora, of 500 tons, and the Rosa, capt. Heyemeiter, of 700 tons, sailed from this place for the Pacific Ocean, two days before my arrival. I shall soon follow them.

"When the royal family are passing here, all must take off their hats—if on horseback, dismount. Lord —, formerly the English minister here, on the royal family's passing refused to dismount—the king's guard immediately forced him from his horse. Mr. Sumpter, our American consul, refused to dismount; and being armed with his pistols, he told the guard he would shoot any one who attempted to arrest him. He got away from them, and continued mounted, being more resolute than the Englishman. Since this affair, his majesty has issued a decree, which declares that dismounting is not required of foreigners, but only to take off their hats, which no doubt will be readily acceded to." Balt. WATERTOWN, (N. Y.) March 31.

Paricide.—Three persons have lately been arrested in Lewis County, for the murder of a Mr. Waggoner. This murder was committed in the summer of 1815, in the town of Denmark—The circumstances which led to the defection of these persons, we have not heard. One of the persons apprehended for this horrid crime, is Waggoner's son—and his accomplices are his wife, and a man by the name of Buck-Buck has confessed his guilt, and shocking to relate! that young Waggoner's wife was the instigator. Her resentment to her father-in-law arose from his having detected her and Buck in criminal intercourse.

To the widows and heirs of the officers, seamen and marines of the late U. S. brig of war Epervier.

AN ACT for the relief of the widows and orphans of the officers, seamen and marines who were lost in the United States' brig Epervier.
Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America, in Congress assembled, That the widows, if any such there be; and in case there be no widow, the child or children, if there be no child, then the parents or parent, and if there be no parent, then the brothers and sisters of the officers, seamen and marines who were in the service of the United States, and lost in the brig Epervier, shall be entitled to, and receive; out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, a sum equal to six months pay of their respective deceased relatives aforesaid, in addition to the pay due to the said deceased on the 14th day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifteen, to which day the arrears of pay due the deceased be allowed and paid by the accounting officers of the Navy Department.
[Passed 3d of March, 1817.]

Worthy of Imitation.—The following resolution of the court of Gloucester county, signed by twenty-six members in March Term last, we think ought to be followed by the courts generally in the State. It will tend more directly to the suppression of vice and immorality, than any other measure that could be adopted:

NOTICE TO TAVERN-KEEPERS.

STATE OF NEW-JERSEY,
Gloucester County, ss. }

Whereas divers Tavern-keepers are in practice of permitting disorderly persons to be fiddling and dancing in their respective inns, inducing the unwary youth and others to rendezvous and carouse in their respective taverns.

Also of permitting strolling vagrants, from time to time, to exhibit plays, shows, &c. Also, of permitting several species of gaming, in and about their houses. Also, of permitting and encouraging a number of idle persons to resort to their respective houses, on the first day of the week, called Sunday, and to be tippling, drinking, and corrupting each other.

All which conduct and practices evidently promote vice and immorality, distress, and beggar families, and are in themselves repugnant to the laws of God, and the moral laws of men; a mere nuisance to society, and destructive to posterity.

Wherefore resolved, That as members of the aforesaid court, we will not license, or renew the license of any person or persons as a tavern-keeper, who shall directly or indirectly be guilty of, or permit any such conduct, or shall permit any such person or persons so to act in their respective house or houses, or shall countenance or permit any such conduct in or about their respective taverns.

And that we will oppose the license of each and every person or persons who shall be guilty, directly or indirectly, of a violation of these rules, or shall permit or encourage any such conduct in or about their respective houses, after the publication of these resolutions, and public notice thereof to the Innkeepers.

Witness our hands, &c.

NEW YORK, April 21.

VERY LATE PROM EUROPE.

Last evening arrived at this port, the elegant and fast sailing packet ship Comet, capt. Center, in 35 days from Havre.

Captain C. was detained in the port of Havre above 40 days by head winds, and sailed from thence on the 15th March.

By this arrival, we learn, that France was tranquil. Breadstuff had fallen a little; the cargo of rice, of the ship James M. was sold at Mavre for 45 francs per cwt. Cotton was dull.

The British parliament on the 4th of March, suspended the habeas corpus act.

Captain Center has politely favoured the editors of the Mercantile Advertiser with a file of Paris papers to the 11th of March, containing London dates of the 6th, (17 days later than before received.)

Among the papers! we have the London Courier of the 20th February, which contains two Reports of the Committees of Secrecy, both of which were presented to the House of Commons. The general features of these reports are similar. The Lords' committee express their full conviction that the designs destructive of the constitution, "have been extended, and are still extending, widely in many other parts of Great Britain.

The disaffected adopted the different forms, and symbols of the French Revolution; and that the revolution meditated was, if possible, more sweeping and immediate in its effects. They meant to begin by depriving every man of his landed and funded property, to declare all the land in common, and to extinguish the funds. Nor was the religion of the country to be more respected. They meant to recite profane parodies of the liturgy, or songs blaspheming the Holy Scriptures. One of the handbills expressed, "all constables who touch a man of us to be run through. No Regent, no Castlereagh—off with their heads—no Placemen, tithes or inclosures—no bishop." The symbols of revolution, the tri-coured flag, and the red cap of France, were adopted here, as well as the names of the revolutionary committees; they had their committee of public safety, and the conservative committee. To the soldiers they had by a second determination, resolved to adopt the means of seduction. But the first plan and impulse was the murder of the soldiers by midnight. The report to the commons inform, that "the design was by a sudden rising in the dead of the night, to surprise and overpower the soldiers in their different barracks, which were to be set on fire." Arms were procured; a large quantity of pike heads ordered; and a machine projected for clearing the streets of cavalry. The prisons were to be drained; and the murderer, and the felon, and the criminals of all descriptions, were to be let loose upon the metropolis with arms. The general rising was fixed for the 2d of December.

The committee then show the intimate connexion between the clubs in London and the clubs in the country. The Commons committee do not decide what measures are necessary to be adopted; but they conclude by stating, that the dangers which exist are of such a nature, that the utmost vigilance of the government, under the existing laws, has been found inadequate to prevent the bill against the seditious assemblies, had its second reading in the House of Commons on the 3d of March; and bills have passed relative to the seduction of the soldiery, and concerning treason.

MARRIED, in Northumberland, (Eng.) Mr. PETER PERCY, aged 80, to the widow HANNAH GODFREY, aged 80. This couple had been lovers from their childhood. But owing to what is termed a love squabble, the lass turned her back, and the swain, supposing her to be in earnest, out of spite married another. Her case being now hopeless in regard to Percy, for revenge she married herself. They both had however strange feelings when they met, and secretly resolved to marry, if the death of their partners permitted. She at last became a widow, but his wife obstinately persisting to live, she became tired, and married again. His wife now died, but finding his old sweet heart again yoked, and no chance of regaining her, he thought it best to divert a few years with another lady. Her husband and his wife would alternately die, and the other being married, no hope of their union appeared probable. His 7th wife lately deceased, she determined not to let the golden opportunity slip, and it is believed (for she was a perfect Xantippe) that she scolded her last poor husband to death, as he did not survive a week.—It is a remarkable coincidence that each of Mr. Percy's wives produced him a daughter, and that each of Mrs. Godfrey's husbands was presented with a son the same year; and what is more singular still; each son married the daughter nearest his own age—and the marriage ceremony was performed by the eldest son, who was a minister, in presence of all the other children and their families.

MARRIED—On the 18th ult; under the painted rock in Bancombe, N. C. by a magistrate, Mr. Lewis Sawyers, sen. aged 80 years, to Mrs. Hannah Poston, aged 90, both of Greene county, Tennessee! The lady who waited on the bride was 100 years old!

DIED, at Baltimore, on the 26th inst. Lieut. William Mag-uder, late of the Franklin 74, in the 27th year of his age. His conduct, as it related to his profession, marked him out as a skilful seaman, and a brave and intelligent officer—in his private intercourse his native goodness rendered him dear to the hearts of those that knew him.

ALL persons entitled to Military Boun-

States during the late war, would do well to recollect the notice given from this branch of the War Department, so long since as the 23d of August, 1815, and which has been repeated in the public newspapers many times since that date, viz.

"A Land Warrant will not be issued to an executor nor to an administrator. The government of the United States has not authorised any person to act as an agent for the purpose of transacting any part of the business relative to the obtaining Mil-usual, be issued gratis at the War Depart-communications should contain the address to which the reply ought to be transmitted.
