A good Story.

Prom the National Recorder.

A few months ago, a farmer living a few miles from Easton, (Pa.) sent his daugh-ter on horseback to that town, to procure from the hank smaller notes in exchange tor 100 dollars. When she arrived there tlic bank was shut, and she endeavored to effect her ohject by offering it at the several stores, but could not get her note changed. She had not gone far on her return, when a stranger rode up to the side of her horse, and escorted her with so much politeness that she had not the slightest suspicion of any evil intention on his part. After a ride of a mile or two, employed in very social conversation, they came to a retired part of the road when the gentleman commanded fer to give him the bank note. It was with some difficulty that she could be made to believe him in earnest. as his demeanour had been so very friendly: but the presentation of a pistol placed the matter beyond R doubt. Just as she held the note to him a sudden puff of wind blew it into the road, and carried it gentlyseveral yards from them. The discourte-ous knight alighted to overtake ir, and the lady whipped her horse to get out ot his power, and the other horse who had been left standing by her side. started off with hers His owner fired his pietel, which only tended to increase the speed of all parties, and thir young lady arrived safely at home with the hnrsc of the robber, on which was a pair of saddle bags. When these were opened they were found to contain, besides a quantity of counterfeit batik notes, fifteen hundred dollars in good money! The horse was a good one, and when sud-dled and bridled, was thought to be worth at least as much as the bank note that was stolen.

As this story is somewhat wonderful, I enclose you my name as a voucher for the truth of it - and am yours, &c.

SPRING.

These are thy glorious works, Parent of Good. Almighty—thing this universal frame, Thus wond'rous fair, thyself how wond'rous then!

Of all the seasons, Spring is the most delightful. Nature is as it were then beginning to receive esistence. The howling storms of desolate winter, are gone and forgotten! The mild serenity of the morning, the gradual advances of vegetation, and the changing appearance of the wrole face of things, accompanied by the harmonious confusion of singing birds heard on every side, convey to the transported imagination, a pleasure which the mind can scarcely conceive. Not only birds and animals, hut even inanimate creation, seems to rejoice in something like that universal joy expressed on the appearance of tile first spring, when "the morning Stars sang together, and all the Sons of God shouted with joy." The music of the groves—the roaring of the tempest—the striking colors of the living landscape the immense circle of heaven—the boundless extent of ocean—comprehended all that is great, sublime, glorious or magnificent; and sink into tlie soul with irresistible power. - Yet, strange as it may apapear, there are men in the world, to whom all these glorious manifestations of the Deity, these inexhaustible bounties bestowed on his creatures, are overlooked, despised, or utterly neglected, Winter may blow, spring renew the world, and summer return in rich pomp—it is all one to them; if their coffers are full, they card for no more. May such feelings be forever strangers to my breast! Great God! may a conviction of thy munificence never rease to animate my bosom—may thy goodness teach me humanity; thy greatness a contempt for those who call tliemselves great; and the constant succession of day and night; seed time and harvest, cold and heat-this glorious truth, that thou art our kind and universal parent, and we brothers of one great family..

From the Baltimore Morning Chronicle. SHADRACH,

A Slave, upwards of one hundred year: of age, and living near the brick yard o Mr. Hignat, is languishing in poverty and want. His former master is dead, and all though the law has made ample provision for the paupers of this class, it does not say who shall pay the money. He has had a number of masters, and the last, for sixty years, he has served faithfully. Ile is now, in the decline of life, an object for charity and benevolence. His character, in his humble sphere, has been fair and irreproachable, and shall lie be turned out at this time of life like a superanuated horse, to die upon the common? Gentlemen of the first professional eminence have been consulted on this occasion, who answer nothing legally can be done. This hoary patriarch of the blacks, whom we have seen, has seen one hundred and twenty years! He was 20 gears old when he was plundered from Africa, and was taken to Guatlaloupe. where he passed 20 years more of his existence. He was afterwards taken by the English at the capture of that place, and was at Quebec during the tri-umph and the death of General Wolfe. He was subsequently sold as a slave several times, and vas at length brought to Baltimore, where he lived for twenty-one years. This city, at that time, contained but a few scattered houses. He was afterwards sold to another family, with whom he resided for the space of 60 years. Mild, patient, antl uncomplaining in his poverty he laments but oue thing, that he is unable to peruse the Word of Divine Life. He expresses his faith antl his confidence in his redeemer, and waits with resignation the hour of his departure, with a firm reliance on the mercies of his Creator.

News from afar West.

Arkansas, March 18. We learn from a correct source that a rapture is about to break nut between the Cherokee and Osage Indians—the latter having killed three hunters of the former, and some others were missing, who are also supposed to be murdered. The Cherokees were preparing to take vengeance on tlie ()sages for this act; but Major Lewis, tile Unifed States' Indian Agent, prevailed upon them to wait until he shoult have seen Gov. Miller, antl would endeavor to obtain through him ample redress from the Osages. On his may down to this place, Governor will meet and hold a cnuncil with the Cherokees on the 20th of April

It is to be hoped that, by the friendly interposition of the Governor, the effusion of blood may be stopped, peace be restored, and all the differences between the two nations amicably settled.

**Emigration.**—Three keel boats arrived here yesterday morning, with families from Kentucky and Tennessee. We undorstand they intend settling on this river. in the neighborhood of Fort Smith.

We are much pleased to see the current of emigration turned towards this quarter. Heretofore the emigration has been almost exclusively directed to Missouri; Arkansa3 was scarcely known or heard of east of the Mississippi or Ohio. The scale is now turned — strangers are arriving here almost daily, with the intention of exploring or settling in this country; Families and others, we are told, are flocking in great numbers up W hite River. We learn, also, that numbers are preparing to emigrate to this Territory from the States of Kentucky and Tennessee, and the eastern and middle states. We have no doubt that as soon as the Land Offices are opened, the emigration to this territory will en crease rapidly. We doubt diether any section ofthe western country offers great er opportunities to the respectable and industrious farmer and mechanic than the fertile soil of the Arkansas territory.

We are highly gratified in announcing the arrival at this place about 10 o'clock last night, of the new and elegant Steam boat Comet, Capt, Ryrne, from New Or leans, in eight days from port to port, and 149 running hours.

The Comet is the first steam boat that tins ever ascended the Arkansas.

It must certainly be gratifying to every citizen of this Territory, to learn that thus far the Arkansas affords no obstructions to steam boat navigation.

CHOSEN FREEHOLDERS.

Having been informed that our Board of Freeholders: at their late meeting, hail appropriated a portion of the public money for the payment of Ministers to preach at the Alms-House, it caused me to turn to the constitution of this state — which in Art. 18th, contains the following clause:

" Nor shall any person within this state ever be obliged to pay tythes, tases, or any other rates, for the building or repairing any other church or churches? place or places of worship, or for the maintainance of any minister or ministry, contrary to what he believes to be right, or has de liberately or voluntary engaged himself to perform. The Freeholders certainly must have been ignorant of the above clause, or they never would have come out so holdly in the face of the constitution, and told us that we should pay for the maintenance of Ministers and Ministry, contrary to what ne believe to be right, and without our individual consent, which is particularly required by the Constitution. If the above ordinance is not repealed, o'clock, the east river presented an inter-to adopt some plan to stop its going into effect, for if they are allowed thus to exceed their bounds with impunity, the next step may be to pay all the Ministers out of the county treasury. If they have pow. er to take our money to pay for preaching, they have the power to bring about an established religion, and then farewell ti liberty of conscience. I should wish for the honor of the county, that the ordinance were entirely blotted froin the minutes of the board, that after generations may not know that such an act of intolerance ever disgraced the records ofoor country.

FOR THE WHIG.

From a Father to a Son. Letter XII.

DEAR EDWARD,

A fair reputation is all important to your suc cess in business; it is what you may properly aspire to obtain; what you ought in fact to coret. When acquired, it is your duty to defend your good name from all unwarrantable attacks. He who has but little self-respect, or is regardless of the respect of others, (a usual accompaless of the respect of others, (a usual accompa-niment) is commonly not entitled to it. Not that I would wish when your own conscience ac-quits, that you should make a great matter of trifling reports, or insinuations of a prejudicial character. It is many times the best way, in such cases, to rely on the general good opinion of your fellow citizens, by treating such impu-tations with silent contempt. If those imputa-tions are the offspring of misrepresentation, entions are the offspring of misrepresentstion, en-vious or interested feelings, a discriminating public will generally ascertainit, without much positive interference on your part. Unjust alle-gations however, vitally affecting your characas well as yourself, victory aneeting your character, you are bound out of respect to your friend; as well as yourself, io repel in a firm, but decorous and temperate manner. But I am diverted from my origin?! purpose, which is to submit some remarks upon the material from which done a substantial reputation can be created. & which is equally necessary for its preservation; I mean integrity. Factitious circumstances, mere accident, will sometimes secure for an individual sudden fame, which enthusiasm is ever proze, for the moment, to over-rate; but in the absence of the essential ingredient incorrupt horesty, thin fame will be ephemeral, the fleet-ing phantom of a day.—Further observance and the intelligence of trankind, will soon correct anyfalse estimates that have been made, and assign to such individual his proper place—I cannot, therefore, too strongly recommend to your unceasing regard, the most scrupulous atten undersing regard, the most scrupinous acterion to the principles and dictates of unwavering honesty—that you should ever consider it as a cardinal motive, by which all your transactions are to be guided; the touch stone by which you will be valued, and the only sure passport to will be valued, and the only sure passport to that honorable distinction in society which, as I before observed, it is your privilege and duty to aspire after.—The term integrity is of extensive import; I cannot in the compass of a letter one half of which is already written, go much into detail; but shall content myself after these general remarks by mentioning a few particulars only.

Never seek to appreciate yourself at the ex-pence of otliers; be content to receive that por-tion of credit, which is your just due, and with. hold from none what belongs to them. This is a species of robbery estremely disengenuous, and tinbecoming; unworthy a gentleman, and wholly incompatible with the immutable principles of moral recti 'dde; it is a purtainment, not directly to be sure of money or effects, but of what is infinitely more valuable. On the contrary be ever ready to do full and ample justice to the merit and worth of your fellow men by applauding, and what is still better, emulating their virtues—suffer no personal considerations to swerve you from this course If circumstances makes it necessary to speak of the fault of others, do not unnecessarily inagnify them, brit rather prefer to qualify your animadversions by all the palliatives which may fairly be urged. "There are few, if any, so bad but that they possess some good proper-ties; be as ready to speak of these as of their er-tors—make due allowance for the situation in which others are placed, their opportunities and education. Justice requires this at your hands, for you ought to remember that circumstances of this sort, in a great measure, make men what

If you sell to others, be careful to give full weight and measure; take not, from the course of trade, from them any thing for which you do trade, from them any thing for which you do not according to the market price, or the terms of a contract, render a fair antl equitable equivalent. Do not represent your commodities, especially to those not qualified to judge, in a false light, by magnifying their excellence or concealing their defects. This is a great and common violation of the fundamental rule insulated by the Saviour of mankind of doing to culcated by the Saviour of mankind, of doing to others as you would that they should do unto you. The frequency of the disregard of this injunction does not abate its criminality—it is no less reprehensible on that account.

Be punctual in the performance of your vows.

be very careful how you commit yourself by engagements; but if those engagement are not of a character to be "more honored in the breach than the observance" religiously fulfil them;— let your word lie your bond, remembering that it requires as many to cancel an obligation as to create it.—My limits being occupied, I cannot further relate and conclude by stating explicitly, and with perfect assurance, that this is the only policy that can ever secure you the honest esteem of mankind.

Yours, &c.

From the N. Y. Commercial Advertiser, May 30-Launch of the Ohio. - At an early hour this morning the ferry-boats were engage ed in conveying passengers to the Long. Island shore: by 10 o'clock some thousands had crossed. Between 10 and 11 would it not be well to call towii meeting sight—it was almost iderally convered with pleasure boats approaching the Navy-Yard. At the appointed hour the signal was given, and the ship glided majestically from the stocks into her destined element. At this moment the air resounded with shouts of applause from the surrounding spectators. The Washington 74, and the Hornet sloop of war, fired a national salute, which was immediately answered by a battalion of artillery, from the 9th regiment, under the command of Colonel Muir, stationed at Corlear%-I-fool:. 'rile Onto is considered by competent judges, to be superior to any vessel of her class. Her dimensions are stated to be 186 feet in length, and of 2500 tons burthen. It is supposed that not less than one hundred thousand persons witnessed this interesting sight; and we are happy to state, that, although the crowd on the margin of the river was great, 'and a considerable ansiety manifested to get the most eligible place, no accident occurred.
