Interesting Trial.

At the City Court of Baltimore ouring s present June session Nancy Gamble, ar interesting looking young woman of 19 wears of age, was indicted and tried for kidnepping stealing and conveying away no indant length while of the name of Mar-1701, aged 20 mouths, the daughter of James and Mary Pool.

On the trial, Mary Pool, the mother of the child, testified that on Thursday the 20rd of May last, about 8 o'clock in the morning, the little child, who had just be cun to run about, was playing on the payement in front of her door; and heing engaged within the house about 15 minuses, she left the child, and on her return it hail dissappeared-that immediale se wich was made for it without successthe neighborhood was roused in quest of the child, but nothing could be certainly a-cortained by her until the Sunday after (23) When the child was brought back mos des (शिर्मिy whipped and mangled from its littlemeck to its feet.

The child was produced in Court with the marks of the rod still apon it—a sweet inderesting, beatiful sprightly child of 18 or 20 wonths of age. Gen. Heath testified that having heard of the loss of the child, he went with in pursuit of it and after many from the second rice steat length heard it had be specified in the Annapolis road, and accordingly took that direction in search of ing with Mr. Alexander Russel. That Mr. Hensworth's they were told that the traverser dined there on Thursday with the child which she represented as her gon-called herself Mrs.: Williams, the wife of Jacob Williams, and said she and her husband had quarrelled about leaving the child with her grandmother in Baltimore, or putting the child out to before the family -that she left there soon alter dinner and went on to Craig's Ferry, where she said the child was her sister and staid that night with the child. The next norming she took the stage towards Annapidis was put down a short distance this side of Mrs. Gamble's (her aunt) and ca efully avoiding the house of her aunt, had gone round through the woods to Mr. Phir.frey's near Magothy. Here she was lound by gen. Heath Mr. Russell, and others 10 o'clock Saturday night in bed with miss Pointfrey; who had taken off the childs clothes to wash. The child when found was in the arms of the women bring in bed with the traverser. Gen. The traverser stated to the pursutirs that she had taken the child from the street in front of a hodee in Charles street which she described agreeably to the situ-auon of Mrs. Pools; that she took it up Prairistreet to a Mrs. Hamilton's, near

Mr. Farrell had only seen her at his house part of the day prior to her going into the service of Mr. Thomas and occasionally while she lived with Mr. T. but concurred in the same opinion. There was also some evidence of a general repu tation in the neighborhood where she had been bred up, to that effect.

On the contrary—General Heath and Mr. Russell testified that she was remark ably smart and subtle, sagacious and intelligent, and mentioned several proofs of it that occurred on the road back to Baltimore. Daniel McCauley who acted as the friend of Montgomery, insulted very grossly the captain, who had ordered the arrest. This insult was not however, resented by the British Officer. About one hour after the affair between Montgomery on an indictment for kidnapping.

Yesterday the Court passed sentence on each of the women, that she should, on the first Wednesday (the 7th) of July and the succeeding Wednesday (the 14th) stand one hour each day in the pillory to larving and Stockton being both to take present to tak to Bourne's lot. The wound was not, however, considered dangerous, as the ball toughed neither a bone nor an artery Capt: J. received two balls through his hat, closely grazing his skull and declined considerable sensation on shore, and it was stated that the Governor ordered the whole Regiment on duty to put a stop to North Western Indians.

The following article presents some considerations entitled to attention.—We are perhaps in the habit of thinking too little of the great region of wilderness be yond the Missouri.

From the St. Louis Enquirer.

Probable war with the Indians—its favor ble consequences—increase of the American and decrease of the British fur trade—greater influence of the Interious.

The the expedition to the mouth of the Yellow Stone will eventuate in producing war with the Indians, bordering on the a war with the industs, outering on Missouri, and contiguous to the settle-ment intended to be established, is an opi-nion entertained by many. And indeed were we to draw conclusions from analogy, and the past-from the uniform custom of all ages, whether civilized or barbarous, who have always viewed with a jealous eve the encroachment of contiguous power-from the undue influence possessed by the British traders over the minds of this place on Thursday evening last, from the Indians, this opinion seems to attach the South. We understand Mr. Monroe to itself a more imposing grade of proba-will be in Nashville on Monday next. bility than is ordinarily given to conjecture. What is conjecture now will probaoly one day be history, and perchance Government, we understand, has or dered two regiments to this place, one to ascend the Mississippi as far as Praire-duchien, the other most probably to the mouth of the Yellow Stone. These measures, while they evince a forecast of chaacter highly creditable to Secretary Calioun, also show the apprehensions of government. In attempting a hunting party of the Yellow Stone detachment, and other evidences of hostility, the Indians nave given a prologue to the great drama they intend to act, and, if perchance the genius of a Tecumseh should breath its nunter-part in the soul of some highninded chieftain, and excite him to aim it a coalition amongst his brother kings, they could be enabled to raise a force that will require a large portion of our standng army successfully to oppose them.

The have been driven from the most ex reme east to the westernmost verge of this vast continent-from the rising towards the setting sun. Eor centuries they have been accustomed to see their territo ries contracted at the touch of the American people—they have seen their numbers, their influence, and their possessions dwindled into nothing, and themselves the rightful owners of the soil, driven from the resting place of their forefathers. Will they not naturally suspect that an establishment so far in the heart of their to take precautionary measures, in order to be prepared for any event. If the war should happen, the result sooner or later will be in our favor, and, the more vigorous and incipient operations, the sooner will they be disposed to peace. A war with the Indians will be productive of great injury to themselves, and of corres ponding good to us; it will, he the means of giving a death blow to the prospects of the British Fur Companies, and it will go to the source of the fatal British influence amongst the Indians, so clearly evinced by the devastation of our frontier settlements and the murder of women and chil

The Indians will be so greatly unde ceived, that they will put no more confidence-repose no more faith upon British promises; it will open their eyes to their real interests. Cautionary posts will be established at proper distances; with efficient garrisons to prevent the North West Hudson Bay Companies from entering in-to any competition the American traders, traders, & St. Louis instead of Montreal will become the focus of the trade. For an account of the immense profits derived from which, we refer our readers to an interesting article on the fur trade; publish mane virtues with "terrible stern aspect war," they would probably transferinerican government.

Perhaps it may be asked, what will be lone with the Indians under such circum. tances? We answer treat them as, brothers, and let them mingle with the mass rushed upon them, and endeavoured to of white population, or, if that is imprac-make Stockton a prisoner, Johnson dis-ticable, affix certain boundaries, and let regarding the stipulated protection, did the constituted authorities say to the roll not interfere, but Stockton made his esing tide of emigration thus far shalt thought appets the ship without coat, or hat, by go and no farther; or if they did trans-

NEGLIGENT POST-MASTERS.

It is a very common occurrence for an editor of a newspaper, on meeting with one of his sub-scribers, to receive the following salutation: "Sir, I regret to inform you, that your paper is received very irregularly by me, so mich so, as to de-stroy its interest; and unless it is forwarded with more pithetuality, I shall be under the necessity of siscontinuing it." Thus the printer receives severe censure, when infact it ought to be placed at the doir of certain post masters. We have been induced to notice this in consequence of a shameful neglect of duty on the part of the post master at Woodbury. The "Whig" is forwarded regularly every Monday morning by mail to our subscribers in the towns of Salem, Swedesboro, Woodstown, &c. and the packages have repeatedly been returned to the post-office at this place, some time during the same week papers of Monday last, were brought back on Friday; whereas they ought to have been for-warded to Salem on Tuesday. Mr. Schultz,
"A Gennine Fourth of July Man," says
"Sydney inquires how the fourth of July ought to be celebrated." And then he goes on to answer the inquiry. Now this is altogether a mistake: I made no such inquiry at all. But I florinly pointed out the manner, in which, in my opinion at ought to be celeprated.

day of the week: But I can see no impropriety or "incongruity" in celebrating the anniversary of our national existence, either on the third or fifth. Indeed we ought individually, each day of our lives, to be thankful to our Divine Benefactor, for our civil and religious privileges But in my opinion it ought annually to be made a public exhibition. The people ought to be reminded that as means were made use of to acvice our Freedom, the same means must be used

The "Genuine fourth of July Man" seems to be economical, and upon good principles too. But I think Bible and Missionary Societies, &c. can be supported, and the Fourth day of July celebrated likewise. There are many occasions on which needless expense is made besides this:
And I think it very possible that, the "Gennine fointh of July Man" himself, expends in the of the year, in superfluities, or had is not absolutely necessary, more than is generally expended by one man on this occasio SYDNEY.

From the Catskill Recorder. Female toducation.

Miss Moore has seldom written any thing unworthy of repetition. The following extracts from the Education," are quite applicable and ought to e regarded.

"Since there is a season when the wouthful must cease to be young, and the vautiful to excite admiration; to learn nw to grow old gracefully, is one of the arest and perhaps most valuable arts thick can be taught a woman. It is for his spher season of the taught a woman. his sober season of life that education hould lay up its richest stores. Yet forur daughters exclusively for the transient period of youth, when it is for maturer life we ought to advert! Do we not educate them for a crowd, forgetting that they are to live at home; for the world, and not for themselves; for show, and not for use; for time, and not for eternity?

"The phrenzy for accomplishments, unhappily is no longer restricted within the usual limits of rank and fortune,-The middle order have caught the contact gion, and this new course of education, and the habits of life and the elegance of dress connected with it, peculiarly unfits them for the active duties of their own very important condition, while with fri volous eagerness and second hand opportunities, they run to snatch a few of those showery acquirements which decorate the great. This is done apparently with one or other of these views, either to make their fortune by marriage, or, if that fail, to qualify them to be teachers of others; hence the abundant multiplication of su-perficial wives and imcompetent and illiterate governesses. The use of the pencil, performance of exquisite but unnecessary works, the study of foreign languages and of music, require a degree of leisure which belongs exclusively to affluence. Exceptions however, should be made to great natural genius. "The admiration bestowed, the sums expended, and the time lavished on arts; which add little to the intribsic value of life, should have limitations. While these arts are admired, let them not be admired beyond their just value, while they are practised, let it not be to the exclusion of higher employments; while they are cul-tivated, let it be to amuse leisure, not to engross life."

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

A man was lately tried as a criminal n the village of Auburn, and fined $5 for kissing a woman once.

From the Village Recorder.

The Wet Day Cogitations of a " Clown.' When I ride by a farm-house, and see the shingles flying from the roof, the win-dows stopped with rags, and the cattle poor and starved, "thinks I to myself," there lives a broken-hearted and emaciated wife, a gang of untutored children, and a ruined and besotted dsciple of " Sir Richard Rum."

When I hear a Physician constantly bragging of his practice, and stigmatising his neighboring practitioners as "quacks, " thinks I to mysely," that man is a quack himself. Who in a crowd halloes thief! thief! the loudest, is thief himself.

When I see a surveyor always running lines to suit his employers "thinks I to myself." that man loves money rather than justice. And I think of the old man's saying, that 'he would make nine of his sons lawyers, and the tenth a surveyor.'

When I see a magistrate alway favor. ing the rich and using severity towards the poor; descending from the sacred functions of his office to become a party and instrument in every little disgraceful transaction of his neighborhood, "thinks ! to myself," I know not how far that man may be a magistrate, but I am sure that he is no justice...

When I see a man increasing his debts by buying a fine gig and furniture; mort-gaging his-farm to build fine houses; assuming the appearance of grandeur without the means of supporting it. "thinks I to myself," The sun shines now, but clouds are hard by.
When I'see a mechanic throwing away

the tools of an useful profession, by which he las acquired a comfortable subsistence in order to turn merchant, and ride in a coach, "thinks I to myself," alas, blind man! thou seest the ignisfatus, but its pursuit will ingulf thee in swamps and mire of difficulties and distress.

Law Anecdote. - Some time before the abolition of the Jesuits, a gentleman in Paris died and left all his estate from au only son then abroad, to that body of religious men on condition that, on his return the worthy fathers should give him what-ever they should choose. When the son came home, he went to the convent and received a very small share indeed; the wise sons of Loyala choosing to keep the greatest part to themselves. The young gentleman consulted his friends, and all agreed he was without remedy.—At last a harrister, to whom he happened to men with his case, advised him to sue the convent. The gentleman followed his advice and the suit terminated in his favour who grounded his plea on this reasoning:
—"The testator," says he, "has left his son that share of the estate which the lathers should choose. Now 'tis plain what part they have chosen, by what they keep to themselves. My client then stands on the words of the will-Let me have, save he, the part they have chosen, and I am satisfied." It was accordingly awarded to um without hesitation."
