BRIDGETON, JULY 28, 1817.

[For the Washington Whig.]

WOMAN.

MR. EDITOR,

Nothing is more common in the present civilized state of society, and particularly in this part of the country, than the abuse of the Fair Sex. And should any person ask from whom, I answer from those unto whom they look for pleasure, happiness, and worldly comfort. Woman was not originally made for labour: wherever the earth is fruitful, furnishing man with abundant of means for supplying his wants, there he dispenses with the services of woman. The Asiatic expects from her whom he maintains in his Seraglio, in a state of inactivity, nothing but pleasure, and children to perpetuate his race. And this appears to be the most important object of her life, viz: the reproduction of the species: it is almost the only destination to which nature has called her, and the only object she has to fulfil in human society. Whatever withdraws woman from this her primitive distinction, is to her injury; it is the scope of all her actions and habits; every thing in physical organization has reference to it. But, among some of the savage tribes of America, (and would to God that I could say, that in this more civilized state he was exempt from the charge) man, it is too true, abusing the right of power, tyrannizes over woman, reserving to himself all the advantages of social life. Of all the passions in woman, love has the greatest sway; all others are governed by it, and receive from it a peculiar cast, thereby distinguishing them from man. It has been said to be her only passion. Fontanelle used to say of some woman, One may see that love hath been here; and Madame De Stael says, Love is but an episode in the life of a man; but the whole history of the life of a woman. Some men entertain the idea that women, like brutes, were made only for their purposes and happiness; he therefore abuses that superiority of strength, with which he is blest for other purposes, viz. the toils of the field.

Women, in general, lead an innocent, a happy and quiet life, until deceived by man. He taketh her from under the care of parents who, perhaps, are wealthy; blest with every thing necessary to make life comfortable and sweet. He taketh her to a distant land, seduceth her, and then leaves her to her fate.—To pine away an existence, now rendered irksome by him who should have made it happy. But how many there are, who wish to get married, merely to mend a shattered fortune; possessing the hellish principle of not being content to be miserable alone; but must involve with them an innocent woman. How many there are, now in the highest standing in life, who have received the first steps thereunto from a woman, and what have they done to repay her? I answer, in thwarting her in her few desires, denying her of her few requests, and making her to toil and labour whilst they take their ease.

I therefore would advise an unmarried lady to beware of man, until he has given her sufficient ground to believe, that his affections for her are pure and unsullied, and that he is urged by honorable motives, and them only. Beware of flattery; it is a saying, that man is given to flatter, and woman is very susceptible of it; therefore beware, man often flatters most when he would deceive. A person whose affections are sincere, very seldom makes use of this method to gain yours; but more frequently the contrary, viz: that of telling you your faults, thereby endeavoring to mould you to his own mind. Beware of a husband; but I would advise you not to trust your happiness on so unstable a foundation. I will conclude with the following short advice. Let man, previous to taking to himself a wife, make provisions far her, at least equal to those which she has always been used to. And let woman be aware of her affections; lay not your breast open to the many arrows which are aimed at it for your ruin; be cautious; be seclude in your actions to your admirer, until you are well convinced of his intentions; and if they are honorable, you may with safety cherish the sentiment of love in thine own bosom; but if not, dismiss him as a lover, but thou mayest still retain him as a friend.

SUMMARY.

Disaster at Port-au-Prince.—Letters from Port-au-Prince state, that the great magazine in the neighbourhood of that place, containing 120,000 pounds of powder, had been struck by lightning, and the town had suffered much by the terrible explosion.—Another magazine was blown up the day following, by the officer who had charge of it, while in a fit of intoxication and anger for a supposed injury done him by a superior. It contained 28,000 lbs. of powder. The officer was the only person killed.

Steam-Boat Vestal.—On the morning of the 20th inst. this boat, while lying at the wharf in Wilmington, was discovered to be on fire, and notwithstanding great exertions were made to extinguish the flames, she burnt to the water's edge.

The Sabbath.—Sunday last, (says the St. Francisville Centinel) the merchants of this village closed their doors, by general consent, and refused to do business, or sell a single commodity. This is the first determined effort known to have been made in Louisiana, for a strict observance of this holy day.

The United States vessels recently in the harbour of Newport, have sailed for Portland, where they will commence the survey of the coast of New-England.

Slave Trade.—Three thousand three hundred slaves arrived at Havana, in the short space of fifteen days, in the month of June last, from the coast of Africa.

Something Singular.—At a meeting of the grand Jury of the city of New-York, on the 15th inst. through their foreman, Mr. M'Dermut, they presented the "Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the city of New-York," for not executing the laws relative to nuisances, &c. existing in the city, and which may prove injurious to the health of the citizens.

Cruise of the Congress.—A letter from a gentleman on board the U. S. Frigate Congress, to a friend in New-York, dated off the Mississippi, on the 18th ult. contains the following information:

"According to promise, I will endeavour to acquaint you of our intended cruise, so far as has come to my knowledge. You already know, that Septimus Tyler, esq. is appointed by our Government, Agent to settle our affairs with the black Princes on the island of St. Domingo. He arrived in the United States' brig Boxer, on the 7th ult. and is now on board this ship. We are to carry him to Port-au-Prince, and Cape Francois, where he has a demand to make of half a million; but whether the demand is on Christophe, or Pétion, or both, I know not.

"From the Cape, we go to the island of Margareta, near the Spanish Main, now in possession of the Patriots; thence to Santa Martha and Carthagena; and thence return to Norfolk. I do not know the object of our cruise along the Spanish Main."

A Letter from Rotterdam, dated May 19, states, that there were about 4,000 Swiss and German peasants waiting at Amsterdam, to embark for America, and more arriving daily;—That their appearance was novel, and seemed to be organized in clans, having chiefs and a gradation of superiors.

Robbery.—On the night of the 15th inst. the Mechanic's Bank of the city of New-York, was entered in the rear and a keg of dollars stolen therefrom, which had accidentally been left on the ground floor, instead of being put into the vaults. More than one person must have been employed in the robbery; and the plunder must have been conveyed through the Dutch Church-Yard into Garden street. The villains have yet been traced no farther.

We understand, (says a New-Orleans Paper,) that the President of the United States has lately constituted a board of enquiry, consisting of two officers of the corps of engineers, an officer of the navy, and the assistant engineer General S. Bernard. The duties of said board are to examine all vulnerable and exposed positions of our country: select sites for, and form the plans of all such defences as in their opinion may be deemed necessary for the security of our republic. The board are now engaged in exploring the marsh courses, bayous and swamps, of this singularly featured country, and it is to be hoped will soon place this city in such an attitude of defence, as its importance to the Western world merits.

Lake Erie.—A writer in the Albany Argus, states that an excellent harbour has been discovered exactly half way between Buffalo and Erie, 45 miles from each. It is called Dunkirk. The form of the bay is nearly in a semicircle, with a capacious channel towards the west head land, of 12 feet in depth, and on the east of 10 feet. Within the ledge is a spacious basin, capable of containing 100 sail of vessels, with from 13 to 18 feet of water, and good anchorage. N.Y. D. Adv.

[From the Boston Centinel of July 12.]

GEN. SWIFT.

We are confident that the pleasure and comfort of the President, in his whole tour, have been augmented by the geographical knowledge and affable attention of General Swift, who accompanies him. We have a conscious pride in recognizing this able officer, as a native of this Commonwealth. We understand he was the first pupil of the American Military Academy; and we rejoice in this fact, so honorable to indigent worth, that he has already been elevated by merit to the summit of his profession as chief engineer. His urbanity to his fellow-citizens will be long preserved in the records of this auspicious visit of the President;—an event which has a more direct tendency than any other, without any violation of principles, to remote prejudices, harmonize feelings, annihilate dissensions, and make us indeed one people: for we have the sweet consolation (a balm that will heal and gratify all wounds) to rest assured, that the President will be President not of a party, but of a great and powerful Nation.

Should these brief articles ever be perused in a foreign land; let the reader know, that they are not the adulatory or idle compliment of a few courtly sycophants; but the voice of truth, pronounced with emphasis by millions of bold and independent freemen, who, however they may differ in opinion on minor points of policy, feel they have a common country to love and defend.

During the President's excursion among the beautiful Islands in Boston Bay, to explore with a military eye the points of defence, and to examine the reasons for establishing a great military depot at the Navy-Yard, there was one proud moment for sketching a Picture worthy the hand of a master.

It was when the Commander in Chief of the Land and Naval forces of United America, standing on the lofty head of Long-Island, which overlooks the whole picturesque and delightful Archipelago, Gen. Swift unfolded on the ground before him, a spacious map of the harbor; and with a soldier's impulse, indicated with his sword's point, the fortifications, which had been erected under his orders; while the gallant Hull, Bainbridge and Perry, explained the course and depth of the channels through which their ships had borne them triumphant from the ocean.

As appendages to these primary and pre-eminent figures, the group might include the real likeness of heroes and patriots, whose services to their country can never be forgotten.

FROM AMELIA ISLAND.

SAVANNAH, July 15.

Our advices from that place come down as late as the 9th inst. At that time, the individuals who had left the island previous to the arrival of the Patriots, mostly returned, and appeared quite contented with the new order of things. General M'Gregor was busily engaged in sending off his troops to the St. John's, which place he was expected to reach about the 18th inst. St. Augustine was strictly blockaded by a Patriot frigate and the True-Blooded Yankee sloop of war—more than a match for any naval force which Spain has in the western hemisphere.

By the arrival at this port, on Sunday last, of the schooner Fair American, six days from the Havana, we learn that the armament reported as having sailed from that place, to the relief of St. Augustine, was nothing more or less than a large number of Guineamen, which sailed on the 11th ult. under convoy for the coast of Africa. The news of the capture of Amelia Island had not reached Havana on the 6th inst.

NEW-YORK, July 23.

The schooner Andrew Jackson, which arrived this morning from Tenerife, has on board two Camels, one of which is 8 feet high; the length of the body twelve feet, and the neck five feet. It is said to be one of the most beautiful of the kind in the world. The other is a young one, the mother of which died on the passage.

Modern power of Music.—Being in the country one day (said Vigneuil Marville, professor of music) I had a mind to see whether beasts (as is commonly said of them) take pleasure in music. Whilst my companion was playing upon an instrument, I considered attentively a cat, a dog, a horse, an ass, a hind, some cows, some little birds, and a cock and hen which were in the court below the window where we stood. The cat paid no regard to the music, and to judge by his physiognomy, he would have given all the symphonies in the world for a mouse: he stretched himself out in the sun and went to sleep. The horse stopped short before the window, and as he was grazing, he raised his head from time to time. The dog sat him down like a monkey, fixing his eyes steadfastly on the musician, and continued a long time in the same posture, with the air and attitude of a connoisseur. The ass took no notice of us at all, munching his thistles very demurely. The hind set up her large broad ears, and seemed to be extremely attentive. The cows gave us a look, and then marched off. The little birds in a cage and on the trees strained their throats and sung with the utmost eagerness; whilst the cock minded nothing but the hens, and the hens, busied themselves in searching the dung-hill.—The late Dr. Jortin, who studied music for relaxation from his laborious writings, on reading this description said, "Imagine these creatures to be human, and you will have no bad representation of any one of our politest assemblies at a musical performance."
