From the Village Record.

The following piece is from the pen of one whose unhappiness it has been to suffer temporary derangement. To much originality, is added a sweetness which plays around the heart, and induces its dearest sympathy.

'Tis sweet, when viewing some noble ruins, to see, through its dilapidations, the splendor of the setting sun; or to have contrasted with its roughness the softness of a distant landscape. Such is the feeling induced by the perusal of these lines. The human mind in ruins is an awful and melancholy object; but when in its aberrations goodness of heart is evinced, and the nobler passions are elicited, it softens the roughness, and calms the ruffled feelings of those who sympathize.

ON PERRY.

And art thou gone, Oh! mighty Chief! and art thou gone, Oh! Chief of Erie!

Terrible as the whirlwind in the forest, wast thou in the day of battle. But calm and gentle as the still lake on a summer's eve wast thou in the day of peace.

As a comet among the stars, so shone the Chief of Erie among the sons of the north.

As the tall oak that is felled in midsummer, green in leaves and rich in foliage, so fell the Chief of Erie, in the morning of his glory.

Serenely bright, calmly great, as the last beams of the sun, when he sinks in the west, so sunk the Chief on the bosom of our mother earth.

And art thou gone, Oh! mighty Chief! my heart mourns in anguish, and the dew of sorrow fills my eyes, when I think thou art no more, Oh! Chief of Erie.

POCAHONTAS.

The following Address was presented to the Queen, signed by seven thousand eight hundred female inhabitants, of Nottingham, and published in the London Traveller:

"We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the female inhabitants of Nottingham, beg leave to congratulate you on your safe arrival in this country, after so long an absence, and to hail you Queen of these Kingdoms!

"Beloved as you are by a great people, who have long preserved for you a faithful remembrance, we dare not boast an unrivaled attachment; but we can truly say, that none love you better, and none pray for you more fervently for your present or future happiness, than the females of Nottingham. When you were far distant, we remembered the inhuman exile, and when the accusers of your honor rung in our ears (as they fondly hoped) the death-bell of your innocence, we never for a moment believed he slanders; but felt at every change, as we are sure we shall always feel a more than common indignation.

"You bring with you such powerful recommendations to protection, as no generous bosom can resist. Your father is no more, your brother fell in battle—the chief solace of your cares, your amiable Jaughter, was soon snatched away—and your great protector, our late venerable Monarch, soon followed tier.

"We would not wring anew your feelings—they have been too often wrung; yet, when we consider this, we are not surprised that, though you are not defended by the drawn swords of the military, you are always surrounded by your guards; thus imitating the example of the magnanimous Queen Elizabeth, trusting your defence to a brave people, who will not be induced by any power under heaven to forsake you in the day of peril. All in whom the spirit of the days of chivalry is not utterly extinct—all who would not immolate the best impulses of our nature on the altar of modern policy—will rally round their Queen, and save her alike from foreign emissaries and spies, and domestic persecutors.

"We desire to assure you of our continued fidelity, and to express a hope that ere long, you will have defeated the machinations of your enemies—be restored to all the honors of your enemies—be restored to all the honors of your illustrious station—and that neither sea nor land will again separate you from an admiring people."

If such are the feelings and sentiments of the People of England generally, the deposition of the Queen will be speedily followed by that of the King.

From the Baltimore morning Chronicle, Aug 30.

How astonishing does the intelligence appear, that a printing press should be established in the Island of Otaheite, and the Holy Scriptures published in that language. Let those who doubt the practicability of converting savages to christianity, pause before they venture to pronounce it impossible. The gods before whom the natives of this Island prostrated themselves in homage, have been presented to the British museum, where they may now be found, dangling with great dignity for the gratification of the curious. These former savages were the most amiable of the savage race; their color is that of a bright and shining copper; they are cleanly in their persons, perhaps beyond all other beings, civilized or savage. If they are even polluted by a fly, they immediately resort to the water. So frequently do they bathe, that they may almost be denominated an amphibious race. Their abhorrence to flies is proverbial. Some years since the King of that Island was presented with a monkey; this animal, his majesty conceived belonged to the human family, although somewhat inferior in size. He was waited upon by servants and treated with extraordinary respect. He was noticed by the grandees and dignitaries of the real, at which he seemed highly delighted, and chattered his ideas of such hospitality with all the sincerity and all the sense of a courtier bred in the Chesterfield system of ethics. But while this illustrious guest, was receiving such warm attentions, the pitiable and disconsolate Otaheite, was receiving such assistance. This was a sin among the natives of Otaheite, absolutely unpardonable. The stranger was immediately hunted down, driven from tree to tree, and he finally paid the forfeiture of his life for such temerity.

They observed a singular custom, that may be proper to mention; as it was difficult for one of these savages to remember the name of a civilized man, for whom he professed friendship, he would call that man by his own name, and enjoy upon that Friend to do the self same thing.

Montreal, Sept. 4, 1820.

In a former letter I mentioned, that the commissioners, appointed under the treaty at Ghent, were to meet in New-York in October next. The day fixed is the 23d. The American surveyor, attendants, &c. arrived here on Friday last, via. Quebec. If the British and American surveyors agree on the dividing high lands, the Americans will have a large accession of territory between the St. Croix and St. Lawrence; an extent of county 110 by 75 miles, which will reach within about 14 miles of the river St. Lawrence. The north-east angle is in lat. 48. Quebec, you will recollect, is in 46, 56. A great portion of this country is uncultivated, and from the nature of the soil, ever will be. On some of the streams there are a few inhabitants. Perhaps the whole number may amount to 130, who are annually visited by a priest from Quebec. We must wait for further information, until your President makes his next communication to Congress. From what I can learn; it is thought, that the Americans will not consider the abandonment by the British of the territory near 45 (Rouse's Point, &c.) a sufficient equivalent for what they claim on the eastern boundary.

A distressing event occurred in our harbor yesterday forenoon. Mr. Robert Curtis, of the house of Curtis and Walker, merchants of this city, was on board a sail boat, returning from the ship James Monroe, to which he had been for the purpose of taking a passenger for Liverpool. Soon after leaving the ship on his way back to the wharf, as he was setting on the side of the boat, something gave way, and he fell into the water; and though every possible exertion was made, both from the boat and by Capt. Rogers of the James Monroe, he sunk and was drowned.—M. V. Gaz.

Grasshoppers.—There are greater numbers of these insects in different parts of the country, than have ever been known before; and in the town of Bern, in this county; in particular, have done extensive mischief; besides destroying almost every kind of herbage, they have robbed several orchards of every vintage of their foliage; a thing, we believe, never experienced before. They are seen making their way from place to place in numbers that darken the air, and remind one of the vast swarms of locusts in the east. Would it not be prudent for farmers to delay sowing their fall crops until the frost shall rid us of these destroyers.—Alb. Arg.

Law Case.—It has been determined, in a case tried before a Justice of the Peace in Connecticut, that a one horse wagon having in a man and his wife, with a travelling trunk, is an empty wagon, and not a loaded one, in the meaning of the charter of the Hartford and New London Turnpike Company, which grants a toll of 64 cents for empty and 12½ cents for loaded wagons.—Bost. A singularly extraordinary snake was recently killed in Monson. It was first discovered basking in the sun, and after much exertion, although his astonishing agility baffled for a considerable time, his pursuers efforts, was taken. It measured two feet in length, had two heads and two legs. The legs were nearly three inches long, were placed about four inches from the heads, and appeared well calculated to assist the animal in running.

REVOLUTION IN NAPLES.

On the night of the 1st of July, some officers and soldiers left the Garrison at No. Pa. and proceeded to Avellino, a short distance from Naples, accompanied by some of the people, shouting "live the constitution!" They were soon joined by the militia of the province. Regiment after regiment went over to the patriots, and, at the end of three days, their strength was irresistible. The king called his council and promised to give them a constitution at the end of eight days—as soon as he could digest its provisions. The patriots were not satisfied with this—they demanded that the "constitution of 1812" should be signed in 24 hours. Some time was spent in negotiations. On the 6th, the king abdicated in favor of his son Francis—who, the next day, issued the following proclamation:

"By virtue of the act dated yesterday, by which his majesty, our august father, has transmitted to us, with the unlimited clause of the Alter Ego, the exercise of all rights, prerogatives, pre-eminence and faculties, in the same manner as they can be exercised by his majesty:

"In consequence of the decision of his majesty to give a constitution to the state: "Wishing to manifest our sentiments to all his subjects, and to second, at the same time, their unanimous wish:

"We have resolved to decree, and do decree, as follows:

"Art. 1. The constitution of the kingdom of the Two Sicilies shall be the same that was adopted for the kingdom of Spain in 1812, and sanctioned by his Catholic majesty in March 1820, saving the modifications which the national representation, constitutionally convoked, shall consider it suitable to propose, in order to adapt it to the particular circumstances of the states of his majesty

"2. We reserve to ourselves to adopt and make known all the arrangements which may be necessary to facilitate and accelerate the execution of the present decree.

"3. All our ministers and secretaries of state are charged with the execution of the present decree.

Naples, 7th July, 1820. (Signed) "FRANCIS, lieut. gen."

On the same evening some of the regiments returned to Naples, and on the 9th, Gen. Pepe entered the city at the head of the constitutional army. He was very respectfully received by the prince, and a provisional junta was speedily arranged. The old ministers dismissed and new ones appointed, and the whole affair organized without the commission of an act of violence.

The patriots have discarded the red cockade, hitherto used in Naples, and established a tri-colored one, red, black and blue. The prince himself had mounted it as the national cockade. Many of those who were in high office under Murat now fill the most responsible stations—among them is general Telouquiere. A now ambassador, (M. Pignatelli, secretary of state under Murat,) had arrived at Paris from Naples, and a grand cabinet council was immediately called. The whole affair appears to have been so sudden and unexpected, as to make it difficult yet to obtain a history of it. The king has been treated with respect—and, too imbecile to oppose, he has quietly yielded to all the requisitions of the people.

A Paris article, alluding to this great event, says, "The constitutional spirit which has revolutionized Naples, will pervade all Italy; gain Sardinia, which is ripe for it; nay, perhaps, reach Austria.—Who can say or calculate where it may end, or how?"

Act of cession of the king to the duke of Calabria.

"Ferdinand, &c. &c.

"My very dear and well beloved son, Francis, duke of Calabria.

"In consequence of indisposition, and the advice of my ministers, being obliged to abstain from all serious application, I should think myself wanting in my duty, and guilty before God, if, under these circumstances, I did not provide for the government of the kingdom in such a manner that the most important affairs may take their course, and that my indisposition may not be injurious to the public cause. Having determined, from these motives, to transfer the burthen of government, until the moment when it shall please God to restore me to a state of health necessary to support it, I cannot do better than confide it to you, my very dear and well-beloved son, as well because you are my legitimate successor, as on account of the knowledge I have acquired of your mind and capacity.

"I make you in consequence, and I constitute you, of my full and entire will, il. my kingdom of the Two Sicilies, my lieut. enant-general, as you have been in the territory of Naples, and in that beyond the Pharos, and I transmit and grant you with the unlimited clause of the Alter Ego, the exercise of every right, prerogative, pre-eminence, and faculty, in the same manner as they would be exercised by myself in person. And in order that my will may be universally known and executed, I order that this paper, signed with my own hand, and sealed with my royal seal, shall be kept and registered by the secretary of state, minister, chancellor, and that you cause to be transmitted a copy of it to all the counsellors and secretaries of state, in order that they may make known to whom it concerns.

(Signed) "FERDINAND."

"Naples, 6th July, 1820.

New Proclamation of the king of the 7th of July.

"Ferdinand, &c. &c.

"We, having given to our well-beloved son all the faculties necessary to provide for the government of our kingdom, by declaring him our lieutenant general with the Alter Ego, he has already arranged the basis of the constitution which we promised, taking for a model that adopted by the kingdom of Spain in 1812, which was sanctioned by his Catholic majesty in the month of March last, saving the modifications which the national representatives constitutionally convoked, may think it expedient to propose, in order to adapt it to the particular circumstances of our states. We confirm this act of our well-beloved son, and we promise to observe this constitution on our Faith and royal word, reserving to ourselves to swear to it in solemn manner, in the presence of the provisional junta, which conformably to that established in Spain, shall be appointed by our well-beloved son and lieutenant general, and afterwards in the presence of the general parliament, as soon as it shall be lawfully assembled.

"We ratify, also, by those presents, all the subsequent acts which shall be done by our well-beloved son, for the execution of the constitution, and afterwards of the faculties and full powers which we have confided to him. We declare that all that shall be thus done shall be regarded, as if done by ourself and of our own proposition. (Signed) "FERDINAND."

"Naples, 7th July, 1820.

Decree for the formation of the Provisional Junta.

"Ferdinand, &c. &c.

"We, Francis, hereditary prince and lieutenant-general of the kingdom, in virtue of the authority which has been given to us by our august father and sovereign, "Having, in our act of the 6th instant, proclaimed for our states, and promised to swear to the constitution in 1812 for Spain:

"Wishing solemnly to fulfill our promise, and to convolve, with the shortest possible delay, the national parliament of the four kingdom, according to the form of the above-cited constitution:

"Wishing that all the acts which should precede the convocation of parliament may emanate from persons honored with the public confidence.

"We have resolved to decree, and do decree, as follows:—

"Art. 1. There shall be a provisional junta, composed of fifteen members, and before whom we, and all the princes of our family, shall take the oath to the new constitution of the monarchy—an oath which shall be repeated before the national parliament after its legitimate convocation.

"2. Until the installation of the national parliament, we will consult the provisional junta respecting all the affairs of the government, and we will publish all the acts agreed upon with that junta.

"3. In order that the choice of those who are to compose that junta may fall upon persons the most eligible by their merit, and the most capable of fulfilling our wishes and those of the nation, we appoint the lieut. gen. D. Giuseppe Parisi, the chevalier D. Melchios Delfico, the lieut. gen. D. Firristano Pepe, the baron D. Davide Winspeare, and the chev. D. Giacinti Martucci, who, assembled in committee, shall present to us a list of twenty other persons, from whom we shall choose ten, who, joined to the above named, shall form the junta chargeable with the functions above indicated.

"Our minister of foreign relations is charged with the execution of the present decree.

Naples, July 9, 1820."

To the editor of the London Chronicle.

Sir—Supposing that it will be of some interest to you to know the gentlemen that have lately made themselves conspicuous in the glorious event at Naples, I take the liberty of noting the following facts:—

Gen. Carossa is a man of 55 years of age, of known bravery; in the year 1798, he was a merchant, and partner in the firm, Michel Largenella & Co.

Gen. Pepe is a very clever mathematician, and a very excellent officer of the engineers. He is a profound scholar. Melch. Delfico is about 65 years; a classical scholar, and a very benevolent man. During the bloody persecution of the Austrians from 1798 up to 1804, he took shelter in the little republic of San Marino, whose history, in a large volume 4to, he published with much credit to himself.

Count Zulo is a man of profound classical knowledge, of known integrity, and perhaps one of the greatest political economists of the age.

Reciardi is a profound lawyer, and nobody denies him the boast of integrity. An Ausonian.

Naples, July 6.—On the night of Sunday 2d July, a small corps of cavalry marched out of Nola, accompanied by some officers. They displayed the tri colored cockade. Their first movement was upon Avellino, where they were fired upon by a battalion of the Tamnite regiment. In the course of the day the insurgents were reinforced by great numbers of peasantry and the tower was taken, the battalion disarmed, and the civil authorities obliged to swear allegiance to the constitution. The Neapolitan government was altogether unprepared for such events, and being perhaps deficient of the troops in the garrison at Naples, they delayed any attack upon the insurgents, until the latter had collected an imposing force.

The royal troops at length made some movements; one column took a position on the Nola road; another of those marched to Nocera, and the whole were put under the command of General Cacascora. These arrangements led to an expectation, that an attack would be made upon the insurgents, but the spirit of the troops opposed to them rendered a retrograde movement necessary, and a general Pepe set off clandestinely from Naples, and put himself at the head of the disaffected troops & decided the affair. Minchini, a canon of Nola, and a man of considerable ability, is a leading character among the insurgents.

London, July 29

We have received letters from St Helena to the 20th April; they announce that during the races, which were conducted with great spirit in the neighborhood of limestown, intelligence was received by a collier from Shields of the death of the late king; and, duke of Kent! The sports were of course immediately terminated, even before the close of the races for the day, and mourning was put on by all the English residents of respectability. The death of Bonaparte continued as good as usual; he has recently, more frequently than usual, appeared in the open air.

We have inserted, in another part of our paper, her majesty's answer to the address from the town of Wakefield. We entreat those, if there be any such, who conscientiously think that no factious attempts are making to connect this question with the most mischievous designs, to read that answer carefully and dispassionately. The proceedings which have been instituted are violently decried—malice and falsehood are imputed to her accusers—an assumption of power is denounced which spurns all imitation—and the House of Lords are invidiously selected as aiming to "dethrone their lawful queen"—Lastly, there is an hypothesis which goes a step farther than her majesty has yet advanced to any of her answers.

"If I am condemned without justice—and dethroned against all law—the liberties of every individual will receive a fatal stab—and the character of the highest judiciary which will be blasted to the latest posterity." If! Why is such a contingency imagined for a moment? England is not the country, British noblemen and British gentlemen are not the persons, where, and by whom, the meanest individual can be "condemned without justice." How then can England's Queen stand in that peril? We are sorry to observe all this; and we are still more sorry to see her majesty dwelling upon "an eventual triumph in the affections of the people."

Her only triumph must be the proof of her innocence before her judges. If she fail there; which we pray she may not—what sort of triumph does she anticipate through the means of the people?

New York, Sept. 4.

We are officially informed that eight pickpockets, lately discharged from the Philadelphia prison, are now in this city, and have, thus far, had pretty good luck.

A large and new emission of counterfeit bank paper is daily expected from Canada. Look out! Strangers in town keep an eye to windward, and then to leeward.

A softly moving gentleman was lately detected in robbing the entry of Mr. Strong, in Liberty-street, of Hats. He was secured and handed over to the proper authorities, by a gentleman residing on the other side of the street, whose testimony must convict him.—N. Y. Gaz.

New York, August 31.

A serious accident happened last evening to a lady who was witnessing the brilliant display of rockets from the Columbian Garden. She was standing on the steps of the house of the Rev. Mr. Phillips, in Broadway, and attentively looking at one of the rockets which had exploded high in the air, apparently over her head. A piece of the wood attached to the rocket, in falling, struck her on the forehead, just above the eye brows, which knocked her down, and for some time she was apparently lifeless. She was taken to her residence in Broome street. Medical aid was immediately procured, and on examination her face appeared much bruised; but the physician pronounced her out of danger, and expressed his opinion that if she had received the blow on the top of the head, it would fractured her skull. [Even. Post.]

New York, Sept. 7.

Capt. Elliott, of the navy, arrived here yesterday from Norfolk, in the schr. Ranger, having been providentially saved from death on the passage. While sitting in the stern boat, on the 2d inst. the tackle gave way, and he was precipitated into the sea. The wind was blowing heavy and the sea running high at the time; he, however, succeeded in laying hold of a spar, that was thrown from the vessel, on which he remained an hour and ten minutes before he was taken up by the crew.

FIRE AT MOBILE.

From the American daily Advertiser. Extract of a letter from a gentleman in Mobile to a friend in Philadelphia, dated 12th August, 2 o'clock, A. M.

"I had promised myself to write to you the night after the present; I anticipated the prospect with much sorrow and real distress. At this hour, past midnight our city is smoking in ruins, and many who were comfortably situated reduced to poverty, by the sad effects of an accident and tremendous fire, which began about 1 o'clock, P. M. & has destroyed 50 houses (all stores,) and most of their contents had the wind been high, the whole of the town would have gone. It originated in the Cotton Gin House, in the very centre of the city, no doubt by design. I dread the consequence to many at this inhospitable season—the place is unusually healthy; but fear the rubbish, &c. created by the fire will prove unwholesome had our city a few fine regulations, but all is prostrate at this time."

From the Baltimore Patriot, Sept. 13.

An account appears in the Norfolk Herald, stating that a certain captain Frederick Hall had confessed, that he set fire to the Richmond Theatre in December 1811, and thus was the agent in that distressing catastrophe. We do not republish the details of the tale, because we understand the man who gives the details is in a state of mental derangement; and that pitiful his state, and no credit for his confession is due him. It is presumed it will turn out like the story of the New Orleans pirate relative to the murder of Mrs. Alston.

HORRID TRANSACTION.

Baltimore County, Sept. 9th 1820.

Mr. Munroe.—I was called upon this morning to summon a jury of inquest, who I witnessed one of the most shocking scenes I ever beheld—Helen Woolery, a widow lady, on the turnpike, about five miles below Westminster, had a son and a daughter 9 years old. The son slept in one bed; and two female friends another bed in the same room, when about five o'clock in the morning, the family was alarmed by a bustle, when to their astonishment and horror, found Helen Woolery chopping her daughter's head with an ax, on the bed side; her little first succeeded in getting the ax from her, but not without running in imminent danger of his own life, as it is probable he was intended as the next sacrifice.—The ax was severed from the body, with the exception of a small piece of skin at the back of the neck, and another piece of skin at the wind-pipe in front.

Helen Woolery has sustained a fair reputation—but for some weeks past, she manifested some symptoms of mental derangement, and probably has permitted our government the horrid crime in one of those unwholesome paroxysms. I committed her for some time, and think proper to give you this state, to prevent misrepresentation, and to alleviate the feelings of her respectable connections. I am very respectfully your obedient servant, WM. JAMESON.

New York Sept. 10.

A fire broke out in Schenectady, between 4 and 5 o'clock on Sunday morning, and destroyed two dwelling houses, a blacksmith's shop, a wheelwright's shop, and some out buildings, situated near the bridge at the entrance of the town.

BRIDGETON, SEPTEMBER 18, 1820.

The Yellow Fever in Savannah.

The Savannah Museum gives the following statement in relation to the health of that city; and directly assails the correctness of the reports, made by the Board of Health:—
"The truth will be known, and it will be believed, that the situation of our city continues to be alarming. We repeat it—it is not only useless, but dangerous, and ungenerous, to endeavour to conceal the fact. It is well known, that the prevailing fever is not only frequent in its attacks, but very malignant in its nature; and is not at this time confined to any particular portion of our city.—Let them call the disease the endemial fever, the bilious fever, the yellow fever, or the black vomit—still its effects are very mortal."

Captain Mills of the brig Alexandrew, arrived at New York on the evening of the 5th instant, in 13 days from Jeremie, reports, that while getting under weigh, a small Spanish schooner arrived from the Spanish Maine with intelligence that Port Bello and La Guira were in peaceable possession of Patriots.

An impostor was taken up at Plattsburgh, and imprisoned on the 15th of July. He was soliciting alms for some inhabitants of Genoa, whom he represented had suffered by shipwreck on the barbery coast, and were held as prisoners. Among the documents which he had in his possession was a letter from the late mayor of Philadelphia.—The magistrates of the village of Plattsburgh wrote to Philadelphia to ascertain the truth of this document, and they have received an answer. The description given in the mayor's letter identifies the fellow who passed under the name of John Copello; his real name is Mereti—has a house and establishment in Philadelphia worth 10,000 dollars, and has followed begging under various pretences for years. There is a society of these impostors in the United States who make a regular business of begging. Magistrates would do well to seize all persons of this description and imprison them, until their true character is known.

MICHIGAN TERRITORY.

A communication appears in the Detroit Gazette of the 11th August, after a just philippic against the plan of our territorial government, "containing, in the very best terms of its enunciation, a complete definition of despotism," proceeding to exhibit a variety of charges against the mode in which that government is administered. We of course know nothing of the truth of them; but if they be well founded, it is indeed high time that a reformation took place. Abuses, however, are inseparable from the system; it is impossible they should not exist under a government in which the judges compose the Legislature which enacts the laws they are themselves to expound. Of the nature of the charges some idea may be formed, from the assertion, that no journal is kept of the proceedings of the Legislature; that acts are frequently signed without even being read, and after their enactment, differently construed, according to the opinion of the judges respectively as to what ought to be the law in the case, &c.

New York, Sept. 12.
Mr. Antrobus, the British Charge des Affaires, and Mr. Passmore, the Secretary of Legation, left this city yesterday for the seat of government.

A letter from London to a gentleman in this city (received by the ship Amity), states that the hon. Stafford Canning, the minister plenipotentiary to this country, would sail from Portsmouth, about the 10th of August, in the Spartan frigate. He may, therefore, soon be expected to arrive at Annapolis.

The same letter adds, that the weather in England had been very cold and rainy the latter part of July.—Gaz.

FROM FRANCE.

Captain Dunbar, of the ship Warrington, from Bordeaux, arrived yesterday morning, informs us that he is the bearer of dispatches from our legation in Spain to our government. He brings papers to the 17th July. The day previous to his departure from Bordeaux, private letters reached the city; mentioning, that in consequence of the augmentation of the rate of tonnage on every French vessel sailing into all ports of the United States, that a law had passed, which was to be put immediately into effect, imposing one hundred francs per ton on every American vessel, arriving on, or after the 1st day of July, in all its ports. Capt. D. likewise informs us, that the heavy rains and hails which took place in the adjacent country of Bordeaux in the months of June and July, have done great damage to the vines, and which has consequently

OFFICIAL.

Naval.—A General Court Martial, convened on board the U. S. ship Independence, on the 8th day of May last, for the trial of Philander A. J. P. Jones, of the U. S. Navy. The Court decided that the said Lieut. Jones be cashiered; which sentence has been approved by the President of the United States, and has been carried into erect accordingly.—Bost. Pat.

JOHN BULL—AND HIS PASTIMES.

Whitley Wood Fair, May 22d, 1820.
On Monday there will be given a gold laced hat, to be played for at Cudgels, of the value of twenty-five shillings, by old gamsters; the winner must break three heads and the blood run one inch. The first broken head to have 1s. and a good hat for gamsters.—A hat to be wrestled for.—A handkerchief for young hands.—A cheese to be run for in sacks.—A fine chemise to be run for by young woman.—A cake of gingerbread to be run for by boys.—A cake of gingerbread to be grained for, through a horse collar.—A cheese to be bowled for, by men and woman.—On Tuesday, they will be given two hats to be played for at Cudgels; one of which will be silver laced for old gamsters.—A hat and a pair of gloves to be wrestled for.—Cricketing, and various other amusements.—The same rules to be observed on Tuesday as on Monday. The winner of the hat on Monday, not allowed to play on Tuesday. To be fair play and all disputes to be settled by the Umpires.

N. B. All booths and persons selling beer on the common, to pay 6s.—Standings, is. 6d. and baskets 6d. each.

BULL MARSH-HEATH REVEL.

On Whit-Monday, three prizes will be given at the Chequers, Bull-Marsh-Heath to be ploughed for: the three best men to have the prizes; ribbons to be played for at cricket; the wickets to be pitched for at cricket; the wickets to be pitched, and the ploughing to begin at 10 o'clock.—Two gold hats to be played for at cudgels, by old gamsters—and two for young gamsters.—Two hats to be wrestled for.—Tuesday, there will be a donkey race.—Bowling for a cheese and a pair of silver candlesticks—aid various other pastimes.
All stalls to pay each day for the ground.

Warning to Husbands.

A farmer in the village of Geneva, infatuated by a woman of abandoned character, lately turned an amiable wife and children out of doors, to give room to a wretch who had seduced him by her allurements. Information was given to the Magistrate, that he had absented himself from his wife aid thereby violated the law, and directed the Overseers of the poor to enforce the 22d section of the act for the relief and settlement of the poor, by taking and seizing the goods and chattels, and to let out and receive the annual rents and profits of the lands and tenements of this unfaithful husband for the benefit of his wife and children. This was duly performed, and the woman who had gained no residence in town was brought before the justices as to her last place of legal residence. She refused to give the Magistrate my satisfaction. She was convicted as a disorderly person and committed to jail for 60 days to hard labor. This is as it should be.
