THE QUEEN.

On the 9th day, the London Evening Mail of Aug. 28th, says—Up to this time the only two credible witnesses examined, were the captains of the Clorinda and Levathan; and their evidence acquitted the queen of "any improper familiarity with Bergami."

From the 9th to the 11th day, the house were engaged in discussing a question whether the counsel should be permitted to cross-examine the witnesses in the manner they desired, which was finally determined upon by a majority of 5.

The examination of witnesses was then resumed. At 5 o'clock Lord Hardwicke was taken suddenly ill, but soon recovered.

The latest accounts given in the Courier of August 30th, state.—At half past 2 o'clock the house were engaged in the examination of a witness named Proul Ogoni, who was in the service of the Princess of Wales, as under cook, and deposed to his knowledge of Bergami before he formed part of the Princess' household.

London, Aug. 28.—Crowds of respectable persons continue to assemble daily in St. James' square to await the approach of her majesty, and greet her with enthusiastic acclamations. As her majesty left the house on Saturday, several ladies were assembled, who pressed to touch her clothes, and were perceived to shed tears of sympathy and affection.

Revolution in Portugal.

From the Boston Centinel, Sep. 30

Arrived brig Jones, Capt. George G. Jones, 25 days from St. Ubes.

Capt. Jones informs, that there was a revolution in Portugal, and handed us the following Proclamations of the Patriots:

PROCLAMATIONS.

Soldiers! Our sufferings are ended; our country in chains; your consideration lost; our sacrifices rendered of no avail; the Portuguese soldiers reduced to beg alms. Soldiers! this is the time! Let us fly to the salvation of our country, and to our own salvation! Fellow-Soldiers! Come along with us; let us fly with our brothers in arms, to organize a Provisional Government, who will call the Cortes to make a constitution, the want of which has been the origin of all the evils that oppress us.

The soldiers who composed the brave Portuguese army will run to embrace our cause, because it is also theirs. O, soldiers! power is ours; we therefore must not be allowed tumultuous meetings. If our country is indebted to us for her salvation, the nation must also be indebted to us for her safety and tranquility.

The Chevalier Sebastiao Drago Valente de Brito Cabrera, Colonel of the 4th regiment of artillery; Bernardo Correa de Castro Sepulveda, Colonel 18th regiment; Domingos Antonio Gil Figueiredo Sampaio, Lieut. Col. 6th regiment; Sodo Perura de Silva Leito, Lieut. Col. of police regiment; Jozi de Souza Pimental de Faria, Major Com. Porto Militia; Joze Pedro Cardoza Silva, Major Com. Mara Militia.

Soldiers!—One will unite us. Let us march to the salvation of our Country. There are no wrongs that the Portuguese have not borne. Every patience is tried. The Portuguese without safety in their persons and property, demand our help. They ask for liberty regulated by the law. You yourselves, the victims of the common evil, have lost the consideration your courage and your virtues merited.

It will call the Cortes together, who will be the organ of the nation: they will prepare a Constitution that will assure our rights. Our King and Lord, Don John 6, being good and benign and a lover of his people, who idolize him, will bless our labours. Long live our good King—long live the Cortes, and through them the Constitution.

Head Quarters, Porto, 24th Aug. 1820.

Signed as above.

FIRE AT NOVA SCOTIA.

St. Johns, N B. Sept. 26.

Since our last we have received corroborating accounts of an extensive and calamitous fire, which has spread its ravages for nearly 100 miles in extent—over the most fertile portion of the north and western parts of Nova Scotia, from the neighborhood of Yarmouth to the county of Annapolis. The fire continued burning for the space of three days, and such was its intensity that the very potatoes were burnt in the earth; houses, barns, fences, fields of grain, stuck of all kinds, whole villages and settlements fell a prey to the devouring element, and not a vestige of vegetation or herbage remains—several lives also are lost.

Extract of a letter from Mr. John Wetmore, to his son in this city.

On returning from Yarmouth, we run under our bare poles for Bartlet's river, hoping the tide was up.—We in a few minutes were in the breakers and without striking, anchored safe—found the whole shore in flames eastward, landed near Porter's and followed all round Black point, the wind blowing a hurricane, the flames out ran us, an immense fire behind Frank Davoo's, which threatened destruction to every thing—we reached the road behind this fire—got home safe, took tea, then we ourselves safe—went to assist the French who were moving, young Frank's house in flames, and others not to be seen for the smoke; we stayed perhaps 20 minutes; returned, met one of the children crying Clarke's house was on fire, we run our best, met women and children flying before the tempest; the mill, barn and house, with twenty acres of land in a blaze—trees falling in all directions—we got to the house through 40 rods of almost solid fire—threw trunks, &c. &c. into the well—I took a bed, tied a woolen blanket round it and escaped or my life, the fire flying like a shower of hail—I felt under the bed, got wet and ran, fell again, nearly melted with heat and suffocated with smoke—I rose once more, and fell again, quit my load, saw my head ahead barefoot, could not enter the fire, they met me and we got the bed safe through—Mr. Clarke came up with a book in his hand, nothing more saved, all burnt in the well—fences and fields of potatoes swept clean. My fields though not much burned, are all laid open to the mercy of cattle and hogs—at sun set found my house and uncle Nathaniel's crowded with women and children, who left their all and fled before the fiery tempest, from the neighborhood of Heaven River—Wednesday morning, 7 o'clock, a fine rain that deadened the fire—found the settlement at Beaver was in all ashes—Mr. Sanders, Clarke and myself went to their assistance, found but three houses standing for six miles in length—Thomas Trask has lost his house, new grist and saw mill, 2 barns full of grain, hay, &c. a yoke of oxen, 1 horse, 2 or 3 cows, several hogs, all their furniture and a little boy 4 years old, burnt in the house, having crept into a cradle, and was left unperceived, together with a trusty dog, which lay by its side. Daniel has lost all, a cow, 2 hogs, furniture, clothing, &c. the word at sunset was to escape for their lives. Daniel took up his child and bid his wife follow him and my brother Ranna—others cried which way shall we fly?—answer to the lake—some reached it, others were cut off and drove up the road for a mile or more, before an opening was found to the sea shore.

Husbands and wives were parted by the fire and smoke and did not meet again until the next day. Daniel took his wife (very sick) on his back to the edge of the lake, and waded out some rods to a hog, which sunk with them but he found old stuff and raised it, so that his wife set in the water until morning. Ranna lost them, he waded up to his neck and there stood 12 hours, the fire often streaming in his face, when he was obliged to sink under, then rise and take breath.

I found him on Wednesday, and took him home with me, he had eat nothing for 26 hours. It was a melancholy scene to see fences swept away, fields of grain, potatoes and turnips all burnt up—great numbers of cattle, sheep, anti hogs, lying dead by or near the road—some persons were skinning cattle which were not too much burnt—others looking up their stock—I saw two large hogs lying together alive burnt so as not to walk, and we are not alone; I have just heard from Yarmouth, Chebourg, that much damage is done, many houses, barns, mills, &c. burnt and also through the French settlement above Montagan, a great many houses, barns, mills, &c. are destroyed—the French Chapel with the priest's House are consumed, one old negro burnt up—so much hay lost that it is supposed half the stock cannot be wintered—People from Yarmouth on hearing our distress, came up with ox and horse carts, chairs and horses, to remove the sufferers, and I believe there was not two cart loads of furniture saved out of sixteen houses, from John Clark's to E. Corning's, 7 miles: Daniel has nothing left but a shirt and trousers which he had on, his wife and child nothing but what was on their backs, and set out for Yarmouth on tier stacking fert the last I heard of her—but where they will go or what he will do this winter I know not—lie has nothing to eat or wear.

Saturday 16th—News has just arrived, that as far as Annapolis 100 miles above this, is mostly in ashes, many lives lost, grain and hay mostly destroyed. How we are to live through the winter, I know not—Daniel has not yet come here; perhaps he has followed his wife to Yarmouth or he may be trying to save some of his potatoes, &c. I shall finish this and go in search of him, we are all employed (that is me and my two boys) to trying to save what little crop I have left. My buckwheat is nearly lost.

From the Farmer's Register.

The Progress of Liberty.

Spain and Naples at the present moment, present an aspect gratifying to the eye of the patriot and the Philanthropist. In these kingdoms the progress of liberty has been rapid beyond conception. The yoke of despotism, and the tyrant has been compelled to wear allegiance to the rule of Freedom. The stream of reformation has swept away with it mitres and crozier's racks and chains, & instruments of monkish cruelty and torture. Had a man, two short years since, suggested the idea of Spanish emancipation and the arms of superstition had he, at that time, avowed a belief that at the expiration of a few short months the natives of Old Spain would arise in their might and resume their natural rights, he would have been ridiculed as an idle speculator. Spain! the land of Freedom! A country proverbially the home of superstition and the seat of slavery? And Naples! with her Lazzaroni and her priests with her hooded monks and her profligate nobles! with her bigotry and her ignorance, has now achieved a deed which will redeem her from contempt and engrave her name on the same page of history with that of San Marino.

What renders the revolutions in these countries more gratifying is—that they have been attended neither with the bloodshed nor cruelty which ordinarily distinguish a sudden anti compulsive change of government. Moderation and calmness have marked them throughout.

Although Spaniards and Neapolitans have not aspired to the purity of a republic, they have made their kings bend from their thrones and low to the greatness of the people. They have compelled royalty to cede to them rights, privileges and a constitution; they have deprived tyranny of its sting and monarchy of his power to do evil. The will of one man is no longer the law of the land, and the bad passions of an individual can no longer consign others more virtuous, but less powerful than himself, to misery, imprisonment or death. The interests of the sovereign are identified with those of the people.

The Inquisition, that charnel house, that haunt of vice, is delapidated and overthrown. The ministers of darkness no longer mingle their fiend-like laughter with the shrieks of their victims and glut their vengeance with the groans of expiring innocence; no more auto de fe's will celebrate their dreadful triumphs; but driven from their den; their armaments of torture scattered and broken; their prisoners liberated; their fetters crumbled to dust, and their mockeries of the Divinity exposed to public abhorrence, they are branded with the hatred of their countrymen and the contempt of the christian world.

These changes in the political world can, without any indulgence of fancy be attributed to the prosperous situation of these United States, combined with a spirit of intelligence which is extending throughout the whole habitable earth. It was the policy of the Italian priests to debar their followers the benefit of education, and the reason was obvious. Common sense, when combined with intelligence, will exercise the privilege of thought; the right of judging of evil and will neither kneel down at the foot of croziered tyrant nor submit to be rampled in the dusty temporary despots.

Our countrymen who visit the different countries of Europe carry with them ideas of liberty and notions of independence which, when disseminated, are calculated to produce a lasting effect. Their operation is silent and gradual. They rather resemble the stream whose waters continually increased by the bounty of heaven until they overflow the adjacent banks, than the torrent rushing along its rocky bed and creating nought but turbulence and noise.

That Spain and Naples may follow up the good work they have begun; that they may thoroughly cleanse the Augean Stables, is the earnest prayer of one who has often exclaimed with the Scotch poet

"Thy spirit, Independence, let me share,
"Lord of the Lion heart and Eagle eye;
"Thy steps I'll follow with my bosom bare,
"Nor heed the storm, that howls along the sky."

We copied from an Indiana paper some days ago an account of a monster of human nature, by name John Deaman. By a paper of subsequent date, it appears that his body has been found in the woods, about 13 miles from New-Albany, half devoured by beasts or birds of prey; but recognized by known marks. It is supposed he died a natural death there, having a fever on him when he escaped from jail. From appearances near where the body was found, he had been some days in a state of agony, the ground being very much beaten up, his garments scattered in different directions, and the body naked.

On reading this account of an abandoned villain's end, it is impossible not to recollect those striking lines in one of Walter Scott's poems:

"Her wing shall the eagle flap
"O'er the false hearted;
"His warm blood the wolf shall lap
"Ere life be parted.
"Shame and dishonor sit
"By his grave ever:
"Blessings shall hallow it
"Never, O never!"

We are much gratified to hear, that the United States vessel of war Cyane, captain Trenchard, fell in with four American slave vessels, between this and Cape Palmas, and sent them all prizes to America. The British sailors on board these American slavers were previously removed by that zealous and active officer, and sent on board the Snapper, to be dealt with according to their merit. No encomiums could add to the manly conduct of the American officers on the occasion.
