For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE FIRST LETTER.

BY OUR EL. I have it! yes, I've wished it long, And hoped it soon would come: I have it now-'tis all my song-A letter from my home.

Yes, days and weeks have glided by, Since I left all to roam; Until this best of friends came nigh-This letter from my home.

Glad tidings to my heart it brings, To banish care and gloom; Of joy, of happiness it sings-This letter from my home.

Beloved ones are happy now, At the parental dome; And I have word that all is well, By letter from my home.

Yes, tho' my spirit were depressed, They now are light as foam: A precious fruit of being bless'd With letters from my home.

'Tis pleasant-yea, I've felt the need, Since I commenced to roam, Of what I could delighted read-A letter from my home.

And now my friends pray don't forget, Whatever else may come. That I will ever welcome yet. Such letters from my home. Bunker Hill, Ill., Nov., 1852.

From Peterson's National Magazine. WINTER.

BY FRANK WALTERS. The songsters of the bower have gone.

Whose carols whiled the time away-Where Summer skies, a brighter dawn-Presage the king of day. Stern Winter with his chilling breath,

Has wrecked the charms of yesterday; And flowers o'er the fragrant heath, Are rudely swept away.

How marked we late the reseate gleam. The Summer's gentle presence gave-Now fetters bind the tiny stream, As multitude of wave.

No more come out, with song and shout As late the king-god of the day-And stars in fleecy folds look out, That brighten up our way.

Yet welcome Winter with thy train, For Spring shall break the icy sway; Affections warm and brighten still, . And we are blest alway.

From the Saturday Gazette. TO-MORROW.

BY JOHN K. HOLMES.

Did we but know what lies heyond This strange, mysterious path we tread, How often would our souls despond, Our eves the tears of sorrow shed! But God, who knows what's best to do-Who sees us from his starry throne; Has wisely hidden from our view That which had best remain unknown

And hang the flag of hope on high; But ah! to-morrow from our side Some friend may turn away to die: Some flower that won our morning praise, Some altar where we built our trust-May fade, ere dies the evening rays-May trampled be and laid in dust.

We walk to-day in conscious pride,

Youth dreams of many beaming things, As on he hies o'er Pleasure's track; Each day some new-born promise brings, He turns no eye of sorrow back: The flow'ry fields are all before, His eyes on some dear star are set, Life is to him a sunny shore-

To-morrow! in thy secret shade I little know what lies for me: I may be with my fathers laid, Or wrecked on rude Misfortune's sea! But far beyond Life's boundary lives The everlasting army bright,, And He alone who takes or gives, Can guide my wand'ring steps aright.

He'll learn it has its shadows yet.

IMAGINATION. Imagination is that power of mind which presupposes things before they take place and often too, events which never will happen. It has frequently been remarked by wise people, and we may daily notice it ourselves, that a very large part of the happiness, so called, enjeyed in this world, is more imaginary than real. Hope appears to be the vivifying principle of our nature, which endues us with elastic energy, and urges us to perform or endure the west tailways are to perform, or endure the most toilsome enterprizes. The mind in gazing into futurity, decks every object with the brilliant rainbowhues of lasting felicity, and nearly always sees the brightest side of the picture. Imagination heightens the most attractive graces, and to each feature which in itself delights us, it adds new charms. In our excursions into the regions of fancy, we are constrained by no limits. nor impeded by any difficulties. Our desires and our imaginations, soar aloft with equal wings, and are led by the same views. Nothing is ever wanting to complete the scenes in whose cestatic richness we love to wander. Lost in their magic beauty, we linger with as fond a rapture as if they were painted on the substantial canvass of actual truth; and no frequent disappointments can subtract from the delight these visions of fancy give to the mind, or, except in urgent cases, recall us to the stern realities of everyday life. Imagination is so powerful, when frequently indulged in, that it envelopes the reality is the gloomiest. As the midnight lightning is more instantly vivid than the blaze of noonday, so the entrancements of fancy are more various and splendid, in proportion to the misery in which we are, or may be, partakers. Philosophers have often despised the enjoyment of these bewitching, mental creations, and arrogated to themselves the privilege of determining upon the pursuits and pleasures of their fellow mortals. Absorbed in abstruse speculations, their finer feelings become blunted, and the real, and proper pleasures of imagination and social benevolence, seem in time insipid and useless. They possess not that

A BEAUTIFUL INSTITUTION.

From the New York Organ. And what is that beautiful institution?the most beautiful of all social contrivances? Our answer is, The Family! To our mind there is nothing in the universe, not even the gorgeous planetary system, which bears more the requirements of which must be furnished distinctly the divine impress, than the Family to them in such relative proportions to each Arrangement. And in truth it is nothing other as will produce the best and most profiess than a divine contrivance.

God has chosen that the whole race should be divided into so many little communities. each of which is under the superintendence and government of its natural head, and all its members bound together by the ties of and dependent upon parential care; not created in a condition of solitary independence. but so that our very birth is a bond of mu-

Under the guidance of paternal authority and love the child grows, and its heart yields, in return, reverence, submission, love to the parents. In process of time, brothers and sisters are added to the family group, and new affections are called forth all around the circle. At first this family is the whole world to its members, but when the proper senti-ments are imbibed, and the right affections are aglow in their bosoms, they reach out and attach themselves to neighbors, friends, countrymen. Home has educated for wider fields of thought and action, and from the bosom of families come forth the neighbor, the citizen, the patriot, the philanthropist, and Christian All other social interests depend upon the family, as the stream depends upon the foun-tain, and as is the character of the one, so will be the character and destiny of the other Entertaining such views of the wisdom, beauty, dignity and utility of the Family, let not our readers be surprised or weary if we often dwell upon the theme, and strive to fill usefully our mission as editor of the Family Companion. We love the Family; the very name of Home warms our blood; and we long to see all our fellow-men appreciating this divine and blessed institution, and helping to make it what God intended it should bethe nursery of all that is good and noble and glorious in humanity.

AGRICULTURE

Agriculturl Improvements. Never since the commencement of our editorial labors have we felt so much enthusiasm as during the past season. FEMALE FIDELITY.

BY. L. F. FISLER.

'Twas on a Sabbath morning, in the month of June, 1828, I was summoned to visit a oung lady residing about - miles distant rom the beautiful village of Port E* n which I then resided. She was one whom been intimately acquainted with her family. woc. Because Mary was innocent.

The communication I received, strongly excited my appreliensions, that without inmediate haste, my presence or services would be entirely unavailable. Accordingly, without delay, I was soon fast approaching the object of my vist. The light of another day had just began to dawn upon the world; the calm and quiet hour of morning twilight, when the dark shadows of night are fast mingling with the rays of approaching day. I was at that betwitching and enchanting period of time, when all creation seems to feel and acknowledge the supreme and overwhelming nower of Omnipotence; all nature, smiling in reanimated beauty, paying homage and adoration to Him who is its great Divine Creator. Whether the high mountain peak that mingles with the clouds, clothed with eternal snows or the low sequestered glen beneath, carpeted with the verdue of nature-whether the tall. sturdy, towering oak that decks the forest, or the tiny bird which warbles among its branches-all eloquently proclaim the wisdom and power of that hand which has been the Author of them all.

A thousand reflections hurried through my mind, as I travelled along the lonely road which led to the abode of Mary and her aged parents. Can it be possible, thought I, again and again - that she whom I had seen so recently, flushed with health and beauty-the charms of cheerfulness upon her lips, the joy cruel spoiler! how dost thou love to revel and riot among the charms of female loveliness, withering like an early blight the rose that blooms on beauty's cheek, dashing at one fell swoop to the grave, all their hopes and expectations here, there to lie, and fade, and perish! How dost thou, with the sturdy foot, love to trample over the fair, fragile forms

The mantle of hutions should be directed and fixed upon Him | man responsibility will soon fall from our shoulders upon those of the youth of our land, and it is befitting that they be prepared to wear it with grace and dignity, Education combined with virtue, alone will qualify them for the important trust to be committed to their care. The most tender regard should be entertained for the young. The necessity of general intelligence and thorough scholarof general intelligence and thorough scholar-ship, to preserve the well-being of society, our country, and the church, was handled with masterly power. He impressed the students with the imperious need of patience and per-severing labor, in order to accomplish any severing labor, in order to accomplish any ing when all this world's riches would be givthing great or good in life.

At the closing exercises of the examination, Rev. Mr. Crandall of R. I., made some very appropriate and interesting remarks. He said it was difficult to avoid the impression that Providence had chosen and marked out a sphere of life for every individual on earth, and that with proper culture and devotedness to the cause of truth, every one might ascertain and work in his own proper vocation. The essential olement of every great mind, is honesty-rectitude-a perpendicularity in conduct. Learning in itself has a moral tendency. The report from the Navy Department will ductive of most useful results.

Two officers of the navy were heretofore instruced to explore the whole extent of the Amazon river from the contines of Peru to its mouth. The return of one of them has placed in the possession of the Government an interesting and valuable account of the character and resources of a country abounding in the materials of commerce, and which, it opened to the industry of the world, will prove an inexhaustible fund of wealth. The re-port of this exploration will be communicated to you as soon as it is completed.

Among other subjects offered to your notice by the Secretary of the Navy, I select for special ways to prevail on such occasions, and that the Treasury will continue to be applied to necessary for removing them to it. Justice arrearages of pay which are justly due to for the establishment of a permanent corps of seather will lead to a satisfactory result. corganization of the Naval Academy.

In reference to the first of these. I take occasion to say that I think it will greatly improve the efficiency of the service, and that I regard it as still more entitled to favor for the salutary influence it must exert upon the naval discipline, now greatly disturbed by the increasing spirit of insubordination, resulting from our present system. The plan proposed for the organization of the scamen furn-ishes a judicious substitute for the law of September, 1850, abolishing corporal punishment, and satisfactorily sustains the policy of that act, under lington to maintain our neutrality. While conditions well adapted to maintain the authority of command and the order and security of our ships. It is believed that any change which proposes permanently to dispense with this mode of ved upon our own shores. While the flower punishment, should be preceded by a system of their numerous armies was wasted by disenlistment which shall supply the navy with seamen of the most meritorious class, whose good deportment and pride of character may preclude all occasion for a resort to penalties of a harsh or degrading nature.

The safety of a ship and her crew is often de pendant upon immediate obedience to a command, and the authority to enforce it must be equally ready. The arrest of a refractory scamen, in such moments, not only deprives the ship of indispenmoments, not only deprives the ship of indispensable aid, but imposes a necessity for double service on others whose fidelity to their duties may be relied upon in such an emergency. The exposure to this increased and arduous labor, since the passage of the act of 1850, has already had, to a most observable and injurious extent the effect of preventing the culistment of the best seamen in the navy. The plan now suggested is designed to promote a condition of service in which this objection will no longer exist. The details of this p'an may be established in great part, if not alto-gether, by the Executive, under the authority of isting laws; but I have thought it proper, in accordance with the suggestion of the Secretary of the Navy, to submit it to your approval.

partments of this Government to bear testi-

It has been the uniform policy of this Government from its foundation to the present quence has been that while the nations of Europe have been engaged in desolating wars, our country has pursued its peaceful course, to unexampled prosperity and happiness .-The wars in which we have been compelled to engage, in defence of the rights and honor of the country, have been fortunately of short duration. During the contest of nation against nation, which succeeded the French revolution, we were enabled by case or perished by hundreds of thousand up-on the battle-field, the youth of this favored land were permitted to enjoy the blessings of peace beneath the paternal roof. While the S:ate of Europe incurred enormous debts under the burden of which their subjects still groan, and which must absorb no small part of the product of the honest industry of those countries for generations to come, the United States have once been enabled to exhibit the proud spectacle of a nation free from public debt; and, if permitted to pursue our prosperous way for a few years longer in peace, we may do the same again.

But it is now said by some that this policy must be changed. Europe is no longer separated from us by a voyage of months, but steam navigation has brought her within a few day's sail of our shores. We see more of her movements, and take deeper interest in her controversies. Although no one proposes that we should join the fraternity of potentofore pursued a different course from a sense of our weakness, but that now our conscious strenth dietates a change of policy, and that it is consequently our duty to mingle in these contests and aid those who are struggling for liberty.
This is a most seductive but dangerous appeal to the generous sympathics of freemen. Enjoying as we do the blessings of a free government, there is no man who has an American heart that would not rejoice to see We cannot witness the struggle between the oppressed and his oppressor anywhere without the deepest sympathy for the former, and the most anxious desire for his triumph.— Nevertheless, is it prudent, or is it wise, to involve ourselves in these foreign wars? Here was the false step which led to her subsequent misfortunes. She soon found herself involved in war with all the rest of Europe. In less than ten years her government was changed from a republic to an empire; and finally, after shedding rivers of blood, foreign powers restored her exile dynasty, and exhausted Europe sought peace and repose in unquestioned as-cendency of monarchical principles.

Let us learn wisdom from her example. Let us remember that revolutions do not always establish freedom. Our own free institutions were not the offspring of our Revolution. They existed before. They were planted in the free characters of self government under which the English colonies grew up, and our Revolution only freed us from the dominion of a foreign power, whose government was at variance with those institutions. But Euro-pean nations have had no such trainings for selfgovernment, and every effort to establish it by bloody revolutions has been, and must, without that preparation, continue to be a failure. Liberty, unregulated by law, degenerates into anarchy, which soon becomes the most horrid of all despotisms. Our policy is wisely to govern ourselves, and thereby set such an example of national justice, prosperity, and true glory, as shall teach, to all nations the blessing of self-government, and the unparalleled enterprise and success of a free

We live in an age of progress, and ours is emphatically a country of progress. Within the last half century the number of State in this Union has nearly doubled, the population has almost quadrubled, and our boundaries have been extended form the Mississippi to the Pacific. Our territory is chequered over with railroads and furrowed with The inventive talent of our country is excited to the lighest pitch, and the numerous applications for patents for valuable improvements distinguish this age and this people from all others. The genius of one American has enabled our commerce to move against wind and tide; and that of another has annihilated distance in the transmission of intelligence. The whole country is full of enterprise. The common schools are diffusing intellingence among the people, and our industry is fast accumulating the comforts and luxuries of life. This is in part owing to our peculiar position, fertile soil, and comparative sparce population; much of it is also owing to the popular stitutions under which we live, to the freedom which every man feels to engage in any useful pursuit, according to his taste or inclination, and to the entire confidence that his person and property will be protected by the laws. But whatever may be the case of this unparalled growth in population intelligence, and wealth, one thing is clear, that the government must keep pace with the progress of the people. It must participate in their spirit of enterprise, and while it exacts obedience to the laws, and restrains all unauthorized invasions of the rights of neighboring State, it should foster and protect home industry, and lend its powerful strenth to the improvement of such means of intercommunication as are necessary to promote our internal commerce and strengthen the ties which bind us together as a people.

It is not strange, however much it may be regretted, that such an exuberance of enterprise hould cause some individuals to mistake change for progress, and the invasion of the rights of others for national prowess and glory. The former are constantly agitating for some change in the organic law, or urging new and untried theories of human rights. The latter are ever ready to engage in any wild crusade against a neighboring people, regardless of the justice of the enterprise and without looking at the fatal consequencies to ourselves and to the cause of popular government. Such expeditions, however, are often stimulated by mercenary individuals, who expect to share the plunder or profit of the enterprise without ex posing themselves to danger, and are led on by some irresponsible foreigners, who abuse the ho patility of our own Government by seducing the young and ignorant to join in his scheme of personal ambition or revenge, under the false and delusive pretence of extending the area of freedom.— Those reprehensible aggressions but retard the true progress of our nation and tarnish its fair fame. They should, therefore, receive the indigmant frowns of every good citizen, who sincerely loves his country and takes a pride in its prosper

Our Constitution, though not perfect, is doubtless the best that was ever formed. Therefore let every proposition to change it be well weighed, and if found beneficial, cautiously adopted. Every patriot will rejoice to see its authority so ex-erted as to advance the prosperity and honor of the nation, whilst he will watch with jealousy any attempt to mutilate this char ter of our liberties. or pervert its powers to acts of agression or injus-tice. Thus shall conservation and progress blend their harmonious action in proserving the form and spirit of the Constitution, and at the same time carry forward the great improvements of the country with a rapidity and energy which freemen on-

In closing this, my last annual communication, permit me, fellow citizens, to congratulate you on the prosperous condition of our beloved country. Abroad, its relations with all foreign powers are friendly; its rights are respected, and its high place in the family of nations cheerfully recognized. At home we enjoy an amount of happiness, public and private, which has probably never fallen to the lot of any other people. Besides affording to our own citizens a degree of prosperity; of which on so large a scale I know of no other instance, our country is annually affording a refuge and a home to inultitudes, altogether without example from the Old World.

We owe these blessings, under Heaven, to the happy Constitution and Government which were bequenthed to us by our fathers, and which it is our sacred duty to transmit in all their integrity to our children. We must all consider it a great distinction and privilege to have been chosen by the people to bear a part in the administration of such a Government. Called by an unexpected dispensation to its highest trust, at a season of embarrassment and alarm, I entered upon its arduous duties with extreme diffidence. I claim only to have discharged them to the best of an humble ability, with a single eye to the public good, and it is with devout gratitude, in retiring from office, that I leave the country in a state o peace and prosperity.

As Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Catarrh, Pneumonia, Bronchitis, Consumption. This Great Remedy Is composed of rare and valuable herbs, the properrritation and pain, dispelling inflammation, and diffusing its Healing & Soothing Properties to every part of the body The estimation entertained of it by medical men may be inferred from the extensive use they make of it in many diseases, for which they possessed no reliable remedy until it was found in DR. HOUCK'S PANACEA. Price Reduced. Dr. Houck, at the earnest solicitation of thousands, has determined to reduce the price of this great and good medicine to ONE DOLLAR PER BOT-TLE, thereby placing it within the reach of all.— His only desire is that it may have a range as universal as it is competent to arrest the whole catalogue of diseases with which humanity is afflicted. He will then be content, because he will be sure that its virtues are widely spread, and the family happiness complete. All letters on business, or orders from druggists, nerchants, traders, agents and dealers in medicine must be addressed to Dr. F. Houck, N. York city. For sale by F. G. BREWSTER, sole Agent for Oct. 9, 1852-6m. Bridgeton.

Philadelphia, Nov. 2, 1851. DR .STEELING—Dear Sir:—In compliance with your request, that I should express my opinion of of your Pulmonary Syrup, I am happy to say that having very frequently used it in my family for various pulmonary complaints, for several years past, and particularly for croup amongst our children, to which they have been more or less subject. we have always found the most beneficial results from its use. Upon the appearance of this disprinted directions, which speedily produces sickness and vomiting, after which the system becomes relaxed, perspiration ensues, the alarming symptoms are removed, and, through the blessing of Providence upon the means used, the sufferer is soon restored to health. Knowing you to be an old and experienced physician, your Pulmonary Syrup is, doubtless, the result of much labor and experience; and as it has been a kind friend in my family, I do most cordially recommend it to the notice of all, but most particularly to mothers, who night save their children many a severe pang, by always keeping a supply of your Syrup on hand, and giving it immediately upon the first appearance of any of those diseases for which it is recommended.
