THE LIFE GUAGE.

They err who measure life by years, With false or thoughtless tongue; Some hearts grow old before their time; Others are always young!

'Twas not the number of the lines On Life's fast filling page; 'Tis not the pulse's added throbs Which constitutes their age.

Some souls are serfs among the free. While others nobly thrive; They stand just where their fathers stood; Dead, even while they live Others, all spirit, heart and sense;-Their's the mysterious power To live, in thrills of joy or wo, A twelvementh in an hour!

Seize then, the minutes as they pass-The wool of Life is Thought! Warm up the colors-let them glow, By fire or fancy fraught.

Live to some purpose-make thy Life A gift of use to thee? A joy, a good, a golden hope, A heavenly argosy!

MORAL.

LIVE NOT TO YOURSELF.

the opening rose. Ask why it hangs there? "I hang here," says the beautiful flower, "to sweeten the air which man breathes, to open my beauties, to kindle emotion in his eye, to show him the hand of God, who pencilled each leaf and laid them thus on my bosom .-And whether you find me here to greet him every morning, or whether you find me on the lone mountain side, with the bare possibuilty that he will throw me one passing glance my end is the same-I live not to myself. Beside vonder highway stands an aged tree, solitary and alone. You see no living thing near it; and you say, surely that must stand for itself alone. "No," answers the tree, "God never made me for a purpose so small. For more than a hundred years I have stood here. In summer I have spread out my arms and sheltered the panting flocks which hastened to my shade. In my besom I have concealed and protected the brood of young birds as they lay and rocked in their nests; in the storm I have more than once received in my body the lightning's bolt, which had else destroyed the traveller; the acorus which I have matured from year to year have been carried far and wide, and groves of forest oaks can claim me as their parent. I have lived for the eagle which has perched on my top, or the humming bird that has paused and refreshed its giddy wing, ere it danced away again like a blossom of the air; for the insect that has found a home within the folds of my bark; and when I can stand no longer, I shall fall by the hand of man, and I shall go to strengthen the ship which makes him lord of the ocean; and to his dwelling to warm his hearth and cheer his home-I live not to myself. On yonder mountain side comes down the silver brook, in the distance resembling the ribbon of silver, running and leaping as it dashes joyously and fearlessly down. Ask the leaper what it is doing. "I was born," sings the brook, "high up the mountain, but there I could do no good; and so I am hurrying down, running where I can, and leaping where I must, but hastening down to water the sweet valley; where the thirsty cattle may drink, where the lark may sing on my mar-gin, where I may drive the mill for the accommodation of man, and then widen into the great river, and bear up his steamboats and shipping, and finally plungo into the ocean, to rise again in vapour, and perhaps come back again in the cloud to my own native mountain, and live my short life over again Not a drop of water comes down my channel, in whose bright face you may not read, 'None of us liveth to himself!" And thus God has written upon the flower that swetens the air, upon the breeze that rocks that flower on its stem, upon the raindrops that swell the mighty river, upon the dew-drop that refreshes the smallest sprig of moss that rear its head in the desert, upon the ocean that tosses its spray in useful indus try, not in idle sport, upon every pencilled shell that sleeps in the caverns of the deep, as well as upon the mighty sun which warms and cheers the millions of creatures thut live in his light-upon all has he written, "None of us liveth to himself!"

As there are some faults that have been termed faults on the right side, so there are some errors that might be denominated errors on the safe side. Thus we seldom regret having been too mild, too cautious, or too humble; but we often repent having been too a face so sweet, so patient, hushing and sooth-violent, too precipitate, or too proud. a face so sweet, so patient, hushing and sooth-ing a sick baby. And the babe slept; and violent, too precipitate, or too proud.

BETTER THAN DIAMONDS.

I was standing in the broad crowded street of a large city. It was a cold winter's day. There had been rain; and although the sun was shining brightly, yet the long icicles hung from the eaves of the houses, and the wheels rumbled loudly as they passed over the ground. There was a clear bright look. and a cold bracing feeling in the air, and a keen, north-west wind, which quickcned every step. Just then a little child came running along-a poor, ill-clad child; her clothes were scant and threadbare; she had no cloak, and no shawl; and her little bare feet looked red and suffering. She could not have been more than eight years old. She carried a bundle in her hand. Poor little shivering child! I, even I, who could do nothing else, pitied her. As she passed me, her foot slipped upon the co and she fell, with a cry of pain; but she held the bundle tightly in her hand, and jumping up, although she limped sadly, endeavored to run as before.
"Stop, little girl, stop," said a sweet voice;

and with furs all around her, came out of jeweler's store close by. "Poor little child," she said, "are you hurt? Sit down on this step, and tell me." How I loved her, and how beautiful she looked! "Oh, I caunot," said the child, "I cannot wait-I am in such a hurry. I have been to the shoemaker's, and mother must finish this work to-night, or she will never get any more shoes to bind." "Tonight!" said the beautiful woman, 'to-night! "Yes," said the child-for the stranger's kind manner had made her bold -" yes; for the great ball to-night; and these satin slippers must be spangled, and"—The beautiful voman took the bundle from the child's hand, and unrolled it. You did not know why her face flushed, and then turned pale; but I, yes, , looked into the bundle, and on the inside of a slipper I saw a name—a lady's name—

So the child told her where, and then he told her that her father was dead, and that her little baby brother was sick, and that her mother bound shoes that they might have bread: but that sometimes they were very old; and that her mother sometimes cried, pecause she had no money to buy milk for thing else; no, not even one sixpence; and, urning away, went back into the store from Presently she came back, and stepping into matter, and will prevent decay, smaller doses a handsome carriage, rolled off. AGRICULTURE

From the Working Farmer. SALT AS A MANURE.

Mr. Kellogg, of Oswego said that he had found the wire worm pentiful on his farm, and he had found means to get rid of it by sowing on an acre a barrel of fine salt immediately before plowing in the spring, and he believed salt among it after it was up.

Mr. Gore said the salt killed the grubs.

Dr. Church considered salt as very valuale in agriculture, and gave its chemical char-

Mr. Kellog had tried to kill the Canada thistle by salt, and succeeded to a considerable extent, in destroying them.

Prof. Mapes remarked that the value of alt as a fertilizer is entirely worthy of the losest thought of the agriculturist.

It is entirely composed of chlorine and soda, known by chemists as chloride of sodium; and each of these constituents is found to be wanted in most soils. When moderate doses of salt, say six bushels per acre are applied as a top dressing, it will be carried into the soil by the dews of one or two nights.— While existing as salt, it destroys a great number of the lesser insects, the eva of insects, that many insects that are fully grown all these of an albuminous composition are destroyed by it. Mr. Aaron Kellog, of Oswego, who is present states that one barrel of salt per acre protects his corn from the ravages of the wire-worm. This has been disputed by Mr. Sanford Howard, of The Boston Cultivator, but from the various evidences offered of this result, I am inclined to think from that known to us as the wire-worm. The corn and melon grub [the white grub with a red head] is entirely done away with I apply that quantity every year to every acre of my land, and since adopting this practice I have never lost a plant by grubs. My neighbors, who are afraid to try salt, continue BONES. The use of bones for manire is now so great in England, that the importation into that country exceeds ten millions of dollars per annum. This fact is suggestive of many queer ideas. For example, it will some minds that the chief value of many men lies in their bones, which the riginal owners, useless while living, have yilded up when dead, for agricultural use. There is comfort in the thought that multitudes who never accomplished any good in life, may aid in rendering our fields and gardens frutful, thus verifying the poet's affirmation, the good is oft interred with their bones."

In the light of this modern science which reveals the utility of bones, it may be questioned if the old saw, "a living dog is better than a dead lion," is well considered and true. Nay, it will strike some minds as highly probable that most living lions are of less value than the same number of dead ones .-Take such lions as Alexander, Ceasar, Napoleon, and others of that ilk, and weigh their worth while alive against their worth when dead, and it is not at all unlikely the dead presence on earth .- N. NEW JERSEY CONFERENCE.

We extract the following from the concluding remarks of the Rev. Dr. Bond, Editor of the Christian Advocate and Journal, April 28.

The New-Jersey Annual Conference closed its session on Wednesday night about 10 o'clock, with the reading of the appointments. The session had been pleasant and harmonious throughout. We are certain that we did not hear an unkind or uncharitable remark during the discussions which arose in the body. Every one refrained from speaking until he was sure he had something to say, and then said it in as few words as possible. There was not a single trespass on the brief time allowed for the session, or the patience of the members; that I knew; until one passed me, whose dress and all, whether old or young, were heard and the parallel streets, as well as the transwith the most respectful attention, because all bosom, and whose voice was like the sweet had so much respect for their brethren as no to impose upon them irrelevant matter, or have never attended an Annual Conference in which there was a more general compliance with the apostolic injunction. "Let cach esteem the other better than himself:" and hence all contributed to the harmony and good feeling of the body. There was no selfcreated "speaking committee" in the Jersey Conference; and yet we have not been in a conference in which there was exhibited more deference to aged ministers, or more respect to the advice and counsels of those whose experience entitled their opinions to respect. Nothing was assumed or demanded on this ground, and therefore everything was voluntarily accorded. Some resolutions and proceedings were directed to be published in the that his flax acquired a better coat by sowing | Christian Advocate and Journal which have not yet been received, but which will be forwarded and published in due time. At present we give only the appointments, which are given after the last revision of Bishop Morris. who accompanied us to Philadelphia in the steamboat, and who made certain corrections in transitu. As we could not attend all the churches, we think it would be invidious to speak of the sermons we heard, as it is quite possible that those we did hear were not more o be commended than others which we were not favoured to hear. From all we did hear, and from the reports of others, we were comforted in the assurance that the old doctrines of Methodism were preached, and that philosophy, "falsely so called." was in no instance substituted for "the faith once delivered to the saints." Our brethren were pleased to pass resolutions commending the Christian Advocate and Journal to the patronage of the Church, which, according to the direction of the conference, will appear hereafter in our colums.

A summary of the Conference statistics will e gratifying to our readers. The Conference is composed of more than two hundred preachers, occupying chiefly the comparatively small State of New-Jersey, with Staten Island, and a few other appointments in the State of Newthat Mr. Howard refers to a different insect York. There were reported of members in society 31,754: probationers 5,819—making in the aggregate 37,573; and an increase over the report of last year of 1,720. There was raised for missionary purposes last year $9,-693; an increase over the contributions of the previous year of $2,610. For the Bible Society $2,676; for the Sunday-School Union

During the session of the Conference the Rev. A. Stevens attended, and a contribution of some $400 was made, after an address from this good brother, to the "Tract enterprise," constituting the New-Jersey Conference the Banner Conference" in the Tract cause for the present. A Fair Report.—A part of wits once supped at a tavern. When the feast was over, one of the number called in the hostess. "Angelique," said he, "I am going to give you a lesson in astronomy. Have you not heard of that great platonic year, when every thing must return to its first condition? -Know then, that in just sixteen thousand years we shall be here again, on the same day, and at the same hour. Will you give us credit till then?"

The hostess, however, had her reply. "I am perfectly willing," she retorted; but it is just sixteen thousand years since you were here before and you left without paying: settle the old score and I will trust you on

An earnest and fruitful reformed man, a member of one of our City Divisions lately said that since he quit the use of intoxicating liquors, now two years ago, he had saved of his earnings about $900, had built a snug house and nearly paid for it, and is prosperous and happy. He spoke feelingly of the difficulty of reformation, by those who are bound in the thraldom of intemperance.

"On one occasion" said he, "I was returning home from work, and the hankering for cuit of considerable distance." There are many noble souls in this city of Trenton who are sensible of their need of reformation, but alast are so beset with temptations that the work seems almost impossible. Remove the gaged in puinting the front of a lofty house in savedation from their path and they will be Vesey Street, the scaffolding gave way and or philanthropist can heatest by Christian one of the men was instantly killed. Shall we have a Public Library?

When the celebrated Alexandrian library was destroyed, through the fanatic zeal of the bigoted conquerers, the citizens of the town anxious to preserve an institution, so justly prized, sent earnest and frequent appeals to the Saracen general in its behalf. His answer, so completely characteristic of that age and people, is familiar to almost every school boy. "If" said he "the books agree with the Koran there is enough without them. If they do not, they are pernicious, and ought to be destroyed."

Since that day, the light of civilization and learning, has departed from Egypt, to rest with a nation then unknown; and both conquerers and conquered, even in the midst of the most splendid monuments of genius, have faded almost into obscurity.

The oft repeated lessons of history, that with the decay of literature and the arts, Nations must decline, and in proportion to their rise and progress, countries become prosper ous and powerful, seem hardly to be appreciated by our otherwise progressive citizens.

True, we have succeeded in organizing that theory of government, best adapted to promote the welfare of the human race and to encourage the development of mans highest powers. Still the street corners of all our towns and villages, bear unmistakeable evidences, of a want of intellectual and moral cultivation.

About the year 1811 a company was organized in this town, for the purpose of social. improvement. They commenced a library. which has reached near 300 volumes. The habits and tastes encouraged by that institution, have assisted its members to become among our most useful and valued citizens. They are now busied with the multiform cares and anxieties of active life, with but a small portion of time to bestow upon this institution. Unless public attention becomes again awakened to its importance, it is to be feared, that its fate will be but little better than that of its Egyptian predecessor. striking difference however pharecterizes the citizens of the two places. The Alexandrians used every means in their power, to preserve their library, whilst the enlightened citizens of our town, seem totally and absolutely indifferent to the fate of ours.

A large portion of our aitigant And yet it is to be feared, with an indifference almost amounting to recklessness, they allow their children to roam through the streets during the evening, and join in the ribaldry and profanity of the street corners, without even an effort to check their headlong career. To say nothing of the time thus worse than wasted, the habits and associations thus formed, must exert a powerful influence, even upon the temporal affairs of their after life. Habits, formed in youth, bind age with a triple chord. Accustomed while young to exchange the pleasures of the social fireside, for the coarse amusement of the streets, boys grow up to manhood, and settle in life, without an appreciation of what their families have a right to require of them. Their homes are deserted at the evening hour, and their children allowed in turn to acquire the same tastes and habits, which are constantly rendering themselves socially unhappy.

To remedy this, to introduce into the fami ly circle a new and attractive social element, to furnish the youth of the town, an incentiv to acquire steady and correct habits, and a the same time, keep progressive pace with the young people of other towns, we propose the establishment of a public library, with a convenient Lecture room attached.

The old library company, are willing to contribute their stock of books on liberal terms, and several of our prominent citizens, have manifested a willingness, to contribute in land and money, to the erection of a building. A very small amount contributed annually would soon enable us to have a valuable and interesting library.

Under such a system a vast amount of knowledge might be diffused among the masses. Works, written in an interesting style, calculated to interest and instruct the from the presei

We believe that a building can be, contructed, and a good library established, with o little individual sacrifice, as to be scarcely felf by the contributors at all. But once established, the annual cost to keep it supplid with books, can be but little when divided for another year. among several.

road on the third route, as the right of way will cost less than on either of the other routes. So that our citizens will do well to bear in mind, when claiming damages for the ground to he asserted by the road that exorbitant charges for the right of way, may have the effect of changing the location of the road.

To the citizens of a large part of this county, it is certainly desirable that the middle route should be chosen. While to the stockholders it is still more important, because by the branch to the mouth of Cohansey Creek. much of the trade and travel from Philadelphia must pass to reach the South. This route, would form nearly an "air line" from Philadelphia to the terminus of the Delaware Railroad, which will ultimately be the main Southern line of travel.

Therefore as no road can be built, so direct from Philadelphia to Norfolk, nor any having such claims for their patronage, as this route for the West Jersey road, it is certainly of importance to all parties that this should be selected.

Again, on the other hand it would make Cape Island more easily accessible to the Southern portion of visitors, than any of the other watering places. Viewed in any light in which we can place it, a rare combination of important circumstances point to this as the route proper to be selected.

RESULT OF A HORSE TRADE. - Last Monday, a travelling pedler by the name of Morrison, was found near Gouldtown, by some of the residents in that vicinity, lying on the ground much bruised and nearly helpless. His horse lay a short distance from him,

They had low ered the main sail, for the purpose of going in the mouth of the canal, at Delaware City The boom and sail swinging around, knocked the boy overboard.

At the last account the body had not been recovered.

A NATIVE JERSEYMAN.-A monster oyster weighing three pounds fourteen and a half ounces, was caught at Great Sound, a few days ago, by John W. Gundy of Cape May. It is the largest fish of the kind, ever caught in this country. In these times of high provision, enough such gentlemen, would prove acceptable visitants to the coming worlds fair.

As we were sitting in our Sanctum th other day busily cogitating over the prospec tive influence of the West Jersey Railroad over the prosperity of the town in general and ourself in particular, we were suddenly startled by the cry of our devil "there goes the cars." LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

NEW ORLEANS, MAY 9, The steamship Daniel Webster, from San Juan, with California dates to the 16th of April, reached her wharf last evening.

The Daniel Webster is connected with and brings the passengers of the steamship Brother Jonathan, which left San Francisco on the 16th ult. The Daniel Webster brings about 200 passengers, and a considerable amount in gold aragua line. She ran ashore in a fog near carefully fenced to exclude both animals and the same spot where the Tennessee struck, a foot passengers. Corps of signal men should few weeks ago, and shortly after became a total wreck. Her passengers numbering 385, are all believed to have been saved. At the time of the accident the S. S. Lew is was from San Juan to San Francisco, with the passengers by the Prometheus, which left New York on the 19th of March. The S. S. Lewis was built at Philadelphia in 1851, and was valued at $200,000. There was no insurance on her. Steamboat Jeany Lind had exploded her boilers near San Francisco, terribly scalding from 60 to 70 persons, twenty of whom had Among the victims of this terrible disaster was the whole family of Mr. Noah Ripley, consisting of himself wife and four children. San Francisco Bay, and 18 persons were killed instantly by the explosion. The steamer which formerly plied between

San Francisco and Sacramento, had just got fairly under way when the explosion occurred blowing out the plate of her boiler, and scattering death and destruction among all on The bodies of 18 of the dead have been re-fully scalded; so much so, that not one among them is expected to live.

The flood at Sacramento was subsiding. Among the acts passed by the Legislature, was a general bill for the incorporation of Railroad Companies, and also a bill extending the provisions of the Fugitive Slave Law for another year. From Oregon. - We have advices from Oregon three days later, but there is nothing of particular importance. Several new and valuable mining districts have been discovered. From the Sandwich Islands.—The only item of news from the West is the discovery of rich gold deposits in New Zealand near Auckland.

The prevailing opinion here is, that the engineer was to blame, as it is alleged that the usual signals were displayed in time by the bridge tender. This fact is stated confidently by many of those who have escaped, but on the other hand a different testimony is given by several of those who survived. There are probably ten or more bodies still in the wreck.

The scene is dreadful, and heart-rending to witness.

Ample medical attendance was soon on the spot, and all possible assistance to the sufferers is being rendered by the ladies of Norwalk and the citizens generally.

The mails and most of the baggage has been saved in a damaged state.

On Monday evening, the emigrant express train of the Patterson line, which left Jersey City, came in collision with the Eric express train, travelling towards that place, near Bergen Four Corners. The shock was terrific .-The locomotives were broken into peices; three persons were fearfully injured, of whom two now lie in the New York Hospital.

The express train from New York Saturday afternoon, did not reach Springfield until 12 1.4 at night. It was detained at Meriden in consequence of the blasting of a rock which was thrown on the track.

On Saturday as the New Bedford and Taunton train was about one mile and a half below Taunton, the axletree of the tender gave out, and it was immediately thrown down an embankment of thirty feet. The baggage car, directly behind, was precipitated below, on the right of the track, and also the succeeding car, in which were twenty-five passengers. All three were completely demolished. One young man belonging in Providence, was rescued from beneath the ruins, and was at first supposed to be dead. He, however very soon partially revived, and was able to procoed on his journey. fifteen persons were more or less injured.

The escape from death is almost unaccoun-

Securities for Travellers by Railroad. The telegraph has already informed us that bill has been introduced in the Legislature of Connecticut to make railroad companies liable to pay ten thousand dollars for every life lost through the carelessness of their employees. We hope it will pass, but as the Tribune which the subscriber is now prepared to furnish in suggests, this heavy fine is not sufficient to large or small quantities, at his Pits, near the Red guard the lives of travelers; and it argues that Meeting House, Upor Alloways Greek township, stringent regulations should also forbid the opening of draw-bridges within at least half an hour of the time for a train to pass.-Wherever a railway crosses a common road, the intelligence of the total wreck of the steamship S. S. Lewis, belonging to the Nicbe kept all along the line to watch the track and give warning whenever there might be danger. Frequent and thorough examination should prove the car-wheels and axles and the rails to be sound and perfect, and all that would not stand the test should be put out of use. Let regulations like these be adopted, and let rail-road companies be less niggardly in expending money for the safety of their passengers, and less greedy of their own profits, and it will be possible to say good-bye to your friends, and take a seat in a car, without feeling as if you were proceeding to execution .-But until these reforms have been introduced, we advise every one who is obliged to travel by rail-road, to make his will, and set his affairs in order, for it is doubtful whether The accident occured just at the head of he will ever be brought back alive. - Sun.

Opening of the New Water Works .- We had the pleasure yesterday of making one of a party to witness the opening of the new arrangements to supply the city with water .-The pump and machinery on the Delaware were set in motion about four o'clock yesterday afternoon, in the presence of a number of citizens and performed their part to the admiration of all. The whole party then walkcovered. Thirty or forty others were dread- ed up to the reservoir on the Pennington road, and by the time they arrived the, the water was coming through the pipes in a very regular stream. This test shows ...

pains have been spared to render the perfect in every particular. The reservoi perfectly tight, and holds the water much more completely than was expected. The reservoir is 56 feet higher than the crown head in Warren street, opposite the Third Presbyterian Church.

The grounds at the reservoir are being sodded and fitted up in a very tasteful manner, so that the locality will present during the summer a very favorable place of resort.

No person who has not taken the trouble to go over these works can form a correct idea, of the extent of the improvement which the company has made. It is certainly highy creditable to their public spirit, and will, in time, be appreciated as decidedly the great feature of the town. - State Gazette.

Large Eggs .- The Sussex Registe: has re eived a hen's egg from Mr. Issachar Stull, of Green township, in that county, which measures six and a half inches in circumference, eight inches over the butt and point, entirely submerged in the water. Beauty, Health, and Chespness. SAMUEL L. FITHIAN has on hard and for sale a large lot of Zine Paints as follow viz. Puro Zine White No. 1, 2 & 3, Brown Zine Black Zine,

Zine Dryer and Domar varnish. The Zine Paints in their improved state have now been in use for a number of years and fully tested side by side with the Best Pure White Lead and has in every instance proyed to be superior to White Lead both in Color, Durability, Beauty, and Cheapness. From experiments it has been found that 100 lbs best White Zine will cove when applied in three coats on new work as much surface as 166 2-8 lbs White Load Pure, and will cover as well which makes the Zinc over 60per of chesper than

It is equally applicable to inside or outside work or for the bottom of vessels or in any other place where paint is necessary. The reasons above given, we think should satisfy any one of the Superiority of the Zine paints but should any yet doubt, we should be pleased to have them give us a call and we think we can fully satisfy them of their superiority for Beauty, Durability, Health & Cheapness.

To the Afflicted. Cape May Court House, Jan. 1, 1853. WIIS is to Certify that in the fall of 1847, I was attacked with a very bad cold, attended with a severe cough, which continued for some eight weeks, the latter part of which time I raised large quantities of Blood, attended with Fever and Night Sweats; during all which time my Cough increased in violence, so much so, that I, and also my friends, became alarmed about my case. I had tried various remedies, which had little or no effect, until I was induced to give Brewster's Peteral Mixture a trial, less than one bottle of which en-

Dr. Styrting Dear Sir In complished with DR .STEELING—Dear Sir:—In compliance with your request, that I should express my opinion of of your Pulmonary Syrup, I am happy to say that having very frequently used it in my family for various pulmonary complaints, for several years past, and particularly for croup amongst our children to which they have becomes a considered. dren, to which they have been more or less subject, we have always found the most beneficial results we have always found the most beneficial results from its use. Upon the appearance of this discuss we apply at once to your Pulmenary Syrup; and when the symptoms are severe, we double, and sometimes treble the dose recommended in your printed directions, which speedily produces sickness and vomiting, after which the system becomes relaxed, perspiration ensues, the alarming symptoms are removed, and, through the blessing of toms are removed, and, through the blessing of Providence upon the means used, the sufferer is soon restored to health. Knowing you to be an old and experienced physician, your Pulmonary Syrup is, doubtless, the result of much labor and experience; and as it has been a kind friend in my family, I do most cordially recommend it to the notice of all, but most particularly to mothers, who night save their children many a sovere pang, by always keeping a supply of your Syrup on hand, and giving it immediately upon the first appear-ance of any of those diseases for which it is recommended.
