COULDN'T COS HE SUNG SO.

Leaning idly over a fence, a few days since we noticed a little four year old "lord of the creation" amusing himself in the grass by watching the frolicsome flight of birds which were playing around him. At length a beautiful bobolink perched himself upon a drooping bough of an apple-tree, which extended to within a few yards of the place where the urchin sat, and maintained his position, apparently unconscious of the close proximity to one whom birds usually consider a dangerous Slowly the little arm subsided to the natural position, and the despised stone dropped. The minstrel charmed the murderer! Correspondence of the State Gazette. MR. EDITOR:-I have recently returned from a most delightful trip to Lehigh county, Pa., by way of the Belvidere railroad. Whilst there, I was surprised and highly pleased at viewing the almost endless beds of iron, zinc, slate, &c., with which a kind Providence has blessed our beloved country.

Towns in their vicinity are springing ap with a marvellous rapidity, that nearly regenerates my long lost faith in the wonders of Aladdin's Lamp, or the Genii, that were attendant upon it. Prejudice, that bane to American productions and industry, is fast wearing away, though now and then fanned into a flickering blaze by a few blustering forcigners, solely from personal motives, and the American people are beginning to duly appreciate the old axiom, that the general encouragement and prosperity of every branch of domestic industry, enhances the individual prosperity of all. I was much amused at the remark of a wealthy iron master, whilst there, upon my expressing my surprise at the richness and beauty of that section of our country, its balmy air, the freshness of its verdure, its beautiful hills and valleys, teeming not only with the necessaries, but luxuries of life.-Yes, said he, Providence has blessed us with a bountiful hand. Only look, we have iron elsewhere, and Joe, who was just making up foundations for our cellars, granite for our his mind to treat himself with a kiss, was bountiful hand. Only look, we have iron walls, and slate for our roofs and a surplusage of everything, essential for not only the outer, but inner man and with emphasis that showed the native of What more do we want? It was with pride my breast quietly echoed yea. What more do we want but proper encouragement, from our own countrymen to make our envied country, in a few years, a head and shoulders, taller than any that either ancient or modern history has ever portraved What a solace this feeling, this knowledge and only to be experienced in its fullest extent and extacy, by one to the manor born,— What a dose for all the cynics of foreign extraction, who only visit our country for the purpose of being pampered and lionised whilst here, and to make a few sovereigns on their

And now Mr. B. are you ever troubled with above, its pure air and crystal waters, will instanter force them to leave you, and with a grace to be athered by a reasonable sized high pressure engine, force you to feel and say, Richard is himself again." Not desiring to tire you, I will add, that I had the pleasure of visiting, whilst there, the extensive and valuable Slate quarries of one of our citizens, Mr. R. M. Jones, and was assured by some of the most scientific judges, that his present openings are turning out slates for roofing and other purposes, which for color and toughness, (the only desirable qualities) are not excelled by any, either imported or produced in this country. He is now erecting a large factory, for the manufactory of school slates, the American being esteemed a purer article, has driven the Welsh and German entirely from our schools and counting houses, as it will shortly do from the tops of our buildings. As Mo. J. was one of the carliest pioneers in this branch of business, and of indomitable energy and perseverance in revealing the hidden riches of our country; it is to be hoped he may meet with due encouragement, at least, from all who are not too prejudiced to judge ### for themselves. Yours, Rusticus. Poison From Lead Pipes.

The subject of poisoning, by water conveyed in lead pipes, continues to be agitated in New York. One of the journals of that city publishes a letter, demonstrating irrefragibly that the Croton water sometimes becomes poisoned, in this way, within the space of twelve hours. Of course the quantity of the poison, which is salts of lead, is very small. But nevertheless its injurious effects have been demonstrated, by many cases that have come to the knowledge of medical men, some of which are referred to by a correspondent of the journal. In the College of Physicians in New York, there are two pipes, the water drawn from one of which exhibits the metal, if only twelve hours have elapsed since the water entered the pipe, while water may remain twice that period in the other without the metal yielding to the test. Dr. Foster, of the Bellevue Hospital, testifies to a numerous class of patients, whose diseases may be traced to using Croton water conveyed through lead pipes. And, last year, a committee of the American Medical Association, reporting directly on this subject, referred to many examples of persons who had been poisound, in a greater or less degree, in the same manner, and made, among other statements, the following striking one: " Not unfrequently cases of chronic disease, which have for months, and in some instances for years, been unsuscessfully treated for neuralgia, dyspepsia; jaundice, and more especially rheumatism, have yielded to the treatment proper for lead maladies."

The conclusion seems to be that it is never entirely safe to use water that has remained standing for any length of time, either in lead pipes or in cisterns lined with lead. In results of drinking such water may not appear. The mass of men, in fact, appear to be exempt, constitutionally, from the effects of the poison. But as no person knows whether he or she will be among this happy num-ber, the only sure method is to abstain altomarkets in the eastern cities, where beef at lead pipes are already in use, the inducements are not, perhaps, sufficient to lead to their being removed. But, in such cases, the water on being drawn, should be allowed to run The World's Fair Cattle Show.

THE BEWITCHED CLOCK.

About half-past eleven o'clock on Sunday night, a human leg enveloped in blue broadcloth "might have been seen" entering Dea-con Cephas Barberry's kitchen window. The leg was followed finally, by the entire person of a live Yankee, attired in his Sunday goto-meeting clothes. It was Joe Mayweed, who thus burglarously won his way into the Deacon's kitchen.

She made up a rousing fire in the cooking stove, and the happy couple sat down to enjoy the sweet interchange of yows and hopes. But the course of true love ran no smoother in Barberry's kitchen than it does startled by voice of the Deacon shouting from his chamber door: "Sally! what are you getting up in the middle of the night for?" "Tell him it's most morning," whispered

"I can't tell a fib" said Sally. "I'll make it a truth, then," said Joe; aud unning to the huge, old fashioned clock that stood in the corner, he set it at five.

"Look at the clock and tell me what time t is," cried the old gentleman up stairs. "It is just five - according to the clock," said Sally.

The lovers sat down again and resumed their conversation. Suddenly the staircase began to creak. "Goody gracious it's father."

"The Deacon, by thunder!" cried Joc .-"Where can I hide you?" cried the distrac-

The Deacon was dressed, and seating himself down by the cooking stove, pulled out his pipe, lighted it, and commenced smoking de iberately and calculy.
"Five o'clock, ch!' said he. "Well, shall have to somoke three or four pipes, and then I will go out and feed the critters." "Hadn't you better feed the critters first, sir, and smok afterwards?" suggested Sally. "No-smokin' clears my head, and wakes me up," answered the Deacon, who seemed not a whit to hurry his enjoyment. "Burr-r r-r--whiz-ding! ding! ding!" went the clock. "Tormented lightning!" cried the Deacon starting up, and dropping his pipe on the stove

Only $1 00 per Year? FRANKLIN FERGUSON, EDITORS.

Joseph A. Miller.

Glass Manufactories of Cumberland Co. Among the industrial pursuits of West Jersey the manufacture of Glass occupies a prominent position.

Of the whole quantity manufactured in this country, this State furnishes a large proportion. With the exception of five or six houses, the business seems to be confined to the first congressional district.

In the State there are thirty-five or six Glass factories, twenty-three of which are hollow ware, eleven window, and one flint glass house. Thirteen of these factories or more than one third of the whole number in the State are in this county, and are located as follows: six at Millville, three at Schetterville, two at Port Elizabeth, one at Bridgeton and one at Marshallville. Three of these

If the West Jersey Railroad should take the central route all these factories except one, will be upon or near the line of the road. An enumeration of some of the principal articles used in this manufacture, exhibits the existence and necessity of a considerable commerce, to enable them to be successfully car-

For the information of the curious we ap pend the following tabular statement, of the quantity used and value of these articles viz: 780 tons soda ash, worth $48,750 00 11,700 cords wood, " 29,250 00 7,800 barrels rosin, " 11,700 00 2,860 tons sand, 4,290 00 32,500 bushel lime, " 3.380 00 Lumber, Nails, &c. " 11,700 00 2,600 00 Clay, Annual value of labor in and

130,000 00 around the factories, Total value of material and cost of labor. $241,670 00

The number of hands directly employed in the manufacture exclusive of wood choppers teamsters and others indirectly employed, is his reception, and quite a splendid array of and continued applause.] Everything around about four hundred and sixty.

The number not included in this estimate, employed in the various parts of the trade, with their families and the families of those directly engaged, furnish a large class in the population of the county. Besides the capital above mentioned as invested in this business, nearly all of these factorics have stores connected with them, which employ profitably a large additional capital.

The quantity of vials, bottles, &c., annually produced by the hollow ware houses, is estimated at one hundred and fifty-six thousand gross. The fact that so many of these factories are located in this county, proves the adaptation of lower Jersey to that branch of business. When in connection with this, we take into consideration the multiplying uses to which glass is being employed, and the increasing quantity annually demanded to supply the existing wants of the country, we look to the future of the lower counties as indicating much commercial prosperity, when the country shall be fairly opened to the spirit of enterprise by railroad facilities with the lead ing cities of the union.

Much of this portion as yet undeveloped, is rich with agricultural and perhaps mineral treasures, patiently awaiting the time when their hidden wealth shall be revealed and made to contribute to the wants and requirements of the human family.

A review of the articles used in the glass manufacture, shows that a very large proportion of them from their bulk and weight, require the employment of considerable power and force, to remove them to the place where they are required to be used.

So that the assumption would seem reason able, that much transportation business would result to railroads from this one source. We know of no reason, why such means could not be used to the advantage of both parties, both in the carriage of the raw and manufactured article. We trust our agricultural friends are fully alive to the important services these manufacturing establishments render them in furnishing a certain and profitable home market for their produce. It has been but a short time that this county has produced more than was consumed within it.

The increasing quantity of land brought under cultivation, together with the improved method of agriculture has at last exceeded the present home demand and enabled our farmers to furnish a surplus for exportation.

These results are gratifying and lead to the hope, that more manufacturing industry will ultimately find its way to this region, until its full resources in every department of business are fairly developed.

4th of July,

New York July 17. A lamentable accident occurred at Havanna on the 10th inst. A horse race was to come off on the Military Parade Ground, just Scotia, thence by steam to Galway, being onoutside the city walls. For the accommodation ly 2,000 miles of ocean navigation, and thence of the spectators, temporary seats were erected, some of them twenty feet high.

Just as the Captain General entered and the sports about to commence, a portion of some of the shrewdest capitalists of Wall the seats gave way precipitating some five hundred persons below. About forty or fifty were either killed or wounded, comprising all ages and sexes. The actual loss of life has not been fully ascertained.

Three American sailors, belonging to the barque Jasper, (which vessel recently landel a cargo of slaves on the Island of Cuba) have been imprisoned in the "Moro." They say they shipped in New York, and when the nature of the trade the vessel was to be engaged her, but were prevented by the other part of the crew, consisting of Spaniards and Portugese, who threatened to take their lives, and they were thus compelled to make the voyage. On the 4th, Yankee strangers were permitted to have a decorous supper at Havanna. -A tablet was displayed, representing on one side General Washington, and the flag of the Union affectionately interfolded with the Spanish, indicating the friendship that subsisted at the perilous period our history, and the assistance which Spanish interest constrained of Spanish favor in our behalf. The reverse gave a good portrait of the Queen. - | Manny's Machine. The scene was pleasant and the whole appropriate for the occasion.

New York, July 11.

An accident of a very serous nature has happened to a little daughter of Mr. Charles Burton, residing at No. 123 Twelfth street. It appears that Mrs. Burton was filling a camphene lamp, and before she had fairly secured the top on it, her child, a little girl of eleven years, ignited a match and attempted to light the lump when the superflous fluid took fire and fell upon her mother's dress, and set it in a blaze. The child, seeing this, sprang to the assistance of her mother, when her own dress, which was of light cotton, took fire, and although prompt assistance was rendered and the fire extinguished, it was found that she was so severely burned as to endanger her | the first case, a passenger train was thrown life. . Nims Patent Window. full sized Window can be seen at the Sash Factory of A. F. EVRINGHAM, in Bridgeton irst door East of the Bridge. Mechanics and the public are requested to examine for themselves, as it combines cheapness, durability and simplicity. It will recommend it-self and wheever introduced meets with public favor. It does away with parting beads and stops. The sash will remain in any position, and wherever you leave them no weights, cords or pullies are required; by simply turning a screw on the inside, the sashes can be removed without taking off any casing or marring the paint. No wind or weather can get in, it is always tight in wet or dry weather, the jambs yield when the sash swells and when hey shrink they are always tight, yet always loose, in fact it only has to be seen to be appreciated. FOR THE LADIES:

Spring and Summer Eashion. NFLUENCED by the prevailing law of Fashion, the subscriber continues as heretofore, to present new fashions at the opening of the various Seasons. Taste demands that these fashions shall possess new combinations and exhibit aspirations fter new forms and embodiments of the useful and beautiful. The increase of his business affords the most gratifying evidence of the kind appreciation in which his provious efforts have been held. His present offering is a Dress Gaiten for Spring or Summer, in the first style of elegance and dis tinction—being composed of rich and durable ma terials. While his principal fashion will undoubtedly be acceptable to the general taste, yet in or-der to gratify all, the subscriber has prepared a variety of styles, so that every one, old and young, plain or gay, can select that most becoming for hemselves. The Paris style of Gaiter will commend itself for its dress appearance, it being deeidedly the Gniter for the promenade. The subscriber therefore can confidently invite the attention of his friends and the public, to his establishment, giving them the assurance that he is fully enabled to offer articles of his own manuacture, at lower prices and of better quality, that are usually met with. It will ever be his aim to maintain for his goods the distinguished mark of superiority and relative cheapness, which alone ender them worthy of commendation and appro-
