For the West Jersey Pioncer. JEPHTHAH'S DAUGHTER.

BY ESTELLA MAURICE.

A trumpet tone rang out on the air, O'er Israel's mountains and valleys fair, As Jephthah, with his warrior train Swept on in their might to the battle plain, They were brave, true men, who knew no fear, With the keen-edged sword, and the glittering

They had gathered there at the Lord's comm To sweep the foc from the promised land: Onward they press, 'neath the tall palm's shade, Through gloomy forest, and flowery glade, And their number is swelled by many a one Who has caught the pealing trumpet's tone. They have met the foe in his strength and pride And the battle field with crimson is dyed; There are grouns of anguish, and shricks of fear, And the ringing clash of helmet and spear. The sun went down on that battle plain, Strewn with groups of wounded, and heaps of slai But a song of victory pealed around, Till the heavens rang back the joyful sound: And Jephthah with his triumphant train, Returned in peace to their homes again, And the glad cry rose from each village throng To welcome them back, as they passed along. And now before his enraptured eyes His own loved home in its beauty lies, Gleaming among the clustering trees, Where slumbers the cool refreshing breeze; And a burst of music soft and clear, Rings on the weary chieftan's ear. With timbrels and dances the maidens come, To grace his return to his peaceful home. There is one in that throng most levely and fair, With clear dark eyes, and raven hair; But why does a paleness come o'er his face, As she bows before him with modest grace? Why does be turn in anguish away From the joyous sounds which around him play? | the ignorant, though kings, are shut out. And why is his sadly mounnful gaze, Fixed on that fair girl's beautiful face. He spoke and his tones were broken and slow; "Alas! my child, thou hast brought me low. I have made to the Lord a solemn vow, I cannot go back, ah, wee is me now! Thou art my all, I have thee alone; Can I doom thee to sorrow thou gentle one? Must I crush the hopes of thy youthful years, And fill thy life with anguish and tears? Ne'er canst thou lay thy fair head to rest,, With a wife's fond love on a fuithful breast; No'er canst thou breathe in a loving ear. Each joyous hope, and each chilling fear: Ne'er shall young children's innocent mirth, Ring merrily forth, round thy household hearth. Ah! thine is a dark and cheerless doom, O'er thy life rests the shadow of the tomb." And the maiden bowed her graceful form, As a lily bends 'neath the rushing storm; But the tones of her voice were strong and clear; There was no shrinking, no timid fear.

A wail on the mountains all dreary and lone, A wild burst of sadness, a sorrowing tone, Like the voice of a spirit it peals on the air, For the daughter of Jeplithah is wandering there. She weeps o'er crushed hopes, o'er the bright joys of earth.

" My father, perform to the Lord thy vow, mirth; Through her long vigil in sunshine and gloom, She is schooling her spirit to bow to its doom. And ever before her a loved face appears, Melting her heart in sadness and tears, There's a pleading tone in each whispering grove Calling her back to her early love; But the struggle is not in vain, though long, For her spirit is lofty, and firm, and strong; And her lonely wanderings at length are past, She hath won the victory o'er earth at last; And she hath returned to her home once more, More gentle and meek, than in days of yore; There's a holy light in her lustrous eyes, Which tells of communings with the skies, There's a shadow of thought on her lovely face, A quiet sadness, a pensive grace; Her soul hath come forth from the bitter strife, To walk in a deeper, holier life; She hath conquered the might of earthly love, She hath fixed her affections on things above, The strong ties which bound her to earth are riven; She is walking the pathway which leadeth to heaven.

I had the pleasure, not long since of standing under a sturdy oak which had probably numbered more than twice my years. It was perfectly dry around me, for the protecting branches stretched their green arms far over my head. In that friendly shelter I stood musing, while the pattering rain-drops made music among the leaves.

The silver sounds have melted away, but I have not forgotten the sweet words that Nature whispered to me in that holy hour. Also, on the same day, Ryc Whiskey, Esq. Mr. W. was one of the first settlers of Mich. igan. In early life he was an industrious, hard-working man. He had done much to build up our railroads and public works, and could always be found in our harvest fields early and late. Some few of our farmers thought they could not harvest their wheat famish too. You all desire that your bodies unless Mr. W. was with them to cheer up should thrive and grow, until you become as their hands. Of late years, however, Mr. W. had grown scene of disturbance of every nature. The too frequent occurrence of street fights got up by Mr. W. was the ultimate cause of his death. He was killed by a blow on the head with a ballot box, in open daylight. The perpetrators of the deed are not fully known, but susbelieve are Mr. Law and Mr. Order. Several men from the Free Press office are on the watch, and ere this no doubt they have appreended them.

It is seldom that we have to announce the death of an entire family, thus swept away at one fell swoop. Adaptation of Crops to Market.

The farmer who is wide awake to his business should watch, as well as follow the markets. He should know what crops will sell well. So far as he can form a probable or approximate opinion on this point, he should conform his cultivation to it. In some places he can produce milk to advantage; in others, forest, where trailing vines twisted their snake butter or cheese. Again, he may be so situalike stems along the ground and clambered to ted that neither of these articles will pay him the tops of the highest trees. It was bright so good a profit as some others. Here, his main crop will be hay, there fruit; here potatoes, there squashes, and other vegetables.

A farmer in Beverly, last year, raised on two and a half acres of land 18,000 cabages per acre, the net receipt of which averaged him $450 Another farmer, in Danvers, cultivated an acre of land with sage, and realized the handsome profit of $400. The cultiva-vation of the onion in the latter town gives employment to many hands and is the source of large profits. Other examples might be cited to illustrate the importance of adapting crops to the markets, such as the production of the smaller the crop on which the farmer himself sets the COST OF FENCES.

We are not aware that any very reliable es timates have as yet been made by practical men, relative to the cost of the several species of encloseures ordinarily made use of on farms. peating. The estimates are given by Mr. S. s the deductions of his own experiment:-

"White pine rails sawed two inches by eight and chesnut posts, for rails high, three lengths to two rods nearly, cost 64 cents a rod. In both these instances the cost was exclusive of the setting.

"Good four and a half feet stone wall va whether by trenching or otherwise.

Crataegust cordata,) set 21 to a rod, cost at the end of the fourth year, including planting rimming, &c., 50 cents a rod.

in the above estimate the cost of stone walls is greatly too high. The expense of transporting stones from fields and pastures when they oppose a serious obstacle to the operations of the cultivator, and when they occupy much land which their removal renders available for important purposes, ought not, we think to be taken into the account. The cost of laying wall, when the stones are of proper size, is generally from 20 to 30 cts., but the artistic skill demanded in the operation is so slight that any farmer can construct his own walls, if he can but pursuade himself to think so. By rolling the largest stones building upon them with smaller stones, till trifling expense, as the work may be performed at seasons of comparative leisure, and when

Single walls, if the stones are of proper size, are to be preferred.

In my last I gave an account of our travels to the head of Lake George, (Indian name 'Horicon.") This is a beautiful sheet of water, probably not surpassed by any in the known world. It is thirty-six miles in length, and from one to four miles in width, and dotted with three hundred and sixty-five Islands. These Islands are small, some of them only a single rock; others are covered with forst trees. and some of them contain several acres.

FARADAY ON TABLE TURNING.

Prof. Faraday, of London, the celebrated electrician, has been experimenting on table turning, "not, (he says) that it was necessary on my own account, for my conclusions res pecting its nature were were soon arrived at, and are not changed." He proposes publishing the details at length on his experiments, but in the meantime announces his plan of day's first point was to prevent the mind hav-

A bundle of plates consisting of sand paper, mill board, glue, glass, and plastic clay, infoil, cardboard, gutta percha, vulcanized in lia rubber, wood and resinous cement, was therefore made up, and tied together, and turner, did not prevent the transmission of the power-the table turned as before. Hence no objection could be taken to the use of these substances in the construction of apparatus. The next point was to determine the place and source of motion, that is to say, whether the table moved the hand, or the hand the table. To ascertain, indicators were constructed.

One of these consisted of a light lever, having its fulcrum on the table its short arm attached to a pin fixed on a cardboard which could slip projecting as an index of motion. It is evident that if the experimenter will ed the table to move toward the left, and it did so move before the hands, placed at the time on the cardboard, then the index would the table. If the hands involuntarily moved towards the left without the table, the index large Rattle snakes. Man and Women .- The following happy passage is from the pen of Mrs. Sigourney:—

'Man might be initiated in the varieties and mysteries of needlework; taught to have patience with the feebleness and waywardness of infancy, and to steal with noiseless step around the chamber of the sick; and women might be instructed to contend for the palm of science; to pour forth eloquence in senates, or wade through fields of slaughter to a throne Yet, revolting to the soul would attend this violence to nature, this abuse to physical and intellectual energy; while the beauty of social order would be defaced, and the fountain of carths felicity be broken up. We arrive then at the conclusion that the sexes are intended for different spheres constructed in conformity to their respective destinations, by Him who bids the oak brave the fury of the tempest, and the Alpine flower rest its cheek upthe bosom of eternal snows. But disparity does not imply inferiority. The high places

The New Chain Pump .- We called the ttention of our readers last winter to the improved Bucket, invented by Rev. Clark Polly, for the endless chain pump. Since that time the present owners of the patent have perfected their arrangements for disposing of rights. One of the party, Mr. Vivian, of Philadelphia, has erected a foundry and manufactory for making the pumps. We witnessed the operation of one of them in the vard of a neighbor, who is well pleased with its operation. It works smoothly and throws the water out fast. The simplicity of the contrivance, and the facility with which it works, will ensure it universal favor. It is not liable to get out of order, nor wear itself out as the old chain pump, and being globusoon supercede altogether the old chain pomp.

We are pleased to hear Mr. Franklin, one of the proprietors, state that the improvement is appreciated by those best enabled by practical knowledge to form a correct opinion in regard to it. They have already sold a number of rights, and are constantly receiving applications for others. They are now making arrangements to present it before the public in every part of the Union .-- Woodburu Con.

Railway Luxury.-A silver urn, with iced warer, is carried through the cars of the Boston and Worcester Railroad, at proper intervals of time, by a lad specially employed for that object, the urn being strapped to the boy's shoulders, so that passengers, with a silver goblet with which they are furnished, may help themselves. The little water bearer, & whose presence is so grateful to travelers, is a constant attendant upon the train to which he is attached, and valuable as the refreshment is which he bestows, he is not allowed to take any pay from the recipients.

Salaratus is said to be injurious to the human system, and that it destroys thousands of children and some adults every year. In New Brunswick, contiguous to Maine, the physicians are wont to say that half the children are killed by the use of salaratus. The evil is fust spreading throughout the Union. Families of moderate size already use from

LARGEST CIRCULATION IF In West Jersey! Æ

Only $1 00 per Year!

FRANKLIN FERGUSON, EDITORS. JOSEPH A. MILLER.

We are glad to see public attention awakening to this subject, both among the press and people. Pure water is one of the greatest boons to the human family, and how to procure it in its purity is well worthy general and particular consideration. Lead pipes for conducting water for drinking, are at present much used particularly in cities.

WATER THROUGH LEAD PIPES.

The water in general use in the city of Philadelphia passes through lead pipes and as far as we have heard with but little bad cffeet. While on the other hand, several instances have been adduced in New York, where cases of disease and death, would seem to be clearly attributable to the use of the water which had been conveyed through them. Why water in New York should be injurious from that cause, and not in Philadelphia, has led to some speculations on the subject. .

Some assume that the difference is caused by a chemical action of the Croton water upon produce. This supposition may be true. But if so it would authorize the conclusion, that all the water of the Croten River or at least all that portion used by the citizens of New York, would possess the same property; and hence that residents of the different parts of the city, would be alike subject to its influence. So far as fatal or mischievous consequences are discernible, such does not appear to be the case. The cases noticed have not been general throughout the city but confined to particular localities.

From which we would suggest another inn difference in the lead, employed in the different places. Unless we assume that the earth around the pipes, can exert a chemical not see how this partial effect of the water of report the amount received and expended at the same river, can be reasonably accounted | each stated meeting. for, upon any other principle. The general out this section, has made the question one of interest to our citizens. There are a number of instances in this town, too well authenticated to be doubted, where sickness and ill health have been undoubtedly produced, by the use of the water out of these pumps. We knew of a number of instances both in town and country where the substitution of a copper pump with lead pipe for an open well has injured the water materially in a short time. In a neighboring county an instance has been related to us of animals having been injured by the use of the water from one of these

It is generally known that copper and lead impart a very offensive taste to water standing in either of them for a short time. This of itself should be a sufficient reason why either and place as the meeting last held shall deof them are improper agents to be used in connection with the water we drink.

But when to this is added important facts. showing that their chemical action with some if not all water, is deleterions to health and in such capacity should amount to a total prehibition. Surely amid the vast discoveries continually developing some other substances can be brought to light possessing their good, without their deleterious qualities. If they is not to us a satisfactory reason, why they should be introduced into more general use, so long as examples of their bad effects are daily before our eyes. TEMPERANCE CONVENTION. Pursuant to notice a meeting of the friends f Temperance, favoralle to the prohibition of the Traffic in Intexicating drinks, was held the Court House, Bridgeton, on Tuesday he 26th inst.

Mr. Uriah D. Woodruff, was called to preide and H. R. Merseilles appointed secretary. The chairman stated the object of the meeting, after which, F. Devereux, in behalf of committee appointed by a previous meeting, presented the following as a basis for the or ganization of a County Temperance League. The undersigned, citizens and voters, residing in Cumberland County, regarding the I galized sale of intoxicating drinks as an unwarrantable outrage upon the peace of society, blighting its prosperity, and destructive to the best interests of cur fellow men; and believing that as members of society, interested in whatever affects its weal or woe, we not only have the right, but that the exercise thereof is a sacred duty we owe to ourselves and to the communities in which we severally reside, we do solemnly and unreservedly pledge ourselves to use all legitimate, honorable, means within our power to effect the Legal Prohibition of a Traffic, except for legitimate purposes, whose natural and inevitable tendencies and results are only evil; and that as voters, we will henceforth exorcise our polilitical franchise in such a manner as to secure a proper representation of this sentiment in all the departments of our State, County, and Township governments. And whereas, to secure these ends organi zed and united effort is highly necessary, we hereby agree to form ourselves into an association, and adopt the following rules for our future government. I. This association shall be known as the Cumberland Co. Temperance League, and shall for ploughing. The change in the weather consist of all qualified voters resident in the foregoing declaration, and of regularly appoinlead, that the water of the Schuylkill does not ted delegates from other Temperanco organizations in the county. II. It shall be their duty to execute the declared wishes of the League and to superintend the collection of the funds necessary to carry out the objects of association. They shall have power to emment of one or more persons, at a moderated rate of compensation, to solicit donations for this purpose, to disseminate Temperance intelligence, hold public meetings, organize auxilliary Leagues &c. They shall also exhibit at each stated meeting, a full statement of their proceedings during the interim. V. The annual meetings of the League, shall be held on the first Tuesday in September, and stated meetings on the first Tuesdays in December, March and June, at such time

The constitution, as above, was adopted by sections without dissent, after which the State Agent Mr. Knowles was introduced and addressed the Convention, sketching briefly destructive to life, the objection, to their use the present aspect of the Temperance movement in the State.

THE WEATHER, CROPS &c .- For the past week or ten days we have had considerable cloudy weather with frequent showers. On Teusday last we were visited with a regular storm: for nearly two hours the rain poured down in torrents, very thoroughly wetting the ground, which in many places was rather dry has made a very favorable change in the appearance of the growing crops. Should the remainder of the season prove favorable, the prospect bids fair, for something more than an average crop of corn and potatoes. Such are the effects of the storm in the country; in own the result was somewhat different with less positive benefits. Streams of water rushed down Laurel, Washington, Pearl and other streets, met at the corner of Laurel and Washington streets, and formed a perfect torrent, overrunning the drains and submerging road and side-walks in a sea of rushing waters.-At the southwest corner the water reached up a foot or eighteen inches above the cellar windows of Mr. Hoods house threatening the use of boats needful in locomoting that part of the dwelling. In consequence of the rush of waters at the corner of these streets, the authorities are constructing a culvert across Laurel street with feeders from Washington and Laurel to carry the surplus water down to the creek. In the prosecution of this work we witnessed much interest manifested, and rocated by the reflecting bystanders. The improvement in progress will do much case of a heavy rain, but will precipitate a pause before the awful catalogue. large body of water on the property vacated to Reeves Nichols & Co., which is as yet but insufficiently provided with means to carry it | dred and twenty pounds to the acre.

A horse was in the barn within three or four feet of the track of the fluid, but except being Northern emigrants. stunned a little escaped injury.

During the same storm a large tree near the Baptist-meeting house on Laurel Hill was struck and torn to pieces.

The fourth annual meeting of the Ameriern Vegetarian Society will be held on Wednesday the 24th of August next in Philadelphia. We understand the object of the meeting to be the promotion of a purely vegetable system of diet as most conducive to health and longevity. Those interested in the matter will be much gratified undoubtedly with the proceedings.

Shanghai and other Fowls.—We would call the particular attention of these interested in such matters to the assortment of lowls in the possession of Mrs. Benjamin Lord, of Delaware street, in this place. Mr. L. has been very careful is his selection of original stock, and he has now on hand between one and two hundred of the foathered race, young and old which as a collection is probably not surpassed by any thing of the kind in West Jersy. Shanghai and Burrampooter bipeds go stalking about his premises large enough to peck corn from a barrel head, and by their amplitude of dimensions and gravity of demeanor, suggest the idea, that possibly they may boldwarf patterns of Celestials, taking their chance for a living among us, in a quiet unostentatious way, having eschewed forever gongs and pigtails. Whatever doubts we may have as to the indulgence of feelings of cannibalism, when suffering our mouth to wa ter over the contemplation of one of these fellows as a smoking table ornament, we must do Mr. Lord the justice to say that he has not the slightest idea he is depriving the disciples of Confucious or any other set of rational beings, of their natural rights, by keeping these specimens of vitality in positive subjection, feeding them at his pleasure, and offering a portion of his rapidly increasing stock for sale Of the "Black Spanish" breed he has also number, and very pretty and most respectable a superior quality among the rest, in order to

The smallest one, an oscillating cylinder engine, stands upon an English fourpenny piece (size of a half dime) with room to spare! The cylinder is but one-sixth of an inch in diameter, the length of stroke three-eighths, and diameter of the piston is that of an ordinary needle. The other is a beam engine, composed of more than two hundred pieces. The length of the stand is three and a quarter inches, length of beam two and a quarter inches, diameter of cylinder threeeighths of an inch, and the length of stroke seven-eighths of an inch. Both of these engines are serewed together with the delicacy and precision of the work of a watch.

A Convent in N. It is now in contemplation, it is said, to creet on this plot of ground a Convent for the Sisters of Mercy. The work will probably be commenced at an early day.

Newark Advertiser. The increase of customs for the port of New York is $1,130,000 for Philadelphia $149,-000. The Custom House of New York has gained about a million a month during the present fiscal year, as compared with the last. The Gold Lump Swindle. - Our readers will remember that a few days ago two individuals made a desperate attempt to take in our money dealers by negotiating a loan of $1000 on a lump of gold, said to be worth $12,000. Our dealers, however, were rather too sharp for these sharpers, and after some little trouble in paying their tavern bills, they left the town to try on somebody else. It appears they succeeded in taking in the officers of the Bridgeport Bank, and got a certified check for $1200, which was eashed in New York. One of the bank officers examined the lump and found the interior of lead. A few dollars worth of particles of gold were ingeniously fitted in on the outside. The Western Atlas gives an account of a similar trick attempted to be played. $1000 were advanced on about forty pounds of lead-all except $135 was afterwards recovered.

Beauty, Health, and Cheapness. CAMUEL L. FITHIAN has on hand and for sale a large lot of Zine Paints as follows viz. Pure Zine White No. 1, 2 & 3, Brown Zine, Black Zine, Zine Dryer and Demar varnish.

The Zinc Paints in their improved state have now been in use for a number of years and fully ested side by side with the Best Pure White Lead and has in every instance proved to be superior to White Lead both in Color, Durability, Beauty, and Cheapness. From experiments it has been found that 100 lbs best White Zine will cover when applied in three coats on new work as much surface as 1662-3 lbs White Lead Pure, and will cover us well which makes the Zinc over 60per et cheaper than

It is equally applicable to inside or outside work or for the bottom of vessels or in any other place where paint is necessary. The reasons above given, we think should satisfy any one of the Superiority of the Zine paints but should any yet doubt, we should be pleased to have them give us a call and we think we can fully satisfy them of their superiority for Beauty, Durability, Health & Cheapness.

Nims Patent Window.

full sized Window can be seen at the Sash Factory of A. F. EVRINGHAM, in Bridgeton, first door East of the Bridge. Mechanics and the public are requested to examine for themselves, as it combines cheapness, durability and simplicity. It will recommend it-self and wheever introduced meets with public favor. It does away with parting beads and stops. The sash will remain in any position, and wherever you leave them-no weights, cords or pullies are required; by simply turning a screw on the inside, the sashes can be removed without taking off any casing or marring the paint. No wind or weather can get in, it is always tight in wet or dry weather, the jambs yield when the sash swells and when they shrink they are always tight, yet always loose, in fact it only has to be seen to be appre ciated.
