From Gody's Lady's Book. FADED FLOWERS.

BY W. S. BAFFNEY. The buds I so fondly had cherished, And watched in the sweet month of May-the lilac, rose, pink, and the lily, edy flowers-where, tell me, are they? Alas, the fancies I nourished, They withered and faded away! The lilac first smiled into beauty; How de arly I prized the sweet boon! The rose s superseded the lilac, And yieldled its fragrance in June; The lily, ah, beautiful fair one: Like a dew-dlyop, it vanished as soon. The Pink, like the sun in a shower,

But gilded the dearth with its ray, Then soured on the preath of a zephyr, As evening passed away, To bloom in a holicit bower,
And put on fresh beauty each day. The garden looks bleak now and empty,

That once was so lovely and gay, And the heart of the owner is weary, Removing the thorns from the way; But the buds that so fondly were cherished, Bright flowers in heaven

BY TIMOTHY CRANBY.

Oh! bury me not, when this life-dream is o'er, Where cluster the tombs of the myriad dead-Where gilded mementoes the wealthy deplore, And strangers o'er humble dust thoughtlessly

Oh! lay me not down by the highway of life, Where notes of harsh discord shall ring eve And where, 'mid the din of ambition and strife, Unheeded shall trickle the mourner's sad tear.

Nor yet would I slumber where dead stillness low-And gloom o'er the wide scene hath spread her Where comes the warm South wind from kissing To moan through the bleak rocks and die in

And gild it with glory, ah, make me a grave:— Where gurgles in gladness the smooth-flowing stream, And flowers bend their heads to the moss-margined wave.

There plant me a willow to weep o'er my head, And sigh when its soft leaves are stirred by the breeze; Let eglantines, too, their soft odors shed, And song-birds build low in the shadowy trees Madison County, Mississippi.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE BORE OF THE AGE. BY IDA BELL.

It strikes me now and that quite forcibly that "one of the bores" belonging to this present enlightened age is the proneness certain individuals have to circulate and keep a going all the real or ideal news of the day. To believe half we hear would be folly. It is said every generation grows wiser and better and methicks this generation has grown wonderfully as to the number of its gossips. Whether it be a trade or not we cannot say, but certain are we that it is followed closer than persons are generally wont to follow a calling especially in this day. What benefit or satisfaction is derived from it we have not vet been able to discover.

The topics of conversation are variousbut the young seem to be the principal. To tell what such a person said or did-to describe this ones character and manners-to grieve at the doings of that one, or gossip the sins, errors and misfortunes of this one, seem to be and are in reality the very elements of these everlasting tattlers. My friend, if thou hast ought against thy brother, - why not go and reprove and talk the matter over with him, -why not go directly to the person who is at fault, -peradventure thy kind admonition and advice may lead that brother back again if indeed he has wandered from the path of rectitude. But strange as it ray seem | My 29 20 30 3 13, is an island in Lake Su noble brother—the embodiment of all that this is not the course pursued. If a -c subject for tattling comes out it is handled and rehandled until the very story itself is increased ten-fold. You perhaps forget that this one is deaf and dont hear exactly the facts of the case—that this one is inattentive and cant catch precisely the thread of the story; -and that by this means the very projector in one weeks time knows not his own story so cularged is it in form and appearance. The topmost round in this gossip glory seems to be | may never attain old age. You of might and attained when sufficient subjects are out for power, thus you were not created but once attained when sufficient subjects are out for had an hour, perhaps a day of weakness.

Though now tall, stalwart in body, and vigthing known, if you want anything magnifyed, if you want anything exaggerated just place well remembered at least by one, your moth it in the hands or rather the mouth of one of powerless, simply a little child, which, had it these tale bearers and rest assured it will never stop until it dies for want of breath.

By the way it reminds me of a story bearcrows." Even now methinks I can see in some retired corner, half dozen cagerly discussing and enlarging upon the news of the day. Oh! when will this low, mean, foolish and sinful fashion cease!

Did I ask when it will cease? As well almost might I expect this earth, travelling through space with incridible velocity to cease at once its motion! When will it cease? As well almost might I look for yonder sun the king of day to cease his rising, his unwearied march, and his sinking to repose in the crimson west! When will it cease! Echo alone answers when!

"O could there in this world be found Some little spot of happy ground, Where village pleasures might go round Without the village tattling! How doubly blest that place would be, Where all might dwell in liberty, Free from the bitter misery Of gossip's endless prating."

> FUNNY .- A recent writer says, should poultry breeders continue increasing the size of their stock at the present rate, the housekeep! er will have occasionally to choose between a leg of fowl and a leg of mutton; we shall have chicken cutlets and capon steaks; and as to the "merry thought," it will be so heavy as to be no joke.

To avoid the evils of lead corosion, Mr. Ewbank (Ex-Commissioner of Patents) took out a patent a number of years ago, for coating the interior of lead pipes with tin. If this invention will answer every purpose, we do not see any use in making the whole pipe of block tin, which is so much more expensive than lead. Indeed, we do not see what is to prevent the use of small cast-iron pipes for conducting our water. They can be coated inside with glass enamel, and should answer as good a purpose as pipes made entirely of bleck tin. Perhaps Dr. Ellet has an interest in some tin pipe manufactory. THE MAIDENS REVENCE! The Edinburgh Guardian tells a good stoof a "Curious Impertinent," and the bare justice promptly awarded:-

A pretty vilage on their neighboring coast, frequented by summer visitors, was lately the scene of rather an amusing incident.

Taking advantage of a lovely summer day, two young ladies betook themselves to a sheltered spot a little way up the coast where they hoped to indutge in an unmolested bath;

After the usual preliminary proceedings they had just accomplished the first few dips observed a young gentleman of an inquiring turn of mind seated on a neighboring rock, and

The impertinence was aggravated by the fact that a powerful opera-gluss was made the instrument of a more minute inspection of their aquatic evolutions. The blushing but indignant maidens remained in the water as long as was consistent with comfort and security, in the hope that the stranger would withdraw and leave them to at least their necessary toilet when to their horror, he was observed to descend calmly from his elevation, divest himself of his apparel, and proceed to bathe in close proximity. But he had strangely miscalculated the results, for the spirit of the maidens were at last aroused, and they secretly determined on a bold revenge. With an appearance of insulted modesty they timidly withdrew from the sea, and, concealing themselves behind a convenient rock, proceeded to dress, then folding up their bathing gowns they rushed upon the garments of the gentleman and bore them off in triumph.

The unfortunate man instantly comprehended his position. A succession of shouts and supplications followed the ladies in their flight, growing fainter und fainter, as the distance increased; while the "gentleman," with considerable modesty, remained in the water, evincing great agitation, and imploring restitution, at first with stentorian lungs, and subsequently in animated and appropriate gestures; but in vain-the insulted maidens were mexorable.

As the spot was very secluded it was some iours before he could make his situation

At length a grinning rustic made his appearance, and informed him that the "twa ladies had left his claes a wi' a wench at the green, a mile awa, wha wadna gie them back without he paid a pun' for taking care o' them for by being a penalty for affrontin' the ladies

The penalty was paid on the restitution of the garments, and the unlucky wight quietly left the village, where the joke was already known, and the conduct of the damsels publicly approved of. The offender is now suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism.

GOOD AND BAD LUCK.

I may here, as anywhere, impart the secret of what is called good and bad luck. There are men who supposing Providence to have an implacable spite against them, bemoun, in the poverty of a wretched old age, the misfortunes of their lives. Luck for ever ran against them, and for others. One, with a good profession, lost his lock in the river, where he idled away his time a fishing, when he should have been in his office. Another with a good trade, perpetually, burnt up his luck by his hot temper, which provoked all his employers to leave im. Another, with a lucrative business. lost his luck by amazing diligeece at every-thing but his business. Another who steadiy followed his trade as steadily followed his bottle. Another who was honest and constant to his work, erred by perpetual misjudgments -he lacked discretion. Hundreds lose their luck by endorsing, by sanguine speculations, by trusting fraudulent men, and by dishonest gains. A man never has good luck who has a bad wife. I never knew an early-rising, hard working, prudent, man, careful of his earnings, and strictly houest, who complained Incorporation of Bridgeton.

We understand that efforts are to be made. into public notice, than to advocate any particular course.

At this time the town contains we suppose near four thousand inhabitants with a continual increase of population. Many smaller | Parmly. towns have been incorporated and are enjoyincorporation confers.

One advantage claimed for an incorporated town over one not incorporated is a more prompt and efficient government.

With Lut little exception it must be adas any part of the county.

We will not now assume that any stronger exercise of power is at present needed, or that any power at all filowable in a republicar government will altogether suppress vice. A more effectual means for that purpose might quired by moral and social obligation. Without claiming any necessity for changing the form of our government, it would be but an tion, society was verging to a condition revance of the necessity.

We have alluded to the existence of low grog shops, where citizens, aye good citizens, the heads of interesting families, are enticed with young men of fine promise and abilities, to degrade themselves below the condition of less Shylocks. Such places are alike a disgrace to the town and community that tolerates any authority which we do not already pos- them, be required to pay all damages?such an act.

An act of incorporation secures usually to the citizens of a town more power to correct and reform abuses, than is afforded by general laws and also a better opportunity to im prove and beautify the town itself.

If both sides of the creek were incorporated into one town, we should not require an increased number of paid officers, and consequently no material increase of expenditure need be required. In nearly all the other states, towns are incorporated before they attain to near the size of Bridgeton, and as far as we can ascertain, with perfectly satisfactory results.

With towns as with individuals there is an influence attached to a name. An incorporated town possesses an importance not accorded to other towns, which gives it an advantage in drawing and securing investments of capital. Besides this it claims more attention from strangers desiring to secure a location. The city of Bridgeton would claim an attention from capitalists and travellers not from the surrounding country were in town Hotel. Drs. Thompson and Kirby were callbly sketched, and possibly some disdvantages we do not see might result from an act of incorporation. We have not now further space to allot to the subject.

place where the accident occurred was on a level spot. If it had been on an embankment the consequence would have been fearful. Two loose rails were found inside the track, which it is believed had been placed there purposely. One of them bore no marks of having been struck by the wheels of the engine, but the other bears marks which induce the belief that it had been placed diagonally across the track with one end placed against a "chair" in such a manner as to form a turn out, or switch. The night being intensely dark, it was of course impossible to see the obstruction.

The emigrant train had passed over the same spot safely, about an hour before the

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.

The steamship Star of the West arrived at this port about 121 o'clock to-day, from San Juan de Nicaragua.

She had on board five hundred and sixty passengers and nearly one million of dollars in gold dust on freight. She brings the pas-sengers and part of the bullion brought to San Juan del Sur by the steamer Sierra Nevada, which sailed from San Francisca, Aug. 16th, with $1,304,000 in gold.

The steamer Winfield Scott, which sailed for Panama on the day before the Sierra Nevada left, had only $938,000. The aggredrink and idle away their time, and to progate semi-monthly shipment, therefore, additional duce drunkenness, and especially if it be done mounts to nearly two and a quarter millions. The Nicaragua steamer has beaten the Panama handsomely.

The dates from San Francisco by this arrival are to August 16th, fifteen days later than were brought by the last arrival. The California markets were dull, but prices were firm for many articles. Speculation had, however, entirely ceased. Haxall Flour is quoted at $20; Gallego $22. Coffe was firm; Pork quiet; Beef heavy; Butter and Lard declining; Cheese dull and lower; Rice firm, with some speculative demand; Lumber drooping.

The money market was active. The accounts from the mining regions were favorable.

A bowling, a nine or ten pin alley kept for gain or hire is a public nuisance, especially if it be so conducted as to produce disorder, noise and drunkenness, whether there be gambling The prospects of the Government were not with it or not. A disorderly house is a nuivery stable, though the Cortes had voted all sance. If there be frequent disorders and disturbances of the peace, the keeper is liable to indictment, whether he sells intoxicating liquors or not. It is not necessary that it hould be noisy to constitute it a disorderly house; and whatever tends to corrupt the pub lie morals and endarger the public peace, by cretary of Legation at Brussels, is named drawing dissolute and idle persons together charge d'affairs and Consul General at makes the house where it is done a public nuisance. Inns and taverns are designed for the convenience and benefit of the public, but if they are so conducted as to hold out allurements to persons to come together and drink, tipple and carouse, they are nuisances and ought to be put down. Especially is this the every where united, and, says the account, case if it be so managed on Sunday or on the Seventh day, in a neighborhood where Sevonth day is kept by the inhabitants generally as a Sabbath; it is an aggravation apart from the religious obligation to remember the Sabbath, occause every citizen has a right to the exercise of his religious duties in quietness undisturbed by incongruous sounds or sights. Judge Elmer went on to charge that a tavernkeeper who sells even a single glass of liquor on Sunday is liable to indictment as well is other persons. Neither is he permitted to give it away. The same mischief will be done in either case; a house may therefore be proved to be disorderly without evidence that anything intoxicating was sold, and the keeper indicted for maintaining it. A single act of unlawful selling may be indicted, but a repetition of the offence is necessary to constitute the house in which it was sold a disorderly house, if such a repetition in the opinion of the jury showed an evil design and object. Again, if a man is in the pra t co of selling spiritous and malt liquors so as to gather persons in and about his store, shop or cellar, to drink and idle away their time, and to proon a Sunday or at an unreasonable hour of the night, or if apprentices, or other young persons be encouraged to congregate at such places, such store, shop or cellar become nuisances. It annoys and injures the community, and the keeper is indictable for keeping lisorderly house. The Judge concluded his charge by remarking that there is little danger of going too far in regard to such cases. All experience proves that society is prone to be too tolerant of evils that greatly injure society, rather than rigorously to interpose and suppress them.

A large amount of criminal business wa

The Zinc Paints in their improved state have now been in use for a number of years and fully tested side by side with the Best Purc White Lead and has in every instance proved to be superior to White Lead both in Color, Durability, Beauty, and Cheapness. From experiments it has been found that 100 lbs best White Zine will cover when applied in three coats on new work as much surface as 166 2-3 lbs White Lead Pure, and will cover as well which makes the Zinc over 60per ct cheaper than

It is equally applicable to inside or outside work or for the bottom of vessels or in any other place where paint is necessary. The reasons above given, we think should satisfy any one of the Superiority of the Zinc paints but should any yet doubt, we should be pleased to have them give us a call and we think we can fully satisfy them of their superiority for Beauty, Durability, Health & Cheapness. Spring and Summer Fashion. INFLUENCED by the prevailing law of Fashion, The subscriber continues as heretofore, to present now fashions at the opening of the various Scasons. Taste demands that these fashions shall possess new combinations, and exhibit aspirations after new forms and embodiments of the useful and beautiful. The increase of his business affords he most gratifying evidence of the kind appreciation in which his previous offerts have been held.
His present offering is a Datas Gatter for Spring or Summer, in the first style of elegance and distinction—being composed of rich and durable ma-terials. While his principal fushion will undoubtedly be acceptable to the general taste, yet in order to gratify all, the subscriber has prepared a variety of styles, so that every one, old and young. plain or gay, can select that most becoming for themselves. The Paris style of Gaiter will commend itself for its dress appearance, it being de-cidedly the Gaiter for the promenade.

The subscriber therefore can confidently invite the attention of his friends and the public, to his establishment, giving them the assurance that he is fully enabled to offer articles of his own manufacture, at lower prices and of better quality, than are usually met with. It will ever be his aim to maintain for his goods the distinguished mark of superiority and relative cheapness, which alone render them worthy of commendation and appro-
