For the West Jersey Pioneer. THE CHIEFTAIN'S BURIAL.

BY ESTELLA MAURICE. The light of gleaming torches Streamed through the shadowy gloom; As a brave and valiant knight was borne Forth to the slient tomb.

And solemn funeral music Pealed on the midnight breeze, As the sad procession slowly moved Beneath the o'erarching trees.

There were the sounding footsteps Of warriors, bold and brave, Ringing along the dim church aisles, As they passed to the chieftain's grave.

Many a blood-stained banner Drooped o'er that lordly tomb; And the sculptured dead of the knight's prov Gleamed dimly through the gloom. And sounds of passionate weeping Echo around that grave; For woman's breaking heart is there At the burial of the brave.

A form of regal beauty And burning tear-drops fall like rain, Upon his marble brow.

And a low, deep tone of sadness Steals on the silent air, Breathing of tenderness and love. Of sorrow and despair.

My Rupert, thou so proud and bold, oh, why must thou depart; Thou hast left behind thee in its woe, a sal and breaking heart; Thou, who wast foremost in the fight, the bravest of the brave;

Alas! and must we hear thee forth to the dark silent grave?

Thou hast been with me in the hour of gladness and of song,

And led with me the joyous dance, the stateliest of the throng:

Thy deep-toned voice, and ringing laugh, were music to my ear,-Oh! can it be that I must live to weep above thy bier. When 'neath the stately forest trees the wild deer bounded free, Thou didst ride forth to join the chase, who then was like to thee;

Who was so proudly beautiful amid the noble throng. Which gathered round the festal board, and swelled the tide of song. Like the proud engle's was the glance of thy clear, flashing eye, As neath thy banner's fisting folds, with step and bearing high,

Thou wentest forth in bright array, with thy true warrior train;

forth again.

Where the wild conflict fiercest raged, there didst thou urge thy way:

Thy snowy plume was ever seen in the hottest of the fray;

O'er the fair plains of Palestine hath rung thy rallying cry, As thou hast to the battle rushed—alas! that thou must die. Thou didst go forth, in joy and pride, to battle for thy king: I little dreamed on that fair morn, the tidings eve would bring; They here thee back at twilight hour, with blood stains on thy breast; ...

Thou hadst passed away from that buttle-field to the bright land of rest.

Thus, by gradual assaults, their reverence for truth is underif with them only come those precious drops

A still more common error of parents, perliaps, is in breaking promises to children Thousands of parents think nothing of vio-lating a promise to a child, especially if circumstances have arisen to make the premise inconvenient. A mother, for instance, tells a child it shall go out walking in the afternoon. The afternoon comes, but the mother is tired, and the nurse is busy with something else, and so the child is disappointed. But that walk has probably monopolized the childs thoughts all the morning, having been to the little one's imagination what a week at Cape May would be to the mother's; and hence its ful influence returns to his once happy home disappointment is terrible. There is no proportion, in fact, between its sufferings and the inconvenience the mother or nurse would have felt in keeping the promise. But the moth er never thinks of this, and if the child cries, other purchases a quart of rum at a store; get, and which will give you a perceptible imten to one punishes it. Meantime the child though it may say nothing, reasons out the on reaching the street qualis hulf its centeuts. whole matter in its own mind; and the more it thinks, the greater seems the injustice it the jug is empty and he in a state of beastly wide-awake. The next best way is to secure self in the place of the child, substituting a cring the bespangled canopy of heaven; but husband for herself, and a promise, no matter of what, first distinctly made, and second selfishly broken without adequate cause. For where a promise becomes really impossible to be performed, even a child will comprehend the fact on explanation. We refer only to cases where promises are broken on slight grounds. It may be said, in reply to these remarks, that children should be brought under discipline, and that it is no business of theirs to canvass a parent's conduct, but simply to obey. Now this is just the secret why the children of strict disciplinarians so often turn out bad. The faculty of reason must be eradicated from the human mind before children can be brought up harmoniously on this tyranuical principle. The child begins to think as soon as it begins to talk. "You must never rise from the table till everybody is done," said a mother to a child that had just been raised to the dignity of cating with mamma. "Why, then, does papa get up, at dinner, sooner than we?" lisped the little thing. But, when told that, at that meal, he was in a hurry, in order to return to business, which she could never be, slie was satisfied, because she saw justice in the reason. And a child once convinced, is always afterwards quiring confidence in a parent's sense of justice, learns at last to obey implicitly. The Ah! never to the battle field canst thou march family, in fact, is a little commonwealth, and like all commonwealths, is best ruled by truth and reason. In rare and exceptional cases, other. If, however, general rules are to be relied on, then a better one than even Mrs. Child's might; we think, be suggested. It is, that parents should always be truthful to children. Let us be understood. There are hundreds of mothers, who, while careful not to tell what is generally considered a falschood, are often, in the presence of their offspring, thoughtlessly guilty of what are called white lies. We'venture on an illustration. A ring at the door is heard, some morning, where the mistress of the house is engaged in preserv-

The late Agricultural Fair at Salem, has taught several useful bints and suggestions, which our farmers might well profit by. The esttendance was probably larger than at any previous one in the county, showing an increased interest in the subject by the commu-

The more public consideration becomes awakened to any particular pursuit, the more speedy becomes its advancement towards its sphere of ultimate perfection. As agriculture is the leading pursuit of · mankind, whatever will tend to its, progress is of public interest. The man who doubles the product of his fields is the true benefactor of the human race. The effect of holding county fairs in Salem has been, according to the Salem papers, not only to awaken more attention and interest on the subject but as its natural consequent to improve the quality of the articles exhibited. "The display of stock, says the Standard, was decidedly the best ever made in the county." As that county has been for some time noted for the excellence of its stock, this fact is full of significance to all our farmers. If the tendency of these fairs can be shown to be a benefit to good stock surely there is every reason to think the result would be the same with poor stock. The increasing disposition among the farmers of this county to visit these annual exhibitions and improve by the lessons they furnish is an evidence that the right spirit is at work among us, and will, we hope, be productive of much benefit. Every township in this Co. was represented at the fair, thus proving the existence of an interest in the subject throughout the county, which we hope to see continually increasing till it can stand beside the most favored in the State, both in the excellence and variety of production. If our citizens are already sufficiently interested in the subject, to go from the farthest end of this an exhibition can be sustained here in our own district.

We have frequently asserted that our farmera and manufacturers possessed the means of making a display oreditable alike to themselves and the county.

Since witnessing that at Salem we are more than ever convinced of the truth of the assertion. In travelling through the county we have repeatedly been shown vegetable productions superior in size and quality to those exhibited there. Even in wheat, in which it has been argued we could not successfully compete with a heavier soil, we have been shown samples raised by a farmer near Newport on a light soil, which were superior in our judgment to any we saw on exhibition last week. The samples were of the white wheat, clear of foul seed and the kernels very plump and fu'l. We saw enough of it to be satisfied that the samples shown were but a fair type of the whole crop.

and In the variety and extent of our manufactures, we hold no mean place in comparison with our sister counties in the State. But very few of them have found their way into competition with other manufacturers, but where they have the result has been highly gratifying to this county. At the fair in Salem County a Corn Sheller made by B. and R. Ayars of Greenwich, and which was the only manufactured article that we know of exhibited from Cumberland, took the first premium from an old and established manufacturer of agricultural implements. We might go on and compare, article after article of superior excellence were it our intention simply to make comparisons. As a general rule comparisons are odious, and we do not early part of next Summer, and in all probawish to institute them any farther than as bility in time for the bathing season at Cape their legitimate influence may be exerted to Island. excite to an honorable competition.

Prone as the human mind is to seek amusement, we would have it in youth directed to that, which while it amuses will also instruct. We would wish to see encouraged, that species of amusement in which all can mingle without fear of any counteracting influence of evil, in which the mind should become purified and strength-

> SOME PUMPKINS .- Brother Hincline of the Camden Democrat, goes into ecstasies over a couple of pumpkins presented to him that jointly weigh near one hundred nounds, and challenges "all creation" to send "a lurger or handsomer pair of pumpkins to his office." We could very easily accept your challenge brother, but we dont like to lese our big pumpkins; but if you will come down this way we'll show you pumpking that are pumpkins. Three are now laying in the office that weigh collectively one hundred and eightynine nounds. So we claim the premium for the Messrs. Davis and Dubois, of this county, and regular subscribers to the "Pioneer" and withal among our best and most successful farmers. Fifty pound pumpkins are as common in these diggins as blackberries. One or two farmers have told us that a large part of their crop would average that. Mr. Robert Poole of this town, has one that grew on the roof over his Shanghies that we should judge would weigh at least fifty pounds. Mr. for September, has been received. > SMUT IN WHEAT. - For two or three years past the wheat crop in some parts of this county has been somewhat injured by smut. The theories of the cause of the disease are as various almost as the persons, so also with the remedies for the disease. It seems to be a fact very well established, that if the seed sown, is affected, or the ground manured with the straw of such grain, the crop will also be affected with the disease. It will also frequently occur when the seed is good.

The following remedy has been tried by several farmers, and found effectual in preventing the disease. Before sowing the seed saturate it well with water and while it is wet sprakle dry fine quick lime over it and mix thoroughly with it; when dry it is ready for sowing in the usual way. One farmer of our acquaintance prepared his land for wheat in the usual manner and as nearly alike all over as he could. One half of the field was sown with wheat prepared as above and the other half, with wheat without any such preparation. On harvesting the crop the part limed had scarce a head of sigut in it while the other was so badly damaged by it as to be hardly worth cutting. The experiment is simple and well worth trying.

New Submarine Telegraph.-The New York Times says that a company las been organized and the stock subscribed, for constructing a Submarine Telegraph between Liverpool and New York, via Galway, New foundland and Novia Scotia, and for extending subterranean branches of it to every part of Europe. It is said that the process to be used is one newly invented by a gentleman of Massachusetts, who has discovered a mode of immensely increasing the conducting capacity of telegraphic wire, and also a way of laying down the wire, both under sea and land, much cheaper than any used hitherto. The whole length of the route from Galway to New York, as thus marked out, is about 2,800 miles. The cost per mile for the submarine wire, on the improved plan, is estimated at less than $600—the cost by the methods now in use, on the cheapest scale portion of the route, the estimated cost is a cd up to a looking, glass, brushed up his hair bout $200 per mile, which is less than one and whiskers, and walked with quite a pedbout $200 per mile, which is less than onethird of the cost of such lines now in use. -The company is said to be composed of intelligent and responsible mon, and they expect that the whole line, to Liverpool can be completed within six months after the work is commenced.

Telegraph to Cuba .- A privilege for a submarine telegraph from Cuba to the United States, has been granted to a company by General Canedo. The proposed route for the submarine line will be from Punto Yucans, near Cardenas, to Cruzare Padre; from thence to Double-Headed Shot Key; from thence to Old Matacumly, and from Old Matacumly to the maigland of Florida; the whole distance, about 122 miles divided into four sections. The longest cable required will only be about 56 miles. The line is to be built by a joint stock company, to be formed on the Island of Cube and in the United States.

The Schuylkill River .- The water in the Schuylkill is now lower than it has been for many years, and for some miles on each side of Reading the water presents a very blue appearance, owing, it is said, to the Schuylkill county coal siftings, which have found their way into the river. This is an unusually dry autumn, many of the springs giving out. The Water Company, of Reading, have less water than is needed, and have given notice to the citizens to be sparing in its use. On the 4th of September last, a daughter of Michael Youngs fell upon the floor with a needle two and a quarter inches long sticking in her apron, which was partly driven into its chest by the fall, a part of it being broken off close to the rib. Surgical aid was immediately summoned, and an incision was made down to the ribs without finding the needle, thus proving the child to be beyond relief. The child lingered four weeks in great agony. A post mortem examination revealed a piece of the needle, one inch and a quarter long, lying loose in a large collectian of matter entirely within the heart's substance.
