From Gleason's Pictorial. A DROP OF WATER. BY MRS. R. T. ELDREDGE.

It is a little thing, 'tis true, But o'er the acl ing, burning brow It falls with healing power; One cooling drop may life impart, And bring pulsation to the heart, Where all was still before.

One drop may soothe and ease a pain, And bring back joy and life again, And tranquilize the mind; That little drop we deemed so small, Of little worth, if prized at all, Will live in memory's shrine.

'Tis thus one kind and soothing word, Soon as its lutelike sound is heard, 'T will soothe the careworn breast; One well-timed word, when whispered low, In friendly voice, may banish woe, And full each care to rest.

One tear drop shed on sorrow's shrine. Will dwell within the thinking mind, For days, for months, for years; No gem could e'er be shrined so dear, As that bright drop, that pearly tear,

And O, if all could know the power Of little things in sorrow's hour, There might be less of grief; One word may wound or break a heart. Or add a pang to sorrow's smart, One word may bring relief.

MORAL.

From the Illustrated News. "DO AS YOU WOULD BE DONE BY."

BY LEWIS EARL.

"Old Rhubin's cow has just gone into the oats, down by the lower meadow," screamed a boy to his sire, one afternoon. The father was reading a newspaper on the piazza at the time, and springing to his feet said, "Well, call the boys. Where is the dog? Bone! Bone! In a few minutes half a dozen great boys were standing by their father; some had sticks in their hands. The dog Bone soon made bis

The poor cow had only entered the bars which had been left down-and stood at the edge of the field nipping off the oats. The boys belabored her most cruelly with sticks and stones besides putting the savage dog after her. They drove her into the pound without any difficulty, and there left her-telling the keeper on what conditions she might be taken away by the owner. When they were, Rhubin came along up to his house, and stood by the yard fence, and leaned thereupon.-The perspiration streamed from his face. ### TEMPERANCE.

From the Presbyterian Magazine of Sept. The Three Ways of Dealing with Intemperance.

Nehemiah 13: 15-21. "In those days saw I," &c. The fourth of July is a celebrated day in the annals of our country. On that day our fathers asserted their independence of a foreign power by which they had been oppressed; which assertion, by the blessing of God upon their efforts, they afterwards made good. the bars down; for I never knew my cow to It is quite common with ministers of the Gos or social evil of a national character. Thus it was with Nehemiah. When he transgressed; and when it continued to spread and foreigners were encouraged by the nobles to participate in it, he grew more earnest, and contended with the nobles of Judah, and said unto them, "What evil thing is this that ye do, and profane the Sabbath-day? Did not ye bring more wrath upon Israel by profaning the Sabbath." Thus appealing to the wellknown history of their nation, and the declared cause of its long and distressing captivity in Babylon, and warning them of still greater degradation if they persevered. II. REGULATION.

This consists in allowing an admitted moral evil, but restricting it by divers rules and limitations. Now read over carefully the passage from Nehemiah, and you will find none of this in him, Not a word. And you will never find such a method of dealing with offenders; showing the evils, both natural and his Bible. And the reason is plain. God is moral evil authorized by God in his Law or holy, just, and good; and the law of such a Being can never compromise with sin. It must be like Him who gave it. And yet, strange to say, this has long been the favoursunk so low as to be unable to extricate them-selves from the toils which surround them, to in their attempts to deal with the monster lend them a helping hand to raise them out evil of intemperance and its cause. Admitting it be an evil, they have not aimed to suppress or prevent it, but merely to restrict. To this saw the evil springing up in Jerusalem, he testified against them in the day wherein they have perfected that monstrous excrescence of our jurisprudence called the license system. Demanding a price for the license to perpetrate all sorts of evil, they store away the wa-ges of iniquity among the treasures of the Commonwealth, unawed like Judas who cast your fathers thus, and did not our God bring from him the thirty pieces of silver, and less all this evil upon us, and upon this city? Yet to put them into the treasury because they were the price of blood. They then restrict in quantity, allowing some to sell by larger measure, others only by smaller; next forbid the sale to certain classes, such as minors, slaves, coloured people, or those already intoxicated; and then occasionally, except certain times, as the Sabbath-day, or the portion of the Sabbath set apart to public worship. Of these restrictions our statute-books are full. Now we may judge of this whole system of legal license in two ways-by its principle, and by its fruits. Look at its principle. It is radically wrong. How speaks the Bible? "Thou shalt not, steal, kill, bear false witness;" and so of all other wrong things. They are positively forbidden. And reason concurs with the Bible, as it always does. It says, as well attempt to regulate any other moral evil-to regulate gambling, stealing, houseburning, or the slave-trade. They defy all regulation. As well endeavour to regulate death. If he be already a drunkard, we have but to show him what he is, bid him look in the glass at his own countenance, so bloated and deformed and different from what it once was; look at his companions, his character, his prostrated health, his wasted property, his accusing conscience, and his wretched family. ed, not confined by a wall or a rope, or his owner threatened with damages if anybody die from his bite. And now let us look at the fruits of this system. The tree is known by its fruits. And these are most disastrous. Ever since drink. The system was a grand failure, and the land was fast becoming a nation of drunkards. And had it not been for the Temperance Reformation, which so opportunely so manfully breasted it for the last twenty-six years, I may venture to say that this beloved land of ours, under that very system, would at this day have scarcely been worth living fruits, that some are ready to ask how it could the sober and the young. The great work is have been adopted and so long employed and still adhere to. No doubt it arose in part from mistaken views, even good men hoping thereby to check what they feared they were too weak to suppress; and thus arising, it has been continued, through the selfish fears or policy of law-makers trembling for their popularity, and in many cases, directly or indirectly participating in its gains, or indulging

Next, to enforce this law by adequate penalties, just as all other criminal laws are enforced. The punishment usually inflicted are of two kinds, and sometimes both combined. One of these is a fine, against which if used alone, lie these objections, that the profits are often so great the offender can well afford to pay the fines and still sell on, and also that it leaves the liquor, the cause of all the mischief, still on his hands to be sold. The other of these is the confiscation and destruction of the liquor itself. Just as the market laws of cities take away butter that is light in weight from the seller, and if the article is unwholesome, as tainted meat, destroy it also; just as the quarantine laws take away and destroy merchandise infected with the plague or the small-pox; just as any and the nuisance abated. And when some cry out, as they do, that this forcible seizure and destruction of liquor offered for sale is a new and unheard of outrage, such as no free. new and unheard of outrage, such as no freeman ought to submis to, it may with fruth be

This form of penalty answers at discovery. This form of penalty answers at once a twofold purpose. It punishes the ofnder, and in amount of mischief which he intended to do, for the more liquor he has the more he loses;

The application of this old principle to the rum traffic commends itself on Bible grounds, for we have seen that there are but two ways in which the Scriptures deal with moral evils, and this is one of them. It commends itself to the common sense of mankind; for every one sees that to break up gambling, counterfeiting, or burglary, nothing is more effectual than to seise and destroy the implements of the gambler, counterfeiter, or the burglar; and for the same reason to arrest the sale of poisonous alcoholic drinks with its long train of evils, nothing can be better than to outlaw the sale and pour these drinks upon the ground. It has found favour almost universally with temperance men, which line been far from the case with every temperance movement. Many drunkards even highly approve it, for it opens to them a hope of escape from what they feel to be a terrible enemy that now meets them at every turn, and holds them in his grasp. Parents commend it, for they see in it hope for their children. Tax. THE CORN AND WHEAT QUESTION. payers approve it; for however willing they may be to pay all necessary taxes for useful

God has given woman power exceeding that imparted to man, and if she fail to apply it the fault is her own. It is not necessary for her to address political meetings, nor scramble through a crowd at an election, for the purpose of depositing a ballot, in order to have an influence in the law and government of the country. Her power is felt where man could make no impression. SOCIAL IMPROVEMENT.

Of all seasons of the year, autumn seems pest adapted to the cultivation of the social and intellectual faculties. Cooling breezes and a bracing atmosphere, impart to the feelrious, because following so closely the lassitude and relaxation caused by the summer heat. The increased length of the evenings affords to all classes a portion of time particu-Tarly appropriate to self improvement.

The scenes and circumstances transpiring through the day and calling the attention from the pursuit of study are completely shrouded from view by the dark curtain of night. The loungers that frequent the street corners during the balmy evening of summer, are constrained by the coolness of the air to seek other haunts. Unfortunately in towns, places for whiling away time in idleness and dissipation are much too readily found and To counteract the evil effects of these dons of | day the twenty-seventh of October, at two o'. traction to the young.

There are so many outside attractions, particularly in towns to captivate the inexperistroll through the streets of any of our towns | bly of the State. or villages after nightfall, would certainly lead to the conclusion that domestic enjoy ments for the young are rare.

In effecting a reform in this matter exam ple usually is quite as effective as precept. Parents who spend their evenings in stores. bar rooms or oyster cellars can hardly expect their sons to be very ambitious of improving that circle, which they themselves slight. The amount of real gratification which such attendants to anticipate any such result. persons thus deprive themselves of, is altoether unappreciated. and honors are open to the deserving, there is a stimulus to self improvement nowhere else afforded. Besides this, the unshackeled freedom of the press affords ready and accessible facilities to all classes to obtain information upon any topic of social, religious, literary or scientific importance. Progress is made the boast of our country. In matters relating to the arts and sciences it is justly a subject for congratulation. But in things pertaining to social improvement and the development of the better feelings, we cannot venture to assume much while so much lies beyond and yet unattained. If the old are too much hardened in their ways to reform themselves they can surely make some little sacrifice for the improvement of the youth under their care. One hour in each evening devoted to reading aloud to the family circle or to the discussion of some useful question in which all the family could feel an interest and bear a part, lately of the successful cultivation of a soil would bring more real satisfaction to the which has so long received the opprobrius heart of any right minded parent, than days title of barren and worthless, we hope will aid or even months devoted to the tobacco fumed in restoring sight to those, who blindly refuse discourses of the bar room or oyster cellar .-More than this the example to the family, the encouragement and bias given to the youth to aspire after something useful, the elevation and expansion of the intellectual powers, the healthful vigor imparted to the thoughts and feelings, are all impulses grateful to the heart of a parent, which it is his duty to encourage. In addition to these influences, belonging as they do particularly to fiveside dutics, there are others which as citizens, it should be our sim to encourage and support. To debating societies, reading and literary clubs, the world is indebted for the developement of some of the finest intellects, that have appeared upon the stage of action. Examples of such are so numerous and well known as to be within the knowledge of every school boy. And yet, with such knowledge there is a criminal negligence in sustaining such societies.

Even in this town sometimes pointed to as a model for morality, numbering now nearly nowned Magazine, more utilitarian and histofour thousand inhabitants, we are totally nn- vical features, in such an agreeable and atable to maintain for any considerable length tractive form. of time any social institution, for the mutual improvement of its members. Pursuant to the call of the State Executive Committee, the delegates to the State Temperance Convention met in this city vesterday. The Convention was sailed to the Ly Loob S. Yard. Sylvester Birdsall, of Camden, was appointed chairman, and Jacob S. Yard, of Mercer, was appointed secretary. On motion, a committee of one from each county was appointed to examine the credentials of the delegates present.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The convention met at two o'clock. Mr. B. C. Lippincott offered a resolution cauesting preachers in the State to preach on the subject of prohibition, on the Sabbath before the election. Laid on the table.

Mr. B. M. Braker offered an additional rule that no member should speak more than five minutes at a time nor more than twice on Mr. Nichols, of Camden, was appointed an assistant Secretary. Mr. Ralph Stout, of Middlesex, from the committee on business, reported the following resolutions: 1. Resolved, That while we repudiate the idea of forming a third political party, we of any party who are opposed to the principle

2. Resolved, That in the person of the Hon. Joel Haywood of Ocean county, we recognize one of the most fearless and steadfast advocates of prohibition in the State, and having every confidence in his integrity, we hereby pledge him our cordial and united support at the coming election for the office of Governor of New Jersey, and we hereby re-commend him to the suffrages of the citizens of New Jersey en masse.

3. Resolved, That it is our great and only object to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a heverage, and not to restrict their manufacture for mechanical, chemical medicinal and sacramental purposes. Considerable debate followed these resolutions—especially the one endorsing the nomination of Joel Haywood. DAVID GANDY, Junior. Turkey Point, Downe Township, Oct. 8, '58,

By the arrival of the steamer Atlantic at New York yesterday, the war question seems to be finally settled, and the initiative steps towards hostilities taken by the Sultan. The intelligence received by telegraph at Liverpool, just before the departure of the steamer from Vienna, forwarded advices from Constantinople to the 27th September, to the effeet that the Divan, at a Grand Council held that day, had resolved upon a declaration of war ngainst Russia, and that such step was as well filled as usual, though in its more subdecidedly against the advice of the Four Powers. It is added that a rumor was prevalent of the actual commencement of hostilities.

On the morning of the 26th September, the Emperor of Austria suddenly left Vienna for Warsaw, with the Prince of Prussia, where it is said the King of Prussia will meet them. Accounts from Olmutz of the 29th, state that the conferences between the Czar and the Emperor of Austria have ended, and the conference of Vienna has been re-established between the Four powers. Strong hopes of a pacific solution of the Eastern question were then entertained in diplomatic circles.

Advices from! Vienna state that the interview between the Czar and Lord Westmoreland, was unusually protracted. It is added, that both the Czar and his Ministers protested their anxious desire to preserve peace, but maintained on all points their interpretation of the Vienna Note. Lord Westmoreland, it is understood, will again propose the sending of a collective note to Constantinople, in which it was expected he will be supported by Prussia. Jassy letters states that positive orders had reached there from St. Petersburg to accelerate the preparations for the passage of the Danube, and to quadruple the stores of provisions in the magazines. Koszta has been liberated, and is now on his way to the United States. The London News says, "letters from Constantinople have brought intelligence that M. Koszta had been released from the interim custody of the French Consul. This event has taken place with the concurrence of the Austrian Internuncio, M. de Bruck, and of his government. On the 19th ultimo, Mr. Brown, the United States Charge d'Affaires at Constantinople, left for Smyrna, where he would see M. Koszta put on board an American merchantman, which was to sail for Now York from Smyrna in a few days. The Austrian government has displayed a singular prudence in this step, and, having betimes conceded all the substance, may safely assume a higher tone than ever in her paper contest with the United States."

The information upon which the Eastern news is founded, appeared in the second edition of the Loudon Morning Chronicle, 4th inst., as follows:

[By Submarine Telegraph.]
VIENNA, Monday, Oct. 3.

Advices from Constantinople, dated the 27th ult., contain most important news. The Divan, at the Grand Council held that day, resolved upon a declaration of war ngainst Russia.

Report says that hostilities have already The fourth edition of the Morning Chronicle had the annexed:-

By Submarine Telegraph. VIENNA, Monday Evening. Against the advice of the Four Powers, the Sultan has signed the declaration of war.

British Interference in Cuba .- If true, in connection with slavery in the Island of Cuba, are of startling import. that a treaty has been concluded with Spain, by which England is permitted to prosecute in Cuba a search for slaves that may have been landed. And it is said that there is also a prospect of her concluding a treaty by gress of the Iron Horse. Ruilroads are mulwhich she will withdraw her cruisers from the coast, and permit slaves to be landed ad libitum, on condition that they shall be made Emancipados for ten years, and that slavery shall be abolished in Cuba at the end of fifty years .- Daily Sun.

West Philadelphia Stand Pipe.-This pipe, the crection of which we mentioned a day or two since, is decidedly the highest tubular iron column ever erected in one piece. There is one at Germantown, but it is only 125 feet, and the one at the East London Water Works is 127 in height. The stand pipe in West Philadelphia is more than 130 feet, and weighs 35,000 pounds. There is to be an iron spiral stairway surrounding the column, which will be constructed in a magnificent style, and will add much to the beauty of the column. The stone base of the structure is octagonal in form, and the whole thing when completed, will be highly creditable to all parties concerned.

A Good Day's Work .- On Wednesday last, upwards of 500 vehicles passed through the first gate on the Mount Holly and Moorestown turupike. Agricultural exhibitions afford a fine opportunity to turnpike and railroad companies, hotel and store keepers, &c., to reap a rich harvest of the "needful."

Mr. John Lee, of Cincinnati, states as a fact that "cholera never becomes epidemic in any district or city where rain or pure soft water is used," and supports his statements by ing to any considerable extent, externally, many important facts. He also states that from the ordinary square frame-house, with during five years past, not one well authentithe hall running through the centre. When cated fatal case of cholera has occurred where rain water was exclusively used.

Horace Greely has been nominated for the State Senate from the Seventh District of New York, to be withdrawn provided either the Whig or Democratic candidate should make a pledge to sustain the Maine Law.

H. H. Robison, editor of the Cincinnati Inquirer, has instituted a suit laying damages at $20,000, against Gen. S. F. Cary, the Company, and had been engaged in clearing Temperance declaimer, for slander issued through the Ohio Organ.

Malignant Fever at Fell's Point .- A ma lignant fever is prevailing at Fell's Point; its character is an excited billious fever, and has thus far proved very fatal 15 deaths having ed the channel, the swell from the former occurred very recently. The stores in the infected district are being closed, and the people are deserting the place, apprehending an Unprecedented Growth .- Mr. Shinn, Superintendent of the Evergreen Cemetery, has a rose bush which has grown from a simple setting during the present year, the enormous wright a mammoth tent, which will hold height of twenty two feet and a half. This agood people, has been created, and here the is unprecedented.

The annual fair of the Burlington County Agricultual Society, on Wednesday last, says the Mount Holly Mirror, was attended by an with vehicles and pedestrians, and every train of cars added hundreds to the multitude.

The day was exceedingly beautiful and favorable for the display, and the entire arrangements were such as to give general satisfaction. Some of the departments were not stantial features, the exhibition was vastly superior to many previous ones. The ladies department was quite deficient in quantity, but was made up in quality,-Many of the specimens of needle work were most admirably executed, and elicited the highest praise. The wax fruit by Miss Emma Curtis, was quite handsome. The specimens of net work by Mrs. John Kempton and Susan Wills, the crotchet work by Priscilla H. Clothier, the needle work by Hannah Wilson, Rachael W. buzby, and Mrs. S. Gates, were very credit

We noticed a box composed of 400 pieces. and 25 different kinds of wood, made by Isaac Letchworth, which displayed great ingenuity and attracted general attention.

The display of chemicals and perfumery by P. V. Coppuck, was unusually fine. The artificial teeth deposited by Drs. Jayne, and Brown, gave the best evidence that every one can be supplied with superior "masticators." Dr. Brown also exhibited his case of " Dental Instruments," which made a magnificent appearance. They seemed to be complete in every particular, from the smallest excavator to the largest forceps, and enable this gentleman, in connection with his knowledge of his profession, to perform his work in a satisfactory manner.

In the vegetable department we noticed very fine potatoes, cabbages, egg plants, beets, pumpkins which were "some," besides numerous other products which we have neither time nor space to mention.

An abundant variety of farming utensils were exhibited, and we were pleased to notice the interest taken in them by our agricultur-

The Premium Gate. - We noticed a gate at the recent County exhibition, says the Mt. Holly Mirror, which will probably in a short time, leave all others far in the background. No very good idea of this improvement could be formed, without having seen one in use -As far as we noticed the operation of opening and shutting, it was rather more simple than the ordinary mode. Upon each side and about the distance of the gate's width, is suspended a cord. On approaching, you pull the cord, without moving from your sent in the wagon-immediately the half wheel at the top of the post where the gate is hung, is turned, the gate is unfastened, and easily swung entirely open and fastened. You pass through, slightly pull a corresponding cord, and the gate becomes released from its fastening and quietly closes. We learn that the proprietors, Messrs. Few, however, until within the space of some half dozen years have dared to hope to live to see for themselves what they were quite sure would be seen by their children. The unfortunate men were laborers in the employ of the Camden and Amboy Railroad out the dock below the Walnut street landing. Two scows, loaded with mud, had been made fast to the stern of the steamboat Washington, for the purpose of being towed to Camden. Nine men were in the scows.

Just as the steamboat and the scows reachswamped one of the scows, and it instantly sunk; sucking the other down with it. Seven of the men sank with the boats, and were seen no more.

Only two men, who acted as captains of Thursday night, by sleeping in a room with a the scows, were saved. They were preserved coal stove, the lid of which was off. Two of by clinging to some matter which remained afloat.
