THE COTTAGE DOOR.

BY T. K. HERVEY, ESQ. How sweet the rest that labor yields The humble and the poor, Where sits the patriarch of the fields Before the cottage door: The lark is singing in the sky, The swallow in the caves And love is beaming in each eye Beneath the summer leaves.

The air amid his fragrant bowers Supplies unpurchased health, And hearts are bounding 'mid the flowers More dear to him than wealth! Peace, like the blessed sunlight, plays Around his humble cot, And happy nights and cheerful days Divide his lowly lot.

And when the village Sabbath boll Rings out upon the gale, The father bows his head to tell The music of its tale-A fresher verdure seems to fill The fair and dewy sod, And every infant tongue is still, To hear the word of God?

O, happy hearts!-to Him who stills The ravens when they cry, And makes the lily 'neath the hills The trusting patriarch prays, to bless His labors with increase: Such " ways are ways of pleasantness," And all such "paths are peace!"

From the Pennsylvania Inquirer. Fidelity; or, the False and the True.

'A heart as far from fraud, as Heaven from earth. We recently read a brief inscription on a tombstone, comprised in these emphasic words; -"FAITHFUL TILL DEATH." sleeper had been a wife, and the tribute recorded in marble, was by her bereaved husband. The epitaph was simple, and, in some degree, common-place; and yet it told the sto-with greater attention. What was the surry of a life of truth and fidelity. The memory prise of the Postmaster, Wm. N. Friend, of such a being must ever be cherished, not only with tenderness and affection, but with conscientious respect and awe.

There are but few who are faithful to the last, few who are true in all things, few who may be relied upon in every difficulty, and the amount required, and directed it to the under all circumstances, few who will cling young supplicant. We have never heard a the closer in the hour of adversity. There is, indeed, nothing on this side of the grave, more truthful, more beautiful, more priceless than fideli'y. And this language will apply illustrations of the great pillars of religion—to many conditions of life, many phasos of Faith, Hope, and Charity, and we would not feeling, many traits of character, and many understandings between man and man. Fidelity is the true, and treachery is the false. The one has its source in the noblest feelings of our nature, and the highest conceptions of principle, and the other finds its excuse and its apology in sophistry, selfishness and selfdeception. The one adorus, dignifies, elevates and refines; the other darkens, defaces, dabascs and brutalizes.

Who that has ever enjoyed the privilege and the blessing of a faithful friend-one who was so in deed as well as in name-one who was so in the hour of vicissitude, in the day of trial, as well as in the summer and sunshine of trial, as well as in the summer and sunshine of prosperity and fortune—one who was so through good report and through evil—one who was so, not for a day or a year, but from who was so, not for a day or a year, but from boyhood up and on, through wee, in manhood and in declining age—who, indeed, that has experienced all the truth, the sympathy, the solicitude, and the generosity of such a friend, can imagine anything more valuable, more precious, or better calculated to console, to cheer, and to brighten the gloomy paths of the working-day world? Alas! for the being who has never realized the genuine sympathy of a kindred spirit-who has gone through the world alone-who has never met with one responsive heart—who has never won the confidence, the friendship, the respect and the affections of a fellow-creature! And still more lamentable, if the isolated, the neglected, and Artless Simplicity .- The Potersburg (Va) Democrat relates a very interesting uneedot of a little boy of that city who, having recently lost his father, found himself debarred thereby from attending school as formerly, and, in the fullness of his faith, determined to seek the wherewithal at that footstool to which he had doubtless been taught to look iphatic for other and higher blessings. The Demo-crat says, "in the simplicity of his heart he sat down and gravely wrote a letter to his Re-Esq., on discovering among the contents of the letter-box one morning, lately, a missive directed to Jesus Christ. Opening it, he read the story of the boy's wants, and with a noble kindness he deposited in the envelope story that in so short a compass contains a more instructive and interesting lesson. It combines a singularly felicitous union of fire wish to know the man who could hear this 'plain unvarnished tale' without feeling himself and his kind ennobled by the recital."

THE DEAD.

How seldom do we think of the dead .-Although we sit around the same hearth where they once sat, and read from the same volume they so loved to peruse, yet we think nct of them. Oh how the heart throbs with wild uncon-

Such practice is often advisable, for while it replenished, and hundreds changed into thouis a twin-sister of truth, and it can never have sands. The following is the passage in ques-

"Brethren, let us trust and pray. The few days since, when speaking of another, last night I spent in America, Mrs. Stowe's fatl er and mother, the venerable Dr. Beecher and his wife, came across two miles to the house of Deacon Moses Grant, to spend the night with us. The old Doctor has always and having thus liberated a quantity of potash under the circumstances. But fidelity is a sat down, and said I, 'Doctor, I have paid virtue that is not sufficiently appreciated. my passage to go to England, and I feel as if I could pay just that price over again if I were detained—if something would occur to keep me back.' Why was I afraid to go, he asked. 'The English people and the Scotch people want argument. I cannot argue this point, weeten the social amenities of society.

We some days since saw a poor fellow carno education. I can only go to them, and tell nestly engaged in caressing a dog. The affection that he lavished upon the animal was so extraordinary that we ventured to ask the extraordinary that we ventured to ask the reason. He hesitated a moment, and then clated a story of domestic sorrow, and turning to his dog, with tears in his eyes, and a voice broken with emotion, exclaimed, "This poor beast is all I have left. He at least is faithful." A distinguished Statesman, some home, and one wife." He had doubtless garnered his affections within his own hallowed household, and his idea of human barnings.

It was in Scotland I heard the first prayer at a Temperance meeting since I came from America, and I believe the reason why they hold such power in the Church in the States of America is that they have prayer—is that they have prayed all the way up, and watered the path with tears and with faith, till they stand where they do on the Temperance question. It cheered my heart, therfore, to ind that there was prayer in Temperance meetings in Scotland; and one thing more I rejoice in, and that is, in the Christian sympathy I have met with. Talk to me of the bonds of brotherhood; talk to me of sacred associations and influences thrown around to connect man to man. Give me that sympathy which exists in every man's heart for Christ's sake, give me that sympathy that gives the cup of cold water in the name of a disciple, and I can withstand the whole world's scorn, shielded by the sympathy of Christian brethren who love me for Christ's sake. That sympathy it has been mine to receive. I thank God for it. Now, let me say to you, good-night. Voyagers with me, I trust, to a better world, If I never see you again, I shall hail you often, and you will hail me—will you not? (Loud applause.) I look out through the eyelids of expectation to the beacon-fires that are to blaze upon us while conducting the coming contest. Good-night to you! Let us slacken no sail yet, but straight for the high land-crowd all our canvas—cut through the foam—then we will cast anchor there? Heaven is our home.—Good-night to you! That God may bless you, throw the mantle of his love over and about you, and save you all from the curse of drunkenness, is the hearty prayer of him who is your obedient, humble servent, in all things to command, in view of the interest of the Temperance enterprise, and who now biddyou a grateful and affectionate good-night." A soil may contain a sufficient amount of osphate of lime for one hundred crops, and still may not yield up the whole quantity within a hundred years. If once in ten years additions of soluble phosphate of lime be given to the soil sufficient for the supply of that year's growth, the quantity liberated by the soil itself will be added to the liberations of the following year, and thus succeeding crops for a time may find a full supply.

the sherous matters or the soil, may supply the becessary quantity, from the chemical changes going of in the soil during the growth of the crop. This is not always the case, and indeed but seldom true. Thus a feldspar soil may sometimes contain a sufficient amount of potash to supply the necessary quantity for a hundred crops of wheat, and still so small a proportion may be in a state to be soluble, or accessible to plants, that any consulting agriculturist would advise the addition of potash in some soluble form, advantaging by its pow-ers of decomposing other materials in compost adds a necessary constituent for an immediate crop, and causes its enlargement, the pent up potash of the soil in its silicious prison house

Had the addition of potash, however, never been given, the amount yielded by the soil, without this one year to recuperate, would have been entirely insufficient to supply this one ingredient to the current crops. In other words, a soil may contain all the constituents required by crops, but some one or more of these constituents may be pent up within their insoluble particles, and thus crops requiring such pent up constituents may fail for want of a sufficient supply. If the supply however, for one or two of these ingredients be artificially added, it does not prevent the continued liberation of these ingredients from the combined efforts of air and moisture, and

The farmers of Aberdeen, Scotland, are said to practice the following method for curing their butter, which gives it a great superiority over that of their heighors:

"Take two quarts of the best common salt, one ounce of sugar, and one ounce of combion saltpetre, take ope ounge of this composition for one pound of butter, work it well into the mass, and close it up for use. The butter, cared with this mixture appears of a rich and marrowy consistence and fine color, and never acquires a brittle hardness nor tastes salty. Dr. Anderson says: "I have eaten butter cur-ed with the above composition this has been kept for three years, and it was as sweet as at

It must be noted, however, that butter thus cured requires to staild three weeks or a month before it is used. If it is sooner open ed the salts are not sufficiently blended with it, and sometimes the coolness of the nitre will be perceived, which totally disappears afterwards.

QUALITY OF MILK.

Dr. Prout has shown that all our principal alimentary matters may be reduced to three classes:—the succharine, the oleaginous, and the albuminous, represented by butter, sugar, and white of egg. Now milk consists of all three-the curd, which is chiefly albumen; the butter chiefly oil; and a portion of sugar. Milk is the only substance prepared by nature so completely perfect as to be a compound of these three principles, and therefore its perfection, mixed with bread, as a food for chil-

MISCELLANEOUS

From the New York Times. LECTURING.

To those who have much time for study, hearing lectures is a rather superficial way of gaining knowledge. It is imbibing thoughts quite too fast for digestion. It is making other people's rhetoric and ideas take the place of one's own worked out thoughts. With the mass of the community, however, it is a useful and almost indispensable, amusement. The factory working, or mechanic, after twelve hours hard stretch of labor, cannot sit down, with any activity of mind, over an improving book. The mind has had a days toil, too. It has been with the body, and i is dull and heavy now. He nods over anything but the lightest novel. A lecture-an address from a learned or great man, containing the results of long study and thought, uttered with the living voice, and set off with, wit or oratory—will rouse him. He feels that magnetic sympathy of an audience.' They all see the tenth clearer, and remember facts longer, as told to them by the speaker. Knowl-

tures, left by the manner and voice of an earnest speaker. It is almost equally so with our city business people. A man whose brains have been racked and strained all day with New York business, cannot easily read Hume or Locke in the evening. He must have some pleasant excitement with his study. Give him a well-dressed audience, a spirited speaker, and good friends to talk the subject over with, and he can really bear something quite learned and abstract. Even Emerson and Agassiz edge is vivified, and the man watches his shut-the or plies his hammer, next day, with the memories about him of new thoughts and pic-

We do not wish for gaseous speeches violence and destruction, cherished all the domestic virtues beneath its roof, and through from worthy clergymen, who had better be employed in their parishes. We want wellthought, elequent words, from men of intel- ary war, shrunk from no toil, no sacrifice to lect men of action. We ought to have the matured products of the best minds of the country. It did not happen to me to be born in a log cabin, but my elder brothers and sisters were born in a log cabin, raised among the snow drifts of Naw Hampshire, at a period so der. The dodge exhibited so much impuearly that when smoke first rose from its rude dence, that he pocketed the "doe," and went forth and run the saw on a select circle of acquaintances, and with such success, that long itation between it and the settlements on the before nightfall the exhibition had become rivers of Canada. Its remains still exist; I the most successful show that ever visited the land of hoe cake and tobacco. Whether "the till man from Illinoy" will favor the commercial metropolis with a visit, has not yet been determined on by the management.

The liquor sellers of Washington city, following the example of their New York brotherbood, have raised the price of 'drinks' to ten cents a glass. This advance may prove mutually beneficial. While the dram-sellers' till shows an increase of change, the number of glasses consumed by tipplers will be reduced. Many, whose appetites are not too badly vitiated, will be content with a single glass, where they now take two. If better liquor where they now take two. If better liquor is served, at the higher price, something will be gained also; though here, nothing of much consequence. No matter how pure the alcoholic drink, the thing itself is poison to the blood; and none who indulge in its use can possibly enjoy sound health, or he free from the danger of ultimately filling a drunkard's grave. FRANKLIN FERGUSON, ? EDITORS. Joseph A. Mibberia

TRACHERS INSTITUTES.

However much the action of the last legislature, in withholding a state appropriation for the encouragement of teachers institutes throughout the state, may be regretted, it is certainly no reason why efforts should not be made to establish them in the different counties in the state. At the late educational convention in the city of Trenton, a synopsis of whose proceedings may be found in another column, a resolution was passed recommending such institutions and also an annual appropriation from the State for their support. In that confection but six counties in the State were represented. Considering the increased attention to and interest in the subject of aducation, manifested in different quarters, this was a much less representation than we had confidently expected. We are aware that many hindrances and obstacles of a private nature exist to prevent absence from sacrifice of time or money. Political State Conventions are maintained and patronized from all the counties of the State, requiring quite as much of a private sacrifice, in their attendance and support.

home at this season of the year. At the same time it must be recollected that no movement can be made or started without exacting a

However, that convention has passed and we have set down not to censure for the rast, but to suggest for the future. In one of the western States we had the privilege of attending at the formation of a teachers county institute. The friends of education there did not set down and with folded hands wait for the State to make an appropriation for the encouragement of institutes. No such thing. They sent to another State and employed an agent accustomed to such societies, and he in company with the State Superintendent, traversed the State and opent a week in each county, organizing and establishing institutes.

In the county towns the inhabitants threw open their doors to members from the country and boarded them free of expense.

Outside of this the total cost to each member was but two dollars. Surely the teachers and friends of education throughout this county would not hesitate to expend that small amount annually or even semi-annually, in return fer the vast amount of benefit to be realized from it.

We need not wait for the tedious and unortain action of the legislature; that body may continue to refuse the application for years to come. Private enterprise usually outstrips the action of public bodies, even when they start together. It is therefore idle to wait, for what can be accomplished without the aid of special legislation. As attention is now directed much more particularly to the qualifications of teachers, than formerly, it becomes each one to see that he is keeping pace with the requisitions of popular expectation. The importance of having an educated youth to succeed to the glorious inheritance of American freedom, is extensively felt.

The old prejudices against school learning are wearing away, and in their stead, a better, more liberal and patriotic feeling is succeeding. Everything at the present day wears the stamp of progress. In no department can it be hailed with more universal gratification, than in matters pertaining to the school room. Let this be born in mind, and instructors must feel the necessity for constant self improvement. It is not in the requisite amount of school learning that most preceptmises dear to every Christians heart. Such ors fail. Higher and more rare qualifications than this are wanting. The power to communicate knowledge in a manner interesting to the pupil-the skill to govern and control the youthful mind while leading it gently onward mind can reconcile the subscrviency to the up the hill of science—the steady self control so needful to command the pupils respect, papal priesthood, with the principles of republicanism, we are utterly at loss to conceive. and that tact to adapt each lesson to the capacity of the learner through all the trying grades of intellectual dullness and obstinacy, are a few of the essential requisites for every good and successful teacher. To draw out and foster these qualifications is the object of a teachers institute. Its exercises are calculated to impart a thoroughness and readiness not elsewhere so readily obtained. The interchange of position alternately acting as student and teacher is admirably calculated to qualify them for the duties of the school room. A week thus spent we think would be found greatly advantageous to all instructors of youth And whatever benefits the teachers as such receive from the institute, must in turn be so employed as to benefit the patrons of the schools. The question is one of great importance, we commend it to public attention in connexion with the proceedings of the tion. educational convention at Trenton last week. Our teachers are interested in the matter and to them we should naturally look to take the lead in the matter. The expense necessary to maintain an institute is triffing. If one was fully organized and carried out it might by better qualifying them for their duties ultimately tend to an increase in their present low 1st. rates of compensation.

WEST JERSEY RAILROAD. - We learn by Railroad have thus far met with very encouring Creek, was burned at that place on Wedaging success. Along the proposed line from needay afternoon last while the dew were about the most part have exhibited a liberal spirit. The fire is supposed to have originated from the called Vessel and cargina to all loss. This is right. When capital is to be invested so partionerly for their himefit it displays the narrowest kind of selfishness if not meanness to endeavor to procure enormous prices for the land, necessary for the accomplishment of the design. The moment that road is placed in successful operation, thousands of acres of land are probably niord than doubled in value, Would it be asking too much of the persons to be thus benefitted, to contribute one half of the increased value of that property, to wards the construction of the road. Certainly not. And yet how few there are willing to make such investment. This wish to shun all risk and refusal to invest a portion of capital, for fear the road won't pay a six per cent dividend on the start, while calculating largely upon reaping all the benefits of the road. is a spirit we fear too generally manifested, nd one which cannot be too foudly censured. All those expecting and desiring to reap such advantages are bound morally to contribute comething more than a lip support. "By their fruits ye shall know them" applies as fully to them as to the Pharisees of old. If they really wish the construction of the road road is built use all proper influence to support it, no fear need be entertained either of its construction or ability to pay a reasonable per centage on its cost. The more stockhold ers the more influence likely to be exerted towards its support. What we ask, is that interested parties give the matter a fair and just consideration. .

POLITICAL -It will be seen by to-day's paper that the Whig party have selected their ticket for the Legislature; so that the party organizations in this county are now all com-

Groups at the street corners and public places, conversing with more than usual carnestness, indicate that the contest is beginning to wax warmer.

Elections have been held lately in Georgia, Pennsylvania, and New York. In the former he Democratic candidate for Governor was elected by a small majority. oints New York, by an attempt on the par of some Catholies, to burn a Bible in the publie street, which had been taken from a child returning from Sunday School. As far as we can learn the only incentive to the act, arose out of the jealousy occasioned by the success of Mr. Pease, a gentleman of the Methodist persuasion, widely known for his zeal and philanthropy, in introducing Sabbath School edu cation and influence in the most neglected portion of New York City. Upon several occasions recently something of the same feeling has been manifested against Mr. Pease and his assistants personally. It is much to be deplored that feelings leading to acts of such unutterable meanness, should exist in our midst, and still more melancholy to reflect that wretches are urged on to the commission of such acts by persons professedly acting under the name and sanction of the religion of Jesus Christ. Such sentiments too common, alush in the countries subjected to the sway of papal intolerance and bigotry, we had hoped would be rectified and purified in a land where the potent example of free enquiry, must be felt throughout all classes and conditions of society. Still more than ever should we adhere to our system of public schools and to the unity of our school fund, when we reflect that its division, is for the scarcely concealed object of instilling principles leading to the trampling under foot that book containing

The West Jersey Railroad .- We lenro from one of the Directors that the Board have determined to proceed at once and make the road from Camden to Woodbury. Operations were babby began at the Camden end of the was last week and the work will be urgod forward with all proper speed. The early completion of the road beyond Woodbury, will repend upon the action of the land ownthe right of way can be obtained upon fair and reasonable terms, the work will be pushed forward rapidly. The road will be of immense advantage to them, to be one of the most beneficial and netive means of developing the resources of the country through which they pass. There can be no question that the West Jersey road will open a fine country, rich, in agricultural resources, with great facilities for mechanical operations, to enterprise and industry. Without it they will lie dormant and unimproved for another generation. It is to be hoped that the property owners will show a liberal spirit and help along the great enterprise. The company are not disposed to be niggardly in their dealings. They are willing to give a fair price and pay for all real damages, but will not submit to extortion. The promise is that as fast as the right of way is acquired the rond will be made. - Constitution.

Accident on the Delaware .- As the steamers Miantonomi and Mujor Revbold were going from their berths, below Arch street, on Saturday afternoon, a small boat, containing two men, was run into and broken to pieces. One of the men named Smith, a carpenter, engaged at work on the brig J. C. Gilmore, was drowned. He resided in Kensington, and has left a family. The other man was rescued, after much difficulty.

Robbery .- A German girl named Barbara Iettehbach, employed as a domestic by Mrs. Johnson, widow of the late Robert G. Johnson, of this town, absconded on Monday of HAM's Carpet Store where you can find an last week, in company with Charles John excellent assortment of various widths, and of Geisel, also a German, after having robbed the house of everything valuable she could obtain. Among the articles taken were silk dresses, silk and merino shawels, dress patterns, silk parasol, silver fruit knife, set silver tea and table-spoons, breast-pin, set of bec to square the house cleaning right up and and window curtains, bed quilts and comfor tables, damask table cloths, pillow-casks, sheets, towels, collars, stockings, gloves, &c. She no doubt expects soon to become mistress of a house of her own and the stock laid in, with a little addition, will enable her to do quite comfortably. A reward of twenty dol-lars has been offered for the arrest of the individuals and recovery of the goods. Geisel is of slender figure with black hair and eyes, dark sallow complexion, between 22 and 23 years of age and about 5 feet 8 or 9 inches in height. It is supposed he incited the girl to commit the robbery, and we hope the exertions made to detect them may prove successful. - Salem Standard.

Educational State Convention. Pursuant to a public call the friends of Education met yesterday in the Temperance

Dr. Phillips, of Mercer, called the Convention to order, and nominated Hon. G. F. Fort as Chairman. A call of counties was moved in order to ascertain the number of persons present as delegates, and it was found that there were of October, delegates present from the counties of Burlington, Essex, Hunterdon, Mercer, Ocean and Somerset.

AFTERNOON SESSION. Rev. Mr. Baker, of Hunterdon, reported the following from the Committee of Busi-

1. Resolved, That as it is the duty of the state to make liberal provision for general education, its laws on that subject should be so amended as to make education not only universal, but free.

2. Resolved, That in order to promote that object, it is essential to secure the co-operation of the people, the teachers and friends of the cause throughout the state.

3. Resolved, That we believe that the time and efforts of the State Superintendent should be devoted exclusively to the cause of education, and that he should receive a compensation of not less than $1,500.

4. Resolved. That we regard the subject of providing competent teachers as a most important consideration affecting the propriety, efficiency and success of our common school system; and we believe that all efforts to improve their character and increase their usefulness can be attended with only partial success, while that defect remains. 15. Resolved, That teachers' institutes we justly regard as a powerful instrumentality in the accomplishment of this object, and they should receive that aid and encouragement which their importance in the economy of our support, under such regulations as the Legislature may adopt.

6. Resolved. That we recommend an annual appropriation of $150 to each school district in the state for the purchase of district libraries, on consideration that the district will raise an equal amount for the same pur-formation among the people, and to promote, in various ways, the cause of common school education. Mr. Naar moved the resolutions be taken up seri-alem. Mr. J. Sandford Smith offered the following amendment to the second resolution: And we therefore recommend the organization of associations of teachers and friends of education in every town and county in the

Agreed to. A resolution recommending the New Jersey Life Boat and Literary Standard, a newspaper at Newark was adopted. A motion was made to appoint a committee of five to present the proceedings of the convention to the Legislature. Adopted, and Messrs. Cole, Naar, Hogeland, Hedges and Smith were appointed.

Dr. Hogeland moved the appointment of a committee to prepare an address to the people of the State on the subject of education. -Adopted, and Dr. Hogeland, J. B. Thompson and Wm. H. VanNortwick were appointed. On motion of Dr. Phillips the officers of the Convention were authorized to call the next Convention. Adjourned.

The medallions are filled up with bouquetts of flowers, designed and executed with magnificent taste. The entire piece weighs upwards of a ton, and is valued at $2,560.

Famous Fruit Year .- Like the many years which take their designation from some remarkable events which may have happened within their annual round, 1853 may fairly receive from us of the West the title of the "Fruit Year." Not only have those fruits of the orehard and garden which flourish in ordinary years among us, abounded this season, such as the apple, perch, quince, pear, and different varieties of cherry and plum, but other fruits, such as the apricot, nectarine and the more valued kinds of plum and cherry have come to great perfection and yielded profusely. These list have been except one of $100 for the best span of fancy spared those pests of untimely heat and frosts. of destructive insects and unaccountable blights, which have hitherto for so long been fatal to the hopes of such of our horticulturists as have been anxious to extend the list of our fruits.-[St Louis Intelligencer, 4th.

When called upon as principal chief of the nation, to protect the property of the threatened parties, Ross despatched a messenger to the mob, but they refused to disperse, and since that time the head elicf has been unable to put down this intestine warfare.

The Washington Monument has gone up 142 feet, and great hopes are felt at Washington, that by liberal contributions to be made at the coming elections, it will be made to rise much ligher. The Trustees urge the placing of contribution boxes at the different polling places. A half dime contributed by every inhabitant of our country, would rear the grand structure, now in progress, to its destined completion.

Aecident .- On Tuesday last, in this place, as a couple of little boys were riding on horseback, the horse became suddenly frightened, and started off in a trot, when they were thrown to the ground, and one of them, a son of Mr. James McDowell, was seriously injured about the head. We learn, however, that he is rapidly recovering. generally met with at sea. The Day of Death .- The Vicksburg Sentinel of the thirteenth ult., says:

Last Sunday was a sad day for Vicksburg. I wo hearses were running all day, from carliest dawn until eight or nine o'clock at night with the dead, followed by weeping friends. We watched by the sick bed of a friend on Saturday night, and over and anon the wailngs of some widowed heart would break upon the stillness of the dull atmosphere, which hung like lead over the city; and again the hurrying steps of the messenger for medical aid, and the hurried gallop of the physician's horse were heard, and all was still and silent again. Death seemed to throw all his weight upon the city, crushing its very life out. The physicians, we understand, attribute the extreme mortality of the twenty-four hours ending at twelve o'clock on Sunday night, to the heavy, damp atmosphere which prevailed for two or three days previous. Be the cause what it may, it was a day not soon to be forgotten; a day when death made prints upon the hearts of some of our people that time cannot wear out. Foolhardy .- As two young men were employed in repairing the bridge over Shaker Poud, in Endfield, N. II, one of them challenged the other to throw him off the bridge into the pond if he could. They grasped each other, and struggled, when one fell over and drew the other along with him. The water was ten feet deep. Those who saw the accident rushed up to the rescue, and with hooks drew the bodies up. The bodies had been under water but two minutes when rescued, yet life was quite extinet in one, and apparently so in the the other; but with earnest efforts he was resuscitated. The unhappy men were found elenched together as they went down.

Singular Suicide of a Mule. - On Friday vening, some of the workmen at the puddling furnaces in the Trenton rolling mill, in consequence of some interference in the work was compelled to pour the melted material into a place which had been scooped out in the ground. Some time during the night a stray mule found his way into the mill and deliberately laid himself down upon this body of melted iron, and of course was soon roasted to death. Nothing further is known of the matter except that his muleship was found in this to a crisp .- Trenton State Gazette.

FOR THE LADIES: Fall and Winter Faskion.

INFLUENCED by the prevailing law of Fashion the subscriber continues as heretofore, to pre sent new fashions at the opening of the various Seasons. Taste demands that these fashions shall possess new combinations and exhibit aspirations after new forms and embodiments of the useful and beautiful. The increase of his business affords the most gratifying evidence of the kind appreciation in which his previous efforts have been held. His present offering is a DRESS GAITER for Fall or Winter, in the first style of elegance and dis-tinction—being composed of rich and durable ma-terials. While his principal fashion will undoubtedly be acceptable to the general taste, yet in order to gratify all, the subscriber has prepared a variety of styles, so that every one, old and young, plain or gay, can select that most becoming for The Paris style of Gaiter will commend itself for its dress appearance, it being decidedly the Gaiter for the promenade.

The subscriber therefore can confidently invite the attention of his friends and the public, to his establishment, giving them the assurance that he is fully enabled to offer articles of his own manufacture, at lower prices and of better quality, than are usually met with. It will ever be his aim to maintain for his goods the distinguished mark of superiority and relative Cheapness, which alone ender them worthy of commendation and appro-Ladies, Misses and childrens Gaiters and other
