DO THEY MISS ME AT HOME?

Do they miss me at home? Do they miss me? 'Twould be an assurance most dear. To know at this moment some lone one, Was saying "I wish he was here!" To know that the group at the fire-side Were thinking of me as I roam! Oh, yes! t'would be joy beyond measure, To know that they miss me at home.

When twilight approaches the season That ever is sacred to song. Does some one repeat my name over, And sigh that I tarry so long; And is there a chord in the music, That's missed when my voice is away! And a chord in each heart that awakens Regret at my wearisome stay.

Do they place me a chair at the table, When evening's home pleasures are nigh, And lamps are lit in the parlor, And stars in the calm azure sky? And when the "good nights" are repeated, And each lay him down to sleep, Do they think of the absent, and waft me

Do they miss me at home? Do they miss me? At morning, at noon, and night? And lingers one gloomy shade around them, That only my presence can light? Are joys less invitingly welcomed, And pleasure less hailed than before. Because one is missed from the cirlce? Because I am with them no more?

A Boy Reproved by a Bird.

When quite young in my boyish days, I had watched some sparrows carrying materials to build their nest (in the usual season) under the caves of a cottage adjoining our own; and although very strict orders had been issued that none of us should climb up to the roof of the house, yet birds' eggs formed a temptation too powerful to be resisted, and self-gratification was considered rather than obedience. A favorable opportunity presenting itself, the roof of the house was ascended, and not only was the nest pillaged, but seized and carried away. It was soon stripped of its unnecessary appendages, that it might appear as neat as possible. Among the externals thus removed shot eyes, the unmistaken effects of strong was a piece of paper, which had been a page of one of Dr. Watt's hymn books, and which. thrown away, had been taken by the poor bird for the purpose of strengthining the nest or increasing the warmth. sorrow.

Sorrow is essential to penitence. We have ransgressions. We read of "godly sorrow which worketh repentance unto salvation." If we have injured a fellow creature, the indicere regret that we should have so acted. -How much more necessary it is that we should be unfeigningly sorry for our innumerable offences against God. Sorrow for sin is not. however, to be estimated only by violent emo-tions and copious tears. The passions are to clevate water, and thus prove a source of much stronger in themselves, are much more profit, by keeping the animals more comforexcitable in some than in others; and therefore the same degree of inward emotion or outward grief is not to be expected from all. The degrees of sorrow, as well as the outward modes of expressing it, will vary, as belonging more to the sensitive nature than to the rational; and for avoiding all scruples and doubtfulness, on his head, it may be laid down for certain, that the least degree of sorrow is iron on the sides and ends securely. Inside, sufficient, if it produces reformation; the greatest insufficient if it does not.

A RETORT.

During the war of 1812, it was the misfortune of many American officers to be trisonsee Mrs. Green myself. If Henry Ainsworth ers in Canada, and not always to meet with is no more charitable than Herbert, she will the best of treatment. True, they were physiically well attended to, and generally messed with their captors; but they were subjected to gibes and mortifying remarks, which not unfrequently called forth a Roland for an Oliver. On one of these occasions, (it was just after the flight of the President from Washington and before the news of his safety had reached Quebec) an English officer gave the insulting toast under the circumstance: "Mr. window were some medicines. The hearth was brushed up, and the room, though scantipress the indignation of the American officers nor their surprise when they saw a prisoner rise from his chair, returning thanks for this recollection of his country's chief magistrate, and in the blandest voice call on all to fill, as he was about to make a return. There was a peculiar something visible, however. which led his companions to think they might follow his example, which they did, in a calm unmoved voice he gave the toast, "his royal Highness the Prince of Wales drunk or sober." Had a bomb shell exploded on the table, the amazement could not have been greater, and the person who had given the first toast, said, "that sir is an insult." No, said the American "it is a reply to one, that's

This retort is sometimes attributed to the late Major General Kearny, and at others to the deceased Major Lomax, of the artillery: both one and the other were capable of it. for they were men of quick wit, and nerve and courage to sustain what they thought circumstances demanded on all occa-

BOY ENTERPRISE.

Boys of energy and enterprise are the boys who become men of prominence and wealth in these progressive times. American boys should learn the art of taking care of themselves—they must acquire the "knack" of earning their own bread and butter, of being "No," said Margaret promptly, "for you have said nothing that requires it. And if you indeed think me worthy of taking, you When a servant of a friend of ours answered the door-hell one day last week, she found a little boy with a shovel on his shoulder, on please madam.' Of course, madam could not refuse so onterprising a youth, and the job was given him. In a few minutes, sure enough, the coal was dumped, and the little heaver was busily at work. Before he was through, eight boys had come to apply for the same job. A fair representative of Young America was that boy. He'll be a millionaire if he lives the term allotted to man, or he may be a Congressman or a Cabinet officer, or perchance, a candidate for the Presidency.

H. R. Merseilles, In his charge to the grand jury Judge Elmer referred to the evils of intemperance and the excitement the question now produced in the public mind. He remarked that although this was not the place to discuss the propriety of enacting more stringent statues for the suppression of the evil, it was the place to examine what the existing laws were, because bound faithfully to execute them. Without expressing any opinion whether the present laws properly enforced were sufficient for that purpose or not, he thought it was the duty of all cordially to unite in carrying them into execution, because by that their inefficiency, if they were inadequate, would be shown. Judge E. referred to the law prohibiting the sale of liquor on Sunday, and remarked that the law not only prohibited the selling, but also the exposing to sale, not only wine and ardent spirits of all kinds but beer, porter, ale and cider, all of which are vinious or fermented liquors. Any tavern keeper convicted of violating this law is liable to have his license revoked in a summary way upon the petition of any twelve freeholders of the county, after ten days notice to the party. The recognizance of every tavern keeper binds him not to keep a disorderly house, permit gaming, or violate any of the laws respecting inn holders, but will maintain good order and rule, find good provender and diet and observe the directions of the law. CHAPTER OF ACCIDENTS.—The past week has been unusually prolific of accidents to the travelling portion of the community, though fortunately, as far as we have been able to of other days are recalled, and scenes of the learn, the damage has resulted more to the past are with us as the present, each little inparties. On Tuesday evening as Mr. Adrian Bateman, of Cedarville, was returning home from Court, when on the crossway at Rocap's Run two miles below Bridgeton, one of the small bolts connecting the shafts with the carriage, lost out, causing it to run so far to one side as to be precipitated off the crossway at a point where there was several feet fall. Mr. Batemau was somewhat stunned and had his shoulder severely bruised, which considering the amount of danger to the carriage was really quite a fortunate escape. In falling, the carriage became detached from the horse, who after he became liberated, started off at full speed and was not stopped till he reached

Fairton. On the same evening two persons were returning to Newport at a speed that indicated more haste than discretion considering the darkness of the night. When about two miles from the place one of them in a buggy run into a wagon standing beside the road, breaking one shaft and liberating the horse from the carriage. We heard of no injury to the occupants. On the next day a horse attached to a rockaway or light wagon, is supposed to have taken fright at the wreck of the first mentioned accident, and ran away breaking the carriage in pieces.

Hostilities have been commenced in the Black Sea. The Russian frigate Waldemi has been captured by a Turkish steamer. On the other hand a Russian ship has taken an Egyptian steamer, of ten guns, after a desperate resistance.

The combined English and French fleets remained at their anchorage. It is reported that the Turkish fleet intend to bombard Sebastopol. RUSSIA AND TURKEY.

It is understood that the new conference proposed by Austria is to be held at either Vienna, London or Paris. The combined powers are said to be favorable. Russia and Turkey are invited to send delegates, and a new manifesto is expected from the Czar. The Turks, after the 20th of November, were to seize on the Russian shipping remaining in Turkish ports, and the Russians, after the 22d, were to seize the Turkish vessels in Russian ports. The Sultan has declined to receive further supplies for the Treasury from Uleman, as he does not wish the present hostilities to be regarded as a holy war.

Apartments are preparing at Adrianople for the Sultan, who is snortly expected there. Affaire in Servia are causing uneasmess to the Porte. The Servian Government demands from the Perte that an exequator be given to the Russian Consul at Belgrade. The Porte thinks that Servia is listening to Russian intrigues, though a letter from the Prince of Servia to the Sultan states that Servia would preserve a strict neutrality.

The latest despatches from Vienna state that the war makes but little progress, but still it favors the Turks. A new project of arrangement for the East tern difficulties has been proposed by Austria.

The whole of the Ponsh division of the Russian army had marched to the Principal-The Turkish forces had, for several nights, bombarded the Russian position at Giurgevo, but were finally dislodged by the artiflery, under General Tormosoff. The latest advices assert six English and six French steamers, were about to enter the

In consequence of the continued heavy rains along the whole of the Lower Danube, making extended military operations impossible, both the Russian and Turkish commanders were getting their troops under cover. Omer Pacha had marched the bulk of his troops back to the quarters he occupied previous to crossing the Danube. The Turks, had, however, formed an entrenched camp between Kalafat and Krajova.

The Russian reserve corps are moving from Bessarabia to Wallachia. On the 24th November, Schamyl and Ismael Pacha were to make a simultaneous at-

Russia is said to liave required from England the recall of Admiral Slade and Capt. Brolase, now in command of the Turkish fleets, both of whom hold commissions in the British Navy.
It is reported in Vienna that an alliance had been formed between Servia and Monte-ENGLAND. There is no English news of importance. The anniversary of the Polish Revolution was held in London on the 29th ult. The London Press, a weekly paper, contains the following:

We have authority to state that the Court at St. Petersburgh had addressed a brief and conclusive note to the governments of England and France, announcing that no further negotiations with respect to the affairs of the East will be listened to. That the part of Russia is definitely taken-and that part is la guerre.

The London Times has a leading article on the subject of the reported advance of the Turks at Kalafat towards Krajova, and remarks:-" This advance coupled with the activity of the Turks along the whole line of the Danube, rendering it evident that we are only yet at the beginning of the Wallachian campaign."

Another Cuban Expedition .- The newspapers are beginning to circulate rumors of another projected filibustering expedition into the Island of Cuba. either from this city or New Orleans, though we doubt whether anything of the kind is on foot. It is true that we have established here in this city a regularly organized Cuban junta, and that a similar revolutionary society exists at New Orleans; but they are not likely again to run the hazards of a promotion in the leans but they are not likely again to run the largered of a promotion in the largered of hazards of a premature invasion. But a million of dollars be very brilliant. The important forcess of at least must be raised before this thing can Souchain Kele, and the fort Ursughette, have be done. It is supposed that the juntas could now command only some one or two hundred thousand dollars-a sum too small for any practical purpose like that of an armed invas on of Cuba. But we understand there is a project on foot of sending agents to London and Paris, for the purpose of raising a loan of two hundred thousand pounds sterling, or a million of dollars, which, it is believed, will be quite sufficient, by contract to make an independent republic of the brightest jewel in the crown of Spain.

But from all the reliable information we can obtain, there is nothing to justify these rumors of an intended early descent upon ' the ever faithful island.' Nothing of that sort, we think, need be apprehended for some time yet to come, though much of the future concerning Cuba will depend upon the negotiations of Mr. Soule at Madrid and the policy of the administration at Washington. And, we doubt not, so say the Cuban Junta.

New York Herald. The Street Preaching in New York on Sunday - No Disturbance. - The Rev. Mr. Parsons, the preacher about whose arrest there has been so much excitement, delivered a discourse in New York on Sunday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, in the spar yard at the foot of Third street East River, according to the appointment he gave out at the meeting in the Park. Various rumors and predictions had been affoat for a day or two that there would be a disturbance on this occasion, and this, together with a curiosity existing among the people. to see and hear the man whom circumstances had rendered so conspicuous, attracted an immense crowd to the spot. The number of persons present must have been ten thousand. The crowd began to collect at an early hour, and previous to the arrival of Mr. l'arsons, were addressed by Mr. Brown and Mr.

the Catholic Confessional, after which he offered a few remarks thereupon. Mr. Parsons arrived about 2 o'clock, and apon mounting the platform, was received and his remarks were chiefly confined to the subject of Catholicism. He briefly alluded to his arrest and the present excited state of the public mind. He exhorted his audience to preserve the peace and not to resort to acts of violence. At the conclusion of his discourse he pronounced the Benediction, and the crowd quietly dispersed, seemingly willing to get out of the cold air, which was ve ry keen, the shining of the sun " to the contrary notwithstanding. Taking into consideration the crowd convened on this occasion, the meeting was a very quiet and orderly one, there being little confusion except that caused by nois who were numerously represented.

course on "Romanism," and Mr. West read

A large police force was on the ground on Sunday, to protect Mr. Parsons and apprehend any persons who should attempt to disturb. It was rumored about town that orders had been given to the Seventh and Eleventh Regiments of New York State Militia to hold themselves in readiness in case of riot but Mayor Westervelt says that no word of any kind had been given to the military .-There were between 1100 and 1200 persons (Americans) present at the meeting from Philadelphia, who went on since Thursday list, for the purpose of attending. On Sunday night and on Monday last some 1400 Americans went from Philadelphia to N. York after receiving intelligence of the disturbance in the Eleventh Ward.

Our Indian Affairs .- The Journal of Commerce says the Report of the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Mr. Manypenny, presents a painful picture of the condition and prospeets of the Aborigines of this country. All the sums of money that the Government has expended, and all the efforts that philanthropy has suggested, for their benefit, seem to have done little or no good. The ludian is still degraded, ignorant, idle, and apparently incapable of civilization. We have a rem nant of seven hundred thousand Indians within our limits, and claiming our care. It must be admitted that, as Mr. Manypenny remarks the various flattering accounts which we have sometimes had of the " rapid advancement" of Indians " in civilization," have been without foundation, and that, in many instances, those tribes that are nearest to the borders of the white settlements, are the most wretched and degraded. It is now proposed to send Commissioners to be appointed by the President, to visit all the Indian tribes, and examine into, and report upon, their condition, and make suggestions for their future benefit. It is also recommended that the confused mass of Indian them in one place, each distinct from the other, and from contact with the whites, is anof the late Yucatan revolution, has been cap- other excellent scheme. It is also thought that the plan of paying the Indians annuities in money should be abandoned, for the reason that, depending upon that supply, however inadequate, they will not labor. The aunuity plan is only an encouragement to idleness and vice. We may expect, at any moment, to be plunged into very troublesome and expensive owners of a tract of Banked Salt Marsh Meadow, wars with the Indians in Texas, New Mexico take. The territory belonging to the United the next session for a charter for a Bank at Mill States is not sufficiently ample to allow of the removal of the California Indians to reservations in that State. By having the guiding wheel in front, it bears the weight of the machine so as to relieve | Wise's Counsels to young men. the horses from supporting so great a burden, while it facilitates turning by means of the long rod, which at the same time is a certain guide for driving straight.

2d. The tongue being hung by a universal joint, admits a deviation right and left by the horses, as the inequality of the ground too often occasions, without thereby dragging the machine and causing blank or unsown curvatures in the field. 3d. The shifting rods regulating the cylinder and the booted shovels, are so constructed that one, two, or all the shovels can be raised or let down in a moment, and at the same time opening or shutting off the grain. The cylinder revolves with the wheel by means of eog wheels, attached to a shifting rod, so as to unlift it in a moment, when the drill can be driven and no grain wasted. When sowing, it can be a dapted for large or small grains, which pass in regular stream. All clogging from chaff or white ends is prevented by means of iron pegs in the revolving groovs, which pick them out the moment they present themselves.

There is also a clock-work attached which strikes the moment an acre is sown, and exhibits the fractions of the acre accurately; thus it will measure a field and declare the amount sown.
