THE CHILDS PRAYER. BY ESTELLA MAURICE.

Softly sunset's crimson ray Faded in the glowing west, As a fair child knelt to pray, Ere she passed to peaceful rest; With her meek eyes raised above, Filled with innocence and love.

Fair and lovely was her face, Shaded by her golden hair. Beaming with a quiet grace, As she lisped her evening prayer, In a low and reverent tone,

To the High and Holy One. "Father, thou who reign'st in Heaven, Hallowed be thy hely name, Let our sins be all forgiven, Cleanse our souls from guilt and shame Let thy blessed kingdom come. And thy holy will be done." Shiloh, Dec. 1853.

From the Christian Observer. THOUGHTS FOR THE CLOSING YEAR

Reader!-Let us visit the house of mourning—the loving family circle—made desolate by the hand of death. A father, or a mother, a daughter and sister, or a beloved son and brother, has been removed to the land of darkness. The great lesson taught by death, has been repeated in every city and village, in every section of country and neighborhood, throughout our wide domain-and through the world. As the year is drawing to a close let us hear it. It is a salutary lesson. It contains matter for thought and action.

spake the wise inau,—guided by the spirit of hearts, their prayers and endeavors having spake the wise inau,—guided by the spirit of wisdom from above. "Better to go to the house of mourning." Those stricken, broken hearts may need our sympathies. Let us share in their sorrows. They are our kindred. We are all of "one blood,"—however diverse in our recent origin. which God has placed here for a few days on manifold, frightful torments of long, lingerand happiness on earth. Let us cast away these illusory imaginations and dreams. It is childish to suffer them to beguile us. Let Can it be, that put an end to the vain illusions which we cherish. Our house, too must be a house of flushed with health and worldly enterprise that this was to be their last year on earth that they were so soon to sleep in their silent graves-so soon to meet the retributions of eternity. Such is human frailty, and such must be our experience. We too, must soon pass away.

"That is the end of man." Who has not lost a friend? Mourning and sorrow are appointed for all the living. The desolations which now fill the hearts of thousands, are soon to be shared by the gay, the prosperous; by those who anticipate no sad changes on the sea of life. And as "it is better to go to the house of mourning than to the house of feasting," so it is better to think of that house of sorrow; and if men think of it, they "will lay it to heart." "The heart of the wise is in the house of mourning; but the heart of feels is in the house of mirth." Continuous thought on the sorrows of life, its trials its brevity, its frailty and uncertainty may correct our mistaken estimate of the value of those objects, so eagerly sought. It may lead to earnest effort to accomplish the high purposes of life, and secure the glorious end to which we should aspire.

I am aware that this theme is an unwelcome topic to the unthinking votaries of wealth and pleasure. They do not like to entertain thoughts of suffering, and sorrow, and death. Death to them is the King of terrors-the greatest evil-the mere thought of which, fills them with sadness. It is not to make them sad, that I commend this subject to their thoughts. It is to persuade them to banish their airy dreams of happiness, the vain illusions which float in their imaginations, and look upon the stern realities of existence in the light of truth. It is to induce them to live for higher purposes, and seek for greater riches and honors than earth can afford. It is not to make them sad: There is no religion in mere sadness, none in melan-From the New Jersey Life Boat.

From God, who was his home? Can it be, that for this nameless Thing there was once an uncaring, gleesome childhood, to which each day was in itself, an over-brimming life? - a youth imaginative, hopeful, and rich in noblest sentiment and aspiration?

Alas! that all this should be too true! And few short years have amply sufficed for Alcohol to work this unspeakable change. No jot remaining of the infant's graces, or the child's careless joyance, or the youth's generosity and brilliance, he now lingers on unfit alike for earth or heaven; informed less with a human than a demoniac life; the immedicable heartbreak of kindred; the contempt and loathing, or the pity of the world!

Now, were there in existence but a solitary victim of this class, it might well startle

AGRICULTURE.

From the People's Beacon.

The Best Use of Lime as a Manure. In my last I took occasion to allude to the application of mild lime, or pulverized limestone, to the soil. The use of the former i familiar to many farmers, but it is presumed that a comparatively small number have ever heard of the latter. That the experiment has been fairly tried with this, is however matwho weep."—But why this visit to the house of sorrow? "That is the end of all men." It is the end of all men is to see human life as it is. The voices in the house of mourning may aid us in driving from our minds the deceitful illusions which are been woven by the hope of wealth and honor and pleasure, and by the aspirations and pleasure, and by the aspirations where have have cherished of long life and distinction.

economical plan to obtain lime that has long been exposed to the atmosphere (and which has therefore become mild.) Those who have observed the results from the use of the article in this State can, in many instances, testify to its excellent effects, and their great superiority to those observed from the usual ap-plication. As I have before hinted, it is difficult to assign any limit to its use when applied in the manner of a top dressing! Such dressings have been used a number of years in succession, and the rains carrying the fertilizing portions of the lime (the carbon) into the soil, it continues to exhibit in every successive year, still greater proofs of its increased fertility. I have known several hundred bushels to the acre to be used in this manner, until the surface of the ground exhibited a rich sward of green or spear grass that afforded the best test of its richness. The theory of the development of carbon by this application of lime has been broached for more than 40 years in the public papers of Bucks county but hitherto it has received but little attention. The late Thomas Hutchinson, formerly owning the farm now in possession of Wm. Stavely, was the first to introduce the subject in the paper, and for a number of years he practically tested the value of his theory-not admit of any other use of lime on his farm than the mode by top dressing, and the great fer-tility of the farm to this day, affords a most striking proof of the correctnes of his view in relation to the best method of liming. In subsequent years the subject was, to some extent, handled by Samuel D. Ingham, before the Agricultural Society of Bucks county .-But in his address, I believe, he only gave the Pulpit, or the boudoir of beauty, affords the results of top-dressing without referring complete security against it; that crime and to the particular cause of the fertilizing influvice, as mell as grinding penury, find herein their principal source, and that our almst that water has the power of dissolving Plaishouses, our penitentiaries and gallows, are ter to a great extent, when applied to the surmainly furnished thereby; that a large share of all existing physical diseases, whether the this intermediate agency. BY LUCY LARCOM.

'I hear thee say, 'The Beautiful; what is it?' O, thou art darkly ignorant! Be sure Tis no long weary road its form to visit. For thou cans't make it smile beside thy door. Then love the Beautiful!"

Alas! for the heart that asks, "What is the Beautiful?" Such a question shows that it has ron Hillcrept away from the light, and is burrowing. mole-like, under the crust of this world, for that, which if it could find, it would have no

Grave men have tried to strip the Beautiful of her gay robes, and to subdue the mirth of her voice; and gay men will not own her when dressed in black, and they stop their cars when she speaks to them seriously. But they are each shortening their own breath, and robbing themselves of their own clothes, when they seek to stifle or disrobe her. All the tones of her voice are sweet, and all the garments she wears are becoming; and she oftner puts on the apron of the seamstress, and the washerwoman's dress, than the crmine and jewels of queens.

God meant that we should walk with the Beautiful in this world, and so be like her. Now, when we are praised for comeliness or commended for goodness, we blush, and look foolish, and call it flattery. If we were but what we so carnestly wish to be considered, when one met us, and said "Thou art beautiful." we should reply, "I am; and I thank Him for it who made me so; and thou

Quick trians at night, who now feel themselves exposed to these bleak, wintry winds; and happy is the man whose lot does not compel him to face these bitter blasts, but whose evenings are spent within the genial home circle, and by the mellow light of a sea-coal fire. While to the rich, and the affluent, the annual return of winter brings with it very many pleasant reminiscences, to the poor and the lowly it is laden with distress and suffering, of which the careless and the unthinking have no conception. To them it brings fearful visions of cheerless and scant family boards, of hungry children and desolate hearth-stones; of sick and infirm widows and children, and halfstarved, ill-clad sewing women, all of whom feel the iron of adversity entering their souls, and freezing up the fountains of life. But it is some consolation to know that a large por-tion of this suffering may be relieved, if not averted, by a wise and liberal benevolence on the part of our citizens. The high prices of most articles of food and fuel, at the present time, must necessarily add greatly to the sufferings of the poor, and make this, more than any previous season, emphatically a time for a display of practical liberality on the part of those who are blessed with all the comforts of life. A very little time, and small modicum of the abundance of the rich, would aid and relieve thousands of the needy and suf-fering, and render them comfortable and happy-and that too, without imposing burdens upon any. Let every one, then, do or give something for the relief of the estitute, remembering that " he that giveth to the poor, lendeth to the Lord." In the words of Aa-

Report of the Secretary of War.

The authorized strength of the United States army is 13.821 men and officers: but the actual strength, according to the latest returns, is only 10,417, for which number 8,378 are employed in the frontier depart ments, or are now on their way to them. It is stated, further, that the measures taken for the protection of our frontiers have been successful; that the troops everywhere have been actively and constantly employed; that Indian depredations have been comparatively unfrequent, and, except in California and Oregon, have not attained more than a local import-

New posts are to be established in the In diau country west of the Mississippi, in more favorable positions, to enable the Department to dispense with a number of the smaller and less important posts. A greater force is also to be employed for the protection of the emigrants crossing the plains.

A majority of the cases of Indian depredations in Texas which have come to the knowledge of the Department, have been by Indians from Mexican territory. Major General Smith, aided by an experienced officer of engineers, is selecting sites for permanent fortifi-cations on the Rio Grande—one of which will be opposite El Paso and another at the Ca manche crossing.

It is the intention of the Department that, as soon as possible, a considerable force shall be sent to the Pacific coast, and one of the Brigadier-Generals of the Army ordered to the command. Nine companies of artillery are posted in Florida, to aid the effort now in progress there to effect the removal of the Indians. Coercive measures are to be used if found necessary. Two of the regiments of wishes and epithets bestowed upon the innoeyed before they can believe their own words. For the Beautiful, though robed in endless variety, is ever the same, and never wears on Rio Grande boundary, and a fourth on the Pacific coast. Of the cavalry regiments, one co, and the remaining are for the Western frontier. A fourth regiment of cavalry is asked of Congress by the Secretary Three regiments of infantry are required in Texas, besides two on the frontier west of the Mississippi, one in New-Mexico, and one in the Indian country of the Pacific. It is the purpose of the Department to post the troops in large bodies at the commanding positions, instead of dispersing them among numerous small posts.

In consequence of the difficulty of keeping the ranks full, the Secretary proposes—1st, Old winter is now upon us in earnest. Cold an increase of the present pay for the common soldier;—2d, an additional increase for each successive period of five years, so long as the shall remain in the Arms. Solution to the lowest grades of commisting promotion to the lowest grades of commissioned officers of the Army as may be found qualified for, and by their character and services entitled to, such advancement. Also, that every soldier who, having heen honorably discharged from the service of the United States, shall, within one month thereafter, re-enlist, shall be entitled to two dollars per month in addition to the ordinary pay of his grade for the first period of five years after the expiration of his first enlistment, and a further sum of one dollar per month for each successive period of five years; as long as he shall remain continuously in the Army.

The Secretary argues elaborately in favor of the increase of the Army, showing the actual necessity for such a measure. He recommends that the minimum organization of all companies be fixed, as in the mounted riflemen, at sixty-four privates, and that there be added to the present military establishment one regiment of dragoons and two regiments of riflemen, which would give a minimum organization of 15,528 officers and men, new regiments. General Scott recommends and miners be added to the engineer corps.

With a number of other recommends calservice, the Secretary proceeds to speak of the necessity of encouraging regularity and uniformity in the militia; and in connection with this subject, he recommends providing the militia with proper books for tactical instructions. The condition of the Military Academy is favorably spoken of, and the Academic term is by the Board, recommended to be in creased to five years.

The expenditures of the Department during the last fiscal year were $7,982,758. The gross revenue from all sources was $5.940.-

It appears from the foregoing statement that the gross revenue of the year, ending June 30, 1853, falls short of the expendi-

$1,571,000 of this deficiency is supplied by the balance on the Auditor's books on July 1,1852, and by the appropriations to supply deficiencies, amounting to upward of $1,-000,000 leaving $546,000 to be provided by Congress for the service of the year ending June 30, 1853.

SOCIABLY.

I wish I understood the true signification of the word, but I almost despair of ever dong so, not having the perceptive faculty if sufficient acuteness to reconcile the contradictory practical demonstrations thereof coming before my notice. For instance, when I see the face of Mrs. Jones beaming with smiles upon her very dear friend, Mrs Smith, urging her to come in at any time and take tea quite sociably, I infer that such a proceeding on the part of Mrs. Smith would afford her infinite delight; at least such was once my belief, until having passed behind the scenes, I saw Mrs. Jones thrown into a state of agitation and vexation vitation, and at an unlucky time "dropped

As grandma often says, "it takes all kinds of people to make a world," and sure enough

there are some strange characters in it. The transition of Mrs. J. from the nursery to the drawing-room was not more rapid than the change which passed over her countenance and manuer, almost leading me to doubt the evidence of my own senses.

Such shaking of hands, and words of eager welcome, such inquiries for Smith masculine and the juvenile Smiths neuter—one would have thought the benevolent heart of Mrs. Jones obeyed the Scriptural injunction in its beauty and comprehensiveness, and that the lady did in a manner levely to remember; Love her neighbor as herself."

I do not professuto the rease to spare but I must say, such scenes send me first to the dictionary, and then to the inmost recesses of my own heart, where I find a sorrowing record, and sigh to think that womanhood should stoop to such a course, that the lips that should be pure, should e'er be sullied by untruths: that the heart should grow so cold and careless by contact with the worldly as to weaken, if not exclude, the memory of child-hood's purer teachings, forgetful of the Holy Word, and of the prayer lisped at a mother's knee, "Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil."

TURNPIKES.

The numerous applications annually made to the legislature, for authority to convert our public highways into plank or turnpike roads, shows that the public attention is becoming awakened to the importance of having good channels of intercommunication through the different parts of the country. In general, along the highways of lower Jersey or contiguous to them, large quantities of the best kind of gravel for turnpikes may be found. Upon nearly all of the most public ones in this county, gravel is found in the hills, in the process of grading in sufficient quantities, to fill up the hollows with the best and most durable material for good and per- with power to send for persons and papers, manent roads. .

We question much whether in any part of the country, turnpikes of the first class, can be so cheaply constructed as in this county. We confidently predict the day when all our public roads will be of the best quality of turnpike. A little more thought in the matter with a liberal spirit, will suffice to show to property holders (who are most interested.) the need of more attention to public improvements. Before much can be accomplished in the matter, a different system of constructing such roads will have to be adopted. The establishment of a tax upon those who travel the road, under the present system needful and right to remunerate those who have expended money in the enterprise, is an odious feature somewhat at variance with the principlaced across the street allowing the traveller to pass only through a gate which can at any moment be closed against him reminds one more of the jealous watchfulness of a despotic government, than the unfettered freedom of the most glorious republic under heaven.

The stoppage of travellers, however urgent their business may be, to undergo the process of making change, which every one dont have the precaution to provide beforehand, is frequently quite an annoyance, particularly where several carriages get to the gate near together. In newly settled countries where the common roads are almost impassable at seasons of the year, and the energies of the people are taxed to the utmost for the improvement of their own property, such a system can be more readily tolerated and defended. Here however the state of the case is so their construction, if the public interest can be advanced thereby. That it can, we think a few simple statements will show. In this county the entire cost of a turnpike, exclusive ent system a toll house would probably be required every six miles, making three toll houses in twelve miles, the cost of creeting which with the necessary fixtures would be twelve tailes. SHILOH.—The history of this usually quiet place has been marked by the advent of a new enterprise, which imparts to the village quite a lively appearance. The building at the fork of the roads known as a wheelwright shop, has been lately fitted up by Messrs Isaac and Clement West, as a Horse Rake Manufactory. Various kinds of the newest and most improved patterns of lathes, saws, boring and mortising machines at a liberal outlay of cost have been produced, and are worked by horse power. It is expected that the principal part of the work needed to construct the rakes, will be done by machinery, so that the enterprising proprietors expect to furnish superior Rakes for a less price, than they have ever before been offered for. The horse power, by which the different machine ry is driven, is constructed upon a new princiole, requiring no cog wheels, and consequent ly leaving less friction to be overcome by the motive power, from which the owners claim a great gain over the powers now in use. The advent of any new establishment to aid the agriculturist will be heralded with delight by they may desire.

Shipwreck and loss of tife in Delaware Bay.—By a gentleman from Cape May we learn that the following distressing shipwrecks accompanied with a sad loss of life, occurred in Delaware Bay during the severe storm about two weeks ago. One of them a schooner, in spite of the efforts of the crew who ran out all their anchors with the full lengths of the cables, drifted upon the Brandywine reefs and was thumped to pieces. The captain and orew escaped safely to shore in the long boat. Two other schooners were upset and all hands on board perished. At the same time a barque, loaded with stone, while laying to, with two anchors out, was filled by the violence of the waves and sank to the bottom. All those on board perished. From a comparative calm, the wind suddenly blew a gale which caused these different accidents. On board of one of the vessels twelve persons are known to have been lost. Two of the vessels were in charge of the regular bay pilots; one of whom a young man, lost his life. As the night was intensely cold it was appointed to administer the oath of office is probable that some perished from its effects.

DREADFUL ACCIDENT WITH LOSS OF LIFE. About noon on Friday of last week a large five story building at Dayton Ohio, owing to some defect in the walls, suddenly fell in, burying some eighteen or twenty persons in the ruins. Three young men from this town-John Buck, Frank Mulford, and Frank Little, who were in the building at the time, are included in the number.

Mr. Buck, was in the interior of the buildng and was knocked down by the falling materials with his head on an anvil dreadfully mangling him. Several hours clapsed before he was rescued, he lived but a short time after being rescued. Mr. Mulford with a customer were both caught in the falling building while endeavoring to escape. Fortunately they were but slightly injured. Mr. Little was in the second story and was caught under the desk so as to escape with little injury. Two at a reasonable price. men in a neighboring building were killed by e falling walls. Mr. Buck was well know through this community and leaves a wife and little emigren with a wide sircle of friends and relations to mourn their loss.

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA.

New Orleans, Jan. 6, noon. The steamship El Dorado, from Aspinwall at noon on the 29th ult., arrived at the Belize at three o'clock this morning, and will reach the city about four o'clock this afternoon. On the 1st and 2d inst., she encountered very dress throughout, and will be printed upon heavy gales.

The steamship George Law left Aspinwall on the night of the 29th ult., with the California mails of the 16th December, $538,000 in gold, and 300 passengers for New York. The steamship Daniel Webster, from San Juan Nicaruagua, with similar dates from California, is also coming up.

The latter vessel brings 100 passengers, and reports that the steamship Star of the West sailed from San Juan on the 1st inst.. for New York, with 300 passengers and $2,-000,000 in gold. The news is of more than ordinary interest.

Sonora fillibusters. On the 3d of December Mr. Walker, and his party made an excursion from San Diego, where they arrived on the day previous to capture the Governor or to forage. They were attacked by the Mexicans and beaten, with the loss of twelve or fourteen men. They then fled and took refuge in a house at Enseneba, where at latest accounts, they were beseiged by several hundred Mexicans, who cut off their boats and prevented their reaching the Caroline which was near by.

Departure of more Fillibus'ers from San Francisco. - The barque Oneta sailed from San Francisco on the 13th, with two hundred and fifty fillibusters and a large supply of amunition, for the assistance of the Walker expedition.

The authorities made no attempt to stop her. It is reported that others are prepared to fol-The Wreck of the Winfield Scott.-The

The California Fillibusters -The New York Times of Monday, gives the fellowing account of the issue of the late piratical foray in Lower California. Of Walker, it says:

The probable fate of this man should be warning to all fillibusters. He is a man of much talent evidently, and of a thorough education, having graduated in medicine both here and in Paris, and afterwards passed thro' a course of legal study. He is said, too, to have been remarkably amiable in his disposition, and until a short time before falling among the filibusters, a lover of peace.

This second chapter of his life is brief.-

On the 17th of October last, he headed a known fellow citizen, Dr. J. R. S. Our late telegraphic despatches from New Orleans resume the broken thread. They arrived at San Diego on the 2d of December. and on the next day, while out on an excursion, were attacked by the Mexicans twelve or fourteen of their number killed and the remainder chased to a house at Enseneba and held in siege by several hundred men, who had taken possession of their boats. To all human calculation, it would seem that the end of this company of bravoes was fast approaching. Its only hope of rescue lay in the possible arrival of the bark Oneta, which sailed from San Francisco on the 18th with two ed from San Francisco on the 13th, with two hundred and fifty men, and arms in plenty for their relief. Should this rescuing band be favored with fresh breezes, it seems not impossible that they may arrive in time. But, starting ten days after Walker's defeat-the defeated reduced in number, probably to some thirty or even less, with an outraged populace thirsting for their lives, it will be strange indeed if they effect their escape. At any event, it is probable that the brief history of the "New Republic of California" may now be written, and no apendix added to make it perfect.

Among the many remedies of the potato rot, it has frequently been suggested that the old stock should be supplied by a new species produced from the seed. In this connection we see it stated that Mr. Charles Wesson, of Worcester, Mass, has harvested a fine crop of potatoes. As an evidence of the prolific yield of his farm, two men, and three boys dug seventy bushels in a single half day last week, and such potatoes as they exhibited, it is said, have never been excelled in any of the qualities that are regarded as most valuable. Bridgeton, Dec. 21, 1858. FOR THE LADIES.

NFLUENCED by the prevailing law of Fashior the subscriber continues as heretofore, to pre-sent new fashions at the opening of the various Seasons. Taste demands that these fashions shall possess new combinations and exhibit aspirations after new forms and embodiments of the useful and beautiful. The increase of his business affords the most gratifying evidence of the kind appreciation in which his previous efforts have been held. His present offering is a DRESS GAITER, for Fall or Winter, in the first style of elegance and distinction—being composed of rich and durable ma-terials. While his principal fashion will undoubtedly be acceptable to the general taste, yet in order to gratify all, the subscriber has prepared a variety of styles, so that every one, old and young, plain or gay, can select that most becoming for themselves. Nhe Paris style of Gaiter will com-mend itself for its dress appearance, it being de-cidedly the Gaiter for the promenade. The subscriber therefore can confidently invite the attention of his friends and the public, to his establishment, giving them the assurance that he is fully enabled to offer articles of his own manu-are usually met with. It will ever be his aim to maintain for his goods the distinguished mark of superiority and relative Cheapness, which alone render them worthy of commendation and appro Ladies, Misses and childrens Gaiters and other work, always on hand.

A Great and Important Change!

All ANGES of all kinds are of such very com mon occurrence at the present day, that little or no notice is taken of them, unless they are of a very extraordinary nature. A change of this kind took place in this town a few days since, and the inhabitants of this place and vicinity, were surprised when they heard the intelligence, that Samuel R. Fithian,

Had taken the Old Stand, at the N. East corner of Laurel and Washington streets, for-merly occupied by John Salkeld, where he intends keeping a full Stock of Dry Goods, Grocerics, Provisions, Queensware, Earthenware, &c, which he will offer to the inspection of the public and will dispose of, on as fair terms, as can be purchased elsewhere and to which he solicits the attention of buyers, knowing they will only have to visit him, to find out the truth of the above as-SAMUEL R. The One Idea,

IS beginning to prevail that to make sure of a neat and comfortable suit of clothes, you should see them all made up, before you purchase them. Hence, arises the establishment of Clothing Stores and the decline of Tailor Shops. The people want to be certain of what they are going to have and they wish to make good use of their money. In this country provisions are high and it becomes us to economise; and F would advise you to buy at my store; where owing to certain advantages, I can afford to sell at lower prices than you can get clothing elsewhere. My stock consists of Over Coats just received. Sack, Dress and Frock Coats; Vests, Pantaloons, under clothing; Hats, Caps, Trunks, Carpet-Bags and Umbrellas. MORRIS HAAS, East Commerce Street.
