For the West Jersey Pioneer. The Immortality of Mortal Actions.

BY JOHN J. MORRIS.

Storms have their circuit and they pass away; Not so the actions of a single day. Where'er performed, in sunlight or in shade, In toilsome labour, or supreme parade Mid flashing arms and dread destruction hurled In dismal echoes o'er a recking world, On beauty's lawn and gardens of delight In peaceful prospect and serene to sight In fashion's glitter and the gaudy dress, Of that attractive idol-worldliness, In each, in every state, the action rears A mighty consequence supreme to years, It lives, it breathes, coerces and compells, Of pious love, or perfect hatred tells, Yen, it can propogate and spread around The seeds whence kindred acts with strength abound; Remembrance, jealous of her queenly power, Retains the quick occurrence of the hour, And when appealed to, doth with ease display, The solemn records of each single day, Immortal they, though by frail mortals given, Of hell the glory, or the joy of heaven..

TO A ROBIN.

BY E. M. FARGO.

Oh! for a voice like thine, To warble anthems to the skies, Exceeding Hayda's melodies In sweetness, so divine.

The storm may round me lower, Yet sunshine dwells within my heart, While notes from thee a bliss impart, From tree or shady bower. Thy music has a tone,

Which chases sorrows from the mind, As clouds are scattered by the wind, While joy is round it thrown Sweet bird of smiling spring!

And drooping spirits gently cheer, And gladness o'er them fling. I'd voice and soul combine,

Had I thy , wer to please the ear,

To sing with all thy magic art, And give the world to lighten hearts, As thou hast lightened mine.

MORAL. AMERICAN MOTHERS.

the cause of freedom throughout the world, that when our fathers struggled in the Revolution for national independence, they were nobly sustained and encouraged by the wives and mothers of that critical and eventful time. We have often thought that had not the American matrons of the Revolution been the noble-hearted, patriotic women they proved themselves to be, the issue of that long and arduous conflict with Great Britain might have been very different. But they were matrons of sterling character. They watched the varying fortunes of the fight with an ardent love of country that never faltered. We read of faint-hearted men-we had an Arnold among our generals-but the women were true as steel. Let their memory be honored

Those patriotic and venerated matrons have gone to their reward. But they bequeathed to their daughters, and to the wives and mothers of the present time, responsibilities no less solemn and imperative than those which they so nobly discharged. Are the mothers of our day sufficiently conscious of the great trust with which they are charged? If it needed a race of rare patriots to win freedom for the three millions of the colonies, how much more do we need a rare race of patriots to preserve and strengthen the free spirit and the free institutions of twenty-five millious, and extend the blessings of freedom to other teeming millions soon to fill our valleys and prairies. Do the mothers of this day appreciate these blessings, and seek to impress their children's minds with their priceless value? Do they love to recite to their children the marvellous history of our country, its matchless privileges, and its exalted destiny? Or are not too satisfy for a time the craving demands of the many of those mothers indifferent to such themes, and satisfied to see their children successful in the pursuits of business, or in the race for distinction and show.

American mothers, the children you are in the future of this country. What are you doing to fit them for it? The close of this century will swell our population to a hundred millions, and many of the children of to-day will live and act in the midst of that mighty throng. The child who will rule that multitude is probably under some mother's influence this day. Possibly this paragraph may more and more the slaves of a debasing appe-meet that mother's eye, as she rocks that fu-tite, the vender adapts his drams to suit his

THE HOME GRANDMOTHER.

She is by the fire-a dear old lady, with nicely crimped and plaited cap-border, and the old-fashioned spectacles—as pleasant a picture of the home grandmother as any living heart could wish to see. The oracle of the family—the records of births, deaths and marriages-the narrator of old revolutionary stories, that keep bright young eyes big and wide awake till the evening logs fall to ashes — what should we do without the home grandmother? How many little faults she hides? What a delightful home pleader is she when the rod trembles over the unfortunate urchin's

'Do you get any lickings,' inquired a flax en-haired youngster of his curly-haired play-

'No,' was the prompt, indignant answer, I ve got a grandmother.'

Love that aged woman. Sit at her feet and learn of her patient lessons from the past. Though she knows no grammar, cannot tell the boundaries of distant states, or the history of nations, she has that perhaps which excels all lore—wisdom. She has fought life's battles, and conquered. She has laid her treasures away and grown purer, stronger; through tears of sorrow. Never let feel the sting of ingratitude. Sit at her feet. She will teach you all the dangers of life's journey, and teach you how to go cheerfully and smilingly to the gate of death.

HAPPINESS.

True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise. It arises, in self, and, in the next, from the friendship and receive any satisfaction from the applause which she gives herself, but from the admiration which she raises in others.

Montesquieu says, I never listen to calumnies, because if they are untrue I run the risk of being deceived, and if they be true, of having persons not worth thinking about.

TEMPERANCE.

Adulteration of Intoxicating Liquors.

So fully convinced, are the friends of the Temperance cause, of evils resulting from the use of intoxicating liquors in their purest and best form, that the argument of their adulteration receives but comparatively little attention may we add, not as much as its importance We are of the opinion that the records of the traffic and use of these beverages, contain no chapters more stained and blackened with crime, than those which treat of this phase of the subject. That liquors have been adulterated from the earliest ages is true; and that poisonous drugs are used for the purpose in modern times, is a fact which does not admit of successful contradiction. We have noticed that those who oppose the, so called, "Ultra" temperance movement, admit this and mourn over it; easing their consciences, for ther advocacy of Anti Temperance principles, by the reflection that if men would only be careful to use pure liquors such evil results would not follow. But pure liquors are not to be had. We do not think it to be risking our veracity to say, that they will not meet a one-thousandth part of the demand. With regard to wines it is exceeding doubtful, whether upon It was a happy thing for this country and an average, one bottle of the pure imported article could be found, for a thousand of factitious manufacture. It is well known that Mr. Gough, in several of our large cities, publicly challenged the wine-bibbers to produce a single bottle of pure wine, from the cellars of any who dealt in the article; and that he backed his challenge by an offer of one hundred dollars. The fact that it has not been accepted, -is one that speaks volumes.

There are several reasons why adulteration of liquors is practised. We will mention a few; 1st. That the supply of certain varieties may be equal to the demand. In support of this we need scarcely say a word. It has long since been proved that more wine is consumed, annually, than is produced from the juice of the grape. This fact is universally idmitted, even by those who love occasionally to take a glass. Many a joke is cracked over a bottle of Newark Champagne. And besides the large quantities manufactured in this country, it is well known that there are extensive establishments in Europe, which send forth thousands of bottles that do not contain a drop of the real Champague wine. One exporter alone has been known to send to this country 100,000 bottles annually of the spu With regard to Port wine, we think, from the information we have, that we are safe in months than is exported from Oporto in six accompanied with the most fearful and ag- have records of them over one hundred years to be the Author of some great little work is

Israel flattered herself with the hope that she is to their favorite liquors without increasing might be the mother of the Messiah. Every their price. This is accomplished by the use

The last reason that we shall assign is the large profits that accrue to those who thus manufacture and adulterate liquors.

This is a powerful motive with the trafficer for by this means he can frequently increase his profits 100 per cent. Many liquors may be successfully imitated, or in other words factitiously manufactured in accordance with certain receipts, in the possession of knowing ones. Some may be diluted gallon for gallon with sweetened water, and yet their apparent strength, flavor and color kept up by the addition of coloring matters, oil of Vitriol, oil of Turpentine, oil of Juniper, &c. The three last articles frequently aid in the compounding of that healthful beverage, Cordial Gin, which can be manufactured for 50 cents per

In concluding this article, we wish to im-press upon the public mind the fact that there are many persons engaged in this nefarious business, who make it a distinct branch, and bring to their aid a variety of chemical knowlnames of popular liquors, compounds of subtle poisons that are daily at work destroying the souls and bodies of thousands.

We subjoin a list of some of the articles used; Coloring substances, alcohol, rhatany root, tartaric acid, blood, sugar of lead, litharge, cocculus indious, calamus, grains of Paradise, copperas, bitter beans, lime, alumn, oil of cassia, oil of turpentine, oil of almonds, sulphuric æther, and extract of Cayenne pep-

THE LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

The Albany Daily Register, in some remarks, urging upon the State Legislature the adoption of prohibitory measures, draws the subjoined strong picture of the evils that the first place from the enjoyment of one's spring from the traffic in liquor:-"It will be remembered that the profits derived from the conversation of a few companions. False traffic are drawn mainly from the poor from happiness loves to be in a crowd, and to draw the working massess, whose families are dethe eyes of the world upon her; she does not prived of the comforts of life, to an extent drinks. That profligacy, vice and crime are increased tenfold by this traffic. That want and sorrow to a certain extent are engendered by it. That the prisons are filled by it. That the taxes levied upon the people are quadru-pled by it. It will be remembered, also, that exicating drinks? Such use is evil, always induce our readers to evil. To this there is no exception. While it hurries its tens and hundreds of thousands every year to the grave, while it peoples the poor-houses and the prisons with its votaries, while it starves little children, desolates families, breaks the hearts of wives, and brings shame and degradation upon sons and daughters, it brings not a single blessing across the threshold of any man's house."

THE SHOELESS.

We published a few weeks since, an incident of an imposition practised by a young girl upon a gentleman, whereby she procured warm, comfortable pair of stockings, and a substantial pair of shoes, which imposition was detected by his meeting her on the fol-lowing day, barefooted imploring charity of he passers by. Of course the articles purchased for her had been sacrificed to procure rum for her worthless parents, who drove her into the streets to practice her shameless calling. The fate of this poor child, thus early trained to hypocrisy and fraud, may be anticipated, but the wrong done by her deceit to those who really deserve the assistance of the charitable is not so easily estimated. We oncounter daily numbers of little wretches. whose unprotected feet shrink from contact with the sharp projections of ice, who, passed by unficeded by the careless or indifferent, are no doubt proper objects for the care of the philanthropic. On Monday last, while the streets were full of holiday attired people, and jingling of sleigh-bells furnished appropriate music to the gay and brilliant scene when the New Year was ushered into existence, we accidentally witnessed an instance of honest, manly impulse well worth recording. A girl, apparently twelve or thirteen years of age, was walking towards the ferry in Atlantic street, Brooklyn, with two or three companions, when her poverty-stricken appearance attracted the attention of a gentleman. 'Why, my girl,' he asked, 'where are your

AGRICULTURE.

Souring Food for Cattle and Hogs.

The cause is rather remote upon which thi principle is based. It is asserted upon good authority that Rye, Barley or Indian. Corn meal, made into a mash and allowed to ferment and pass into the same state, when mix ed with cut hay, straw or other dry vegetable food, exhibits the most marked fattening results. A very consistent and observing friend of ours remarked the other day, that he could with barley meal alone, properly fermented and soured, as they could, or ought to be, and that he preferred such process to cooking the food, or any other method. It is a familiar fact to all feeders of swine, that sour and coagulated milk is worth onequarter more for those animals, than fresh and sweet milk; but how its action in that state edge, that enables them to prepare, under the is to be accounted for, and its operation on the animal economy of the stomach, is not very apparent. It is known by the experiments of Dr. Beaumont, that milk and all substances capable of coagulation are almost instant ly changed on mixing with the gastric juice, and the rejection of the milk by the infant, immediately after sucking, also shows the fact. Now, whether the souring of the food reieves the action of the digestive process, or whether the acetic, malic, or other acids are required by the stomach to effect secretion or human subject, pickles are a favorite condiment with rich and highly concentrated food tible and unnutritive substances, without experiencing any deleterious effects. It is generally held, that those persons who consume much acid food and use vinegar and pickles freely, are apt to be thin and spare; contrary to the doctrine of souring food. We once knew a young lady so fleshy and full of blood and blue reins that her skin was almost to the equal to the amount expended in intoxicating and blue veins, that her skin was almost to the tension of bursting, who reduced herself to very respectable wasp-like dimensions, merely by the free use of vinegar.

Of the good effects of the souring process when used for fattening animals, we have the most abundant proofs in our own experience, for all this mighty aggregate of evils that it and although the modus operandi is not so and stretched on frames, remained unaltered scatters over the country, there is not a sin-gle countervailing good. What man, woman or child was over bounded by the use of in tor child was ever benefited by the use of in-toxicating drinks? Such use is evil, always induce our readers to try its effects and its tanned, was perfectly preserved, and the otheconomy. - Wool Grower.

We would suggest that the benefit arising from the souring of food, consists in the partial chemical changes which the proximates have gone through, thus rendering them more readily soluble, and hence more easy of appropriation for flesh or fat making, instead of eing parted with in the excretia. In our first volume we gave an account of an experi-ment made by Mr. John Wilson at his distillery, Wallabout, Long Island, by fattening an ox on the residum from the whiskey still composed of the shells and undecomposed portions of rye and corn meal, and soured before being fed. The ox weighed when fatted nearly 4000 pounds.

DWARF PEARS.

There is probably no branch of Horticulture more justly claiming the attention of farmers and market-men generally than the cultivation of Pears on Quince Stocks; the maxim that trees will not succeed well for any length of time where they are grafted on any other than their own species, does not apply here, as many varieties of the pear grow rigorously, and bear abundantly of delicious fruit and more exquisite flavor than on their own roots. The impression that had prevailed to some extent, unfavorably to the cultivation of the Pear on the Quince, has rapidly disappeared before the solid arguments contained n the large dishes filled with luscious fruit, thus grown on trees but recently transplanted and exhibited at our late Agricultural Fairs. One of our enterprising farmers, John Chambers of Burlington Co., being sensible of the scarcity of pears and the facility with which they can be produced on dwarfs, set out an orchard of one the sand trees about two years since, and at our late Fair at Mount Holly exhibited of his crop of thirty-nine varieties of pears of great beauty, reflecting much credit on his energy and good treatment, and for which he obtained the highest premiums, and tatter the snow was over to convince the spectators that they possessed real worth, as well as beauty, he offered them at public sale, the gradually given place to the showy and noninest being Duchess d'Angouleme, went off readily at four dollars per dozen, the next in value St. Michael Archange, Louis Benne d' fersey and other choice varieties, descending in price by regular gradations, until those of least value were closed out at fifty cents per worn out garment, while the parlor tables as

It is said every generation grows wiser and better. And this generation is certainly far ahead of its predecessors in the way of progress and improvement. Could the men of by gone ages be recalled from their long sleep and consequently unconsciousness with what surprise and wondering awe would they look upon the improvements of to day. The iron horse gliding with lightning speed where once the lumbering coach found its way-the electric wire transmitting thought even quicker than thought itself, and a thousand and one tion and contempt of all the passengers had, other things would all be objects not merely of curiosity but of astounding amazement .--Not less would the rapid strides which the mind of man has made, together with the ever increasing march of science, civilization and the arts call forth each in their turn bursts of glad surprise.

But in addition to these there have been changes of minor importance, yes verily there has been a mighty revolution in these days. CAR ETIQUETTE.

It is now-a-days a very common affair to see two ludies (?) enter a railroad car half an hour before the time for the leaving of the train, throw the back of one seat over so as to sit vis-avis, lumber the spare room with shawls, bundles and band-boxes—and then, when the cars begin to be filled up, take every precaution to prevent any one from occupying either of what should be vacant seats, and in many instances compelling passengers to stand, when a spirit of accommodation would allow them a comfortable position. Such persons should be informed by the conductor, that when they buy a ticket, the purchase of the car is not included.

None of us but have had similar scenes come under our notice. We are reminded at cars, which came under our observation a few weeks ago-a movement which combined in striking degree, at once the judicial and the pointed righter of human wrongs. Two ladies, fashionably dressed and apparently intelligent, but of the species indicated above, had taken their seats in the cars, facing each other, and eking out to the greatest possible extent what they called their 'baggage,' (though the live stock of the party were far worthier that name,) with shawls, reticules and little "fixings," so as to effectually ex-clude all comers from the two vacant seats.— The cars soon became uncomfortably crowded, several were standing, and many were the ineffectual applications made for the unoccupied places referred to, but all to no purpose. When, at last, an elderly gentleman and his wife, coming in, and meekly requesting a place, the young lady, who sat with her brazen face towards the passengers, consented to allow the lady of the new comers to sit or posite her, but no mortal would she permit to occupy the seat by her side. Consequently the husband was compelled to find an asylum in some remote part of the car. The indignaby this time, attained to about the murmuring pitch, but things went on in this way a few stations further, when a stalwart, hoosierlooking chap, who sat directly opposite the elderly lady, on the other side of the aisle, sceming to have been visited by a sudden inspiration, rose, marched up to the self-complacent young pre-emptioner, and said in a tone that would have made a nor'-wester ner-

In an able article in the London Times on this subject, it is said that England is in au unusually good financial condition. The exports of the year are said to have exceeded all precedent, several times in the course of the year amounting to more than a million lbs., sterling a month; and in spite of the strong apprehensions of war, the funds were not lower than they have frequently been in times of less difficulty.

In France, however, the condition of things is much less hopeful. Her commerce has aleady suffered from the approaching war: he manufacturing districts are distressed, and there is much suffering among the peasantry on account of the shortness of the harvest ing nearly 30 millions of bushels. It is estimated that France will pay for foreign food this year nearly 40 millions of dollars. It cannot herefore, be a very desirable thing for France to plunge into the heavy additional expenses of a war with Russia. But France has shown almost unbounded elasticity in her resources. and almost unparalled ability to bear burdens and recover from terrible shocks.

The condition of Germany, and Austria particularly, where the harvests have been equally as bad as in France, is financially much worse than in France. Metallic currency has disappeared; and though increased taxation has been resorted to, yet a deficit of nearly 45 millions of dollars hangs like an incubus over the Exchequer of the country; and all efforts of the Austrian government to effect a loan have hitherto failed. Turkey is caually in want of money, and finds it equally difficult to raise a loan.

Russia has suffered less in her harvests than Western Europe. But Russia depends very much on foreign capital for her commercial activity, and the check of remittances from foreign countries is already severely felt. The war expenditures of the government are enormous, and the whole moneyed interest of Europe is opposed to loaning Russia. Still the Times anticipates that the war will go on; though it hopes for a speedy termination of i from the universal resentment which must be excited against its author, the Emperor of

THE AGRICULTURAL MEETING.-The ad journed meeting of the Cumberland County Agricultural Society was held in the Court House on Tuesday. The meeting was large and what was most gratifying was composed principally of farmers. We observed people in attendance, from all the townships in the county except two. An instructive and interesting address was delivered by our townsman, Dr. E. Buck, and listened to with great attention by a gratified audience. The proceedings of the meeting were spirited and evinced a determination to persevere in placing the Society upon a permanent basis.-They will be found in another column. A proposition was made to hold a County Fair in Bridgeton, next Fall, and a committee appointed to make the necessary arrangements. We have all along insisted, that the county could make a very good display of agricultural products, if the farmers would only take the proper interest in the matter. From a glance over the meeting we were satisfied that the business was in the right hands to insure success, that of young, energetic and intelligent men. Apart from the immediate benefits of increased and improved production, arising directly from the establishment of annual fairs, there is a higher benefit to the community, in its different parts being more frequently drawn together and discussing with friendly zeal the affairs of their particular calling .-Usually we incline to feel more of an interest in those whom we habituate ourselves to meet and converse with, than in strangers. With a community as with a family, the most satisfactory and real enjoyment is found in those who indulge in the kindliest flow of feeling. To encourage this spirit—to make the citizens of the different parts of the county better acquainted with, and interested in each otherto create an identity of interest in this section—and above all, to make us more fully to realize the obligations of a common brotherhood, which should be the distinguishing trait of a republican and free people, we would encourage these social gatherings at all suitable times and seasons. It is neither lost nor mis-spent time, to listen to the maxims of experience, or to witness the annual exhibitions of successful skill. There is a grandeur and moral force derived from mingling freely and socially together, a thousand fold more conducive to human happiness than can be found in the most glittering array of wealth. The competition incited by these exhibitions, we would have a generous and noble rivalry, striving for the accomplishment of a great and desirable end, the greatest degree of excellence attainable in agricultural production. With this as the object of each, who can doubt for a moment that a vast amount of good should be realized by the entire community from each successive display. The more excellent the crops produced,—the greater the amount procured from each acre under cultivation, the better for both producer and consumer. As a means of stimulating to increased attention in the soil and its productions, every farmer in the county should lend his influence to the Society as an object of direct and personal interest. Competition is one of the surest means of bringing excellence in all industrial pursuits. With the agriculturist the absence of concentrated wealth in one particular direction, leaves more of an equality Percival Nichols, Ebenezer English, Hopeof competition than can be enjoyed in any well-Robert Moore, Jonathan Fithian, other pursuit. STEWARD OF THE ALMS HOUSE .-- We learn with regret that the present popular and efficient Steward of the County Alms House, Mr. James Dalrymple, designs resigning his situation in the spring. Mr. Dalrymple has faithfully served the county in that capaeity for several years, and given universal satisfaction. His humanity to those under his care-his fair and honorable dealing with all—his knowledge of and aptitude for the duties of his station-his mild and firm discipline in the institution—his humane nature, prompting him to sympathize with the suffering and helpless, have justly rendered him a favorite with the citizens of the county. We venture to affirm that but few public officers have given such general satisfaction with so little exception, for such a length of time, or retire from office with so general a feeling of Fair be held next fall. LOVE FOR A MOTHER.

Until completely hardened by crime, and callous to every purifying influence, there is in the love and regard for a mother, a restrain-ing power, that through the shadows of long years preserves from many of the temptations that lie strewn so thickly along the summer radiance around the domestic fireside—when a mother's love with intuitive hours of helpless infancy and thoughtless childhood, is unfit for human fellowship.

Some of the most hardened criminals that have ever felt the laws stern justice, have melted into softened tenderness at the mention of a mother's name. The greatest men

the "world e'er saw" were particularly noted for their unwaveiring and affectionate regard for their mothers. Few of the American youth but know the strong attachment,

Washington always entertained for his moth-can character, we would have his imitators by no means to lose sight of this as a peculiarly bright trait in his character, lending that ennobling brightness which sheds a lustre to irradiate the name of Washington, so long as virtue shall be prized or patriotism cherished.

It is often remarked how much better a mother can keep a family of children together than a father. The reason is obvious; it is because of the home feeling a mother's presence cre-

Fatal Accident .- An accident, which proved fatal in its results, occurred to Reuben Haines on wednesday last. He was on his way to the Pines for a load of wood, when a bolt came out and let the fore part of the wagon on the heels of the horses, which set them to kicking. Mr. Haines was sitting very close to the horses, and he was kicked in a dreadful manner. Several of his ribs were broken, and he was otherwise seriously injured. He was taken to Vincentown, where he received every attention, but he survived only until the next evening.

The high price of farm land in this vicinity is a subject of general remark, and we question whether better prices are obtained anywhere in the State. Mr. Joseph C. Novel Sale of Real Estate .- On Saturday week there was an effort made to sell The property thus offered, is the highly improved farm of William Carpenter, in the township of Maniputer and the county of the said decedents, to exhibit to them, under township of Maniputer and the county of the said decedents, to exhibit to them, under township of Maniputer and the county of the said decedents, to exhibit to them, under township of Maniputer and the county of the said decedents, to exhibit to them, under the county of the county of the said decedents, to exhibit to them, under the county of the some valuable real estate in a novel mode. township of Mannington, about four miles from this town. From all we can learn, Mr. C. has as good a title to the farm as the State or they will be forever barred from prosecuting or can furnish. The property was formerly in the possession of William Young, and in the year 1773 was sold, and a deed of conveyance given to J. Bilderback. From that time to the present, although there has been a number of conveyances, it has been entirely out of the family of the Youngs. The person that attempted to sell the land is a descendclaimed to be the real owner, by entailment and offered at public sale all his "right, title interest and claim." The demand founded upon this ground has long ... ce been declared null. In 1817 there was a suit instituted for the recovery of the property, by a brother on both sides, and a unanimous opinion given by Judges Kirkpatrick, Russell and Souththat time, we understand, there has been another suit, in Chancery, in which the plaintiff was again unsuccessful. In the face of these two suits he still maintains that his right to The steamer Sultana, with Madame Sontwo suits he still maintains that his right to tag on board, took fire, but did not sustain the land is as just as it is to the hat upon his head, and that like wine, " it improves with The most lamentable part of the disaster is age." It appears from the result of the sale very high valuation upon the title as a bid of The firemen used every effort to extinguish the flames. One of the engines fell into the sider rather a small offer for one hundred acres of as good land as can be found in that vicinity- We presume, however, that the present occupant will continue in the enjoyment of his rights, and set at nought all such claims as the one above noticed. Standard.

Washington, Jan. 30. The great telegraph case between Morse and O'Reilly, was decided in the Supreme Smuggling in Boston.—Mr. Cunard gave | Court to-day. The decision was delivered by he lawfully patented; and that O'Reilly's Coalso, that as Morse in his eighth claim patented more than he had invented or discovered therefore the patent is invalid. This decision makes valid the House, Bair and other patents, and the pretence by Prof. Morse that he had patented and secured to ground. He is confined to the mode described n his patent.

The decision establishes a great principle n Patent Law, highly important to the public interests, and an immediate result will be a very rapid forward movement in all telegraph enterprises which are thus released from the bonds of a monopoly.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1, 1853.-y. FOR THE LADIES:

WNFLUENCED by the prevailing law of Fashion, the subscriber continues as heretofore, to pre-sent new fashions at the opening of the various Seasons. Taste demands that these fashions shall possess new combinations and exhibit aspirations after new forms and embodiments of the useful and beautiful. The increase of his business affords the most gratifying evidence of the kind appreciation in which his previous efforts have been held tion in which his previous efforts have been held. His present offering is a Dress Gaiter, for Fall or Winter, in the first style of elegance and distinction—being composed of rich and durable materials. While his principal fashion will undoubtedly be acceptable to the general taste, yet in orso have a general assortment of Tools, building | der to gratify all, the subscriber has prepared to variety of styles, so that every one, old and young, plain or gay, can select that most becoming for themselves. Nhe Paris style of Gaiter will commend itself for its dress appearance, it being decidedly the Gaiter for the promenade. The subscriber therefore can confidently invite the attention of his friends and the public, to his establishment, giving them the assurance that he is fully enabled to offer articles of his own manu facture, at lower prices and of better quality, than are usually met with. It will ever be his aim to maintain for his goods the distinguished mark o superiority and relative Cheapness, which alone render them worthy of commendation and appro-

Bridgeton, Nov. 26, 1853. Beauty, Health, and Cheapness. AMUEL L. FITHIAN has on hand and for sale a large lot of Zinc Paints as follows viz. Pure Zine White No. 1, 2 & 3, Brown Zine, Black Zine, Zinc Dryer and Demar varnish. The Zinc Paints in their improved state have now been in use for a number of years and fully tested side by side with the Best Pure White Lend and has in every instance proved to be superior to White Lead both in Color, Durability, Beauty, and Cheapness. From experiments it has been found that 100 lbs best White Zinc will cover when applied in three coats on new work as much surface as 166 2-3 lbs White Lead Pure, and will cover as well which makes the Zinc over 60per ct cheaper than Lead. It is equally applicable to inside or outside work or for the bottom of vessels or in any other place where paint is necessary. The reasons above given, we think should satisfy any one of the Superiority of the Zine paints but should any yet doubt, we should be pleased to have them give us a call and we think we can fully satisfy them of their superiority for Beauty, Durability, Health & Cheapness.
