The Right Kind of Preaching.

Much has been written of late on the du-The West Jersey Pioneer is publies of the pulpit. Scarcely an exchange lished every SATURDAY Morning, at $1.00 comes to our hands which does not make some on the subject. But after all that can be said

The preacher has but fifty-two Sabbaths in truths of the gospel to bear upon the hearts and consciences of his hearers, and he is certainly forgetful of the awful responsibility resting upon him, if the employs time so pre-cious in a mere rhetorical display, or in the presentation of truths which have not a direct bearing on the great fact that man is a sinner and that in Christ is his only remedy.

The Apostle Paul was eminently a man o but one theme: "Christ and him crucified.' "Christ crucified" is the sinner's only hope, and therefore it should be the substance of every sermon. Alas! it is often otherwise; many a sermon is preached which has no gos pel in it. The hearers are delighted; they listen with rapt attention, and yet are disapwho deal profusely in the embellishments of rhetorio, it is nevertheless true that the very audience whose attention they seem to enchain go away from the sanctuary with a feeling that they have not received what they came thither to obtain. A minister professes to believe that every individual whom he addresses, who has not sought refuge in Christ, is in the road to eternal ruin, and may, at any moment drop into hell. If, therefore, he wastes the time which ought to be employed in warning them of their danger, and directing them where to escupe, in mere displays of his own powers, or on subjects which, however they may please the ear, do not reach the heart, he has no reason to hope that his preaching will results in the conversion of the impenitent.

They expect to hear him urge them, by every argument of entreaty and persuasion, to make an immediate compliance with the not seriously impressed by his sermons. And this is the reason why some ministers of ardent piety, but of inferior talent and limited acquirements, are often so successful in securing large audiences. They preach the plain truths of the gospel, as dying men to dying men; and though their words may not be so of their more polished and educated brethren, ret thoy ar attention.

A CHRISTIAN MOTHER.

The Reverened Dr. Hawks, recently delivthis city, when he related the following story; llustrative of female heroism:

"Among those, he observed, who formed part of the settlement during the revoluionary struggle, was a poor widow, who, having buried her husband, was left in poverty, with the task upon her hands of raising three sons. Of these the two eldest, ere long, fell in the cause of their country, and she strug gled on with the youngest as best she could After the fall of Charleston, and the disastrous defeat of Col. Buford, of the State of Virginia, by Tariton, permission was given to some four or five American females to carry necessaries and provisions, and administer some relief to the prisoners on board the prison ship and in the jails at Charleston. This widow was one of the volunteers upon this errand of mercy.

She was admitted within the city, and braving the horrors of pestilence, employed herself to the extent of her humble means in alleviating the deplorable sufferings of her countrymen. She knew what the had to encounter; but notwithstanding went bravely on. — Her mission of humanity having been fulfilled she left Charleston on her return—but alas! her exposure to the pestilential atmosphere she had been obliged to breathe, had planted in her system the seeds of fatal disease; and ere she reached her home, she sank under an attack of prison fever, a brave martyr to the cause of humanity and patriotism. The dying mother who now rests in an unknown grave, thus left her only son the sole survivor of his family, to the world's charity; but little did she dream, as death closed her eyes, the future of that orphan boy. The son became President of this free republic for that widow was the mother of Andrew Jackson!

AGRICULTURE.

Small Fruit, Pears, Etc.

The raising of dessert fruits for the New York, Boston, and Philadelphia markets, is yearly becoming more important. The amount of these fruits consumed in those markets, is much greater than the total amount of fruits consumed in all the larger cities of Europe.

We have before had occasion to remark, than the total amount of fruits consumed in terms of the gospel, and if he fails to do it, Great Britain in twelve months. which are less important. The prices of raspberries in proportion to the cost of their production, are double those those of strawberries, and by having a variety of kinds we have a lengthened season for their sale.

The demand for plants is large. We have sold many thousands of the Fastolf within the last two years, and those who have purchased from us are this year selling very large quanties. We have been entirely unable to suply the demand.

Blackberries are now introduced as a regu ar dessert fruit. The Tall Bush, the Mul berry shaped, the Norton, and lastly the Lawton; the latter is so popular that many thousands of plants have been sold this year at $10 per dozen. Of course these prices cannot long be maintained. It will be many years before the fruit will materially lessen in price. Dwarf pears are also being grown in very

This is contrary to nature's laws: for if nature had intended that women should have pursued the same kind of pursuits as men, their physical and mental construction would have been the same. man. The woman was intended as a help-mate, and not as a co-equal laborer. The very asperities of man's nature requires the softening attributes of the female character to ensure both his bappiness and advancement. Let those who doubt this observe the disagreeable peculiarities of batchelors, sailors, soldiers and others, who do not avail of the influences of female society. Commerce street on the west side of th Creek was entirely without dwelling houses On the North side back from the street near where the Nail Factory now stands there was a barn, on the corner of Commerce & Cohansey was Dr. F. G. Brewster's Store now occupied by H. J. Mulford & Bro. In Atlantic street, East side going from Commerce; the first house stood where the lumber yard now is, and was occupied by Dr. Brewster, the front with a piazza was facing the creek and the usual pathway or walk was across the wharf, between the house and the creek, Commerce street being then so much lower than it now is that it was easy for foot people to cross that way, this was one of the oldest houses in town and after having served for a time as a carriage house has gone out of existence. Where Lewis Gahre now lives was the residence and tailor shop of Mr. Uriah Parvin the tailor of the town; then came four we think of the old red houses now standing at the corner, or near stood Mr. E. Boon's stable, in front directly on the street, was a pump and a large water trough, made famous by being made the depository for the body of J. W. Crane Esq., one day when he was astopishing the natives by driving through town tandem, his horses became unmanageable coming down hill, upset his carriage and threw him into the horse trough. The old mansion of Mr. Boon stood back about where they now build ressels, it was a venerable structure. On the west side returning towards nerce the first building was a small house on the top of the hill, then the house half-way down the hill formerly occupied by Mr. Josiah Parvin, a ship carpenter, then came the house where at this time John Ireland, pumpmaker, lived and one other house between that and Broad street. Above broad was first the old house with high steps and piazza still standing, then the old red house now occupied by Mrs. Sellers, then the residence of old Esc. Mulford, who for a great many years was the standing squire of the times, transacted the principal part of the business in his line and with general satisfaction. We believe he knew little, and cared less about law, but had a very correct idea of justice and a faculty of accommodating differonces between individuals which often formed of the day, tall, spare and straight in person, an excellent substitute for law. He frequently married those who wanted a short easy way of getting through, and it was said that upon one occasion when he supposed he had been nather hasty he called in the parties, or one of them, gave back the dollar and unmarried them; he was a very poor writer and it was generally understood that after the ink had time to dry he was not to be expected to read his own writing. Upon one occasion as the story goes, he issued a subpoena for Zenus Loder, it was handed to the constable, who read it Seven Loders, he served it on six and could find no more, but as there was a family connexion between the Loders and Luptons be served the process on one Lupton; but after all it was generally conceded that fewer appeals were taken from his judgements than any other justice in the county, and that his decisions were generally confirmed. His little office stood near his house; back from the street under the hill and on an old winding by a Doctor Fithian, a noted Physician of road which was still open at that time, and had been the main thoroughfare, was the old house now occupied by John Boyer; then come the Stone house owned by Mr. Jonathan Bowen the grandfather of Dr. Wm. He reases to go on a mission to Chies; but in the present disarranged state of the county there, it is deemed not advisable to send any more missionaries there at present. At the commencement of the afternoon service, he, with his bride walked in the house, took a stand under the pulpit, facing the congregation, a husband, to be faithful to his wife. Surely closed after a session of four days. The next citizens. New London, we went immediately to Stonington, met the cars from Providence, took the passengers on board, and then sailed for leading from that place to Newhaven. The cars were verry much crowded, the members where that body are in session. The road was very dusty, and using wood instead of Coal, we were completely covered with dust and sinders from the Locomotive. The way was pleasant, passing through the flourishing villages located along the shore bordering on the Long Island sound. We arrived in New Haven at half-past one o'clock, in time to dine. The Depot is a splendid building, the upper story is finished in an accommodating manner; sitting rooms, dining rooms in an abundance, tables loaded, and servants anxious that all should be accommodated with a meal for a good price; assuring us that there was ample time before the cars would leave for all to be satisfied. I have been so often deceived at such places that I was afraid to trust them. Multitudes took seats at the ta- lar alteration in prices. bles, paid their bills, and began to partake of the good things, when the car bell began to ring, and then; O, what a scene of confusion, running, pushing, and jumping. Down the stairs they ran, some with a piece of bread, some with pie, some with the limb of a Turkey, and to appearance each took what he could, and run for a seat, lest the black horse should in his haste, leave him in this land of strangers. The people going to their places of business sought shelter under awnings, and whereever a place of shelter that Duck be a Goose if she keeps on laying could be found. Arriving at the boat in time, the weather becoming calm, the sky clear, the sail at that hour in the morning was very pleasant indeed. There were but very few passengers aboard of the boat, but stopping at all the intermediate places, our company gradually increased. At South Amboy, we took the cars and stopping at all the little stopping places we made but slow progress. At Bourdentown we again changed from the Cars to the Boat, and arrived at Philadelphia at one o'clock, having been six hours going ninety miles, with all the powers and speed of the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company. That is what they call, I suppose, go-a-head-iem.

The New Territories .-- As emigration i about taking in the fields of Nebraska and Kansas under the new organization as Terri tories, some information as to the character of the soil and the general condition of the country may be read with interest. Both the territories are represented as high and rolling in the surface, having broad and gen-tle slopes, and possessing a deep and very luxuriant soil. The lands in every direction are every way handsome and desirable. There are all the symptoms exhibited of an abundance of limestone and stone-coal of a fine quality. There is however a great lack of timber forming the only great hindrance to its immediate settlement, but this evit may be ob-

Commodore Perry's Treaty with Japan. From the Hong Kong correspondence of the London Times of April 12, we have the previous reports of the opening of Japan by Commodore Perry confirmed. Two of the ports to be opened to our commerce are named: nd as the imperial city of Jeddo is not one of them, it is evident that the Japanese authorities are not yet prepared for the most in-timate relations with the outside barbarians It is given out that the treaty of Commodore Perry covers the privilege of commercial reciprocities with all other nations, which we think is most probably the case, as it is no part of the policy of the United States to mouopolize the priveleges of traffic with the Japanese, or any other foreign people, to the prejudice of other commercial nations. We can at least afford to be as liberal in our peaceful negotiations with Japan as England was in closing up her opium war with China.—
The report that the Russians had anticipated the objects of Commodore Perry is without foundation, so that the achievment of removing the barriers which have to this time cut off the islands of Japan from all the rest of the world, except a ship or two from Holland and a few junks from China, belongs exclusively to our government, our squadrons, our Commodore, and the friendly letter in that
