BY ESTELLA MAURICE

Lay me to rest in the lone blue sea, Where the waters are sweeping majestic and free Where a hold solemn anthem unceasing and high Goeth up through all time to the echoing sky. Chant we no requiem over my form, MORAE.

AMONG THE TOMBS.

We saw a pretty device (says the Newark Mercury) sculptured on a tomb-stone in the soaring upward from a shattered urn, with a broken rose-bud in its beak, while immediately below, within a wreath, was sculptured the name of the sleeper-" Frank"-and the following couplet: "The Casket lock'd to earth was riven,

The jewel sparkles now in Heaven!"

The device of the dove souring up from the bud, was to us peculiarly expressive. So, we thought, almost daily some sweet flower is torn from the urns of earth, by the dove of the dust." Peace, and carried up to the windows of Heaven; hourly, some casket of affection is broken, and the pearl which it contained is added to the treasury above. From every forth some cherished lamb; every household quent address. The music then cheered us has lost its "Frank," but not every one has again with another tune. The President raised a marble shaft above the dust of the lost one-for, ah!, there are homes where Poverty sits ever at the hearth, and the shrunken hand cannot perform that which the liberal heart suggests.

Beside the grave of " Frank" there grew a single rose-tree, and around it was a belt of hox, green and fragrant as is the memory of the little sleeper in the hearts of those who loved and lost him. Upon the grave, there grew pinks and violets and star-flowers, shining softly amid the grass, and perfulning all the air with delicious fragrance. Over all, a stately willow drooped its branches, like the dishevelled tresses of some Niobe, and the sunbeams shone with a tempered beauty on the little grave. We had the pleasure of listening to the second sermon of the series proposed to be de-livered to young men by Rev. Mr. Vancleve. Young men were advised to beware of begin nings. It was the first step in evil practices that laid the foundations of a course of life tending to the destruction of happiness, prop erty, reputation, and even life itself. Care should be taken in spending leisure hours.— Young men generally had much leisure time, and unless temptations were carefully avoided, the many hours of pleasure and relaxation from labor become the certain roads to for the profitable and pleasurable employment tice of any single virtue is well nigh incomruin, irreligion and dissipation. As a means of leisure hours young men were exhorted to acquire a taste for reading-not the trashy and corrupt publications of the day, but solid and well written works of the best writers .-The study of the Bible was referred to as an important and indispensible prerequisite to the proper formation of character. The cultivation of independence of character, and a strict and Scriptural observance of the Sabbath were enforced as an important element in protecting young men from the vices of next sermon

> W. V. DARROW. From the Philadelphia Saturday Mail. Collateral Benefits of the Temperanco Movement.

However, next November will tell the tale.

The benefits wrought by the modern temperance enterprise, and attendant on every successive step of its progress, are vastly more numerous than appear on a superficial inspection. As has been a thousand times remarked, all the several virtues are linked together by an original and close affinity, and therefore the conscientious, systematic pracpatible with the contemporaneous practice of any one vice. Now could this enterprise succeed in banishing from earth intemperance solely; what boundless gratitude would be its due for this service merely? For in exterminating this-of itself a monster-evil, you, at the same time, exterminate a multiform throng of evils flowing directly from it. And then passing from the negative to the positive side of the survey, by establishing among men a virtue so high and noble as temperance, you pave the way, the age. The positions and responsibilities and noble as temperance, you have the way, of young men will form the subject of the by the most natural and easy of transitions, to the practice of a host of virtues beside.

Nor should we leave out of view certain collateral phenomena attendant on the advance of this enterprise. For it is an enterprise intrinsically fitted to unite in its prosecution men of all stades of opinion on all various topics. Probably not an individual can be found on the globe—even though it were the inebriate or the rum-vender himself -who is conscientiously hostile to the total the Atlantic County Temperance Society, a extirpation of inebriety from among men. And so it is, that the world is from experience daily learning what the Great Teacher uttered two thousand years ago, but what has most unaccountably been overlooked by his most zealous-seeming friends, viz: that it is all in vain merely to ery "Lord, Lord," introduced as a speaker. Oregon City has enjoyed its first revival the present winter, as the fruit of which a number of persons have joined the different churches. There have been added to the Baptist churches in Oregon about one hundred and twenty-five by baptism, and a number more by letter. This addition has increased our strength much. A large proportion of the new members are young men, many of whom are men of mind and energy; and we are in hopes that some of them will feel it a privilege to devote themselves to the work of the ministry. The Trustces of our institution and one and another antique forms of belief are anxious to increase its facilities to meet the wants of the community. The past winter has been very severemuch colder than ever known before. The Indians lay it all to the white men. The Columbia was frozen over for some time, and we were cut off from all communication with the rest of mankind. Thousands of bushels of potatoes were frozen, and many cattle died; for the people, not expecting such weather, had not prepared themselves for it. The poor Indians, who never provide for the future, suffered very much. They cat frozen potatoes, dead horses and dogs, and whatever they could get. They are disappearing very rapidly before the white man. The Indian agent reports twenty thousand, but I think it would be difficult to find one-half that number in the Territory.

But recent events have stimulated the creation of the Order of United Americans, and the mysterious Know Nothings. In this country, directed towards reforms are never excited except by the pressure of real evils, and such evils always find their correction in some uprising and combination of public opinion. Consequently these American movements cannot be regarded as without cause, sporadic, indefinite or uninfluenced by intentions to promote the substantial and permanent welfare of the country. A more potent cause of the movements referred to, is the shameful truckling in which political parties have indulged toward the foreign vote when important elections have been pending. This has disgusted many intelligent American citizens, who have asked themselves whether the founders of our re by folly; and travelled by her votaries.-N. public designed that foreign born citizens should hold the emblems and reality of power here, or whether the country was merely intended as an asylum for them. This base truckling has led to unnumbered frauds upon the naturalization laws, to bribery, drunken ness, and many other results which disgrace our system of suffrage. Moreover, reward must be given by power to those who assisted in its elevation, and it is a notorious fact that Americans have frequently been excluded from office to make way for those who could not claim a longer residence than the time required by law to entitle them to citizen-

We have a notion that there is something in the old motto which puts "virtue, liberty and independence," in the same category; which holds that in order to real and enduring freedom a respectable measure of intelligence and morality is indispensable. Our fathers, who fought and bled for the freedom we enjoy, were very much given to this way of thinking. We presume they would have said that the men who loved truth, right, order, industry and honesty, were the best kind of patriots. So we say.

Stores .- On Broad Street West of th bridge, Mr. Jacob shull kept a store, his business was principally a neighborhood business with some country trade, liquor as usual at this time constituting a considerable item of the business: this store-house has within a few years been altered into dwellings, the business was continued there either by himself or in partnership with Mr. David Lupton for a number of years. Mr. Shull or Judge Shull as he become and which his size particularly entitled him to, was a remarkably large man, he had formerly driven stage and it was said he only left that business because he loaded the stage himself and left no room for passengers.

The Store at the corner of Broad and Franklin street was unoccupied, it had previously been kept by Col. Potter. The stone store house corner of Broad and Atlantic st's. which had been occupied by George Burgin was about this time taken by Shannon and Bowie, two enterprising Irishmen, who had followed pedling dry goods; from this time commenced a new era in the business of Bridgeton, previous to this time Greenwich had been the great business place, and it was not uncommon for the people of Bridgeton, as well as from the surrounding country, to go to Greenwich to purchase their best goods. Mr. John Sheppard and Richard Wood, afterwards Wood & Bacon keeping larger supplies of goods and better assortments than keeping, for the times, a large stock and a years the best business of the County; they continued to lead in business until in 1810 when John Buck & Co., the firm consisting of John Buck Nathan L. Dr. Brewster kept a store where H. J. Mulford's store now is, he kept medicine as well as a general variety of other goods, his The tendency to diseases of the stomach and important reason why the extensive praries was a-regular and rather contracted business without much of the stir of the present day.

Mr. David Bowen had kept a small store where Dr. Bowen now lives, but discontinued it about this time.

On the East side of the Bridge the first store we come to was Mr. Abijah Harris' where Mr. Maul now is, he did not keep a large assortment of goods, was at that time a remarkable man to stay at home, very rarely went to Philadelphia for goods, but depended upon the merchants to supply him by order; he spent no small part of his time in laying on the counter with a roll of flannel for a pillow. Mr. Samuel Barber was brought up in his store and people used to say that when customers went in when Mr. Harris was alone enjoying his repose he would ask them what the place designated it was learned that Mrs. they wanted, and if it did not amount to more Ann Crammer, wife of Brazier Crammer, than a fippenny bit he would say, wait a while while on a visit to her sisters in this place, Sammy will be in directly; fine times for business men. Stratton. Mr. Merseilles kept a store where Mr. Daniel Fithian & Son is until his death in 1807, he was an active business man. Ebenezer Seeley Esq. kept a store on Laurel Hill where the blacksmith shop now stands, he carried on a large wood trade and continued the business until the fall of 1808 when he sold out his stock of goods to N. The store keepers understood their business pretty well and when a man and his wife from the country came, the best liquors were sure to be produced, and if they did not buy freely, or seemed to feel poor, a little more of the good creature would make them rich and liberal. an opportunity of visiting an interesting spot known as "Black Hawk Tower." It is a high bluff on the North side of the Rock River, about three miles South-east of Rock Island. Here, we are told, the sanguinary Indian Chief and warrior was accustomed to make observations of the movements of the enemy during the celebrated Black Hawk war, and certainly the selection of such a spot stood the Indian city over whose destinies the renowned Black Hawk presided. I Bay slood, for it is now numbered among the things that were, not a single trace of either savage or civilized life remaining but a few ridges where once grew the corn planted and nurtured by that ill-fated tribe. A ride over and is expected to go into operation on or bethese ridges, and a view of the wild flowers fore the first of August. which now grow upon and adorn them, were well adapted to suggest the changes to which tainty and delay in passing through Newark, to remind one of the fluctuations through which the unfortunate Indian race has passed.

an opportunity when his visitors' curiosity is comely situated near the river, and surrounded by a country of great fertility. As yet they are not large, owing no doubt in a great degree to the fact that the rich prairies about CHOLERA.—Since our last we leave that them have been bought up by gold—thirsty there have been two additional deaths from speculators who hold their lands very high, thus preventing them from becoming occupied by bona fide purchasers. This is one bowels still continues, and although a proper of Iowa are attracting such general attention, attention to the state of the system, in a great and are becoming so fast taken up, not only measure secures it from the attacks of Chole- by emigrants from the far East, but by persons from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wiscon. sin, and, in some cases, even from Illinois itself. The soil west of the Mississippi can be but little if any better than it is on the East, (and surely it is good enough on either side.) while in some other respects Illinois has decided advantages over Iowa-vet because land equally fertile can be bought in Iowa at a much less price than in Illinois, the people are flocking thither in numbers resembling birds of passage—and who can blame them for it?

LATER FROM CALIFORNIA

The steamer George Law has arrived at New York, bringing a large number of passengers, and over a million dollars in gold, beside the amount in the hands of passengers.

The California markets are generally dull. and prices drooping; money market unchanged, real estate dull, and the mining news continues satisfactory-several new discoveries are reported. The tunnel and water companies are doing better than ever. The crops of wheat and barley throughout the state are exceedingly heavy, and in every part of the state extensive tracts have been brought into cultivation. Cold weather and smut have injured the crops in some sections. A railroad convention was held on the 3d instant at Red Bluffs, to adopt measures for the survey of Noble's Pass. A resolution was passed to raise the necessary funds, in the event of the General Government refus-

Walker's trial has been postponed until August. The accused alleges that the expedition was to protect Sonora from the incursions of the Apaches.

Killed by Lightning.—An elderly lady, whose name we did not ascertain, was killed by lightning, at Fislerville, Gloucester county on the 5th inst. She resided in Philadelphia and at the time of her death was visiting her relatives.

A barn belonging to John Johnson, at Pittstown, had the lightning rod thrown down, some of the weather boards torn off, pel. and a valuable horse in it at the time was killed. The barn was not set on fire.

We have been informed that during the same storm one of the workmen engaged in putting up the Telegraph, received such a heavy shock as to be rendered insensible for several hours.

The New Jersey Medical Society met yesterday afternoon at the Temperance Hall.-Dr. Alfred B. Dayton, of Monmouth presided. This was a special meeting of the society, called mainly to consider and take some acion on the medical law passed by the last egislature. The standing Committee through Dr. Cooper, of Camden, brought the subject before the society, when Dr. Lewis Condit and Dr. O. H. Taylor also in written communications expressed the views of the profession in relation to it, and recommended the appointment of a committee to memoralize the legislature for a repeal of the law. The members discussed the relations of the Medical Society to the State-its long established respectability-(having been organized before the Revolutionary war, and continued ever On Saturday, the 22d day of July, 1854, since,)-the guaranty it offered for the learning and skill of all who legally practiced medicine in the staie; its benefits being more for the people than the profession, and its liberal character to which none but the ignorant adventurer or the dishonest interloper could ob-

After the members had expressed their views fully on these points, a committee was appointed to represent the Medical Society in uch a manner before the legislature, at their next session, as may induce them to repeal an act that was never asked for by any, except to cover ignorance or favor dishonesty. The Society dined at the Trenton House and afterwards finished the business for which they had assembled, and adjourned. The corner stone of the new M. E. Church at South Amboy, was laid on Tuesday afternoon of last week. Rev. J. K. Shaw, of Newark, Rev. Wm. A. Wilmer, of Trenton, N. V. and Rev. James O. Rogers, officiated.

Princeton College.-Rev. John Maclean, D. D., who was inaugurated President of Princeton College at its late commencement in his address upon the occasion, in speaking of the institution remarked that it has educated more than 600 Clergymen, more than 200 Judges, Statesmen and National Congressmen. Several of the most prominent Colleges owe their establishment to graduates of this; and some of the brightest ornaments of the medical profession were also graduates. P. T. Barnum has resigned the Presidency of the Crystal Palace Association. The Exhibition will close on the 21st of October.

The Ventilators on the New Jersey Rail road Cars.—Quite a large number of gentlemen, by invitation of J. P. Jackson, Esq., the Vice President of the New Jersey Railroad, took an excursion yesterday afternoon to New Brunswick in a train of cars furnished J. S. Richardson's, Bridgeton; Swing & Tom- with new Ventilators, for the purpose of testing their value. The universal opinion appeared to be that they fully answered the purpose for which they were designed, and that travellers would no longer suffer from the se rious drawback to the pleasure of travel, by flying continually through a cloud of dust .-The New Jersey Road deserves credit for the continued efforts to provide every convenience and comfort for their passengers.

> Pulnam for July .- The poem on the Jewish Cemetery at Newport, is stamped with the genius of Longfellow. The "Hynn o air" is a magnificent composition, and if it s by Bayard Taylor, as we have heard, it is one of the best things he has done. The series of articles on plants, the two last of which are rather oddly entitled "A Biography," are said to be written by Scheli de Vere, a Hungarian nobleman, now professor in the University of Virginia. The show and masterly knowledge of the subject, as well as of the English language, and are the most beautiful written sketches of the kind we have ever read. Mellville's new story "Israel Potter" appears to be a veritable narrative of the adventures of a Yankee soldier, who was taken prisener at Bunker's Hill, carried to England and remained abroad fifty years. The story is told in an easy familiar style, which to many will be more affractive than the luxurious and characteristic manner which belongs to the author of the "Typee." The first article "Is Man one or Many," gives a lucid and comprehensive view of the arguments and researches, which have recently startled the world in regard to the primitive origin of mankind. Altogether this is a great number filled with a rich variety of sound and entertaining reading for hot weather, and evidently the product of some of the cleverest pens in the country.

A Great and Important Change!

HANGES of all kinds are of such very common occurrence at the present day, that little or no notice is taken of them, unless they are of a very extraordinary nature. A change of this kind took place in this town a few days since, and the inhabitants of this place and vicinity, were surprised when they heard the intelligence, that Samuel R. Fithian,

Had taken the Old Stand, at the N. East corner of Laurel and Washington streets, for merly occupied by John Salkeld, where he intends keeping a full Stock of Dry Goods, Groceries, Provisions, Queensware, Earthenware, &c, which he will offer to the inspection of the public and will dispose of, on as fair terms, as can be purchased elsewhere and to which he solicits the attention of buyers, knowing they will only have to visit him, to find out the truth of the above as sertion.
