Choire Poetry.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. From a Stray Leaf.

BY N. R. JR.

This world's a stage. Men are players In the grand drama. Some act well Their part, and departing, leave A legacy better than rubies far. Some live but to bless-are angels Sent on mercy's errand, to cheer And soothe disconsolate ones. Whose Lives are spent in doing good-these Feel the rich reward of kindness done. How could we brave the ills of life, Or battle with our legion cares-Did not an angel hand peer through The darkness, and write upon the clouds Thick gathering, some word of promise. High heaven he thanked for gift so dear To man!

But others are drones in the busy hive, Yea more, by precept teach the weaker Ones to stumble. Once in the ways Of sin they drain the poisonous cup Of death, spread contagions dire through All their ranks-and sinking to heli's Dark dungeon draw others to augment

To be good is hard, and needs more Than in man dwells. But there's an arm Omnipotent. A heavenly voice That whispers to the troubled passions " Peace be still;" and to the soul pierced With trials sharp, it sweetly says "Grace sufficient to thy day." Cedarville, July 1854.

From the Christian Observer: PRAYING.

"Praying with all prayer:"-Eph., 6, 18. "Prayer is the Christian's breath." cannot be dispensed with for any length of time, for only while he prays he lives.

True, many do live without prayer, and it is as true that certain forms of disease destroy health, while we cannot detect the particular

If there be no prayer, the spiritual man decays and dies. The process may in some cases be slow, but it is in every case fatal. Why do we pray so little? Why do we take so little interest in the service? This is a curious matter, for such is not the case in the exercises of the sanctuary-in singing or in preaching. Prayer meetings are not so interesting, because there is so little praying in these meetings. The usual number may lead in prayer. But there is no spirit in the service; or the spirit in prayer is very different from the spirit in singing, and our enjoyment much less. Why? Do we not answer correctly, when wo say that the hymns bring more truth to tain the laws enacted by our representatives. Let the honors showered on Mayor CONRAD ception?

And hence there is more appreciation Now to pray, we must have this apprecia-tion of truth—feel it in its power and in its excitement, and then, in the utterance of words, we will impart our spirit to others. To possess a spirit of continuous, protracted Practical Working of the Sunday Law.

There are but few persons, who will not admit that the efforts, thus far, under the administration of Mayor Conrad to execute the law prohibiting the sale of intoxicating drinks on the Sabbath, have been aftended with most beneficial results. It should be borne in mind that the Mayor has done nothing more than to execute an existing law, which has for many years been on the statute book, who should have seen that it was promptly if such there are -who complain that the Sunday Law is oppressive, should not find fault with Mayor Conrad because he does his duty repeal. FARM IMPLEMENTS.

A volume recently from the press of Harper & Brothers, upon farm implements and the principles of their construction and use, contains a large amount of practical information, which ought to be in the possession of every cultivator of the soil. It is very evident that, at the present time, no farm, even of moderate size, can be well furnished without a large number of labor-saving machines and implements. It is almost as impossible them. Care and kindness is the principal for simple labor in our factories to contend thing: I have broke several, and always had against the thousand improvements of man good luck and but little trouble. BREAKING COLTS.

Messrs. Editors:-I read an inquiry of H. N. C. in the April number of your Cultivator. He wants a few hints on the subject of breaking colts.

In breaking a colt we should never attempt too much at a time. I first break it to lead: then put on gears and lead it till it becomes accustomed to them; then hitch it to a sled. (I think a sled much better than a wagon.) It is best to have three horses and to work it some time to the empty sled. Teach it to walk in the gears at first, and it will learn to pull by degrees. We should always treat a continuith kindness, not severity, and try to make them think that we do not want to hurt St. Clairsville.

SUMMER DRESSES IN NEW YORK.

When the dog star rages, fashion is most merciful; and so be it her subjects adopt linen and straw, she concerns herself little for shape and model. Taste in dress during summer is most excellently displayed, and its want, wherever existing, most lamentably displayed —from the delicate cambric dress, crowned riage was agreed upon, between the favored with a blushing rose at the top of the boddice son of a farmer of no inconsiderable influence, to the heavy silk which kills the little flies its rustling attracts-from the white suit of the gentleman of discretion, to the black coat and satin waistcoat of your demented citizen .material of the sexes. From Independence day, to the first whisper of autumn, no lady is illy dressed who has a white dress, and the simpler made—the more free from flounces, and the lighter the working of the sleeves or the adorning of the laces the better. If she crowns herself with a shapely Leghorn—whose light ribbon and delicate mingling of slight flowers combine to enhance its native richness of look—she is unexceptionable. Gentlemen exhaust their ingenuity in studs and wrist buttons-for in coats and vests and trouses there is little choice while the sun is hot. Some torture their feet in boots; but your knowing blade has a funcy stocking and a pump. Some stick to the black hat; but your comfortable fellow takes delight in a heat-repelling Panama. And your mirr of true taste is detected by his redundancy of linen, his wealth of frill, his unfettered turn of collar, his spotless descent of drilling from hips to ancles, and his slow cool step through the dusty streets, as he angles here and there for a bit of shade. SPAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Paris correspondent of the Cincinnati Gazette writes-what indeed was foreseen as the inevitable result of his negotiation-that Mr. Soule has no longer any hopes of an amiconclusions from Mr. Soule himself, and that they are, therefore, worthy of entire confidence. These facts and conclusions are to would be.

The company was now arranged into a come convinced that their minds were made that their minds were made in advance as to what line of conduct they up in advance as to what line of conduct they intended to pursue. No turn which he could give to the negotiations has succeeded in changing the uniformity of their replies, or the obstinacy with which they seem determined to cling to a settled line of policy. This conduct on their part is based on two hypotheses which possess their entire confidence-one of which is, that England and France will lend their assistance in case of emergency, while the other is, that the de-mands of the Government of the United States are more demagogical threats made to subserve political ends, and not based on the true sentiment of the people of the United States. No treaty has been concluded between France, England and Spain, on the subject: but conferences have been held, from which Spain has gathered sufficient assurances to give her confidence in their ultimate support in case of war. The only question Spain believes divides the parties is the question of Slavery in Cuba, and upon this question, when it comes to the point, she will give in to her allies, so as to secure their support.

A man, take him all in all

We ne'er shall look upon his like again. And Whereas, his brothers of Grotte Lodge, No. 69, I. O. of O. F., wish to pass a ribute to his memory, not so much because it is customary, but because the many sterling qualities of the deceased call for some special notice at their hands.

Therefore, Resolved, That we, while bowing with submission to the will of Him who doeth all things well, and whose purposes are often past finding out, deplore the loss of a worthy Brother, a true Odd Fellaw, and an exemplary man, and that we offer our sympathies to his widow and family in this their hour of affliction. Resolved. That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the widow of our deceased Bro. Signed by the officers of the Lodge.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the Salem and Bridgeton papers for publication.

The machinery on the ground, for the purpose of working the mines, is said to be of a very superior kind.

The Homestead Bill, it is now thought, will be defeated in the Senate, as many Senators, originally friendly to the measure have changed front upon the feature extending the provisions of the bill over aliens, and will not only vote against it, but use every other effort to defeat its final passage. Some wish it to pass in order to place the responsibility on the President, it being understood that he would sign the bill notwithstanding his veto of Miss Dix's Insone Land bill, involving the same principle. But the prevailing sentiment is hostility to the entire measure as it is presented.

As a Leader he was very much beloved by all his members. As a citizen he was much respected and highly esteemed by all who knew him. His sickness though of but short duration was nevertheless severe, all of which he bore with uncommon Christian resignation. The evening on which he was taken, he lay in the cabin of his vessel which with a number of others lay anchored at the mouth of Nantuxet Creek .-His illness was soon made known to all who were near, to whom he said "I have done my last oystering-I shall not live long, but bless threads of iron. When this line is completed. God, the best of all is, I am prepared to die." Brother Lore was a strong advocate for the doctrine which tenches a knowledge of salvation by faith, and while in health had frequently expressed a strong desire when he was about leaving the world to shout aloud the praises of God. His desire was granted him. While conversing with some of his brethren and friends in the cabin of his vessel he appeared to be filled unutterably full of glory and of God, which enabled him to break forth in exclamations of joy. He was conveyed homeward in a short time and reaching no fear whatever, but appearing to be unspeakably happy. A Physician was immedi-
