You told me once my smile had power To chase your cares away, To shed on misery's darkest hour The cheering gleam of day; That I was all your life, your light, That, absent from my view, You drooped as flowers at fall of night, And I believed it true.

You told me once my accents fell Like music on your ear, That you were bound as by a spell, If I were only near; That every purpose of your heart From me its being drew. From me it never could depart, And I believed it true.

You told me once, what memory loves With fond regret to trace While o'er past scenes it wildly roves Which time will ne'er efface; Just naught repining thoughts avail, And vainly now I rue That you e'er told a flattering tale

And I believe it true. THE PRINTER'S LOVE.

We love to see the blooming rose, In all its beauty dressed; We love to hear our friends disclose The emotions of the breast.

We love to see the ship arrive Well laden to our shore; We love to see our neighbors thrive. And love to bless the poor.

We love to see domestic life With uninterrupted joys; We love to see a happy wife. With lots of girls and boys:

We love all these-yet far above All that we ever said, We love, what every printer loves, To have subscriptions paid.

From the New York Organ. DO YOU LOOK INTO YOUR KITCHEN?

This is a homely and blunt question, which we desire to address to parents. Our object in asking it is not so much to stimulate to be read with pleasure and, profit by after inquiry as to the expenditure going on in generations. The student and Philosopher that department, though this also is worth makes his mark in the heavens above, in the considering, for many a man finds his finances embarrassed because his wife forgets to look into her kitchen, or thinks it beneath her dignity as a fine lady to give any attention to the management of her servants, or to the waste which takes place under them. But our question has a higher purpose.-

Do you know, O parent, that the kitchen is often an educational establishment, where the children are most effectively taught the morals and inspired with sentiments which cling paper, that a father noticing that his young daughter preferred breakfasting, not with him but with the maid in the kitchen, had his suspicions aroused, and upon inquiry found that the maid had been filling his child's mind with visions of licentious life in New York, and had actually arranged for their flight in a day or two afterwards.

This perhaps is a strong and not ordinary case. Few may go so far, or venture such coarse and crimical suggestions. But is there no danger in exposing a pure hearted young child to the intimate communion of a domestic, whose ignorance and vicious dispo-sition may infect the child by degrees, till it following from the St. Louis Republican, is is ripe for mischief and wrong doing? In one:most instances, probably, the parents know but little of the real character of their domestics. They may be foreigners, trained in vulgar, low, and corrupt ideas; till there is nothing shocking in vice to their minds; and tile influence they exert on children's hearts, especially when they gain the affections of he young creatures, will gradually mould children are more anxious, when engaging upon which were some slices of bread, from plow, which he should know the there they can wish, or the hearthstone, and other little delicacies for opening out surface drains through a week of well, than to ascertain whether servants, to know whether they can wash, or the hearthstone, and othe iron, or cook well, than to accertain whether her erring husband. they are pure minded, well bred, sound prin-

"Every man who comes into the world makes some mark upon it., Yes, every man makes his mark! and a "sorry" mark it is that many makes! Look at that young man whose early youth and helpless years were guarded with the tenderest care, by the angel hand of an affectionate mother and the kind care of an indulgent father! See him wend his way onward-regardless of virtue's call, and ambitious of vice's applause. See him rush like a heedless, mindless enthusiast, into dissipation, prodigality and crime, He is making his mark. Ah! what a mark. Trace its dark outlines in the haggard brow and furrowed cheek of his parents. He has written care upon their features, premature old age upon their locks, and sorrow upon their heart. He has marked out their path of life among thorns and their grave among the early dead. And upon himself—what a mark—perhaps of the drunkards age; it may be of He has made upon himself a mark which can never be erased. Look at that young lady, sporting and flir-ting like the butterfly, in the bright sunlight of gaity and fashion. The rose is on her cheek, the diamond in her eyes, music in her voice and gladness in her heart. She sparkles in the merry crowd, blazes in the hall of revelry, chases with airy fleetness the minbow-bubble pleasure, casts piercing glances indiscriminately around her upon scores of luckless admirers, and flatters herself that she is making her mark—And she is. She is making a line of livid palor upon that glowing cheek; she is marking a path for burning tears from those now sparkling eyes. She is mark-ing out an abode for that cankering, fell destrover consumption within that throbbing breast. The good man marks his way with smiles. Light and joy attend it in its various course. The Statesman makes his mark upon the records of his country, and it glows in letters of living light earth beneath, and on the indestructable tablet of human intellect. WOMAN'S LOVE. A SCENE FROM REAL LIFE.

There is many a life scene more touching, more worthy of immortality than the deeds

We saw last evening an apt illustration of the affection of a woman. A poor inebriated wretch had been taken to the calaboose. His conduct in the street and after he had been taken to the cell was of such a violent character that it became necessary to handcuff him.

The demon rum had possession of his soul,

PLOWING.

Sir, you don't know how to plow. "What! do you mean I don't know how to plow, that have been, man and boy, fifty ears following the plow?"

Yes, sir. 1 mean you I do not dispute the length of time you have followed the plow but you have never got up to it yet. don't know how to plow?"

"Sir, do you mean to insult me?"
Not at all, I only meant to assure you of

This is a specimen of a conversation with an old farmer, not a great way from N. York, who felt insulted because we told him that he did not know how to plow. Let us see if he did. He was at work upon a piece of ground that might be termed sandy loam, though it was once a clayey loam, but nearly all the clay had been washed out of it, because it never had been plowed more than four or five upon a sub-soil of almost pure clay, into which a sub-soil plow had never entered. which was never turned up by the common plaw, because the owner said that would small the land.

"I guess I know, for I have tried it; and would'nt give a cent for your new fangled And yet he felt insulted when told that he did not know how to plow.

"There seems to be a general impression that everybody knows how to plow; that even the farmer's boy, or anybody's boy, as soon their action becomes more regular and unias his head gets above the plow-handles, in- form, and more directly available for the purstinctively understands the business perfectly. Now I hazard the assertion that not one farmer or farm-laborer in ten knows how, properly, to perform this operation."

Certainly if he only plows four inches when up and down, he does not know how to plow:

"What crooked, long rows or short rows? How a field would look! Let it look. You had better look at your soil in the field than in some brook or river, floating down to the sea. "Why such furrows would look like drunken men's paths.

Let them look, so that they are not. I you know how to plow, you won't get drunk, nor plow your land on purpose to wash away, because some old granny tells you that you must plow straight. Making crooked furrows three feet apart.

If you know how to plow, you never will plow clay land in a wet time, or when it is baked so that it will turn up in lumps as hard

No good plowman ever plows his head lands while turning the team. That is work to be done after the other part is finished. "When I see a farmer constantly riding upon his plow-handles, that it may not go too deep, or lifting and pressing forward, to force it into the ground, or running it upon the wing, or land side, to govern the width of his furrow, I am led to think he does not understand regulating the draft."

If such a man knows how to plow, he don't know what a good plow is or he would get one. If a man plows a loose, friable soil in the fall, or if he does not plow a stiff clay so as the other will disintegrate and become friable.

rejoice in my citizenship and am proud of my In the cultivation of the soil, the most important inquiry is, its relation to water. It country. If I need still further to vindicate is waste both of time and money to attempt myself. I may narrate the circumstance of improvement on wet lands until they are drained. I am aware that draining is not generally recognized as an indispensable auxliary to successful cultivation, but it is never- father, TONY WELE, when he was quite theless a fact that soils, even of a dry nature, will support a more luxurious vegetation after being undermined with drains, than they did before. The reason is simply this: All soils have their respective absorbing properties, and if the surplus which is not retained by absorption, is not carried off by drains, it becomes injurious. Air is admitted, the soil is rendered more porous, water percolates freely into it, the air holds moisture in suspension, and when the surface supply fails, this suspended moisture is again brought up by capillary attraction, a principle in cultivation which is not generally known.

But by fur the best preventive of the evil effects of severe drouth, is deep cultivation. Loosen the soil, no matter how deep, so that the best soil is kept on the surface.-Trenching is undoubtedly the most thorough process of deepening soil. The advantages derived from it are various. The absorbing capabilities of the earth are increased, and a large supply of moisture is thus retained.— The roots of plants can extend into a medium where they are exempt from the extremes of drouth and heat, and obtain a more regular supply of nourishment, being neither so likely to suffer in wet, or be burned up in dry weather; as in the former case the surplus passes freely down, and in the latter is drawn up by inherited the same propensity, and was (by capillarry attraction, more especially where a inches deep in the world, and was bedded judicious system of surface stirring is persevered in, preventing rapid surface evapora- ly "nicknamed arter my dad."

> In addition to the supply of moisture thus cooured, transhing, when properly performed transposes and disintegrates the soil. The surface that has been exhausted by continual cropping, is replaced by a portion of sub-soil, enriched with the nutritive matters that have Amen. naturally sunk and been washed down with rains from the surface, and carried beyond the reach of roots; the manures, applied are more freely incorporated with the soil, and poses of vegetable growth.

Artificial waterings are often misapplied; for instance, it is no uncommon occurrence to see a small basin formed round the stem of a large tree, into which a few gallons of water in. Before the rain fell, there were no mud he might plow fourteen, he does not know are poured daily. This is all but useless, how to plow. If he plows all his hill-sides since the absorbing and feeding points of roots form a circle at a considerable distance for every furrow should be drawn absolutely from the stein, consequently this water cannot reach them. Newly planted trees are/also frequently killed through kindness in this respect. A tree with mutilated roots and scanty growth of leaves, requires very little water. Mulching over the roots with a cov-cring of tan bark, manure, &c., is a more water, which cools the soil and retards growth.

Soil that is properly ereated, deeply trenched, and judiciously manured, will support a luxuriant growth, no matter how long a dry spell we may have, more especially if the surface is kept loose and open, to prevent in some is not crooked plowing; that is, in and out degree, evaporation of moisture, and radia-sometimes three furrows in one and sometimes tion of heat. Your respectful friend

It is the simplest thing in the world to lead happy life, if one will only set about it in he right way. Passion and selfishness are the two great foes to human happiness. Good will light up the soul with joys which no exhose whom we esteem; yet it is far more deightful to impart, to create happiness in the posoms of those who, but for us, would have been desolate and wretched.

Everybody loves to be happy. Everybody can easily find out why the happy are happy. And yet how large a proportion of our fellow men are miserable all their lives, simply be-immigrants, without witnessing some exhibi-tion of brutality towards them. The Tribune says, on the Hudson river on the forward mingled indecency, constraint, exposure to disease and positive agony, which might well make a murderer blush for his relationship to mankind. There, shut off, by a relentless grating from all shelter, hospitality or intercourse except with each other, is huddled together some scores or hundreds of poor immigrants bound for the rich but distant prairies of the West. Most of these are natives of Europe, perhaps just landed on our shores— possibly that day released from shipboard and having scarcely set foot on the soil of the New World—but there are often intermin-gled natives, flying from the inexorable pov-erty and unremitted toil to which the por-tionless and simple among crowded populations are too generally subjected. They have little money and many children, and they take the cheapest conveyance proffered them, being assured that it is nevertheless decent, comfortable, and not unwholesome. Miserable forward. Then the stern reality first breaks upon their bewildered vision, the hard and by no means cleanly plank of the deck are their lodgings, and the open sky is their only covering. But this is not all. Scores after scores of fresh emigrants, recking with the miasma of long confinement in the steerage during an ocean passage, are pitched upon them until the naked plank which they at stretch their weary limbs on the clammy deck, but there is not room for all even to sit down, and the men must take turns in standing up through the night. For the women space is generally made, so that they can sit down and lean their children against them, on this side cepted upon mother and babe, sire and son; and when the thunder storms and rain squalls come on they have no resource but to huddle would permit a cargo of his human chattels to thing of decency—as is regularly evinced in the transportation of free white emigrants (many of them American born,) from New York to Albany, and believes it far below the truth to estimate that three thousand human lives are annually sacrificed through the ravages of diarrhoea, dysentery, cholera, rheumatism and fevers, in consequence of this

AGRICULTURAL FAIRS.

As one of the means of advancing the in terests of the Agricultural population, Fairs or Exhibitions of the productions of farm labor, have become one of the most popular in our country. The farming community, in a manner isolated and separated from the busy haunts of the bustling, busy part of the world, would seem to require some extra occasion to bring them out from their retirement, induce them to congregate together, become acquainted with each other's productions and manner of farming, to add, by mutual association to the importance and influence of their occupation, and stimulate each other in their labors, by exciting a healthful and praiseworthy emulation to excel; these objects have been promoted in many places, by the establishment of Agricultural Societies and by holding Agricultural Exhibitions or Fairs. So successful, in fact, have these means been found, in promoting the interest of the farmer, and so popular are they with the public, that they are becoming necessary to the credit and character of any farming community; at this season of the year, they are being held in very many of our States. There seems to be a unanimous testimony in their favor, and wherever established, in these days, when science and book farming is encouraged, and no longer looked on with distrust and jealousy they have been sustained, and have been followed by a happy influence.

We, are about to enter upon our first at tempt, and as much depends, in most enterprises, on the manner the first movements are made, and the spirit in which the first effort is entered upon, the farming community ought to be specially interested in the Exhibition of next week. There are several reasons why we cannot expect to do as well as we could wire or as wen as our neighboring counties, who have been for some years holding such Exhibitions. In the first place, we are not sufficiently acquainted with the little details of arrangement and preparation, to enable us to prepare to display to the best advantage, what we may have to exhibit. Then, again, our farmers, at first, will be a little fearful of bringing forward their Stock and other productions, for fear that they may not, by others be considered worthy of distinction, and then, the fear of a failure, and a sort of impression that our show will be, after all, a sorry affair: will, we fear, deter some from contributing what they might, to make it interesting.

The long continued dry weather, by shortening the crops and injuring the pasturage, will of necessity, prevent farmers from doing as well as they otherwise would have done; this however, should not prevent them from doing what they can; other places have had their difficulties to encounter and as we judge of things by comparison with others of the same kind; we, while we cannot boast of extraordinary productions, may venture to place them in contrast with those of our neighbors | Samuel Spence who have been subjected to the same disad- John Preston

Democratic Convention.

The Democrats of the first District held their Convention for nominating a candidate for Congress, at the Court House on Thursday. The Convention was well attended .-Doct. Sickler of Carpenter's Landing was chosen chairman and Mr. Thompson, Esq., of Swedesboro, Secretary. By a resolution, the Baltimore platform was adopted; an effort was made to pass resolutions making it necessary for the candidates to purge themselves of all connexion, past, present, or to come, with the Know Nothings, and as one of the prominent candidates was not present, and could not answer for himself, the result of the resolution would have been to deprive him of a chance for the nomination; a some what excited debate was got up and the resolution defeated. The ballotting then commenced and the scene became highly exciting,on the first ballotting, Mr. Garrett, of Camden lead off, closely followed by Mr. Mulford, late of Camden; now of Salem. On the third ballott Mr. Garrett had reached thirty-nine. within two votes of a majority. Mr. Mulford having thirty-six,-four from Cape May divided between Messrs. Godfrey and Marcy on the fourth ballot all the counties but Cape May voted as before. Cape May was the last to vote and much interest was excited to hear her vote, as it was known that she had the power to decide the contest,-it proved four for Mulford; and one refusing to vote!this gave Mr. Mulford 40 votes to Mr. Gar-

Mr. Mulford was declared the nominee of the party. He was introduced and in a very neat manner expressed his thanks for the bonor conferred upon him, and pledged himself to the principles of the party.

Gen. Wright, of Hudson, was then introduced, made a very good party speech, told a few good anecdotes in pecullarly good style; and was greeted with hearty cheers by the audience. Mr. McNair, of the True American, was called upon; he said he had not time to make a speech; but as a matter of interest and news he informed them, that if the demoerats of this district did their duty, New Jersey would send five instead of four Democratic At the Hotel of Isaac H. Russia's unconditional rejection of the proposals of the Four Powers, is confirmed. Immediately on the reception of the reply of the Czar to the proposals of the Four Powers, a Cabinet council was held at Vienna. The Austrian and Swe lish ministers were

The blowing up of the fortifications at Gus tawsvern by the Russians is confirmed. It is still doubtful whether the Black Sea expediton against Sebastopol or Anapa has started.

There is nothing new from Asia. Constantinople, Aug. 25.—The siege artillery belonging to the French army, have arrived. All the Turkish men of war on the coast of Asia, have been put in requisition for Varna. The Duke of Cambridge was at Ventilick, still indisposed. The Russians have captured another ves-is in disgrace. A large quantity of artillery had been embarked at Varna, and the troops there were actively preparing for some service.

A despatch from Varon, A.g., 21st notifies that the Britannia has sent all her men in transports to Galatz, and has been cleaned and fumigated. This is the vessel which has suffered so badly from cholera.

The cholera has abated in both armies. No new movement had taken place, except that the French were embarking fascines and

The Oest Duchen Post of the 29th ult. announces that it has rec ived a despatch stating that part of the Black Sea fleet had quitted the port of Varna, and that part of the combined ficet now staying at Baltschik, is intended to cruise near Odessa. Another version says, that it is their intention to blockade Odessa.

an consulat St. Petersburg not to deviate from the four points laid down in M. Drouyn de D'huy's note, nor to admit of any modification in the Russian answer.

A despatch from Vienna says that Russia rejects absolutely the required guarantee that the principalities should be evacuated, and Moniteur of Sunday confirms this despatch. It is said, in Vienna, that the Emperor added that he would rather sacrifice the last soldier than accept such conditions.

Vienna, Sept. 2.—Some people will have it that Demidoff has not brought any definite answer from St. Petersburg, but merely a private note from the Czar to the King of Prussia, wherein the four points are interpreted differently, and it is upon this reason that the Czar is willing to enter upon fresh negotiations.

Another despatch says that Baron Manteuf-fel has received the official answer of Russia to the proposals to commence negotiations upon the basis stipulated by the Western powers, and that Russia unequivocally declines to accept the propositions and will maintain the defensive. The last is probably

The Massacre at Fort Lamarie.—The report of the massacre at Fort Lamarie is confirmed. The painful fact of the destruction of the entire American party is certain. The chief of the Sioux received a mortal wound at the first discharge, and the Lieutenant fell dead by a volley from the Indians in return.
Upon the fall of their leader the troops became panic-stricken, and the Sioux tomahawked every man but one, who effected his escape through the assistance of one of the hostile savages. The Indians refused to allow the dead bedies to be buried. Subsequently they attacked the depot of the American Fur Company, and destroyed nearly fifty thous-and dollars worth of goods. The report that the Sioux had surrounded the fort is not con-firmed, but the hostility of the Indiaus had carried great alarm.

Flour and Bread .- Flour has declined a dollar a barrel, so the papers say, but the loaves of bread are as small as ever. Perhaps as the Tribune suggests, it has only declined to the speculator and not to the consumer?— At present prices in Liverpool flour cannot shortened, but with good economy and by the old corn in store, the year will be goue through without much trouble, and that cannot keep up the price of flour. Potatoes are likely to be a light crop in all the Atlantic States, but will bear a shipment from Wisconsin at present rates. Besides, the late rains have made a great many late fields start afresh, and we may hope for much better yields than were expected during the drouth.

PERHAM'S 100,000 GIFTS. Holders in Perham's 3d Gift Enterprize, IN MASS MEETING HELD AT

Academy Hall. 663 Broadway, New York, On Thursday Evening, July 27th, 1854.

At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by Dr. Hall, when B. S. Adams, Esq., was nominated and unanimously elected Chairman, and Robert Beatty, Jr., Esq., appointed Scoretary.

The first business in order being the selection of a Committee of five persons to receive and dispose of the Gift Property, it was on motion Resolved, that we now proceed to the nomination and

The election being gone into, resulted in the choice of the following named gentlemen:—Robert Beatty, Jr., J. Lathrop, Ira Buckman, Jr., B. S. Adams, H. P. Barker.

Justice Lathrop offered the following Resolution: Resolved-That the committee have power to fill vacancies, from a neglect to serve or to fulfil the requirements of a member. - Carried. The Secretary then read the following: Resolved—That the Committee be authorized to receive from Mr. Perham the Gift Property, or take from him bonds for its delivery as called for, and hold the same in trust for the Shareholders-On inquiry, it was ascertained that Mr. Perham had sold about 46,000 out of the 100,000 Gift Tic-

Resolved—That in order to close the enterprise at the earliest possible moment, this meeting re-commends all persons now holding Share Tickets, to use their influence in obtaining subscriptions and advance the interest of the whole body. On motion, adjourned.

On motion, adjourned.

Mest.

B. S. ADAMS, Chairman.

ROBERT BEATTY, Jr. Secretary. MR. PERHAM'S CARD.

Accompanying, you have submitted the official proceedings of the Share Holders in Mass Meeting, convened on the evening of the 27th inst., for the purpose of selecting a Committee, and taking into consideration other matters affecting the interests of all ticket holders in my Third Gift Enterprise. It will be seen that a committee have been appointed, and instructions given them as to the course to be pursued up to a certain stage of progression in the enterprise. For the information of absent share holders, I here beg leave to state, that the number of tickets sold up to the present time is about 46,000. From this you will perceive that so soon as 34,000 more are sold, they will advise the whole body of share holders of the fact and ask of them, in general meeting assembled for the purpose, instructions as to the final disposition of the Gift property, with which they are entrusted. That these 34,000 tickets may be sold in the that these os, oo takes may be to the therest possible time, the undersigned makes the following propositions, unequalled for liberality:

Each person who gets up a club of ten subscribers, and forwards (10) ten dollars to this office, will receive by return mail or other conveyances, eleven tickets... Each person who sends (at one time) one hundred dollars, will have sent in like manner, one hundred and fifteen tickets.

Each person who shall send (at one time) five hundred dollars, will have sent in like manner, six hundred tickets. And for all larger sums in exact proportion. It is thus, ladies and gentlemen, that I hope to secure your hearty co-operation in bringing this enterprise to a speedy, and I hope to all, a satisfactory termination.

With great considerations of respect. I remain yours, obediently, 854. J. PERHAM. July 28th, 1854.

100.000 TICKETS ONLY AT 1,00 EACH WILD BE SOLD.

All orders for Tickets by Mail, should be addressed to Josiah Perham, Academy Hall, 866 when the order is received, the money will be returned at our expense for postage. Correspondents will please write distinctly their names, residences, County and State, to prevent errors. Or, if convenient, enclose an envelope with their direc-tions on it in full—in which such tickets as they may will order be returned.

Brewster's Cholera Mixture.

N a great majority of cases the cholera is pre-ceeded by Diarrhoea or looseness of of the bowels; which being neglected under the false but too common opinion, that it will work its own cure by a little abstinence, has resulted fatally in numerous cases.

Thousands of persons in New Jersey and throughout the United States have borne testimony to the efficacy of Brewster's Cholera Mixture as a remedy for Diarrhoea, Bowel complaints and Cholera Morbus, the premonitory symptoms of Asiatic Cholera. The proprietor is constantly receiving testimonials of cures performed by this mixture. During the last eight years it has been very extensively used, nearly two thousand bottles have been sold within a month past, we have no hesitation therefore in recommending it as a safe and effectual remedy if administered in the early stages of the disease, according to the directions on the bottle, every family and vessel, as well as travellers should have a bottle of it, to be ready for sudden attacks.
