CARRIER'S ADDRESS Of the West Jersey Pioneer, 1855.

By custom's law, on New Years Day, The News Boy starts upon his way, To greet his patrons. Weekly, throughout the bye gone year, He's brought to you the PIONEER, And now claims your attention, Through all the varied change of weather, Be it hot or cold, wet or dry either, He, promptly at his post is found, Bringing to you, the record of the times Doings of Nations in the various climes. And all the wonders of the world around. Spring, Summer, Autumn, dreary Winter

Have run their course, now to commence

With varied scenes of sorrow and of joy. (On earth there is no good without alloy.) A retrospective view, of the past year, Would be a task too great for me I fear: Our Cities, towns, and villages, Like blocks of marble turned to images, Have wondrous changes made; Our country in its growth, the world's aston-

And too ambitious grown, to be admonished, It yearns for more possessions. Cuba it covets; it, it cant secure, Then turns to St. Domingo quite demure; The Sandwich Islands, it would now annex, And thus our Old World neighbors vex. Like a young lad, whose growth outreaches, In length, the size of coat and breeches, Its in a pickle, with means too little, To carry out its schemes of mad ambition, And keep itself in comfortable condition. Spite of the gold in California found, And teeming products of the well tilled

A fearful pressure weighs upon the trade, And business men, of almost every grade. The Ladies, with their thousand dollar shawls, Have driven their liege lords to the walls. To cover up their gambling losses, And to support their trotting horses, Men have recourse to over issues; And of their stations, make bad uses. All useful lessons are hard to learn, But when we all our fingers burn, We, to our senses should return, And by economy, we may regain Our strength, and then we may again Resume our business with success, And with prosperity our country bless. Old politicians are all in trouble. At the appearance of a bubble. Which played the mischief at the polls, And piled up tickets, rolls on rolls. With Know nothings, and temperance tickets,

The Whigs and Demo's, get the rickets, And tremble in their shoes. Just give them what they ask and sack them, That's the best way to take, to match them; And then reorganize your forces, And if you can, return to honest courses. Would we could close, with troubles light as

But we've recorded death, by land and seas, Which, in the eventful year that's gone, Has caused sad grief, and made stout hearts

The dreaded Cholera with its mighty power, Has made the timed, and the stoutest hearts

Malignant fever, with pestilential breath, Visited the South, with misery and death. But why brood o'er the evils of the season, When we so many blessings have received from heaven.

Our country with its ills, has still enjoyed Blessings innumerable, and employed By Providence, an instrument in his hands, Has sent the Gospel into distant lands; And overruled by God, for his own good, A Beacon, to the admiring world has stood. If we would prize our lot, and wisdom learn; Let's for a while, our eyes to Europe turn. There, war and bloodshed, death and horrid

And deeds of desperation, fearful rage. How blessed the country, where the people

And where the man, is not the abject tool

Of despots, to be slaughtered at his will, Or as a slave, his purposes fulfil. We gladly turn, from the sad contemplation For the true principles which rule our nation. Let other nations, joined in deadly strife.

To heed the advice of our great Washington: In others quarrels, then we've nought to fear Let Czar, and Emperor, Queen and all, Contend and fight, about Schastopol, We'll bid our fillibustering hotspurs, cease

Their officious meddling, to disturb our peace And now, kind patrons, ere I take my leave, Allow me, my best wishes, you to give, May heaven's choice blessings rest upon your head,

And you, in raths of peace and happiness be

May health and pleasure, and domestic bliss, Be yours, that you may troublos cares dismiss. May worldly gain, reward your daily toil, That you, the attacks of poverty may foil. May you, when carried through the coming

Look back, without occasion for a tear, Assured the talent that to you was lent, Has not been buried, and not been misspent. But that, in acts of kindness and of love, You've paved the way for blessings from above We take our leave,-yet for a moment stay, That you may hand us, our accustomed pay, What ere you give, to receive, we're willing, But would respectfully suggest a shilling.

> > DY E. A. STEWART

O, do not ask me why I weep, Or why in sorrow I repine; I cannot hush my wees to sleep, There is no balm for grief like mine; My heart's bereft of happiness, And sorrow o'er its own distress.

O, do not ask me for the song. Which promised years of future bliss, And while it swelled upon my tongue, Lulled care into forgetfulness; Such joyous seasons once were mine, But now I bow at misery's shrine.

But soon all anguish may be o'er, And sorrow will be felt no more; Yes! when the solemn bell shall toll, And tell the departure of a soul, O, then how sweet my sleep will be, Beneath some lone and shady tree:

The year 1854 will be memorable in his tory. The ravages of fatal disease, great calamities by land and sea, the tragic scenes of horrid strife that have covered the plains of Eastern Europe with human blood, the revolution in China, and the flight of the Angel above all these turmoils, with the everlusting gospel, for all the families of the earth, mark the present as the day of preparation for great events in the future.

TEMPERANCE.

From the Michigan Temperance Advocate. THE SOLDIER'S VOW

One beautiful Indian summer day, in the autumn of 1844, a stranger appeared in the streets of Hanover, N. H., whose garb bespoke the utmost poverty and destitution .-As he staggered along, he was surrounded by a crowd of village boys, who amused themselves by insulting him with coarse jests and with exemplary patience, and begged them to wait till he felt a little better, and he would sing them a fine song. His voice was thick with unnatural excess, and he was too weak to protect himself from the rude jostling of the crowd; yet he smiled on his tormentors, and exhibited no other sense of his helpless and forlorn condition than of a look of grief and shame, which despite his efforts and smiles, would occasionally overspread his countenance. Cape May C. H. Dec. 26, 1854. From the New Brunswick Times. Opening of the Millstone Railroad.

Wednesday was the day appointed for the formal opening for regular business, of the New-Brunswick and Millstone Railroad. The road is about 8 1-4 miles in length. It passes on the New Jersey Railroad to a distance of one and three-quarter miles from this city; then diverges towards the west, passing thro present terminates at Johnsonville, a small collection of houses situated near the banks of the Delaware and Raritan Caual, and about reach the Cumberland line. The cost then 79 rods south-east of Millstone. Every one who had any deal-Stockholders, the contractors, those who furnished the wood, iron, &c., the farmers on the rooute, even the laborers spoke of Mr. Smith in the highest terms, lauding his courtesy, kindness, promptitude energy and busifor the superior manner in which he had performed the work under his direction. At present the rolling stock locomotives, passeners and freight cars, &c., on the road is leased from the N. J. R. R. Co.

According to notice, a train was in readiness at the Now-Brunswick Depot at an early hour in the morning, and those who had an inclination that way were treated to a ride to visitors at Cape Island, pass down and up, by Jacksonville. Jackson P. Jackson, Esq , Mr. Congar, editor of the Mercury and others, beside various notables from portions of the State. The cars were "rammed, erammed, and jamed," and upon motion, proceeded at a fair rate of speed towards Johnsonville, affording the excursionists sufficient leisure to examine the country, if so be the frosty panes of glass allowed of such sight-seeing. However, the really fine land did not show very remarkably, on account of the snow on the surface of the ground, and the general severity of the weather.

Soon the train halted at the terminus, and the hungry crowd, moved rapidly toward the Johnsville Hotel, kept by said Wortman .-Almost every room contained signs of the promised Lunch; and the five hundred masculines proceeded to discuss such estables as turkeys, oysters, chickens, ham, beef, bread, butter, crackers, and other "sich like."— Cider was also provided, and some of the pitchers smelt beery; while the bar did a thriving business—the latter by the way at pumpkin pies, they were first rate; at least so thought we, from the specimen that tickled our palate. So much were we impressed with the excellence of this edible, that we made strict search for more-we "sought but never found." However, in our enquiries we ascertained that a party of five had prospected seven of these superior pumpkin pies, and in an incredible space of time, 'presto change' nothing but bare dishes were visible. Although there was much jostling at first, we believe that nearly all obtained a sufficiency

After the Lunch had been disposed of I. R. According to the Census Report, the area of the United States and Territories, is 2,-936,165 square mucs. The area of the State of New York is 47,000 miles. The Nebraska Territory is large enough to cut up into seven States of the size of New York, and leave a surplus of territory large enough for a State he size of Connecticut. Kansas Territory has an area sufficient to make two States of the size of Ohio and one of the size of Indiana. Texas will make four States of the size of Alabama, and one of the size of Indianaand California has a sufficient area to convert into sixteen States of the size of New Hampshire, and have a surplus to make one about the size of Massachusetts.

PLEASE GIVE ATTENTION.

We are compelled, occasionally, to remine our friends, that we need money. The great advance in paper and we may say, all the requisites to a comfortable living, make it necessary that our business be as much Cash, as possible. The Paper Mill, the Storekeeper and the Laborer, all require the cash when due, and to enable us to meet their demands, we must needs have our pay when due. The extreme low price of the PIONEER. $1 peryear in advance, should be an inducement to punctuality, and without which we cannot realize the $1 per year. If we employ a collector, it takes off at least 12 per cent. and one job of his planting; but may not the if not paid within the year, 6 per cent. more greater certainty of raising a larger yield from and we are left with $2 cents, which will very | a portion of his ground, more than compenlittle more than pay for the white paper, at

The present number of the Pioneer is 357 and we will receive it as a favor, if all who feel indebted to us for the Pioneer, Job Work or Advertising, will give us the amount at as carly a period as possible.

The increase in our business makes it the more necessary, as we are required to invest whether electric psychology was a science or ularly if it should be followed by the accessmore capital and require more cash.

Dunning is not pleasant to us; yet, when we are pretty sharply dunned, a little of the influence must pass to our neighbors and fore his audience, evidences of power of some lisfactory to the allies, we think not improbafriends. This usually relieves us.

The State Legislature.

Our Legislature will commence its annual session on Tuesday next; their is work enough prepared for their action, to keep them busy bitions, unable to account for the power which that Austria would still hold off from the as long as they will want to remain in Trenton for the pay they receive The few offices to be filled at the organization of the two houses; will call together, besides the members, the various candidates with such of their friends as have interest or feeling enough to induce them to attend; and we anticipate rather an exciting time. We presume that it. One thing however is pretty certain, and men and the allies supplying them with what with all the drilling, management and influence of parties, accommodating themselves to the views of the outsiders who either held themselves independent of old party ties, or permit them to keep but a loose hold of them, will hardly enable the candidates to make any very reliable calculations on the result of the vote in the different houses. We have no special interest in the success or the defeat of any of the aspirants, and don't suppose that it will be very material to the people at large who amongst them is successful.

Some queer changes have come over the faces of many of our brethren of the press of all the different parties, and if these changes have extended their influence, as it is probable they have to the members elect of the Senate and Assembly, we are at a loss to determine what will be their action. We have little doubt however, but they will pass in some form a prohibitory liquor law, and that they will renew the charters of well conducted banks which are about to expire—this is no time to reduce the means of pecuniary relief afforded to the business community, by redueing the banking capital of the State.

With respect to railroad charters, we suspect it will make but little difference whether they are passed or rejected, the manufacturers are not in a situation to furnish the rail on credit and we are under the impression numbers to furnish the means to pay for them; already chartered, completed, under existing circumstances, we shall do quite as much as

Good turnpikes can be built by the people immediately interested in them, if they will, and it will probably be better for the present to depend upon them, than wait for the completion of anticipated railroads.

Let us have a real good working legislature this winter, who will attend to the legitimate business before them without regard to party issues or the petty frauds got up by disappointed and restless mortals who are always sroaking and prophesying evil.

There is yet no important change in the position of the contending armics in the Crimea. Sebastopol yet holds out without any apparent signs of weakness, unless indeed the less frequent and less effective soiries, made since the battle of Inkerman, is an evidence of weakness. DIGNITY OF LABOR.

the ignoble purpose of being idle. If we canvass the aerial vault, the fathomless ocean or the ponderous earth, we find that activity and locomotion are the legitimate functions of all matter, connected with that mysterious power by corrupt systems of superiority, still reason tells us that the object of our living is to labor, and still more the object of our dying is to labor. Is indolence and sluggishness to be our eternal doom, then would that we might never leave this sin-cursed earth. Propitious heaven never decreed that labor should be ostracized from our abode wherever we may exist. Show me a pair of hands and a head entirely free from all exertion and employment and I will show you a person subject to the gratuitous advice of the Devil. It is said that all work and no play makes Jack a dull boy; but common sense says, that all play and no work makes Jack an incorrigible vagabond, and a fit subject for the counsel halls of world has labored and toiled assiduously, and every person that lives in the present or future generations who expects to scale the Alps of excellence must fight in deadly combat with opposing forces and principles, or else he will never obtain his station high above the clouds of ignorance and supineness. Is education obtained to avoid labor, then t is no longer a blessing. The object of education is to learn to labor properly and systematically-to learn to act in unison with those heaven-devised principles which emanate from the throne of the Eternal, to fulfill the sublime obligations of immortal beingsto stand forth the living representatives of truth. Is wealth obtained to eschew labor, then wealth is a curse to its possessor. Its ter, on account of his other work, to make downfall of the place, by helping to consume object is to give fresh impetus to the advancing train laden with the hopes of eternityto aid in throwing the mountains of injustice into the valleys of degradation, thereby presenting to the gaze one vast plain of human brotherhood. Should one man spend a life in energetic manual labor but be a pigmy in intellect-should another be a mighty giant in intellect, but a dwarf in physical strength! The general news from California is not particularly important. A Russian privateer had arrived at San Francisco, having escaped from the allied fleet in the Pacific. The arrivals at San Francisco, from Atlantic ports were the ships Celestial and Stingaree, both from New York.

The United States frigate Columbia, with board, had arrived at Greytown; and the U. S. steamer Princeton, which was at Aspin- of Washington ought to fall: wall, was daily expected. There were three British men of war in the port of Greytown. Castillo had been captured on Lake Nicar-

A Russian vessel from Sitka the Kamschatka, arrived in this harbor on the Ista Not knowing where the allied fleet were, she kept in shore all the way down, and was not discovered by the pilot till she was nearly up to the North Head. Such an occurrence as the arrival of a Russian Merchantman was not thought of by the allies, and hence no watch was kept on vessels coming into port.

Älta Californian. Another Arrival from Golfornia .- Steamer Daniel Webster, from San Juan, arrived at New Orleans on the 30th.

LATER FROM HAVANA. The steamer Black Warrior, from New Orleans via Havana, J. D. Bullock has arrived, but there was nothing remarkably new .in Kayana.

One of the passengers by the Black Warrior reports having left Laguayra on the 8th of October-the sloop of war Albany was then in port; officers and crew all well. He thinks she was getting down the coast. The Black Warrior experienced very heavy weather on the passage home, and on the 20th encountered a very strong gale from the N. and W., which lasted 24 hours.

The War .- Desperate as the struggle has already been between Russia and the Allies, the melancholy conviction is forced upon one, on a careful reading of our fereign files, that the war can hardly be said to be begun in carnest. Russia is crowding her best soldiers -the Imperial Guard-into Poland, evidently determined to strike a heavy blow in that quarter, should the German states join France and England, or if not that, to show such ever realizing his dream of the reconstruction of Poland. Nor is this all. The Czar, in the event of Nesselrode's letter having no influence in bringing the struggle diplomatically, to a close, is said to have resolved on summoning to the field sixteen men out of every thousand, which he calculates will give him a million of troops-and these are to take the field as early as possible. On the other hand the Western Powers are not idle. Whole fleets are on the way to the Black Sea with fresh reinforcements, while at home, both in England and France, the respective Governments are straining every nerve to strengthen presently and prospectively, the forces already actively engaged in hostilities. We do not expect to learn that Schastopol has fallen, this winter. Besiegers and beseiged appear to be mutually wearied out with mutual slaughter, and resolved to paus awhile-but it is only a pause to regain fresh strength for renewed carnage.

Meanwhile the elements appear to be as hostile to the Allies, in the Crimea, as the soldiers of the Czar. It was but the other day that a gallant fleet in the Biack Sea were dispersed by the winds and the waves there, depriving the army of fresh provisions, clothing and other necessaries, at one of the most critical conjunctures of the war, -and now we are advised that a series of recent heavy rains have so turned all their trenches into ditches, that further operations against Sebastopol are necessarily suspended. New York Express.

Financial. - Money matters have assumed a much better aspect within the last few days, and we are induced to believe that in a short time the oppression which has been so universal will experience decided relief.

The prospects of a rise in the river sufficient to allow our merchants and manufacturers to ship heavy orders which have for some time been accumulating on their hands, is indeed flattering. Returns from this source alone will materially increase the supply of currency, and produce a better feeling in business transactions generally.

The low stage of the river has been the cause of throwing out of employment many in Massachusetts. of our industrious and enterprising mechanics, thereby causing much distress among this class of our community.

The Camden Banner has gone over to Commodoro Stockton boots and all, and is ondeavoring desperately to carry the sentiment of West Jersey with it, but it is a hopeless task. This is the way it talks of the 'Know Nethings" who have come in to disturb its plans: Let not a crowd of new recruits, raving for Americanism like freshly imported Germans for a liberty which they cannot yet understand, go stumbling honestly onward into the ditches and quagmirs into which you floundered ten years ago, leaving behind you many a worn out patriot, and many a forgotten wire worker, whose loss has been your gain. or that of any other monopoly. There is some force in these points. Commodore Stockton is desirous of securing the Presidency, and might perhaps relinquish all connection with the overgrown monopolies of our State, if he could thereby secure his object. Woodbury Constitution. The True American of yesterday contains idealists as Kossuth the grim hopelessness of an article in reference to banks, directed to Hon. William C. Alexander, President of the Senate of New Jersey, and which the cditor endorses as from an intelligent and responsible source. The writer insists that Banking has been too profitable, and that the profits of Banking must be curtailed in order o arrest the strong and incessant tendency of the system to increase. The remedy which he proposes is to abolish the issue of all bills under the denomination of five dollars. He insists that there is now a sufficient supply of silver and gold for the necessities and the wants of the American people, and he deems that this will be the case important question before the Legislature of the State at its next session. The article is written with some force and we should not be surprised to see Democracy make this an issue in the question which is to be tested .- Mercury.

Western Banks .- We are still obliged to leave out quotations for the States of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, as it is out of our power to give reliable quotations, some rejecting them altogether, and others buying at various prices, from 5 to 50 per et. liscount. Those buying the notes at low rates are probably agents, or interested in the circulation of the bills; and just so long as they are supplied with funds by the banks for which they are acting, they will continue to take them, and no longer -as was the case with the Havre-de Grace bank, a few years ago, There are however, doubtless, some sound banks among them; but the difficulty at present is to know which are good and which are not; and hence the difficulty of giving quotations, and the uncertainty of them when they are given. Monetary Affairs .- It is the general imression that money matters will be easier after this date. Several millions will be paid out in Philadelphia and New York, in the shape of dividends. The banks too, it is believed, will be more liberal in discounting. A number of the New England Railroad Companies have omitted their January half yearly dividends, among them the Boston and Lowell, one of the oldest, and for a long time considered the best, railroad companies

By a statement in the New York Post, it appears from actual account that there are 161 "To Let" bills posted on buildings in Broadway alone, and that there has not been so many unrented stores in that street since 1836-7. As a consequence, rents have come down largely. Frauds in Marketing .- The Philadelphia Pennsylvanian complains of a system of fraud constantly practiced in that city, by venders of potatoes and other market vegetables, upon housekeepers, and says the same system is vogue in New York. "The persons engaged in it are chiefly Jerseymen and Delawari ans by birth. They have a society of Potato dealers, through which they not only regulate the quantity for sale in the market, but also the price of the commodity. By means of this society, with corresponding societies in New York and Baltimore, nearly the whole white potato crop of Delaware, New Jersey, and the countries adjoining Philadelphia, to gether with the latter, pass through the hands
