THE PIC-NIC.

Come all ye gentle muses, join To assist me in my humble lay, While a thrilling story I'll repeat; Which happened on one Saturday.

Two Sunday Schools as I've heard tell A pic-nic did decide to make; Of course the teachers all agreed, They'd do it for the childrens sake. The day was set-and with it came A band of children bright and gay Expecting too as well they might

To spend a most delightful day.

The skies were clear the sun shone bright. And to the grove they hie'd away; While bright eyes danced, and merry feet, Were tripping all along the way. And now hay scatter round the grove. White merry voices laugh and sing; And not a discord could be heard,

Within the joyous happy ring. The teachers too with good intent Began at once their work of love Which certainly was nothing more Than they the edibles should prove And soon two tables long and wide Were spread with cloths of snowy white

And heaped with every dainty nice So temptingly displayed to sight. And now the feast is all prepared, The children too are gathered in; With appetites well sharpen'd up, Destruction's work must soon begin. But-O misfortune dire! the sky Which all the morn had been so fair. Began to wear such sombre hue That every brow was marked with care.

And still they hoped, alas how frail, Are human hopes, how false, how vain; For they had scarcely time to hope, When in a trice down came the rain, And such a shower, the very clouds Seemed broken up, and rent in twain; And such a splashing, dashing time, Will not be witnessed soon again.

Puddings and pies were soon afloat. And tempting cakes all heaped around; Were soaked as soft as they could be, I'm sure no softer could be found, The children cried, the babies screamed, While men and hoys were flying round, But this much I must say for them:

Right manfully they stood their ground. The ladies too, how can my pen Do justice to their dripping fate; Tell how their bonnets melted down, Till they were in a dismal state, Or how instead of woeful looks, With sad complaints, and stifled sighs; The laugh and joke went passing round, And mirth and glee danced in their eyes,

Now to these ladies let me say, A word of praise to them is due: For while the rain spoiled all their cakes, It could not spoil their tempers too.

From the New York Observer. GRANT THORBURN AND TOM PAINE.

A short time ago, the Boston "Investigator," an infidel paper as we understand it, challenged the authenticity of a letter we published over the name of Grant Thorburn. The paper called upon Mr. Thorburn to write for its columns his reminiscences of Paine, promised to publish every word of it, and to pay him for his labor. We said that Mr. Thorn-No advertisement of a folio or less will be inserted a single week, for less than 50 cents. copied and sent to us, as well as to the "Inserted a single week, for less than 50 cents. vestigator," but whether or not it has been printed there we do not know, as we do not receive that sheet. Mr. Thorburn writes:

For the New York Observer.

WINSTED, Ct., March 20, 1855. Esteemed Friends: - I noticed your remarks in the Observer of the 15th. The Investigator of the 7th March, wishes to be informed if the statements about Paine in the Observer of the 22d of February last are true. I have borrowed my wife's young eyes, and send you a copy of my answer, as follows:

To the Editor of the Boston Investigator: WINSTED, CT. March 20, 1855. Mr. Editor:- I was pleased when I opened your Investigator. Life and health being continued, I will comply with your request:
but not for money. I will tell you the truth, as I shall stand before the Judge of all the earth in a few months; being now in my 83d year-(a step between me and death). To make the narrative plain, I must first say few words about Wm. Carver, with whom Mr. Paine and I boarded. From my youth I admired Mr. Paine's political writings; and in my twentieth year, was a prisoner in Edinburgh, for reading and preaching his "Rights of Man." I arrived in New York in June, 1794. A few weeks thereafter, Wm. Carver arrived from England. He wrought, a journeyman blacksmith, in the same shop with myself: he making horse-nails—I making wrought (not cut) nails. Mr. Paine and I boarded with Carver: hence our intimacy.-He, his wife and Mr. Paine, were nutives of the same town in England. I often sat with them on the winter evenings, hearing them relate their youthful pranks and deeds of riper years. Thus I learned his history from his cradle, traced him through life, and followed him to his grave in 1809. We agreed married a respectable woman in the town of Lowis. She died in eleven months thereafter: a premature delivery from brutal treatment. He then married the daughter of the the scenes to which they relate, by all who were Collector of the port of Lowis: after 3 years she obtained a divorce for like treatment. In 1773, while he held an office in the Custom House (given him by his father-in-law), he was detected in taking bribes from smugglers, and fled to America. He was appointed Secretary to the secret committee of the House of Congress, and took the oath of office not to divulge their secrets He broke his oath by publishing in the Philadelphia Bulletin the project of a secret mission to the court of France by Silas Dean. He was summoned before Congress, acknowledged himself the author, and was dismissed with disgrace.-[See the Journal of Congress in 1774 or 5.] This treachery occasioned much trouble to Congress, and in the court of Louis XVI; and nearly frustrated the coming of Gen. Lafayette, with the French fleet and army. Mr. Paine now went to France, and was chosen a member of the first Convention. For a time he helped Robespierre to establish the freedom of the press, the liberty of speech, and the rights of conscience, by means of the guillotine. Robespierre quarrelled with Mr. Paine; he was marked for the guillotine and in eighteen minutes. The others varied in escaped by a miracle. Mr. Jefferson sent a frigate to bring home Mr. Paine from the hands of his enemics. He arrived in the Spring of 180 gr I spoke with him in the City Hotel, a few hours after his arrival. He found letters urging him on to Washington. A feast was got ready, and those of like think-ing were invited. Paine entered late, his face unwashed, his beard unsborn, and reeling like a drunken man. A look of consternation shone forth from every face; mirth ceased; one by one they went out, leaving Americans were collected principally in the Paine on his chair, fast asleep. Next day he received letters and instructions to return to and at each turn cheered on McKenzie, the New York. When Aaron Burr came back from Europe, whither he had fled after his the fine form of Mr. Filmore, who had climbed duel with Hamilton, he kept his law office in on to a shock of fallen wheat, was conspicuous, Nassau Street, near my seed store. From him I obtained the account as above stated. Mr. Paine was absent eight or ten days. Meantime the waiters spread abroad the fame fused to board him. In this dilemma, William Carver took him in. Mr. Paine was a man of strong mind, and having seen the gutters in Paris flooded with blood, his company was very interesting when not under the influence of brandy. He told me that when Louis XVI was condemned by the Convention to suffer death, each member, on voting, was requested to state his reasons. When it came to Mr. Paine, he voted against his death. "I think, gentlemen," said Mr. Paine, "we are not making war on the person of the king, as a man. We are contending for principle. Unfortunately for Louis. he was born a king: he could not help it. Let us banish him to America: there he can do no harm. Let us spare his life and give him a bright spot in Paine's history. In consequence of his very intemperate habits, he was shunned by the respectable portion of his friends, many months before his death. He asked per-Friends, to have his bones laid in their bury- years, has been enormous. In 1816 there ing ground: they refused. He was much hurt by their refusal. told me, when Mr. Paine's affairs were all settled, a balance of 400 dollars remained for his relations in England.

Now, friend Editor, I was a free-thinker and a free-voter, under the Presidency of Washington. I therefore think I have as good a right to think as any free thinker in America. I think no Republic can exist without the Bible. When the goddess of liberty was a babe in her cradle, she was rocked to maturity in the Bible shops of Massachusetts. The history of our dear sister Republics. France and Mexico, are cases in point. Franklin says "no Republic can exist except the citizens are intelligent and virtuous." I am not aware that the Bible is generally read among the masses, except in Scotland and the United States, the eastern States in particular. In all countries where it is not read, the masses are as ignorant as the brutes that perish. Franklin, Fulton, Morse, Watts (steam-improver), Burns, Hogg, Brown, and many others, some of them never read a book, the Bible excepted, till they had seen their twentieth year. Most of the improvements in mechanics, machinery and the the natives of the eastern States, where they read the Bible and reverence the Sabbath. -Scotland is emphatically the land of Bibles. In Ireland—comparatively speaking—they have none, or if they have them they don't read them. This day our jails, penitentiaries, alms houses and state prisons are full of Irish. You can't find a Scotchman in any of them. Ja Scotland, every man, woman and child can read the Bible and write their own name. It is not so in any nation where the Bible is not read. I wish you well my esteemed friend. We are accountable to only for our opinions. Should business lead you this way, I will be happy to see you.-I would give a dollar for half an hour with

AMERICAN TRIUMPH IN PARIS.

At the great Exhibition in Paris, a trial of Reapers' took place, which is thus described | ing, and-tempting! by a correspondent of the N. Y. Tribune, un-

There were seven Reapers on the ground -three American, two English, and two French-but all, more or less, modifications of McCormick's original invention; and the field had been divided into seven equal portions, each portion containing, as well as my unpractied eye could estimate, slightly more than an acre of wheat. The wheat stood heavy on the ground & was at least one-fourth fallen. At the tap of the drum the machines all started off together, McCormick's rapidly taking the lead, a position which it maintained to the end, performing its task in ten minutes and a third. Manney came out in sixteen minutes, and Wright (the Hussey machine) their time from half an hour to an hour and a half-but I believe an English machine, which did not work well from the start. left the field without accomplishing its task .-After the three American machines, the first one was Cournier's (French) machine, which was drawn by one horse, and much admired for the beauty and regularity of its movements. The excitement during the contest can only be compared to an animated horse race. The neighborhood of the McCormick machine. able agent who conducted it. In this group and he was as excited for the success of American genius as any man on the ground.

The machine was trot, which would have done four miles and a half to the hour. McKenzie was nearly exhausted when the task was finished, and declared he could not have gone another half round. At the end of the performance he was loudly cheered, and the crowd following Prince Napoleon, the Arabs and the Jurymen, regardless of the soldiers who threatened to use their bayonets but did not, rushed to the middle of the field to examine the conquering machine. The Prince, the Jurymen. and the Americans crowded around the mod est McKenzie and complimented him warmly for the great feat he had performed-and the conductor placing French and American flags on the machine, it was escorted from the sum of money to live on." For the West Jersey Pioneer. FRAGMENTS, No. 3.

BY WIINNIE G. HOWARD.

"Around her girlish lips do glitter, Heat-lightnings of a girlish scorn; Harmless they are, for nothing bitter In that dear heart was ever born. That merry heart that cannot lie Within its warm nest quietly, But ever from the full, dark eye Is looking kindly night and morn."

"I wish I were a head taller, Winnie!" "I wish you were, dear Bessie, if it would make you any happier."

Now, after I said that, I half repented immediately, for in my heart I did not really respond to her wish. I think her just rightso does her fond lady-mother, and her proud, loving father, and great brother Will, and useful arts of husbandry, were produced by Fan, and Lue, and Isabel-besides a host of friends outside of her own home, only the little lady herself would like to be a head taller! Did you ever visit the little village called Bethel,-if so, you have doubtless heard of Squire Churchill, and perhaps caught a glimpse of this little dissatisfied Bessie, his daughter: now don't misunderstand me-she was the happiest, merriest, best little creature that ever swung to the top of the trees, or threaded a needle, only when she thought of her size (and that was not often) she wished she could just grow a little. Bessie was seventeen, not very tall, to be sure, but there are you, face to face. If my name is in your pa- a thousand girls of her age shorter. She was not thin nor delicate looking, but possessed a beautiful, solid figure, which was always arrayed with great taste; her round, plump cheeks were like roses: I don't wonder at aged 82 years.

N. B. You see by the writing, my wife that, though, for she was always flitting among them, while the brow was smooth and white as marble. Her hair was put back behind two of the pretticst little ears in the world, and oh, how soft and glossy were its sunny brown ripples, and how becoming the thick braid on the back of her head, -eyes large and clear, of the brightest, merriest brown,

She was a great pet, both at home and abroad. Nothing could be done without After partaking of a bountiful breakfast given by Mr. Dailly, the owner of the charming addition to any circle. She had been home from school just nine months, and had held undisputed sway in that house ever the drum to start off. The reaping was the since, over man, woman, and child-from stately papa down to baby Sue-but such gentle, pleasant sway, everybody thought it the nicest thing in the world to do just what Bessie willed.

I was passing a two months' visit there, and like all others, had fallen in love with oright Bessie, and it was on a beautiful afternoon when she wanted to reach a cluster of grapes for me, but she could not, that she uttered the above wish. Throwing herself by my side on the fresh grass, she said again very wistfully, "I wish I were as tall as Isabel!" "Ah, but then you would look so queer when you walked with Charley !" "Charley!" what a world of scorn wreathed those rich lips, and curled the thin nostril, as she uttered that one word.

"Now, if Harry Dacre were your intended, Bessie, instead of Charley, you might wish it, he just suits Isabel, everybody says."

I was sorry after I said that too, for now the red lips quivered, and the bright eyes grew humid, but tossing up a handful of grass and flowers, she laughed very merrily, and sang gaily--

"I care for nobody, and nobody cares fer me!" But I learned two things sitting there on the grass, on that bright, happy afternoon: first, that Harry Dacre was looked upon not with Isabel was afraid to trust herself with him indifference by fair, young Bessie Churchill, and secondly, that she wished to be taller, so ride with him, and away over hill and dule that she might not seem so insignificant be- they flew, and somehow Harry seemed to side him. But I commenced again-

"Bessie, do you think I am so very little oe anybody's wife !"

"Ob, Winnie!" "Well, dear Bessie, do you know that you re an inch taller than I am?" "Oh, Winnie, am I, indeed !"

apression, and the eyes were dry and beamng; sweet, childlike Bessie Churchill -- how could she know that in her tell-tale face and own to herself!

"Now Bessie," I said, (I was just three so tall as some other people, but remember that little folks generally "carry their age" better than big people-besides all gentlemen know that the best goods come in small packsay that very thing this morning

Two days before I left, we started early in the morning in carriages for a lovely grove, ten the day. I had not seen Bessie that morning, but just before we started she came in, looking very, very sparkling, and carrying a beautifully arranged boquet.

"Where did you get that, Bess?" asked her teasing brother Will. "In the garden," she replied, with downcast eyes and glowing cheeks. "Indeed," he said, "I did not know we had any purple dahlias in our garden, and I see you have one there!" Bessie turned away without answering, and looked very conscious when Harry Dacre entered and presented its counterpart to Isabel. What sly looks and laughing whispers circulated in that old parlor, and a certain gentleman named Charley looked very uncomfortable indeed Supposed Murder.—The body of a white man was taken up near the mouth of Salem Creek, on Thursday morning last, and brought to this town. Coroner Dunn summoned a jury of inquest to view the body, and inquire into the cause of death. It was ascertained the name of the person was Brown, and that he came to Salem on an excursion the Tuesday previous. On the return of the boat a disturbance agose, during which he is supposed to have been stabbed and thrown overboard. Dr. Thompson examined the body, and stated before the jury the wounds found upon it were not fatal, and that life was not extinct when it was cast into the water. One of the thumbs was entirely gone and the other badly cut. The body was recognized and taken to Philadelphia for interment. The Coroner's jury after two sittings, and the examination of a number of witnesses, having failed in reteiving anything sufficiently satisfactorily upon which to base a verdict, adjourned over to Thursday evening next. We learn that nine persons believed to have been engaged in this murder are now in Moyamensing prison awaiting a hearing. - Salem Standard.

Report of the Executive Committee To the Joint Board of Directors of the Delaware and Raritan Canal and the Camden and Amboy Railroad and Transportation Companies.

Bordentown, Sept. 10, 1855. Gentlemen, -On the morning of the 29th of August, the ten o'clock train from Philadelphia for New York, left, as usual, the depot at Camden, in charge of Isaac Van Nostrand, one of the most experienced and best conductors in the employ of the Railroad Company. Mr. Van Horn, the agent of the Company, whose duty it is to see that all is right before the train starts from Camden, examined the bell rope of the ten o'clock train on the morning of the 29th August, a short time previous to its departure from Camden, and found it right. The train immediately thereafter proceeded to Burlington, where it arrived safely and in time. The 8 o'clock train from New York, which was then due at Burlington, had not time of the Philadelphia train at Burlington having expired, and the conductor having ascertained by telegraph, that the New York ny, to ascertain if any, and what, alterations lis of the North-West is fast assuming rank train had left Bordentown at 10,56 o'clock, he could be suggested for the better protection proceeded with the ten o'clock train, as he had of the passengers and trains; and they are lone on all previous similar occasions, under the assurance that there was no hazard of collission, because the track was for the most part

> There was no collision. The result proved that the regulation of the Company was a salutary one, enabling the there would have been no accident. He alone conductor to expedite his train, without the is responsible, and the wisdom of the Compaleast danger of collision.

As anticipated, the trains came in sight of each other where the track was straight, and. as usual, they both halted; and the Philadelphia train, blowing its whistle, commenced backing at about the rate of fifteen miles per hour, for the nearest turnout; whilst all the employees of the train were keeping a vigilant lookout for obstructions on the road, and attending to the brakes.

The whistle was repeatedly blown, and the employees steadily engaged watching the surprise certain parties. It does not include was passing up, until the cross-road where the sudden a pair of horses attached to a carriage, were driven at the rate of eight or ten miles an hour on the track, so near the train, as to render it impossible to check its speed, or in any way to prevent the melancholy collision, the fatal results of which are already known to you. From the outside line of the railroad nine feet, which, at the speed of ten miles an l hour, would require less than two seconds to years of FIFTY-FIVE THOUSAND and from so sudden and unforeseen obstructions. THIRTY-SEVEN-a ratio that is unpara. The safety of the trains can best be secured by requiring all persons, before crossing a railroad, to stop and ascertain whether the road is clear. The 29th of August was a still day; there present season is $9,827,700 00. Of this trains, which were blowing as they saw each other, must have been audible all along the road on which this carriage was travelling from the river, about a mile to the crossing. Besides the repeated blowing of whistles, as sworn to by some of our most respected citizens, from the time the up train first passed the cross road until its return, and the fatal collision occurred; there was at the crossing a board, with the inscription, "Look out for the locomotive."

The entire truth of the foregoing narrative is, we think, fully, completely, and satisfactorily proved, by the testimony of fourteen reliable men, taken before the Coroner's Jury; and it does appear to your committee that in all particulars the law of the State and the regulations of the Company were fully complied with by these agents and employees having charge of the trains on the 29th of Au. growing, and what our city is destined to become.

and the law respecting blowing the whistle. Rut they must have rejected the positive testimony of the following witnesses: Samuel S. Stryker, of Trenton; James Garwood. Dean Swift Read, Charles Alcott, Henry Henner, John R Rodgers, John Rodgers, Hugh Costill, of Burlington; Allen Thompson, Lleyd Vanderveer, Prescott Harvey, Israel Adams, Samuel Scott, and Maurice Maxwell, all of whom, except the three last, were entirely disinterested, and unconnected with the Company, whose respectability and position forbid the idea that they could have been mistaken; to find that the whistle was not blown, because other witnesses did not hear it; they reject positive proof of the fact, and assert Croakers may dissemble, but Chicago is a that it did not take place, because others were fixed fact. One of my friends suggests that not cognizant of its occurrence; this certainly

The proper look-out on the part of the brakemen, conductor and engineer, was observed; the speed was usual and lawful; the warning whistle was sounded; and all due diligence, vigilance, and precaution, were stutrain had the right to the track, and the engineer and brakemen were on the look-out along the line of the track. There their attention was required and was given. They were not bound to look to the right or to the compatible with safety, where there are usually so many cattle on or near the road, that the morning of September 8th. She arrived | jects within dangerous proximity to the track, out at 9 o'clock on the evening of September except in just such a case as the one now under consideration of headlong, impetuous, reckless velocity, precipitating an obstruction far beyond the scope of their vision, immediately in front of the train.

From such a case of intruding obstruction, unless apprised beforehand of the probability of its occurrence, it seems hardly conceivable how railroad trains, with any degree of vigilance, can protect themselves. Besides, had the brakeman observed the horses and carriage approaching upon the cross road, is it probable he would have deemed it necessary riage approaching upon the cross road, is it probable he would have deemed it necessary to warn the engineer? Could be have deemed it possible that any same man, in possession of the senses of hearing and seeing, did not

There is nothing from the Black Sea or , ence to the accompanying diagram) was clear and smooth, and nothing to prevent the driver even after he got close to the railroad, pulling his horses around to the right? "A quick check of the right rein would have thrown his horses parallel with the track" and avoided all danger. On the contrary, had the brakeman seen the carriage approaching, well knowing that the train had the right to the track, it is not presumable that he would have considered it necessary to give the engineer notice of its approach. If he had seen a cow or horse or other brute animal controlled only by his own instinct, on or approaching the track, he would have attempted to check, or to accellerate the train. But if he saw at a salvance, and a sale of bacon sides was made distance those animals, apparently under the power and control of human reason, no danger was fairly to be apprehended. The law of the land, the dictates of common sense, and the demand of the travelling public, alike forbid the necessity of checking the train for every wagon that can be seen in the neighborhood of a track. There are two hundred and thirty-seven crossings by streets, public roads, lanes, and private crossings; the loss of one minute at each, would make the passage between New York and Philadelphia eight hours in the 22d year of his age.

instead of four hours. There appears to be no reasonable doub that the train was backing at a rate of speed not unusual or unsafe. This part of the track it must be remembered, was straight, with new iron rails of sixty-four pounds to the yard, and in perfect order. It had been just passed over by the same train, and the track found safe and clear. Besides, there can be but little doubt that in meeting such obstructions on the road, that a higher rate of speed which in case of collision would probably sweep the impediment off the road without injury to the train, is much safer than a low made its appearance, having arrived at New encounter and embarrass itself with the ob-Brunswick, behind time. In view of the above facts, the Committee have reviewed the regulations of the Compaconstrained to say that they consider the pre sent regulation better than any which has been proposed for running trains on single track roads, and that experience has proved them to be so, even in the recent case of disaster; because it is evident that it was the driver of the horses who caused the accident .-Was this not so? Had he been at home. ny's regulations, and the faithfulness of their considerate judgment of an enlightened and

With this brief narrative of the circumstances attending the melancholy event of the 29th August, as proved before the Coroner's Jury, we might, perhaps, with propriety close this report. The subject, however, of saiety on railroads is so connected with the feelings and business of our people, that is calls for a few additional remarks from us .-To say that the Company is responsible for this accident because they have not built a double track, is to apply a rule to this Company, which is applied to no other companies There are supposed to be now more than 20 thousand miles of railroad in operation in the CAR, to Miss CAROLINE C. HINES, both of Newport. United States, and but a small proportion of double track. Roads which carry many more passengers per annum than the Camden & Amboy Railroad have no double track. Even upon the New York and Erie and Hudson River Roads there are not double tracks through the whole line; and we are not aware that there is any railroad in this country which is so exclusively appropriated for the a large and well assorted stock of Goods suitable carriage of passengers as this road is, that has for the Fall and winter trade, which he will sell double track. It is a fact, however, not generally understood, that the Camden and Amboy Railroad Company have now and have had for many years two seperate and independent lines for the transit of passengers between New York and Philadelphia. A portion of their trains pass over one track exclusively and a portion over the other; and it is we known that incipient steps have been taken to construct two more tracks between Tenton and New Brunswick: which including the Philadelphia and Trenton Railroad, will provide additional facilities between New York and Philadelphia: not in the expectation of preventing accidents, but to expedite the transit between the two cities.

ecurities in the money market has prevented the prosecution of this work. It is held however by many, that double racks are not the guaranty for safety which is laimed for them; the necessity of backing the trains even on double tracks, in many instances cannot be avoided; switches, the most requent cause of railroad accidents, must necossarily be multiplied. Certainly, the statistics of railroad accidents, in Europe as well as in this country, seem to favor that idea. It may be added likewise, that on double tracks the temptation to maintain high rates of speed s almost irresistible, and that high rates of speed are not as compatible with safety as low rates. The public demand, with reference to railroad travel, safety, cheapness, and speed. Double tracks are indispensable where high rates of speed are in use. But they are not compatible with cheapness or necessary for safety, where a limited number of trains per day are run, as is the case on our road. If lightning from heaven were to strike our cars, t would be as reasonable to say that the company was responsible for the result, because they have not fixed lightning rods to each car, as to say that the company is responsible for the recent accident, because they have not built a double track. As to the suggestion of placing a gate at each crossing, that can only be done by Legislative authority, and we do not think it would be as safe, as to require every person to halt, and to see that the train is not in sight, before he attempts to nels-all prices and colors; Sack Flannels-blue cross any railroad, as is the evident intent of green, brown, grey, and orange. The best and the present sion boards required by law. the present sign boards required by law.

Nothing but the depressed state of railroad

Every person would in this case have a perfect protection in himself; why diminish it by placing the responsibility elsewhere and upon persons much less interested? As long as wood and are so fragile and defective. there can be no absolute safety in travelling left, at a distance from the track, nor is it at the present speed with which our railroad trains are diren. And though for the cure of this class of diseases. I may regret I have said it; I am going to sell for I may regret! have said it; I am going to sell for cash, barter or short approved credit. Thus insuring my customers that they may always depend on what goods they buy of me shall be of the very lowest prices, knowing that persons who give long long credits must necessarily get higher prices for their goods besides losing a great deal by bad debts, (and as all trades myst rest them.)

These medicines have become exceedingly popular in every section of country where they have been introduced. Within the last two years they have been placed in the hands of hundreds of families for the purpose of having them thoroughly tested; and the result has been most satisfactory. I have called personally on hundreds of those by bad debts. (and as all trades must pay or there could be no trade,) good paying customers must pay for the losses by bad ones. Or in other words, if Mr. A. fails to pay his bill, you must charge Mr. B. increased prices for the goods he buys; so you see, Mr. B. has to redouble his offorts to make up for the fraud of Mr. A., which

Bridgeton, June 16, '55. Druggist & Chemist. Economy Combined with beauty & Service. SAMUEL L. FITHIAN,

AVING purchased the right of making, using and selling, Cyrus Buler's patent paint mixture; would hereby offer it for sale to the citizens of Bridgeton and vicinity, having used and experimented with the mixture, I feel perfectly safe in saying, that it is decidedly to the advantage of any person having painting done to use it. The mixture being a new article to the Public. do not expect or ask them to use it at their own risk; but am willing in every instance (where it is used according to direction) to warrant it; and if at the end of two years after the paint is put on, the person using it is not satisfied, I will repaint at my own expense, with either Pure Lead or the best Zinc, at their own option. Now the advantages, to a person using it are as follows, viz:—First, they save 33 per cent on the first cost. Second, the paint mixture gives the paint or no sale. a very beautiful gloss, consequently, they have a much handsomer job of work done by using it.— Third, it will last from two to three years longer than painting done in the old way of mixing.—Fourthly and last they run very little or no risk. All further necessary information will be given by calling at SAMUEL L. FITHIAN'S Drug & Chemical Store, sign of the Big Mortar, nearly opposite E. Davis & Son's Hotel, where will always found a large assortment of White Lead, Snow White Zinc, ground in oil or Demar Varnish, Paris Green, ground or dry, Mineral Green, Verdigris, Lamp Black, Chrome Yellow, Prussian Blue Venitian Red, Yellow Ocher, Ohio and Silvers Mineral paints, Linseed Oil, &c. &c. The inventor knowing the danger apprehended on account of the flimsy manner in which Matches are generally packed in particular than the state of the s per, has by the aid of new steam machinery of his own invention, succeeded in getting up a Safety Patent Square Upright Wood Box; this box is far preferrable, inasmuch that it occupies no more Joseph Borden, late of the firm room than the old round wood box, and contains den & Co., his interest in the at least Two Hundred per cent more matches, which to Shippers, is considerable advantage. It is entirely new, and secure against moisture and spon- and that they intend as heretofore to keep the taneous combustion, and dispels all danger on transportation by means of railroad, steamboat or any other mode of conveyance. These matches are packed so that one gress or more may be shipped to any part of the world with perfect safety. They are the most desirable article for home consumption, and the Southern and Western markets, that have ever been invented. Dealers and Shippers will do well to call and examine for themselves.

These Matches are WARRANTED to 1 superior to anything heretofore offered to the public.
