My Native Land, fain would I sing of thee

Home of my early days, How oft fond memory strays, Over the past. Our youthful days were bright, But childhood's sunny light Has faded from our sight, Too bright to last ..

Beside the mossy hill I'vd watched the rippling rill Dance on its way. And with what joy I've seen The blossoms in their sheen;

The forest dark and green And mountain grey. And when soft twilight came Stealing o'er distant plain-Friends gathered near And sang some pleasant lay; Its cadence died away

With the departing day, Our hearts to cheer. Home of my riper years, In sunshine and in tears To thee I cling.

With the dear friends of yore, Cherished forever more, Glided each golden hour On swiftest wing. There, in the old church yard, Beneath the soft green sward, Our kindred sleep. There warblers chaunt in spring, And their low requiem sing, Then fold their downy wing Where's none to weep.

Ye willows, gently wave Above each peaceful grave Where dearer ones lie. Ye drooping violets bloom, And waft your rich perfume Over the hallowed tomb Soft zephyrs sigh. Fond memories fade away, Ye wound my heart to-day, No dark trace leave. United may we stand, In that fair happy land, Where a bright angel band, Fresh garlands weave.

GRAND JURIES AND THEIR DUTIES.

Condensed Report of the charge of Judge VREDENBURGH, at the opening of December term, 1865, of the Monmouth Courts. It is a good custom, in entering upon any duty, to take counsel of any previous knowledge of the duty contemplated; not as furnishing at all times an uncering guide and arbitrary rule for the present or the future, but that past experience may be profited by, and the duty be by that means facilitated. And in no situation is this more advisable than in entering upon the solemn responsibilities now before us. One of the first duties of government is, o protect its citizens in the free enjoyment of their natural rights, and to punish crime of every grade and character. For this end, laws were originally established;—in the first stages of society arbitrary, and springing generally in very simple and concise forms from one supreme and despotic head; and as the world has progressed, becoming more and more the emanations of many minds, and more and more complex in their forms.

In this country, the Grand Jury rests at the foundation of all law. It has the important duty of deciding who shall be put upon rrench Merinoes, all colors; Ginghams; Flannels—all prices and colors; Sack Flannels—blue, green, brown, grey, and orange. From the Scientific American. Gratitude to Improvers of the Iron Manufactures.

The city of Newark, N. J., is celebrated for various kinds of manufactures, such as jewellery, carriage-making; patent leather, and such charges never have to be made against malleable iron castings. A number of companies are engaged in the two latter kinds of manufactures; they employ a great number of persons, and the fame of their productions is co-extensive with our country's commerce. The Tribune of the 4th inst., contains a very interesting article on the subject, and attributes-justly we have been informed-the introduction of both of these manufactures to Seth Boyden, an ingenious and enterprising Massachusetts mechanic, who took up his abode in Newark about thirty years ago. GOODS FOR THE HOLIDAYS

One year has clapsed since a general notice was given of all the establishments in Bridgeton advertised in the columns of the Pioneer at that time. The helidays are near at hand, and we deem this an appropriate period to give a somewhat similar notice, by calling the attention of our readers to those who have been advertising in our paper this year. As we pass down Commerce street, the first place at which we will call, is the office of Squire Merseilles, as we enter, he greets us with a pleasent bow, and if not engaged conconveyancing property, making wills, or attending to some other business which cannot well be delayed, enters into conversation, such as soldom fails to please and edify his guests. His reputation for honesty and uprightness has never been questioned by this community, while his superior business talents entitle him to the patronage he now onjoys. We can assure our readers that any writing or business in his line will be promptly attended to in the most satisfactory man-The abuse of the pardoning power has been ner.

From this point it is ninetecn miles to Tuckahoe, on the south divides Atlantic and Cape May Counties, and falls into the Great Egg Harbor Bay, which is a fine estuary between Somers' and Beesley's Points. Tuckaboe presents considerable activity from its ship-yards, and leaving it we pass eighteen miles without meeting any village until we reach Cape May Court House, shrough a much richer country, with some fine farms, and presenting a better air of rvral comfort. The entire sea coast consists of long line of sandy beaches, here and there interrupted by inlets, and enclosing narrow shallow lagunce, behind which are low marshy tracts, with no harbors, and the coast constantly changing by the influence of crrrents and the shifting sands.

Cape May County has not a single resident awyer within its borders; Court day there is like muster day in the interior of our State, and the hardy yeomanny collect from all quarters. We have never seen a finer looking or more intelligent set of men than composed the panel of the Grand and Petit Junies. Professional gentlemen from other parts of the State were in attendance, among them Mesers. Keasbey, of Newark; Dudley and Browning, of Camden, and Nixon, of Bridgeton. Judge Elmer, of the Supreme Court, presides, and is an accomplished jurist, with a suavity of manners and a tact for the despatch of business, which have made him an universal favorite with both the bar and their clients.

In one trip down there you lay in an installment of health to last you for a month; the air is soft and genial; the sun acting on the glittering sand makes it warm and comfortable; every thing wears a quiet, Sabbath stillness, and you are made intimate with a country which has heretofore been almost unknown to us. We think with wonder on the history of New Jersey, and recall with pride its revolutionary annals, when some of the hardest and most important battles were fought on its soil; we think that not two centuries since; in 1664, the Duke of York obtained a grant from Charles II., and sold the district between the Hudson and Delaware rivers to the Lords Berkeley and Carteret, who gave it its name; that nine years afterwards it was taken by the Dutch, who resigned it in 1674; that then it was divided into East and West Jersey, which were separately sold and resold and did not get rid of their troubles until 1702, when both were surrendered to Queen Anne, who appointed Lord Cornbury Governor, and united them to New York; how in 1738 a government was instituted by the crown, which continued until the glorious days of 1776, when its first republican constitution was adopted; how promptly, after independence was declared, her State Convention ratified the Constitution of 1787, and how since that her annuls have been adorned by the names of her Rutherfords, Elmers, Ogdens, Condits, Southards, McIlvaines, Batemans, Dickensons, Daytons, Pattersons, Frelinghuysens, Stocktons, Walls, Boudinots, Millers, Penningtons, &c., and how with an area of less than eight thousand square miles. it teems with productive industry and rejoices in an unembarressed state treasury. Truly the citizens of New Jersey have a right to be proud of it, and its neighbors to respect it.

The Increase of National Influence. The increased expenditures of Government as shown by the estimates sent to Congress in 1852, under President FILLMORE, when compared with those just sent in by the Secretary of the Treasury under Gen. PIEROE, are regarded in some quarters as exhibiting a state of facts calculated to slarm the people on the score of federal extravagance. We are not among those who look at the necessary increase of governmental expenses as involving any charge of extravagance. The estimates for the next fiscal year are $69,450,-492, while the estimates for 1858 were only $46,203,753 making a difference of $23,246,-739. But we are to consider that the Civil | K. set down as the result of extravagance. And again, we must remind these alarmists that there are more than sixteen and a half millions of existing appropriations not required for the service of the present fiscal year, but which may be applicable to the year 1856-7 a result which does not look like wasteful mal appropriation of the public funds, but these sixteen and a half millions are added to the aggregate of sixty-nine millions, which conjure up such phantoms before the eyes of | Cape May county, N. With as al for increasing his outlay as his family enlarges, as to attribute extravagance to our government because the expenses of 1857 are greater than those of 1853. We feel every confidence that Mr. GUTHRIE, since he enter ed the Treasury Department has carefully guarded the public interests, and we therefore look upon the increased necessities of the government with pride and satisfaction, as demonstrating that our national influence has become more extended and diffused; that we are making ourselves known to the extreme points of the earth; that new channels of intorcourse have been opened; that the protection of our flag has been extended; that the American name is better known; and we have hopes that the extension of our National Influence may carry with it a knowledge of our republican principles, our federated system of government, and the blessings of representative rule, which may diffuse light to dark

SAMUEL L. FITHIAN, AVING purchased the right of making, using and selling, Cyrus Buler's patent paint mixture; would hereby offer it for sale to the citizens of Bridgeton and vicinity, having used and experimented with the mixture, I feel perfectly safe in saying, that it is decidedly to the advantage of any person having painting done to use it. The mixture being a new article to the Public, I uv not expect or ask them to use it at their own risk; but am willing in every instance (where it is used according to direction) to warrant it; and if at the end of two years after the cond of two f at the end of two years after the paint is put on, the person using it is not satisfied. I will re paint at my own expense, with either Pure Lead or the best Zinc, at their own option. Now the advantages, to a person using it are as follows, viz:—First, they save 33 per cent on the first cost. Second, the paint mixture gives the paint a very beautiful gloss, consequently, they have a much handsomer job of work done by using it.— Third, it will last from two to three years longer than painting done in the old way of mixing.— Fourthly and last they run very little or no risk. All further necessary information will be given by calling at SAMUEL L. FITHIAN'S Drug & Chemical Store, sign of the Big Mortar, nearly opposite E.
