In searching for the precious ore Far from my home away. On this lone barren shore, So carry to back to Milleille sand To Milleille sand once more.

What though among the burning sands Is found the shining gold Though California's golden mines Abound in wealth untold? Yet what to me are mines of gold On this unfriendly shore? O carry me back to Millville sand, To Millville sand once more.

Then speed thee on thou gallant bark Fly swiftly o'er the main And bear the reckless wanderer back To friends and home again; Yes bear me o'er the mighty deep From California's shore And earry me back to Millville sand, To Milleille sand once more."

NO CROSS, NO CROWN.

'Twas eve, and in a lowly room A student sat in sombre gloom, Twlrling his fingers in his hair, Like one in reverie or despair. Before him lay an open book; Sadness was in his languid look; And as he traced the pages o'er Four golden words his spirit bore-No Cross, no Crown!

Around in death-like silence stood The forms of many great and good-Prophets, Martyrs crucified; Stern Patricts, who for freedom died: And Poets, who died desolate, Scanning the wendrous scroll of Fate; While glory round their forcheads shone He read upon their lips of stone-» No Cross, no Crown!

Hard was the toil, through learning's lore, For one so young and worldy poor, His books were precious, though but few; And deathless fire from heaven he drew. Heart-wearied oft, and overwrought, He traced in throbbing lines his thought; And mid his toil this seemed to be The voice alone of destiny-

No Cross, no Crown! Sometimes his noble spirit turned Towards Fame's pillar as it burned; And oft he judged his efforts vain To cross the burning bars of pain. He grouned in agonized distress; Life's cup was dashed with bitterhess; And then, he thought of these of old, Who carved in brass those words of gold-No Cross, no Crown!

They fought the battle, bore the Cross. That truth might never suffer loss, But, like the tempest-cradled flower, Spring through the storm -the martyr's dower; Souls that, while beaconing the free, Sank like a lighthouse in the sea; But from their graves a spirit came, Uttering words of winged flame-, No Cross, no Crown!

His soul sometimes would droop her wing, When envious arrows sped the string; But like a trumpet's martial strains, His country's voice thrilled through his veins, And, heedless of the critic's ire, His heart glowed with immortal fire; And, like a man in earnest, he On Thought's Patomas toiled wearily-No Cross, no Crown!

And thus he woke his spirit's strings To Music's rare imaginings; To Love and Freedom, Truth and Right, Justice and Mercy, gods of light! Oh! cheerful fell those golden words Upon his worn heart's tender chords; In death those words his spirit bore, And chants them still for evermore-No Cross, no Crown!

This be the motto of the brave, And this the watchword of the slave; The Patriot's, with the People's scorn; The Mertyr's, with his garland thorn. Whoever seeks to win a name, Whoever toils for Freedom's fame, Whoever human tears would dry, Let this forever be his cry-No Cross, no Crown!

They contented themselves by saying:-"when he is older he will know better, we will then have him to obey our commands." But alas! they were building their hopes on a sandy foundation; for if parents have not the power to rule and govern their children when they are little, how can they expect to do so when they are larger.

The child to whom I was alluding, was allowed to rule his parents while he was small, and became so habituated to being indulged, that the larger and older he grew, the more selfish and exacting did he become. He would give way to no one; neither his parents or any one else. But who is to blame?

Reader, have you any children? If so pause for a mement. Ask yourself the question:-Am I training my children thus? If you are, let me ask, are you doing right? Are you doing justice to God, who placed those children under vour care, to train up to serve Him? I've seen a child whose parents have to Agriculture: said:-"God has placed this child under our eare, we will try to train him up in the way he should go.". They commenced when he was young. BATTLE OF HORSES.

J. ROYAL.

Bridgeton, N. J.

Two of the Spanish regiments which had been quartered in Fuenn, were cavalry, moun. ted on fine black, long-tailed Andalusian horses. It was impracticable to bring off these horses, about 1,100 in number, and Romano was not a man to order them to be destroyed. He was fond of horses himself, and knew that every man was attached to the beast which carried bim so far and so faithfully. Their bridles were therefore taken off and they were urned loose upon the beach.

A scene ensued such as probably never before was witnessed. They were sensible that they were no longer under any control of human power. A general conflict ensued, in which, retaining the discipline they had learned, they charged each other in squadrons of ten or twelve together, then engaged, striking with their fore feet, and biting and tearing each other with the most ferocious rage, and trampling over those who were beaten down, till the shore in the course of an hour was strewn with the dead and disabled.

Part of them had been set free on a rising ground at a distance; they no sooner heard the roar of battle than they came thundering down the intermediate hedges, and catching with equal fury. Sublime as the scene was, it was too horrible to be long contemplated, as good as Hamlets was it was too horrible to be long contemplated, as good as Hamlets was it was too horrible to be long contemplated, as good as Hamlets was it was too horrible to be long contemplated, as good as Hamlets was it will be a second as the second as and Romano in mercy gave orders to destroy them. But it was found too dangerous to attempt this, and after the last boat had quitted the beach, the few horses that remained I was a mere doll, good for nothing but to were seen still engaged in the dreadful work of mutual destruction.

"Courtship and Marriage, or The Joys and Sorrows of American Life, will be found, on perusal by all, to be one of the most exciting, written in a charming style, and will clicit through all a thrill of deep and exquisite pleasure, even exceeding that of any of her previous works, and in this Mrs. Hentz has achieved a triumph of no ordinary kind. It is a book which the oldest and the youngest may alike read with profit. It abounds with phases of human character; every character lightful story, full of incidents, oftentimes bold and startling, and describes the warm feelings of the Southerner in glowing colors. Indeed, all Mrs. Hentz's stories aptly describe Southern life, and are highly moral in their application. In this field Mrs. Hentz wields a keen sickle, and harvests a rich and abundant crop. It will be found in plot, incident and management, to be a superior work. In the whole range of elegant moral fiction, there cannot be found any thing of more inestimable value, or superior to this work, and it is a gem that will well repay a a careful perusal. The Publisher feels as sured that it will give entire satisfaction to all readers, encourage good taste and good morals; and while away many leisure hours with great pleasure and profit, and be recommended to others by all that read it."

Copies of either edition of the work, will be sent to any part of the United States free of postage, on remitting the price of the edition they may wish, to the publisher, in a letter.

For the West Jersey Pioneer.

In the Pioneer of the 8th instant, there were some excellent remarks upon the subject ly "used up."

It is true that ignorance fosters crime, and if persons are not taxed to support Schools. they will find themselves subject to a much heavier tax to execute the criminal laws.

Property is safer-for from what class of persons do our incendiaries come but the ignorant. Who is it that prowl about our streets at the midnight hour? the uneducated. Teach the child that there is more pleasure in books than in the street, and when he realizes the truth of it, the midnight revel will be avoided. But the principal argument is in the fact that property is rendered so much more valuable; this is not only the case in our towns, but in the country; any person who wishes to purchase, would willingly give more for a farm situated near a good school, than he would were the school advantages indifferent, and frequently persons sell when they are well pleased with their situation in every other respect. While in conversation with a gentleman not long since who owns a fine farm: his reasons, he replied "that the school is so poor." Then it is evident that property is increased in value in proportion to the schools in the vicinity and their efficiency. - Considering these circumstances, no one ought to obbut on the contrary, urge our Legislature to give us more money, tax the people and give

We have but a very few good experienced Teachers-Men who have devoted their time and talents to the great object of teaching. Most of them are voung men who are teaching, preparatory to engaging in a more lucrative business; and and in some places their services are only required for one "term," and then they must look out for something else, while such is the state of things in regard to schools, there are no inducements for a person to prepare for the arduous task. There is but little interest manifested by the people-trustees are indifferent, teachers teach for money, not with a desire to improve the schools, and an apathy

That this is true, many will testify in the death of Mrs. Hattie Powel, wife of O. B. Gause, who departed this life at ten minutes past 5 o'clock, on the morning of Feb. 12th, 1856, in the bloom of life, being within 2 days of her 29th birth day; she was born in Cedarville, Cumberland Co., N. About 28 months ago her health began to fail, and subsequently she had hemorrhage of the lungs, but still hoping to clude the grasp interesting, and popular works that has ever of the fell destroyer, she returned in the latemanated from the American Press. It is ter part of Nov. to visit her friends in Philadelphia, hoping, in their fond society, to recover, in some degree, her wonted health, but notwithstanding every attention that love could bestow, she gradually sank away from their embrace. Weeks before she died she began to set her house in order, and prepared herself for the summons. Humanly considered, this was a very difficult thing for her, being in the bloom of life, surrounded by loving and affectionate relatives and friends, with a husband and two daughters, the elder seven years, and the younger a lisping prattler, just able to lisp in sweet accents, the endearing words " Ilove Jessie's mamma." Yet oh consoling thought! she found grace to enable her, weeks before her death, to draw her chief affection from the many kind friends, the beloved sisters with whom she grew up, and being the youngest, was always an object of peculiar regard. The affectionate husband, to whom she gave her whole heart's wealth of love, and above all, the greatest victory of a mother, she was able to commit her darling children to the care of her Heavenly Father, and say, "My treasures is now in heaven. > ONE WEEK LATER FROM EUROPE. ARRIVAL OF THE AFRICA.

The steamship Africa arrived in New York on Saturday evening with three days later intelligence from Europe, but the news is re-markably destitute of political interest. We regret to say that there is no intelligence of the Pacific. The conferences at Paris were to assemble on the day the Africa left, and n the English and the French journals speculations were the order of the day. Little doubt seems to be entertained as to the conclusion of peace. The English journals assert that the understanding between the English and French governments is as cordial as ever; and that in a recent interview between the Emperor and the Earl of Clarendon, the former declared that he would not abandon for an instant the line of policy which they had traced out together, and that the position assumed with regard to Russia should be as firmly maintained by him as by England .-The Dondon Times, in one of its leaders, warns the government of the consequences of ts a peace that public opinion will not enlorse. In an equally significant the Paris Constitutional intimates that the Congress will not occupy itself exclusively with the questions arising out of the war, but will proably proceed to the reconsideration of the reaties of 1815, so as to wipe out every vesige of the once famous alliance against

I believe every member organized under the general law.

And if you refuse them this bill, they must compelled to stop business. It has been found when they ask for fish, will you give them a serpent? Sir, there is but one bank in the counties of Cape May, Cumberland and Atlantic. This bank has been in existence nearly half a century, and is a sound, safe, and well managed institution. To its operations our business community is greatly indebted for their prosperity and advancement. We appreciate the blessings it has conferred, and would not interfere with its business .-It is distant ten miles from where we are asking the House to place another. The two sis ants to each other. And, sir, I can say with truth and with feeling, that if I thought this bank would ever defraud or injure the poor man to the value of one penny, I would never give my assent to it, but would shout may, with the loudest when the vote should be taken on the gentlemen named as corporators, to be high minded, honorable and honest, knowing then, to have been the architects of their own fortunes, and, therefore to be trusted by the community; knowing, sir, that they are incapable of abusing the privileges you may grant them, I ask, yea, I entreat you pass this bill. Sir, this bank would benefit a large population and many interests. Miliville has a population of over three thousand, as industrious and enterprising as any to be found in the State.

They owe much to the material advantages of their situation-nothing as yet to legislation. By their own unaided exertions have they made Millville what it is to-day; a chief source of prosperity to our county .-Sir, they ask at your hands a bank-the first favor they have ever asked of the state, to assist their efforts, and enable them to make larger strides toward permanent wealth and presperity. The Troops to Canada. - The Evening Post volunteers this explanation, of the trans fer of British troops to Canada, at this peculiar conjuncture in our foreign relations: "There are usually eight regiments of British troops stationed in the Canadas; when the WASHIONABLE Silks, war broke out, all but three were sent to the Full line of black the final passage of this bill, but knowing war broke out, all but three were sent to the Urimea. They are no longer needed there, and they are accordingly sent back, or a portion of them, to Canada. This is the explanation of the order for the removal of troops, which created such a sensation upon the arrival of the Baltic."

A Present. - Mr. Joseph Honven, the bliging and attentive stage driver of the Philadelphia mail stage, presented us last week with a shad. It was one of the first of the "finny tribe" that has found its way to our town this season. We had it "done up brown," and vied in quality any of the brag Delaware. These journals are edited by Charles G. Greene and Richard Frothingham, Jr.; employ a large corps of assistant editors, reporters and correspondents; and neither labor and expence is spared to make their columns valuable. They have deen published nearly thirty years; have a range of subscription exceeded in extent and aggregate by no papea in New England; and, so largely is their circulation increasing, that

A NEW PRESS has been ordered to enable the demand to be promptly supplied. The reading matter consists of a great variety of useful and entertaining matter. Its editorials. domestic and foreign correspondenc, reports of lectures, marine department, daily monetary article and weekly financial review, literary notices, poetic contributions and humorous matter make variety designed to meet every taste. The advertising columns embrace an almost entire synopsis of the business of New England; and from that department of the paper alone can be obtained a correct impression of the character of trade, its facilities and its operations; while the financial editorials give an accurate view of passing events in the commercial world The Press and Post is made from the daily's contents, and published every monday and Thurs-Edward L. day morning. It is clearly and handsomely printed on fine paper in clear type, and the subscription is four dollars ayear. The Boston Statesman and Weckly Post Forms a racy and complete record of the times, and contains the news of every description; in fact a brief and comprehensive history of passing ninety-one cents, in accordance with the act of in-events; foreign news in detail, domestic information, agricultural items, commercial and monetary articles, statements of trade, of the weather, of sure perfect security to depositors, and place be-crops, &c., accounts of meetings, political records, youd all risk the permanency and stability of this news of every description, poetry, pleasant reading matter, humorous items, epigrams; in fact a complete family Newspaper—a vehicle for every species of useful and entertaining information, among which will be found, in each issue, a pleasing story. The Statesman is printed on the largest sized paper and on new and beautiful type. It has a very large circulation and its rapidly increasing list is the best evidence of its popularity. It is supplied at the rate of two dollars a year for single subscriptions. Clubs, taking tens or more copies in one package, will be supplied at one dol-

Of these journals involves a large expenditure; contains varied and occurate reports as to all branches of trade; and is second to that of no paper published in New England. These journals are carefully conducted, and ed-as they do, into such a variety of households scattered over the whole Union, and read as they are by all classes of the community, they furnish an opportunity for the diffusion of information which car scarcely be obtained elsewhere. BEALS, GREENE & CO., 19 & 21 Water Street, Boston.
