From the Albany Evening Journal. MARCH.

BY G. W. BUNGAY. March was a ruddy, romping minx, The eldest daughter of the Spring;

And when she came, she used to bring Snow-drops, brown bees and bobolinks. O'er mead and marsh, and hill and plain, Wild flowers sprang up where'er she trod, Dim forests bloomed like Aaron's rod,

And nature toned her harp again. But now she comes with frowning brow, With a hoarse voice and angry mien; And plains are white that were so green, Beneath her smile twelve months ago. For snow-drops we have storms of snow,

For hum of bees the hurricane, For Spring, the Winter o'er again, For blossoms, a north-eastern blow. Well, March has morals for the wise-She is a messenger sent forth To teach mankind there is a North The nation ought to recognize.

THE HEART.

If thou hast crushed a flower, t may not be blighted: If thou hast quenched a lamp, Once more it may be lighted; But on thy harp, or on thy lute, The string that thou hast broken, Shall never in sweet sound again Give to thy touch a token. If thou hast loosed a bird,

Whose voice or song would cheer thee, Still, still. he may be won From the skies to warble near thee; But if, upon the troubled sea. Thou cast a gem unheeded,

Hope not that wind or wave will bring The treasure back when needed. If thou hast bruised a vine,

The Summer's warmth is healing And its clusters still may glow, Thro' the leaves their bloom revealing; But if thou hast a cup o'erthrown. With bright draught filled-oh! never Shall earth give back that lavished wealth,

The heart is like that cup, If thou waste the love it bore thee; And like that iewel cone. Which the deep will not restore thee; And like that strain of harp and lute, Whence the sweet sound is scattered;

To cool thy parched lips' fever.

Gently, oh! gently touch the chords So soon forever shattered.

METHODIST MISSIONS TO SLAVES. The following paragraphs are taken from report of the Missionary Board of the Louisiana Conference:

MORAE.

"It is stated upon good authority, that the number of colored members in the Church. South, exceeds that of the entire membership of all the Protestant Missions of the world. What an enterprise is this committed to our care! The position we, of the Methodist Church, South, have taken for the African, has, to a great extent, cut us off from the sympathy of the Christian Church throughout the world; and it behoves us to make good this position in the sight of God, of angels, of men, of churches, and to our own consciences, by presenting before the throne of His glory multitudes of the souls of these benighted ones abandoned to our care, as the seals of our ministry. Already Louisiana promises to be one vast plantation. Let uswe must gird ourselves for this Heaven-born enterprise of supplying the pure gospel to the slave. The great question is, How can the greatest number be preached to? The building roadside chapels is as yet the best solution of it. In some cases planters build so as to accommodate adjoining plantations, and by this means the preacher addresses three hundred or more slaves, instead of one hundred or less. Economy of this kind is absolutely essential where the labor of the missionary is so much needed and demanded. sion-work several chapels are in progress of

"On the Lafourche and Bayou Black Miserection, upon a plan which enables the slave, as his master, to make an offering towards building a house of God. Instead of money, the hands subscribe labor. Timber is plenty; many of the servants are carpenters. Upon many of the plantations are saw mills. Here is much material; what hindereth that we should build a church on every tenth plantation! Let us maintain our policy steadily .-Time and diligence are required to effect sub-stantial good, especially in this department of labor. Let us continue to ask for buildings adapted to the worship of God, and set apart; to urge when practicable, the preaching to blacks in the presence of their masters, their overseers, and the neighbors generally."

The Frost and Agriculture.—Some appre-hension is expressed lest the intense cold of the present winter delay the commencement of agricultural operations this Spring; hut very fortunately the ground is well protected by a heavy coating of snow, which will prevent such a result. Where exposed, the frost has penetrated the earth to a great depth; but this is probably the case in only a comparatively small section of country.-It was noticed a few days ago, while an excavation was making for the repair of Croton water pipes in N. Why Mexico is in Anarchy. - The immense wealth of the Roman Catholic, in Mexico, is often spoken of on account of its influence in political affairs. While the annual income of the Republic does not exceed $9,000,000, the revenues of the church will amount to $28,000,000. The product of the tithes, on an average, is estimated $1,835,000 per annum, and, in addition to this, the clergy possess an immense capital in specie, the accumulation of three centuries, arising partly from bequests, and partly from surplus income. The ecclesiastic establishment consists of one archbishopric, that of Mexico. and is raised chiefly from that portion of the tithes intended for the subsistence of the clergy, and amounts to $400,000—the archbishop

A young Parisian lady has bethought herself of a novel method of a killing two birds with one stone"-getting rich, and getting married at the same time. Being pretty and well-educated, she has put herself up in a lottery of three hundred tickets, at one thousand francs each, and to the winner she will give herself, and the proceeds, resulting from the sale of tickets, by way of dowry. She will only sell the tickets, however, to such persons as she thinks would be suitable, after a half hour's conversation with them. There is a great demand for chances, and stock in the fair creature is likely to be bought up at a high premium.

Moving Day.

Tuesday last being the 25th of March, a large number of our inhabitants seized upon that opportunity to "make a move," conseof almost every description, loaded with goods from all directions and in endless variety.

The late thaw and large quantity of rain previously fallen, had saturated the roads until they were in no very favorable state for heavy loads of moveables, in fact the mud was a little thicker and the roads somewhat heavier than they have been for "many a day." The poor horses tugged and toiled, soiled with mud and water, we were reminded | from this valuable and interesting Address. of old Benjamin Franklin's adage, viz: "three removes are as bad as a fire." Among other things we noticed a band box containg a bonnet of the Spring style, it was tipped off in front of our office, and the wheel of the wagon passed directly over it, giving it a rich color to do the work of at least four men with the and rather flat shape. This is an age of progress, and some of us think if we are not planter is simple in construction, not liable to constantly changing our location, we are get out of repair, and may be had for the making but little advancement, while others small sum of five dollars. No farmer who adopt the motto "a rolling stone gathers no moss" and are content to remain in their present location. It matters but little to us how often our patrons change their location, so long as they inform us where to send the Pioneer. One of our old townsmen used to say, that a farmer in Pittsgrove was so accustomed to move every Spring, that his fowls had learnd to calculate the time so well that they would always go to roost in his wagon on the night of the 24th of March, so as to be off with the first load in the mor-

Easter and its Observance This day fell upon Sunday last, and the almost universal custom of eating eggs on easter, was observed throughout the country. The feathered flock of hendom are most prolonger a scarcity. The custom of picking eggs, among the boys in cities and large towns, is not generally understood in this neighborhood and is seldom practiced. It is a species of gaming calculed to interest and excite those who participate in it and lead on to gambling on a larger scale. We were struck with a remark made by a little fellow, who. with a number of older boys was descerating the Sabbath by picking eggs in the streets of Philadelphia, on Sunday last; in urging them to pick with him he exclaimed in a loud tone, "Who'll pick, an egg's an egg, the world over!" That boy had already been taught that "a day's a day the world over," or he would not have been seen in the street on Sunday, picking eggs. Another boy offered to pick the but of his egg against the pint of any common hen's egg in the crowd, but the other boys refused to venture and charged him with having a guine hen's egg, which was much stronger than that of a common ben. Some of these boys had won more than a dozen eggs from their companions, by knowscription of the manner of picking eggs, as lars for their establishment in the West. practiced in the city, as to induce the boys of Bridgeton to try their hand at the business. therefore advise them never to commence that deceptive practice of gambling, known as " picking eggs,"

Murder at Camden, N. J.

The Steamboat Disaster.

Since our last issue, the city papers abound with reports of coroners inquests and proceedings relative to the late accident on the Delaware, some censuring the company, some the officers and hands on the boat, while others view the disaster in whatever light best suits their predilections, and consider it an avoidable accident or an unavoidable special Providence. Bridge Across the Delaware.—The recent appalling accident has revived the idea of a bridge across the Delaware. We should like to hear the views of some scientific man upon the subject. Could an adequate bridge be built without any serious impediment to commerce? What, too, would be the cost? And if practicable, how should it be built, and where? The distance across the river is somewhat less than three-quarters of a mile—but a considerable addition to that length would of course be necessary on each side. The subject is at least entitled to consideration .-Such a bridge would double the population of Camden in less than two years. The Peace Negotiations.

A report was current in London that the preliminaries for peace had been signed, but this is doubtless a mistake as two or three important questions were yet to be discussed at the date of the last despatches. The news mongers are circulating rumors as to the details and result, but they are wholly unreliable. England and France continued their warlike preparations as usual.

The following extracts from the British Press show all that is known on the subject: All that was done at the first meeting of Congress, was for the Plenipotentiaries formally to record their adhesion to the Bustrian articles, and to consent that the record of that fact and of the articles in the proceedings of the Congress should be considered equivalent to a preliminary treaty of peace, in order, we suppose, that armistice might be agreed to. At all events, what was then done was merely for the Plenipotentiaries to confirm, formally and definitely, what has been previously done at Vienna by the Ministers of the several powers The act left unsettled all the questions which are likely to cause discussion or disagreement, if such there really be. Nevertheless, it is believed that the Congress is slowly yet steadily proceeding with its great task, and that the ultimate result of its labors will be peace. But the end is not yet.

Even the Emperor of the French is not hold enough to promise or prophesy an immediate peace. In the speech which his Imperial Majesty delivered on Monday, at the and Allied Powers; and his advice was that ship to Russia. At the same time, his Majesty advised that, whatever may happen, France should draw still closer, if possible, the alliance with England-"an alliance formed by a participation of glory and sacrifices, the reciprocal advantages of which," he truly declares, "will be brought into still stronger relief by peace."

The Globe, after alluding to the misrepresentation that a preliminary treaty of peace had been signed last week by the Plenipotentiary at Paris, points out that the broad tled, but that none of the details had been approached. The numerous intricate questions arising out of the neutralism of the Black Sea, the Asiatic Loundaries of Russia, the in the "City of the Meadows." thorough emancipation of the Danube from her control, the fortifications in the Baltic and the Greek protectorate, have still to be discussed. The solution lies altogether in the hands of Russia; and if she attempts t evade the just demands of the Allies, the fature security of Europe will have to be attained by other means.

The Times, Paris correspondent, writes or Wednesday evening-No secret has ever been better kept than the proceedings of Congress up to the present moment so far as details are concerned. All that can be safely affirmed is that matters are going on "well enough;" and it would be an error to suppose that there is not yet a good deal of work to be got through. I believe that Frauce and England have not been since the commencement more firmly united than at the present moment, Of Austria's firmness I doubt whether so much can be said. At all events I again hear whisperings of Count Buol not realizing all that was expected of him. PARIS, Thursday-The fifth sitting of the Peace Conferences took place to day.

All that can be said of Tuesday's conferchee is that its proceedings were said to be of sengers, and was never again heard of. a more satisfactory nature than the previous ones. From that it may be fairly inferred that the Russian plenipotentiaries begin to see all hope of disuniting them vanish, and 19th of March, 1854, the steamship City of are gradually abandoning their ground, and are disposed to make concessions on vital points hitherto contested. -THE WAR. The Moniteur announces that, on the 29th of Feb., a conference was held at the Traktir Bridge, between the chiefs of the allied armies and General Tutchineff, delegated by the Commander-in-chief of the Russian army .--It was decided there should be a complete suspension of hostilities until March 31st. It is stated positively that no prolongation of the armistice beyond the 31st of March will be listened to. The Times Marseilles correspondent confirms the statement already made as to the great numbers of French troops in hospital, and add that it is believed that typhus fever was taken by the troops who first entered Sebastopol, and subsequently spread through the camp. The British commanders were pushing forward the preparations for an expedition into Asia. Fort St. Paul has been destroyed, and the Quarantine Fort has been mined. Opening of Navigation, &c. - This long wished for event has at last arrived. The ice in the creek could not maintain its ascendency over the high tides and winds and mild days of the past week. The memory of the The steamship Quaker City, which sailed increased impetus to business which is everyforces, and are pushing the work left unfinmaterially reduced, so much so that considerable quantities have been brought from Philadelphia by land; but the merchants have already been at work laying in their stock of spring goods in order to be ready at the earliest moment to gratify the wants of buyers .-Every steamer comes loaded with bales, boxes and barrels in large quantities, and from present indications it is fair to presume the quantity, quality and style of the spring goods brought to this market will exceed that of any previous year. Many of the farmers have more than half of their last year's crop to get to market, which, together with the lateness of the Spring promises to make them unusually busy. The hearts of the poor will leap for joy at the opening of navigation and approach of Spring, while reflecting that it has given them the means of supplying the scany board, and that the chilling wind has become the balmy breeze to fan their brows when engaged in their accustomed pursuits. In short, every one seems to be delighted with the presence of Spring, and many appear to have gained renewed vigor, during this long winter of comparative inactivity, to engage in the affairs of the busy world.

> The Fate of the Pacific. - The N. Y. Courer and Enquirer publishes a diagram showing the position of the ice fields in the Atlantic as reported by various steamers, and arrives at the conclusion that the Pacific "dashel against this icy barrier with impetuous speed, and that destruction was the result." The article contains the following passage.

Whether living or dead we cast no word of reproach against Capt. Asa Eldridge, the commander of the Pacific. If, in spirit of emulation, he exposed his ship and his life to hazard, he only did as they have done who in his profession are everywhere regarded as paterns of prudence and ability. Capt. Judkins, of the Persia, escaped narrowly. Capt. Lines of the Arago, struck heavily on ice .-Capt. Stone of the Arabia, was exposed to imminent peril from contact with ice. While Capt. Comstock, of the Baltic, and Capt. West of the Atlantie, were in positions which caused them the gravest apprehension. On the 11th of March, 1841, the steamship President sailed from N. Y. with 30 pasthat year ice was several times reported, and the belief is general that she was destroyed by an enormous encounter with ice. On the will be hung at city prices.
