From the Jersey Blue. WHEN IS THE TIME TO DIE?

BY MRS. SARAH S. SOCWELL.

Not now, cried the rosy, gleeful child; As she tossed back her floating hair, And bounded away with a happy laugh, To gather the flowers fair.

Not yet, said the maiden, for hope and love Had made her young heart their home; And the gilded future was full of joy, For ske dreamed not of serrows to come Not yet, the young mother sadly sighed,

And her soft eyes filled with tears, As she gazed on her lovely, sleeping child, With all a fond mother's fears, Not now, the gray-gaired miser said, As he counted his glittering gold;

And his wealth could not be told. Not yet, cried one in manhood's prime, With step and bearing high; In whose heart were dreams of wealth and fame:

For his heart was chained to this grovelling earth

Not now is the time to die! But years passed on, and changes cauc, And the merry, playful child Had drained the dregs of life's bitter cup,

And hope had flown from the maiden's breast, And hushed was leve's syren tone; So her eyes grew dim, and her fair cheel, paled, Till death claimed her for his own.

And the mother gave, with grief and tears, Her children young and fair,

To dwell in the glorious fatherland, And she longed to meet them there. The miser's glittering wealth had flown, And he begged from door to door; And want and care had bowed his soul, Till he shunned stern death no more.

And sickness, and pain, and keen distress, Had laid the strong man low; And the golden dreams of wealth and fame, Had proved but an empty show. Shiloh, Camberland Co., N. J., 1856.

_____ FIRMNESS.

Well, let him go, and let him stay-I'do not mean to die; I guess he'll find that I can live Without him, if I try. He thought to frighten me, with frowns So terrible and black-He'll stay away a thousand years Before I ask him back!

He said that I had acted wrong, And foolishly, beside; I won't forgive him, after that-I wouldn't if I died; If I was wrong, what right had he To be so cross with me? I know I'm not an angel, quite-I dont pretend to be.

He had another sweetheart, once; And now, when we fall out, He always says sur was not cross, And that she didn't pout.

It is enough to vex a saint-Its more than I can bear; I wish that other girl of his, Was-well, I don't care where!

He thinks that she was pretty, too-Was beautiful as good; I wonder if she'd get him back Again, now, if she could? I know she would, and there she is-She lives almost in sight;

And now; its after nine o'clock-Perhaps he's there to-night! I'd almost write to him to come But, then, I've said I won't; I do not care so much, but she Shan't have him if I don't. Besides I know that I was wrong, And he was in the right; I guess I'll tell him so-and then-I wish he'd come to-night!

Profits of Fruit-Growing .- At the recent meeting of the fruit growers of Wes ern New York, held at Rochester, it was the universal testimony, that the product of apples is more remunerative than any other crop raised in that section. Several testified to the realization of from $100 to $150 per acre for apples. A gentleman from Oswego said it was the estimate of the fruit committee in that county, that one acre devoted to fruit was equal to twelve with any other crop.

The Rev. Dr. Croly on Newspapers.

The newspaper, the most influential of all numan works, is the creation of printing. It has, like all the works of man, occasional imperfections, and perhaps the most prominent are its too minute details of offences against public purity. But there is scarcely a newspaper in this age which would not have been regarded as a triumph of ability in the last. In fact, the newspaper is the great practical teacher of the people. Its constant and universal teaching alone accounts for the superior intelligence of our population. Schools, lecture rooms, and universities, important as of No. 2 before the weed on his hat loses its they all are, altogether fall behind it in public first gloss. One man locked up his groggery, determined to keep them out; but finding resolute and unflinching, he finally unlocked it again, to save them the trouble of breaking the door in, then stood and watched them turn his liquors out; and when they had finished, he jumped upon the counter and proposed three cheers for the ladies, after which he made them a short speech, and declared that he would never sell any more intoxicating drinks as long as he lived in Farmington. We hope he will be as good as his word, and that the ladies will see that all the rest do likewise. GEOLOGY OF NEW JERSEY.

The Geological Survey of the State, according to the report of Dr. Wm. Kitchell to the last Legislature, is being conducted on an extensive scale. Not only are the topographical and geological features of the country to be accurately and minutely represented. but it is also proposed to describe the internal | audience. improvements of the State, together with all the available methods of opening up, and developing every portion of it. Such a work if completed, with the ability with which it now seems to be prosecuted, will form an important and essential part of the library of its annual session at Millville, commencing every citizen. To make the valuable knowl. on Tuesday afternoon, next. cege thus obtained accessible to all portions of the State, it is proposed to prepare the maps and cuts, with the reports of each county seperately, and to issue them as fast as the survey of each is completed.

In addition to the reports of each corps of surveyors, the report presented to the Legislature is beautifully embellished with views of prominent or interesting scenery, illustrative of matters of local interest, the formation and deposits of the ore in iron mines, the manner of working them-the depth and character of the different marl beds, with the analysis of the different marks—views of cedar swamps, with the method of mining and working the logs that have lain buried for ages, and accompanied by maps showing the various, completed and projected railroad routes through the State. The physical features of the country | toric Studies. are dwelt upon, the ranges of mountain chains and highlands, with their modification of climate, temperature &c. The total area of the State is estimated at 4.960,565 acres, of which only 1,767,991 acres are improved; leaving nearly threefourths of the State uncultivated though lying near the vicinity of two of the best markets | fallible. in the Union. The consumption of iron, already immense, is rapidly extending yearly, and must naturally seek its supply where the richest and nurest ores are to be obtained, in connection with facilities for working them. The proximity of the immense coal fields of Pennsylvania, with the purity of the ores found in New Jersey, will enable them to be worked in successful competition with any others, whenever the prejudices against the State shall have been overcome and they become sufficiently known to invite capital to them. Those now in operation though worked but a few years, are extensively known among iron merchants; for the excellent metal produced. Besides the various mines of iron ore, zinc, limestone, building stone &c., the establishing a library of Historic and other State is traversed in different directions by beds of marl and clay, whose extent is at present unknown, and which this survey is designed to bring into general knowledge. In all parts of the state, but more particularly in the northern section, thousands of streams flow down the hill sides either entirely unemployed, or but very partially used, and which could with the proper investment of capital, furnish profitable employment to thousands. of men, and millions of capital. While the soil under proper cultivation aided by the light of chemistry, is fully able to sustain a dense population, and at the same time supply the markets of the adjacent cities with their choicest luxuries. Unsurpassed on this continent in location, with a farming soil and climate, an amount and variety of mineral and agricultural wealth, within her own boundaries in proportion to her area not exceeded by any State in the Union, and needing only a wise and judicious Legislative policy to develop her resources, New Jersey must continue to rank among the most valuable agricultural and mineral portions of the country.-We have no hesitation in predicting that the researches of the Geological Survey of the State will form one of the most important eras in her eventful history. The impartial reader must ultimately become convinced. that she has hitherto been much misunderstood and misrepresented. We shall recur

to the lower section of the State.

LECTURE.

REV. S. B. JONES, delivered his lecture of The Proper Method and True Value of Historical Studies,"-before the Bridgeton Lycoum, on Tuesday evening last. The Hall was filled with a respectable and unusually attentive audience. We will not attempt to give our readers more than a brief outline of the Lecture. It was one of the best of the course-well composed, and delivered in the Author's chaste and elegant diction.

The following are simply the heads, under each of which, the speaker gave utterance to many valuable and beautiful thoughts, in an eloquent and logical manner:

New Jersey M. E. Conference.

Newark, April 9, 1856. The 20th session of the N. J. Annual Con ference of the M. E. Church, assembled this morning at 9 o'clock, in the Broad st. Church. Bishop Matthew Simpson presided, who addressed the conference. The Secretary of the last Conference then called the roll, and a very large majority of the members answered to their names. Four have died during the year. - Curtis Talley, Wm. V. Darrow, Jas. H. Primrose and Samuel W. Wood. Jefferson Lewis, Secretary of the Conference for a number of years past, was unanimously reelected. W. H. Bakewell, of the Wesleyan Conference, was then introduced. Samuel M. Hudson, B. B. Woolston and others were elected to Elders' orders.

A large number of visitors were present.

We are indebted to the Principal of the New Jersey State Normal School, Mr. Wm. A. E. Swinney, E. S. Wallen, and W. G. F. PHELPS, for a copy of the "First Annual Brooks, caused universal applause; in which Report and accompanying documents of the a student attempted to beat into the head of to the subject again with particular reference Board of Trustees of the New Jersey State a crusty old farmer, the idea that the world

New Lumber Yard.

The rapid increase of buildings in our Commerce Street charge, left our town on town for the last few years has created a large demand for lumber and other building material, as well as furnishing employment for many mechanics who would otherwise have to seek for it in more thriving locations.

Believing that the present and future de- antepart was the College Scene, and for its mand will warrant an increased supply, tian fellowship. A deep regret is felt by the Messrs. Martin Bowen & Elmer G. Recap have opened a new Lumber yard on the low-citizens, at the dissolution which, as a wharf adjoining R. G. Brewster's Storchouse, worthy deacon of a sister church remarked, where they will soon be prepared to furnish on the most reasonable terms, Lumber of every description for building, to all who may give them a call. One of these gentlemen being a carpenter by trade and successfully engaged for many years as a builder, and the parting song,' and pronouncing the benedicother a thorough business man at whatever he undertakes, our present efficient Lumbermen will find the new firm to be a rival that will cause them to use all their former well directed efforts to secure the public patronage. We hope they may all do a rushing business. Messrs. Bowen & Rocap are now receiving their new stock of Lumber and our readers will soon have an opportunity of secing their advertisement.

Fruit and Ornamental Trees-The unusual and almost unprecedented severity of the past Winter has caused the destruction of vast numbers of plants which have heretofore remained unharmed by the the wintery blast, it therefore becomes these who have thus suffered, and others who have neglected until the present time, to supply themselves with plants such as will not only gratify their own tase, but prove a permanent blessing to others; to commence the work at once. Now is the time to replant shrubbery, fruit and ornamental trees &c , and we know of no place in this section of country, where a | and A. B. Frasce, General Superintendent of arger or more select variety of Fruit and Or. | the Camden and Philadelphia Steamboat Fernamental Trees can be had than at the nurseries of Mr. David Petit, near Salem. Ilis catalogue with prices annexed, will be found n another column, and we would urge upon our readers, especially farmers, the importance of an early application to Mr. P. for a supply of such trees as they wish. No better investment for a farmer than the right kind of fruit trees, such as may be purchased on reasonable terms, without any danger of being deceived, in the kind ordered from Mr. David Petit,

Then followed several orations and dialogues, among which we noticed one entitled, " How to tell Bad News," which I am sorry to say, that all the world, and Jerseymen too, know how to tell to perfection. An excellent essay was delivered by Wm. G. Brooks, his subject was "Woman;" and how truthfully did he delineate woman's high and noble character, without whom, man's existence here below would be a dreary scene. An oration delivered by F. Huster, plainly showed the great deficiency in our Common School system, viz:—a want of interest taken by parents, school committees, and those to the pump, and the air is forced through whom duty compels to act in the cause, in | in such quatities as the diver may desire, carrying forward this mighty work, and in hose itself. educating the rising generation in the various

But I do not mean to intimate that the exercises were dry and uninteresting; far from it, they were lively and amusing, intermingled with genuine wit, and the dialogues were acted out so well, as to cause the risibility of the people to be excited to a very high pitch, and at the close of some of the more humorous pieces, such as stamping of feet and clapping of hands as those sombre walls never witnessed before.

Pie Cherry-15 cents, Crawford's Late Free,

The first session of this association was held at Brown's Hall, in this town, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of last week. ed and plaid silks of the newest patterns; als The exercises connected with the convention The exercises connected with the convention nice plain silks of different colors; black watered were of the most interesting and entertaining silks for mantillas; a splendid assortment of real character. They wers conducted by Profs. Root and Loomis, of New York, assisted by T. E. Perkins, of Salem. Prof. Root treated upon the science of the divine art in its several departments, but confined his remarks more particularly to church music. They were eminently practical and much needed in this community, and will doubtless be buff, orange, tan and drab, of the nicest qualities adopted by the choirs of the various churches and best makes. of the place. The Cumberland County Musical Association was largely represented by members of both sexes who took a lively inentertained at the houses of the members of the Salem Association, which were thrown was given in the First Baptist Church. The cts. yard. pieces selected for the occasion, composed of quartetts, solos, choruses, &c., were sung in a most beautiful and artistic manner, to the delight of the large audience. The iniation fees and receipts of the concert were such as and plaid muslins, brilliants plain, white and colto warrant the officers in stating that monthly meetings of the convention would be held, and that in September next, another would take place similar to the one held last week. This must certainly be gratifying to the lovers of music, and it is to be hoped that the interest awakened will be kept alive until music shall have arrived at such a state of proficieney here that it will be made the boast and pride of the place. - Salem Standard.

Shall we Have the State Agricultural Fair in Newark?-A meeting will be held in this city, at Library Hall, on Thursday evening next, for the purpose of taking some action to secure the location of the next State Fair in Newark. As we have already stated, the Executive Committee of the State Society have decided to hold the Fair in this city, provided our citizens will raise a sufficient amount to cover the expense of erecting stands, stalls, &c. The expense of this department of the last Fair, held at Camden, was some $2,300, but here it will probably reach $3,000, owing to the advanced price of lumber and other materials. The expense of the police force, salary of clarks, &c., last year amounted to 500 or 600 dollars, and the cost of preparing the herse track was 300.-The sum of 4,000 dollars would probably be sufficient to cover all these expenses; and that amount we hope to see contributed with alactages that would accrue from having the Fair would have an excellent opportunity to bring their goods prominently before the public; April 5, 1856. our artizans would be enabled, while displaying specimens of their own handicraft, to gather knowledge and new and valuable ideas in the examination of the works of others; and in every respect, indeed, good would result. The State Society are very anxious to make the next Fair equal to the best-and as citizens of the leading city of the State, we should take pride in aiding in this praiseworthy enterprise. We trust that the meeting on Thursday evening next will be largely attended, and that 4,000 or 5,000 dollars will following, when the Executive Committee shall come together, the location of the Fair may be immediately determined. -----

Two Sessions in a year: each Session two quarters. Students are received at any time; but they should, if possible, he present promptly at the beginning, when the classes are organized.

In the study of the English, Latin and Greek, special prominence is given to analysis and derivation, or, more properly, comparison of languages; and from these and other sources aid is drawn, to render youth accurate thinkers, and good readers, speakers and composers. Whether the branch pursued belongs to Language, Mathematics, or some other department of knowledge, the principle acted upon is that the great object is not mere progress, which after all, may be blind, but intellectualized. al and moral development and improvement. Young gentlemen boarding, find a home with the Principal in the Institution Terms $80, (with washing $85) per session of half a year. The semi-annual Session will open on Thursday, the 1st of May. For further information, by Circular or otherwise, address the Principal, or Rev. S. B. JONES, D. D., or Dr. WILLIAM ELMER,
