There are never more than a pair, or two at most, in a neighborhood of five or six miles in extent. A year or two ago, there came among us an Indian chief, from the tribe of the Delawares, which now make their home somewhere at the head waters of the lakes, who destroyed many of our eagles to obtain their feathers, with which to adorn his head. On Wednesday afternoon last, we were startled at the sound of a steam whistle. Our readers John Powell, would be surprised if we were to inform them that a Steamboat had commenced her regular trips between this place and Philadelphia. There is no such good news at present to communicate. The fact that a Steam Tug made her way up our long | Fithian S. Parvin, and crooked creck on Wednesday last will not be doubted. Her shrill whistle attracted the attention of a large crowd, and the barefoot boys kicked up a dust in their race to the wharves to get a sight of the welcome visitor. She brought five rafts of Lumber, principally scantling, for H. J. Mulford & Bro., which was left at their Lumber Yard below the town. First Day Evening, May 4th. The people of Shiloh and vicinity were fa rored with an address upon the subject of Cemperance, by Mr. F. Devereux, the State Agent; the audience was small, owing perhaps to the fact that it is a busy time of the year among our Farmers, and when night comes they feel too fatigued to leave their comfortable firesides. To all such we would say, you lost a rich treat. Mr. Devereux is a pleasant speake, but his facts deduced from observation relative to the rum condition of our State are peculiarly interesting; he is whole souled in his cause, feels deeply aud labors diligently for bleeding humanity, yes he has labored, he does, and God preserving nuisance, being the butcher shop or slaught- his life, we trust will continue to labor in a er house on pearl street. There is considerable activity in English politics just at present. Lord Palmerston had called a meeting of his supporters, and servatives, had in like manner summoned a meetings of the heads of that party to deliberate on their respective tactics. Both meetings were held on Monday the 28th. It had been previously understood by outsiders, that Mr. Whiteside's motion of censure respecting the fall of Kars, was to be made the test of strength, and that if the ministry were beaten they would resign. Subsequently to the meetings, however, it was whispered that the opposition were not so unanimous as to ensure them a strong majority, and they would not

Loss of Schooner Elizabeth H. Diverty. Philadelphia, April 25, 1856. Mr.JESSE H. DIVERTY:-It is with painful feeling that I am compelled to announce to you the loss of your schooner, the Elizabeth H. Diverty. The particulars of the dis-aster are briefly these:

On Friday, 18th inst., I left Cape May, bound for Lynn, Mass., with a light breeze to the westward. It hauled southerly, and so continued until about three o'clock on the Sunday following, off Montaug, when it shifted to the northeast and blew a perfect gale I hung her at it, until six o'clock in the evening, trying to beat into Montaug, but finding it impossible, hove her to under double reef mainsal and three reef foresail. Finding that the gale increased, at eight o'clock took in foresail, and kept her lying to under two reef mainsail, until the following at eight o'clock, when the seas washed her so badly was compelled to wear ship and scud her under three reef foresail. Soon after broke fore boom and gaft, but still continued scudding under jib. We shipped such tremendous seas, we were obliged to knock away her bulwarks in order to free her. We scudded as long as we dared, when about three o'clock reef mainsail, and she appeared to lie so casy that we ventured below to get something to eat, not having had a mouthful since the commencement of the gale. While below, a heavy sea swept over her, and striking in the sail, broke the boom, knocked her on her beam ends, and shifted her cargo. We then scudded her under the head of the jib, about two hours, with her starboard rail entirely under. At this time shipped another heavy sea which staved in the cabin doors, started the house about half an inch, made a clean sweep of the decks, knocked the boat from the davits, and washed me from the wheel. I saved myself from going overboad by catching the lead line which lay close by. We also managed to secure the boat, and hauled her on deck slightly damaged.

· The vessel was now entirely unmanageable seas making a clean breach over her, and deeming it impossible to save her as sho was settling rapidly, we signalled a schooner which was lying to in sight of us, for relief. They discovered the signal, and stool for us immediately. She proved to be the Silas Wright, Captain Glidar, of Rockland. We attempted to launch our boat for the purpose of boarding ber, but in doing so, she was dashed to fragments by the force of the waves. Seeing this, Captain Glidan launched his own boat, but could induce none of his men to get in her. He then in attempting to run close enough to throw us a line, brought the vessels in contact, when Captain Foster and myself jumped on board, but before the balance of the crew, who were forward, could get on board, the vessels swung apart; but we managed to save them by throwing them lines, and dragging them through the water on board. One poor fellow, after a complete ducking, came up with the line in his mouth. About thirty minutes elapsed after leaving her, when she disappeared beneath the waves. We saved nothing but what we stood in, which does not amount to much, I assure you. It will doubtless prove melancholy news to to settle the account, without delay you, as I believe you were not insured, and I assure you that it is an unpleasant task for me to write the news. But I have a conscime to write the news. But I have a conscientious conviction that all on board did all that the Vendue is now open and the Spring that could possibly be done to save her, and in view of our narrow escape from a watery grive, I consider that we have all great cause to thank a kind Providence that is no worse

Too much cannot be said in praise of the noble-hearted Captain, who risked his own life and property to save those who were entire strangers to him. All who are acquainted with such matters, will readily perceive the imminent peril in which he placed his life and vessel, in running close along side a wreck, while in the midst of a terrific gale. It was an undertaking, the danger of which a stout heart might well shrink from, and his conduct on this occasion is ample proof that he was no stranger to the manly traits which characterize a hero and a true sailor. And doubtless every man of us saved from the illfated vessel will cherish, as leng as he lives, the memory of Captain Glidan, his kind lady who was aboard at the time, and his gallant crew, who all treated us with the greatest kindness until we landed in Boston, where we were furnished with free tickets to this with us.

It is a bad job for me. I feel that I am completely broken up, and have not the heart to come home now. You will therefore please show this letter to my wife. I shall ship off as soon as I can get a berth.

I hope that no blame will be attached to any of us. I performed my duty to the best of my ability, and I believe all on board did the same. We stuck to her until the choice was left us of abandoning her, or going down with her, and had there been no vessel near us, probably not one would have been left to tell the sad tale. Truly yours, STEPHEN HAGAN,

Late Master of Schooner E. A. Diverty.

Eggs-Traordinary .- The French practical philosophers certainly know how to make the most of things. The rats of Paris supply the ladies with gloves if not with mince pies; and a Mons de Sora has recently discovered the secret of making hens lay eggs every day in the year. He feeds them on horse flesh; and obtains his supply of 25 to 30 a day among the used up backs of the city. His Hennery, a few miles out of of Paris, has furnished about forty-thousand dozen of eggs a week, at the of a rate of a little over a cent a piece, yielding the proprietor for every seven days the round sum of 5000 dollars, or 260,000 a year. He employs about 100 persons, mostly females, and his entire expenses are only about 75,000 dollars a year, leaving bim the handsome balance of 180,-000 dollars profit. He never allows a hen to set, and all his chickens are hatched by steam. The eggs are arranged upon shelves and covered with blankets, and each morning a swarm of chickens is taken to the nursery. Here is a hint for some poor farmer to make a fortune.

A new telegraph line is about to be established between New York and the South, running through this State, three cables for which were laid yesterday—the first at the Narrows, from a point north of Fort Hamilton, Long Island, to a point on the north side of Port Richmond, Staten Island; the second at Hurl Gate, between the ferry slips; and the third at the Kills, between the steamboat wharf at Bergen Point, N. J., to Port Richmond, Staten Island. When this line is completed, direct communication between New York, Astoria, Williamsburg, Brooklyn, Fort Hamilton, Staten Island, Jersey City, Elizabethtown, Poylestown, Morristown and Philadhlphia, will be established. The line will be worked under the Hugeh spatent, generally believed to be superior to all others, printing the messages in plain Roman letters, and capable of transmitting 5,000 words an hour over one wire, or 2,500 words from each end at the same moment .- Newark Daily Ad-

Look Out for Your Horses. R. George McMinn, the well known Horse Shoer, wishes to inform his friends and the Patent System of Writing.

Every one his own Teacher! ACLAURIN'S Patent System of Writing Patented by U. S. Government, Feb. 14, at $31 a barrel or $25 a ton (discount to dealers). in a set of Books. Price $2 00 per sett .-One set can be used by a dozon Learners. Sent by mail, prepaid, to any part of the Union, on receipt of the price. Schools and dealers supplied on liberal terms. This perfectly original and novel system of instruction (and the only one ever patented) puts it in the power of every man, woman and child in the country to become without the aid of a master an accomplished writer. By any other known process, none but persons having a special faculty or natural talent for writing acquire great profi-ciency, while by this system the ability is insured to all to obtain the highest possible combination of correctness and rapidity.

A pamphlet, containing full explanations & directions, will accompany each set of books; outlee pamphlet will be sent to any address, without charge, on receipt of a postage stamp. The ablest educationists in the country have given the subject a very thorough examination, and have expressed their confidence in the all-sufficiency of the system.

Extracts from the many testimonials in possession of the Patentee.

From James N. McElligott, L. L. D .:-"The pupil is compelled to unite in his practice correctness of form with rapidity of execution. These, as is well known, are the capital requisites in the formation of a good penman, and it is the crowning feature of Mr. MacLaurin's system, that they come out of the practice involved in his course of exercises by a sort of natural necessity. Bertram Harrison, E.q., Principal of Bancroft Institute, says: · I think it far superior to all other methods, and destined to acquire a wide and deserved pop-

Mr. Charles Condert says:

"A mere examination of the work is sufficient to convince the most superficial observer that it must be what it purports"

From John W. Balkley, Esq., Superintendent of Common Schools in the city of Brooklyn:
"I confidently recommend your system as superior to all others with which I am acquainted."

Samuel S. Randall, Esq., Superintendent of Common Schools in the city of New York, says: "I have no hesitation to saying that I regard the principles upon which it rests-the culture and development of the muscles of the hand and arm -as eminently a sound and philosophical one, and, indeed, as the only mode in which a free, easy and graceful style of penmanship can be at-

From John H. Fanning, Esq., Principal of Ward School No. 12. New York: "Your system imparts grace and freedom in fhe control and use of the pen, thus combining (what in this business age is a desideratum) correctness of form with rapidity of execution." "It is philosophical in its principles, and logical and rational in its deductions; it must accomplish, in every instance, the object it proposes to effect."-Knickerbocker. "We do but reiterate then, the opinion of the most respectable authorities, when we cordially recommend the adoption of these Patent Writing Books in our public and private schools, as well as by those who, though having passed the school going age, are yet far from satisfied with their caligraphy, confident that in each case the result will not fail to move otherwise, they desirable? will not fail to prove otherwise than desirable.
