From the Ohio Cultivator. THE QUAKER GIRL.

BY HELLEN L. BOSTWICK.

In a quaint little cottage, Near a buisy little town, Dwells a pretty Quaker maiden, Clad in sober grey and brown.

There are few flowers in the windows, And few books upon the shelf, Not a statute, nor a picture, Save the pretty maiden's self. Fashion's glitter, dance, and music, Ne'er within its walls are known. Save the merry morning warble Of one youthful voice alone.

Yet I linger-shall I tell you? Where the lowly maiden dwells, Of ner than in homes of grandeur, With their throngs of flaunting bells.

Once upon the narrow flagging, Of the dusty village street: As I walked, two ragged school boys, In fierce fight, I chanced to meet. Waiting near them, most impatient, Stood a group of haughty girls; Oh! what gathering back of flounces,

And what scornful toss of curls! At the moment, satcliel laden; Tripping on her schoolward way. Came the pretty Quaker maiden, In her spotless suit of grey.

Not a moment paused she, doubting; Balancing her good intent; Toward the angry eyed belligerents. Straight her eager steps she bent.

One soft hand upon each shoulder, Earnest eyes fixed on their own-"Thee must never strike thy brother,"

Said she in her gentlest tone. "Thee must love him and fergive him, As thyself would'st be forgiven, It will make thee like the angels,

In yon blue and happy Heaven!" And the wayward children, softening. Yielding at her sweet command,

Far along the street I watched them, Peaceful chatting, hand in hand. But the maiden's placid features,

'Neath the hood of sober grey, Wore a smile so rare and holy, Ere she turned upon her way.

That the gaudy slaves of fashion Paused to envy as they stood, Coveted that saint-like beauty, Underneath that Quaker hood. Truly called "God's children blest, The peacemakers' dwell on earth, Bearing on their forheads ever, Impress of their heavenly birth!

Capital for Young Men .- It is a consola tion for all right minded young men, that though they may not be able to command as much pecuniary capital as they would wish, to commence business themselves, yet there is a moral capital which they can have that will weigh as much as money, with persons whose opinion is worth having. And it does not take a great while to accumulate a respectable amount of this capital. It consists of truth, honesty and integrity; to which may be added decision, courage, firmness and perseverance. CRANBERRY CULTURE.

A communication in the Rural American contains hints on the cultivation of the cranherry. It says: Select a situation for your cranberry field where there is a mixture of sand, mostly of reclamed lands, such as can be made modeed to the cultivation of the cranberry; yet the

the first mentioned soil would be preferred. your soil even-then mark it out in drills. the drills five or six inches apart, hoe them slightly at first, till the roots become fastened. and afterward no other cultivation will be two or three years.

The cranberry grown by cultivation usually yields from 120 to 400 bushels an acre; its fruit is two or three times as large as the sound from harvest to harvest again. The fruit is generally gathered in September-it is gathered with wire-teeth rakes made for given. Napoleon was advancing towards the to about the 25th of May.

The Housestead, Hartford, Ct., thus speaks of the cranberry:

"Crops of it are rarely sold for less than two dollars a bushel, and the past winter has commanded readily six to eight dollars, and few could get them even at that price. There is no doubt that we have thousands of acres of poor swamp land, now not worth five dollars an acre, that might be devoted to this erop, and raise the value of the land to $200 fattened till they can hardly fly; while the during a portion if not all the year: per acre. The cranberry meadows of Natick, 000 to $1,300 to the acre, and probably pay the interest on that valuation. There is no danger of glutting the market with this fruit for many years to come. The inhabitants of Boston and New York, to say nothing of other cities, have but just begun to get a taste of eranberries, and that taste once formed is certain to create a lively demand for the article, Crops of this excellent article are reported as large as 250 bushels to the acre, though generally a bushel to the square rod is considered a large yield. During the past winter $18, $20, and $25 per barrel were paid for cranberries by our hotels. Usual price $12 to $15 per barrel.

How to Feed Your Horses .- The adult horse does not require so much of the fleshmaking principle as the young and growing animal, but he seems to require a greater variety. The adult merely requires enough to replace the waste-the wear and tear of his system. If he obtains more than this, the surplus is either excreted from the body, or else stored up within the same in the form of fat; and everybody knows that a fat horse, or a fat man, is not best adapted for a race, nor hard labor; but of all others (except those in a state of debility,)they are most subject to acute disease. With the young and growing animal the case is different. Here we require bone, muscle, and nerve. Oats, corn and pollard furnish the same. The colt obtains from its mother's milk all the elements of its own organization in a concentrated form-all that seems necessary for developing bodily proportions and hereditary traits-therefore when weaned, the colt must be furnished with the same equivalents in the form of fodder, ground oats, wheat bran and meal. It is the young and growing animal that requires our greatest attention. If our readers desire to raise colts that shall remunerate them for the trouble and expense incurred, they must feed the same, during their minority, with a liberal hand. Any neglect at this period can never be made up in after life; the ubiect will always remain lank and leanliving monuments of their master's folly, or lik globe, perfectly formed, tail and all, from ignorance, as the case may be. LABOR.

MR. EDITOR: - Notwithstanding the comaround her, apparently keeping guard with is, and will always be, a large class who demuch anxiety. It is difficult to drive them pisc such pursuits, and look with indifference—nay, almost with contempt—upon their them to labor daily for a livelihood,

There is another class who claim to entertain an honest respect for the laboring classes, and yet a little scrutiny will prove to themthe mere offspring of pity, and nearly allied to genuine contempt for labor.

Again, there are those whose early education has created and nourished a prejudice against labor, and engendered a silly pride, which prevents many from adopting an honest calling, to which they are perhaps especi- old world, and, it should be added, much of ally adapted, by having the requisite talents

After considering the geographical appear- pations are resorted to, rather than submit ment every way adapted to their inclinations, and for which they possess every qualification requisite to the fullest success.

This pride and centempt of labor: is the secret of much poverty and misery, and is the real cause of disappointment and failure to thousands, who attribute their misfortunes to everything but the true source.

Many of the disappointed and poverty-ridden aspirants after some genteel position, might have been prosperous and happy, if they had chosen at the start a sphere and occupation suited to their natures and inclinations. Now, it is asked, where is the remedy answer, first of all, let every man engaged in honest daily labor have proper respect for himself and occupation, let him feel how much better is his situation than hundreds who are out of money and employment, be-cause they cannot find the latter suited to their fastidious notions, and that while he earns an honest support for himself and family, he is justly entitled to the confidence and respect of his fellow-men in whatever station. Again, self-respect inspires the respect of others, and we believe this sentiment would form the basis of a remedy for the evils we have enumerated, more effectual in its operation and more salutary in its results, than all and orations for the dignity of labor. Why should any man be ashamed of his calling, however humble it may be, if he obtains thereby an honest livelihood, and can say in truth he owes no man anything. Such a condition is really more independent, a thousand times, than that of the man whose false motives and pride of position have involved him in debt and embarrassments which he can never surmount, and by which his very existence is made miserable. And yet, how true it is that many intelligent mechanics, engaged in lucrative occupations, seem to feel annoyed, because forsooth, the "snobby aristocracy," made up of the very bankrupts we have described, do not receive them into full favor, and put on airs of superior station. We may say again to every laboring man, and with a clear conscience take your stand among men. Avail yourself of the advantages and means of information made available the luxuries of the rich, you may enjoy all the rights and privileges of a citizen, and command the respect of your fellow-men.

Puss in Boots. - In clearing up one of the rooms at Stanwix Hall lately, a waiter discovered a cat so crowded into a boot, that it was with difficity that she could be extricated. Having got her out, the next question in order was, 'How did she get in?' This was leading to a long-winded dispute, when one of the bystanders cook up the boot, gave it a shake, and toosed a half grown rat upon the floor. The discovery of the rat solved the riddle. The rat to escape the est sushed into the boot; the cat to secure a game dinner rushed after him, and with such force that she could not back out again. THE THIRD ANNUAL EXHIBITION F the CUMBERLAND COUNTY AGRICULTURAL Society, will be held at Bridgeton, on WED-NESDAY, October 1st, 1856. REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

State Convention of the Republican party of New Jersey, will be held in the city of Trenton, on Wednesday, the 28th day of May 1856, at 11 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of nominating an electorial ticket to be supported at the ensuing election—to appoint twenty-one delegates from New Jersey to the National Republican Convention, to select candidates for President and Vice President of the United States—and to take such action in reference to State policy and local nomination as may be deemed advisable.
All those, without regard to past differences, who are opposed to the abrogation of the Missouri Compromise, and to the policy of the present Ad-ministration; who are in favor of Prohibiting Slavery in the Territories, and who believe that black slave labor should not be permitted to exclude free white industry from the United States domain; and who desire to have the action of the Federal Government restored to the principles of Washington and Jefferson, are invited to attend the Convention, and co-operate in the organization. William P. Sherman, David Ripley, C. M. K. Paulison, Elias Cook,

George S. Green, Isaac M Tucker, Philip J. Gray. State Executive Committee. May 17,-2w.

The Hon. I. D. Clawson, will accept our thanks for various public documents.

COLZA AND RAPE SEED.

The Country Gentleman of the 8th inst. contains an interesting article relative to the above named seed-its culture, uses, &c.-It states that the plants have hitherto secured but a small amount of attention in the United States. The trials which have been made and reported, are sufficient to render it probable that the more common of the two-rape, may be cultivated with advantage here, as it has been a great length of time, in England and on the Continent of Europe. More light is wanted upon the subject, and this must come mainly through carefully conducted experiments in different districts and latitudes of our own country. No more trials are needed in order to determine whether living through our rigorous winters. Christian Myers of Hopewell township in this county has been experimenting for several years past with the above named plants and has demonstrated beyond a doubt that they can be cultivataed in this section of country successfully and profitably. Notwithstanding the unusual severity of the past winter, Mr. Myers has now growing on his farm a large crop of different varieties of the plant some of the seed having been sent from the patent office at Washinington to Greenwich, from whence Mr. M. procured a variety to sow with the seed raised by himself. He informs us that from twenty to thirty bushels per acre can be produced by sowing about five quarts to the acre. The seed should be sown about August and the crop will be ready to gather the following June.

Here is an extensive field for our enterprising and progressive farmers to experiment in a production that is calculated to benefit the country and be a source of profit to themselves. The assurance that it is cultivated successively in countries where land is much higher than here, and the evidence before them that the soil of this section is adapted to the production of large crops, should be sufficient to induce formers to give it a trial. The soil should be rich and in a good state of cultivation to produce an abundant yield. It is said that the crop extracts but little from the soil, deriving its substance principally from the atmosphere and leaving the soil in a good condition for wheat or other crops requiring a high degree of fertility to produce large crops.

Colza or Rape is a plant extensively cultivated in the old country. It is cultivated principally for its seeds, which are crushed and pressed for their oil, similar to flax-seed. The cake is an excellent food for cattle and the oil is used for machinery, burning in lamps &c., and is considered far superior to other oils. The increasing consumption of all kinds of oil and the great rise in their price, render it almost a matter of necessity that some substitute for those in use should be found. The rapid decline in almost all kinds of grain should be an inducement for farmers to cultivate something more profiable.

A quantity of the Rape seed oil has been not expect any such expression of generosity tested by the Cumberland Nail and Iron for telling the truth about him, when we said Works and gave much satisfaction. Mr. he was a good salesman, a clever fellow, &c. Nichols had a quantity sown last fall as an experiment. MUSQUITOES.

These unwelcome visitors have already made their appearance in this part of the country they are a source of unusual annoyance. One of the greatest objections urged against the lower section of this State, as a place of summer residence, is the myriads of nusquitoes that infest society and almost worry the lives out of horses and cattle. Most persons in the lower part of this county and in Cape May where musquitoes abound, protect themselves during the summer months by barring their windows and doors against these "vile insects," Some invention or mode to profect cattle and horses from the injurious effects of these annoying animals would meet with much favor where musquitoes abound. Persons from the city, visiting some parts of this State, have been so annoyed and and tormented by the musquitoes, as to make their otherwise pleasant visit, quite intoleraabout New Jersey, it is said that the musquitoes in the Southern part of the State, weigh half a pound. It is strange they are not reported to weigh a pound, as that would be as easily said as an ounce and would correspond much better with other things said of Jersey, by the outsiders. The musquitoes in these diggins are large enough and nu-

In the Methodist Episcopal General Conference on Wednesday last, Dr. Wilson of Itinerancy, reported against extending the time of stationed preachers to three years .-The debate on the subject was highly interesting, and was participated in by a considerable number. Mr. Kennedy spoke in favor of the change, and moved the report be recommitted, with instructions to report in favor of an extension of two to three years. Mr. Dur bin moved to substitute for Mr. Kennedy's amendment, that the Committee be instructed to report in favor of continuing preachers for a period not exceeding three years, only when requested by the congregation and approved by the Bishop of Conference. The Eastern members are urging the change, but the Maryland, Virginia and Western members oppose it. At the hour of adjournment the question had not been decided.

The Virginia Search Law is denounced by a communication in the Baltimore American, signed "Many Captains," as particularly hard on vessels trading to Baltimore, as it is impossible for them to get to sea from that port without passing through the waters of Virginia. In case of stress of weather, they say it is impossiple to find a harbor exempt from that law, any where south of the Potomac river, or the Chesapeake bay, which is the boundary line between Maryland and Virgin-ia. Any vessel making a harbor there is tax-

"The Camels a Coming."-The camels and dromedaries purchased and otherwise procured by Major Wane, and Captain Porter, under the appropriation made for the purpose at the late session of Congress, in Asia Minor, (Feb. 11. 1856) embarked, and the vessel would sail with the first fair wind, for the U.S. The number of animals progured is thirty three; nine male and fifteen female camels, four male and Ave female dromedaries. The vessel is expected to arrive at Indianola, Texas, about the last of April, at which place they will be landed and suffered to recruit, before being employed for army transportation purposes. Several of the animales are a present from the Viceroy of Egypt to our Government.

Some of the U. S. sailors on board the ship North Carolina escape by quite a novel plan. Men approach the ship in an open boat, and hover about her until some one or more or the sailors jump overboard, when with the cry of "man overboard;" they rush upon them and take them into their boats. When hailed by the sentries and officers on board, and ordered to bring back the men, the answer is given, that they have a right to pick and low shoes; Ladies' kid and lasting gaiters, up any person in the water, and take him French morocco shoes, &c., misses and childrens' wherever is most suitable and convenient.-They then make off, and before the ship's cutter can be lowered and manned, the chase is perhaps out of sight, on its way to New York. Fifteen escaped in this manuer last
