WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

We have always been more than half inclined to what is called "Woman's Rights," but since the following case has been submitted we are noncommittal. We felt sorry for poor Josiah Wilson, but as "misery loves company," he may console himself with the fact that there are thousands of other men in the same situation. Hear him just after the marriage:

Let the whistling winds in fury blow Of coming clouds and storms foretelling: Let falling leaves and falling snow

Be capering round my little dwelling; It matters not a whit to me. My heart is light as any feather; I'll content and happy be

While I and Betsy dwell together, I find her such a loving wife, With cheeks as red as roses blooming; She is so good-so kind to me-

She speaks so pleasant and so clever, I'm sure we ne'er would disagree, If she and I should live forever. A WEEK LATER.

One week elapsed-and what a change Come over the Spirit of my dreams;

I'll have to gratify her wishes.

My Betsy's actions are so strange, No one can tell how odd it seems. She says she's "born for higher spheres Than patching clothes and washing dishes," She claims "the rights," and I have fears

She writes and reads the whole day through! And worse than all she getting jealous; Now what on earth is't best to do-What course to take will some one tell us?

ANOTHER WEEK LATER. O! for a lodge in some thick wood!

Some lonely spot I'll seek for quiet; I'll write my life, (if understood) Some mortal man may profit by it. I've been abused and knocked about-Been blown up, jawed without discretion,

And from my house she's turned me out, That I might know she claimed possession. THE LATEST.

HEREAS, my husband, JOSIAH WILSON has left my bed and board without just cause or provocation I hereby forbid all persons harboring or trusting him on my account, as I will pay no debts of his contracting.

MORAL.

HOLD THEM LOCSELY BROTHER.

So said an old man of fourscore years, as he walked over the possessions of a rich and younger brother. The walls of that great house were hung with gilded paper, and every where the decorations of gold and silver made the house seem like a palace. The old man muved along in silence-now paused before mirrors, now before paintings rare and rich: with his placed face all a glow, as he whispered in a tender manner, "Hold them loosely, brother-hold them loosely."

The old man's words were full of wisdom: in the light of eternity were they spoken, for poverty—with a heart large as the world, be- | days be spent. cause of its dearth of gold. There came no tidings of his brother's change. "Alas!" he said, "Robert has forgotten God and me," and he prayed for him to travel on alone. daily. On, still on, travelled time, robbing him of his manly strength and manly graces diming his sight and laying the silvery tints upon his brown hair, and when he was getting ready to depart, there came to him news of Robert's return. O! how that heart, laden with fourscore years, scared with the sorrows of a poor pilgrim's fate, and saddened by a sense of neglect and desolation, leaped again.
It seemed as if the vigor of his youth flowed like moltvn fire through his sluggish veins and filled them nigh to bursting.

He came—the boy of his love, of his care; a man yet young, though bearing the scars of the worldly struggle. He came, a rich man; ready to repay fourfold, as far as worldly

At last they came to one per year, in ADVANCE, or $1.25 at the end of apartment, before which the younger brother paused, turned as if about to speak, but restarting himself cautiously opened the door and watched the old man as he entered: It was filled up with plain old fashioned furniture; there was no carpet on the floor; there were rude beams overhead. Six straight backed, antique chairs stood against the wall, toghether with a table of venerable oak. An old fashioned beaufet was set in one corner; a sampler, vey much faded and enclosed in a black frame, hung between the windows, and an arm chair, whose age was over a hundred years, occupied a nook by the fire place. The old man stood in silence for a moment then reverently took off his hat. His thin lips were quivering, large tears stood in his dim blue eyes, which ever and anon he shut as if mastering some strong emotion. Then he bent forward, and resting his clasped hands upon the old chair back, he murmured, "My mother:" and there came up a sob from the depths of his aged heart; his head fell upon his hands and he wept like a child. It was very touching to see the few gray hairs flutter on his temples—and still more, as the hale and vigorous brother folded his arms about that bowed down form, mnrmuring "I must take care of you now. This is your room. Many miles have I travelled to gather together the scattered furniture that was so dear to us in the old homestead .-Strangers have sat here often since she died. but nevertheless it is mothers chair. Wel come home my brother."

It is long since the old man went to his better rest, but his words still sound in our ears, "hold them loosely, brother," and we have been tempted, how often, to exclaim, when beholding those to whom God has given great gifts or lovely possessions-"hold them loosely, brother.' You who have wealth-who never knew the body is overtasked, and yet the hard wearing and labor brings not even food enough for the hungry little children-hold that wealth loosely. It is not yours. A breath may dissolve it; the snapping of one's tender cord may send you to the shadows that lie over the graveyard. It is God's wealth-hold it with open fingers; scatter it as you go, and make many a heart sing for joy. Don't grasp it so eagerly, it is treacherous; it will mock you at the last; it will not go one step beyond the world with you; nay, it will even lavish blessings and caresses on those who have made your path thorny with urses: it will stand in its rea bar of judgementf and sneer at you for the "Hold it loosely," and you shall meet

Women are mistaken when they suppose small foot an element of beauty. A foot should bear a just proportion to the size of the figure; if too large it argues coarseness, and gives a heaviness to the manner—the person labors with a cumbrous platform beneath him, which entirely forbids ease and bigh arch; "a stream can run under the hollow grace of movement. SMALL FEET

Large feet are incompatible with genius, or the finer shades of character. They have a natural and inveterate planting to the earth, which is not favorable to the flights of fancy, or the delicate observances of sentiment. They are apt to have also, an unseemly scuff, and what country people call a "kee-chuck" sound, because of their weightiness. Such persons, also, who have large feet, are apt to wear the shoe down at the heel-in other words, to go slip-shod—a a thing unpardonaous to make.

THE BATH,

The surface of the skin is daily covered with execrations, oil, scales, salts, perspira-tion, and the like, and to maintain purity of blood and body daily ablution is required. Water removes the salts, and scap the oily execrations. If the health is good and the body full of animal, the cold tath may be used in summer, and the topid in winter. Besides answering the end of cleanliness, cold bathing exerts a tonic effect on the system, and diminishes the susceptibility of the surface of the body to the variations of temperature. But to those of feeble body, or cold flesh, and not easily warmed after the cold bath, we recommend the tepid or warm bath in its stead. Sponging the body daily with cold water is exceedingly conducive to health. If cold water alone produces too great a chillness of the surface, vinegar or salt may be added to it, in proportion of one part of vinegar to four parts of water.

The conditions of bathing are that the colder the water the shorter should be the immersion. Bathing should not be indulged in if fatigued, during the fulness of the stomach, nor after drinking stimulating liquors. Cold bathing is more beneficial when the mind is free and active-in a state of despondency the warm bath is prefcrable. All persons subject to pulmonary or rheumatic complaints should bathe once a day in either a cold, tepid or warm bath, if they desire to lengthen their

With the thermometer ranging at 90° in the shade, cool places, have been extremely many a longing desire has been cast towards the demands of business will not allow the mass of our citizens to enjoy the luxury of a all secure. The first and highest condition for the perfect enjoyment of life, is good health. To secure this through the sultry days of summer, is an important aim and attainment .-It has somehow become very common for that ubiquitous personage, everybody; to expect more sickness during a very "hot" summer, the system becomes relaxed, and is supposed | the whole system of "American Slavery." to be more susceptible to the attacks of fever diseases. The stomach and pure air are the controlling elements of health; and both, in began to disperse. By a proper degree of attention, the matters which cause impure air, such as decaving vegetable substances, can be so placed as to exert but a small influence on the atmosphere. Where the proper precautions are taken intelligently, the air should be more pure in summer than in winter, because the vast amount of carbon thrown off by anivegetation, during the warm season of the year, and thus prevented from exerting an during the summer dwellings are thrown open, and thus much better ventilated, with no consuming fires to burn the life-sustaining oxygen participation. from the atmosphere, of the closely pent rooms where the poisonous carbonic acid gas crowd in attendance, assembled in front of is inhaled again and again into the lungs - the Court House, where a procession was orexposed, to poison the atmosphere, local causes of disease will be created, and the health suffer accordingly. All fruits which by nature and cultivation have become common to the country are undoubtedly the proper food for the season in which they ripen. There is no reason for believing that fresh ripe fruit is not wholesome. because instances of sickness occasionally occur from an inordinate use of it. Such a philosophy would condemn every substance that we use as food. The danger from the use of fruit arises solely either from its unripe or improper condition, or from the superabundance of its use. It seems peculiarly adapted to the warm season of the year, because its rich juices supply to the system the fluids exhausted from it by profuse perspiration. The pores of the skin are the channels through which much of the impurity of the body is expelled. The Sixth Anniversary of Union Academy, took place on the evening of the third and morning of the fourth of July. The Evening exercises were opened by prayar, by Rev. W. B. Gillett. After singing an appropriate piece of music, the Principal, Mr. W. A. Rogers, proceeded to examine the advance Arithmetic class, by ballot. The time alloted to this class was twenty minutes, during which time, they recited nearly all the rules in Thompson's Arithmetic, with promptness and ability, and had they spoken loud enough for all to hear, I doubt whether you could find a class that understood their business better. Then followed several Orations and Essays, beaming with thoughts worthy of those who spoke them and eliciting considerable praise in their behalf, after which came the most important part of the evening entertainment, the "Colloquy," or "Dream of Ambition," which done honor to those engaged in it, for the manner in which it was spoken, and for the beauty of the whole affair, so admirably representing the changes of human life. For the West Jersey Pioncer.

BOWENTOWN, July 9, 1856. Mr. President: - Your committee appoint ed Judges, at the trial of Mowers and Reapers, which took place on the farms of Janathan Fithian and David McBride, July 7th. 1856, beg leave to submit the following report: It is with pleasure we say, that owners of stitutions of our land, the young and rising the various Machines came forward and offered them for competition, and by their gentlemanly kindness, (with few exceptions,) greatly lightened the labors of the Committee, by a disposition to accommodate and oblige us in that I was never permitted to listen to a more every way they could; for which they will re-

Your committee were on the ground at 1 clock, at which time they were ready to receive the Machines. At quarter after two, fifteen minutes before the hour set for starting, there came up a heavy shower of rain, which lasted until 4 o'clock, completely wetting the wheat and bending it down, and we had doubts whether there was one Machine on the ground that would work.

At 2 minutes past 4 o'clock, there were five

1st, Barber's short knife, 4 ft. 6 in. long, worked by Samuel M. Sheppard, with two mules, was 21 minutes in cutting its half acre. 2d. Manny's first Patent, knife 5 ft. long, worked by Thomas H. Miller's son, with two horses, was 27 minutes in cutting its half 3d, Manny's improved, knife 4 ft. 11 in. long, worked by Alfred Foster, with two 4th, Ketchum's last Patent, knife 4ft. 3 in.

long, worked by Messrs. Moore's, of Bridgeton, with two horses. 5th. McCormick's Repper, knife 5 ft. 6 in long, worked by Edwin F. Miller, with four horses, was 18 minutes in cutting the half There was also a Manny's Machine of the last improvement, brought from Salem, by Mr. Howard Sinnickson, but owing to the horses not working well, was withdrawn. Your committee would return their thanks o Mr. Sinnickson, for the trouble taken to show us the advantages of his machine. Your committee have come to the conclusion, after taking all the circumstances into consideration, the clearness of the cut and the least clogging to the knife, that Barber's Machine, worked by Samuel M. Sheppard, did the best work. McCormick's, worked by Edwin F. Miller. the second best, and Manny's improved, worked by Alfred Foster, the third best work; all the other machines did well, considering the wet state of the wheat, except Ketchum's which appeared not to be in order and was withdrawn. The machines were then changed from

Reapers to Mowers, the following time was occupied by each machine: Manny's Improved 30 seconds; Manny's first patent, 3 minutes; Keichum's 7 minutes, and Barber's, 19 While changing, another shower of rain

Your Committee think, taking the close ness and evenness of the mowing done, that Manney's Improved, worked by Alfred Foser. did the best work.

Burber's, worked by Samuel M. Sheppard, the second best, and Ketchum's first, worked by Smith Sheppard, the third best.

Ketchum's 2d patent, worked by J. Stremmy, became disarranged and was withdrawn. Manny's first patent, worked by Thomas liller's son, worked well, but owing to the arrangement of the machine, left the grass in Ketchum's last improved, being new and not properly put together, did not work well, although it cut its halfacre. Owing to incorrect driving, the time occupied in cutting a half acre could not be accuFor the West Jersey Pioneer.

MR. EDITOR:-We had the pleasure of attending a Lecture on "The Man for the Times," delivered at Millville on lust Tuesday ovening, by the Rev. A. A. Willetts of Philadelphia; one of the most pleasing and peculiar to himself, and so completely does he carry his hearers along with him, that time passes almost entirely unnoticed by them, so that when he is done, they are sur-prised to find that they have been listening to him for an hour or more, without the least sense of weariness, and they carnestly wish that he would go on for another hour at least. Without attempting to give anything like a full report of the lecture, we will state, that the Lecturer showed very clearly, that "the Han for the Times" is a man of indefatiga-ble Energy, real Intelligence, incorreptable Virtue and genuine Philanthrophy: We should love to hear this lecture repeated, in Bridgeton, for we think that no young man could listen to it attentively, without being benefitted. We must sny, in conclusion, that we were much surprised that a place so less than two hundred in all.) Those who stayed away deprived themselves of a great

SERIOUS ACCIDENT .- We understand that s Mr. Samuel Pimm and wife, of Harrisonville, in Gloucester county, were on their way to attend the Ladies' Festival at Woodstown, on the 4th of July, the bolt came out of the tongue of the carriage, and the horses took fright and ran away, very seriously injuring Mrs. Pimm, and also Mrs. Roberts, who was with them, and Mr. Plmm himself was also somewhat injured, but we believe not seriously. At the last accounts Mrs. Pimm's life

The Cape Island Excursion.

By referring to our advertising columns, it will be seen that the steamer LOGAN, Capt. J. Vance, will make an Excursion from this place on Thursday next, the 17th inst.

Every arrangement so far, has been judiciously made by those who have chartered the boat. The season is most favorable, the boat safe, fast and commodious, and can carry as large a company as ever left this place for the Island. Being fast, she will make the trip to the Island in about four hours and half, including stoppages.

She will touch at Tindall's wharf, (Fairton) and Greenwich, both going and returning. More than half a day on the Island, will be afforded to the excursionists, as the boat does not leave the Island until 6 o'clock, P. M. Coleman's Brass Band has been engaged for the occasion. With music and a moonlight night, what more can be desired than a large and pleasant company, such as will undoubtedly enjoy this healthful and pleasant recreation.

Our Correspondence.

It will be seen that we have this week not only a report of the proceedings of the fourth n Bridgeton, but we have made arrangements to secure correspondence from Millville. Shiloh, Newport, Tuckahoe, and Cape May Court House We are indebted to our friends for their kindness, and been pleased, were it possible, to have been present at all the celebrations.

THE SEA SHORE!! HEALTH, PLEASURE & SEA-BATHING!

FIRST Grand Annual Excursion to Cape Island. N compliance with a request of a large number who participated in the Excursion last year and to afford the citizens of Cumberland County and elsewhere an opportunity for pleasant and healthful recreation during the hot weather, the persons concerned have been induced to charter the new iron steamer "L O G A N!" Captain John Vance, to make a grand Excursion to Cape Island, on THURSDAY, the 17th day of July, instant, leaving the upper wharf at Bridgeton, at 6 o'clock, A. M., stopping at Fairton Landing and Greenwich both going and returning, and arrive at Cape Island about 101 o'clock.

RETURNING.—The boat will leave the Island at 6 o'clock, P. M., thus giving the excursionists over half a day on the Island where they can meet the trooping billows with their caps plumed with foam, and indulge in all the various other recreations at this celebrated place and return to Bridgeton at 101 o'clock. The tide will be high both morning and evening, and it being tull moon, will add greatly to the pleasure of the excursionists The LOGAN is a new iron steamer, having been completed last fall, and her accommodations will compare favorably with any boat on the Delaware iver. Capt. Vance, her commander, is one of the most experienced, as well as the most popular on the Delaware waters. A number of years since he traded out of the Cohansey Creek. The fare has be a placed exceedingly low, so as to afford all an opportunity to indulge in the pleasing and invigorating recreations nowhere so perfectly enjoyed as at Cape Island.

COLEMAN'S POPULAR BRASS BAND, has been engaged expressly for the occasion, and will discourse delightful music both going and returning. No exertions will be spared to render this the most pleasant excursion ever made from bridgeton; and as it is to be the only one of the season, all should make it convenient to at-
