Snake in a Prayer Meeting. Last Friday, at the usual weekly prayer meeting held in the basement of the First Congregational Church, a striped snake made its appearance under circumstances of a singular character. The meeting was held in a room from which a door opens into the base-ment of the tower in which the town clock is wound up. That door was left a little open, and soon after the meeting had commenced, the snake made his appearance .---Most singularly indeed, our worthy Descon had read the chapter which gives account of of the brazen serpent made by Moscs. He had just commenced making some remarks on the chapter, and was speaking of the scrpent being lifted up so that all the bitten Iaraelites might see him and be healed, when" the scrpent of which we are writing, made his appearance on the top of the door opening into the basement of the tower. How he crawled up there no one can tell; but there he was on top of the door, his head and about one half of his body hanging over into the room, just in the rear of the Deacon's chair, and plainly to be seen by all in the room except the speaker. The serpent on the door at once became the "observed of all observers," the young ladies present in particular watched every motion with the closest attention. As its body slowly writhed and twisted about, its forked tongue and snaky eyes glistened in the light of the prayer-room with a malicious envy, we may suppose akin to that with which the scrpent in old times gazed upon the happy and pious worshipers in the Garden of Eden. Unlike Eve, her daughters have a mortal dread of spake,-Once, too self relying, deceived, beguiled; and ruined by the wiles of a serpont, they have ever since manifested at his approach an invincible repugnance and horror. Deacon Morris, who was speaking, soon discovered that something was wrong, and the exercises were suspended till a brother could get a broom and push the snake off from the top of the door and dispose of it. The meeting was conducted as usual. - Essex County Repub.

What Shall We Have for Dinner?

Now that the warm, sultry weather relaxes the whole system, and the appetites of our dyspeptic population need a little coaxing to make them enjoy the full luxury of a dinner, the question at the head of this article becomes a sulject of daily solicitude among anzious housewives. Strong and robust constitutions, with the appetite whetted to keenness by healthful labor, can find constant enjoyment in the daily re appearance of "meat and vegetables." But to that numerous class afflicted with indigestion,-and what family but what has some among its members luboring under this affliction - something lighter and of casier digestion is required. Those who substitute rich pies and pastry for this more substantial food, not unfrequently aggravate the cvil they intend to remedy .-Plain nutritious food is what all such require. With but little attention to the subject such can be made nutritious and palatable to the most fustidious; such that after having created an appetice and satisfied its longings, will leave the system without that disagreeable sense of heaviness and oppression, resulting from eating too hearty or too rich food. We claim no right to instruct our fair readers in the duties of housewifery, in any phase of which we are not by any means an adept; but as our business is to observe, and think, and write for others, we feel that we have a right derive the proper benefit from it; because then it goes to perform it proper function, to satisfy the cravings of hunger, and mingle its rich juices with the other food to assist it in strengthening the system.

The Rev. WM. E. CORNWELL, who for the last four years has been the pastor of the Baptist Church of this town, having received unanimous call to the pastorate of the Bantist Church at Princeton, N. J., and believing it his duty to accept said call, preached his farewell discourse to the people of his late charge, on last Subbath evening. The discourse was founded on John 14 30, 'Hereafter I will not talk much with you." The speaker, in making an application of the subject to himself, and the people of whom he was taking his farewell, gave some statistics of his labors, which we have thought might be inserted in our columns for the bencfit of at least two classes of persons: 1st. Those who think ministers have no thing to do. 2d. That other ministers may be encouraged to be, " in labors more abundant."

The Speaker said, "during the four years of my ministry with this Church, I have preached in this house and the Lecture room 648 times. I have preached in the School houses and other places in the neighborhood one hundred times. I have officiated at sixtyeight funerals, at forty of which I have preached regular sermons, making the whole number of sermons preached during my ministry with you 783.
