Oh! Would that I'd Been Born a Boy!

BY BELLER THORN.

Oh! would that I'd been born a boy, How happy I would be; I'd be the envy of the men, The girls should worship me. I'd wear a very graceful hat, Not a stove pipe affair; And from beneath its brim should flow Rich waves of dark brown hair. I wouldn't be a fop you know, For fops I do despise; But dress with style and taste enough, To please the ladies' eyes. Whene'er I felt the "melting mood," To Laura Keene's I'd go; For! blest thought of Liberty, I shouldn't need a beau.

I'd have a night key-that I would, And I'd go out and in Without a dozen folks to ask "Why, Belle, where have you been?" I wouldn't drink, or chew, or swear; I wouldn't-yes I would, I'd smoke cigars, provided I Could always get them good. For "cousins"-nothing more; And then I'd have a dear brunette, A darling I'd adore.

A darling melting black-eyed love. A teasing hugging elf, With yielding charms and round white arms; A dear-just like myself.

I'd never slander women, No! "I'd never kiss and tell;" And there's some fellows in this town, Oh!-wouldn't I thrash 'm well!

She should reject that which seems paid to the mere material combinations of form, color, style and elegance, and learn to value only the far more flattering tribute which seems called forth from a just appreciation of those noble and tender qualities of the mind, whose intrinsic beauty neither plain features nor an ill-dressed figure run about all night; winter comes, they go to can destroy. This discrimination would tend to crush vanity and conceit; coquetting, with its selfish heartlessness; and the many frivolous cravings after beauty, all of which arise from a wrongly based ambition. The impress of these vicious sentiments defeat their object; the temper becomes sour and irritable, the expression of the features at once silly and anxious, and the mind degenerates into a state approaching depravity.

The Amount of Rain Falling Yearly

The recent drought, says the Philadelphia Daily Times, has naturally suggested the inquiry whether with all our ingenious inventions and wonderful improvements we should not be without interest to our readers.

On an average, there falls annually in rain and snow, on a space of ten miles square (taking for example Philadelphia as the centre,) an amount of water sufficient to fill a reservoir one mile square and 370 feet deep, or enough to fill a reservoir half a mile square, and 1,480 feet (more than a quarter of a mile!) in depth. This is rather more than 370 million cubic yards, or seventy-four billions gallons.

Again, there falls in rain and snow in the State of Pennsylvania every year, as much water as would fill a reservoir 460 miles long, one mile wide, and 370 feet deep. This is equivalent to above thirty-two cubic miles of water, or 38,491 billions of gallons.

Again, supposing, the same number of inches of rain, on an average, to fall in all parts of the United States as in Pennsylvania, the annual aggregate of rain in the entire works are capable of raising twelve millions of gallons in twenty hours. They do not, eight millions per day. Assuming the daily quantity at eight millions, it would at this rate require 9250 days, or more than twenty-five years for those works to raise as much water as on an average falls every year in the small space of ten miles square. More than eleven thousand years would be necessary in order to raise as much water as falls annually in the State of Pennsylvania, while more than seven hundred thousand years would be required in order to raise a quantity as great as falls every year in the territory of the United

A cubic mile of water is a short and simple phrase, easily written and qickly spoken, but the difficulty is for anyhuman mind to form an adequate idea of it. Suppose a man to dip from one vessel to another a gallon at a time—he could not, under the most; favorable circumstances, average more than a gallon in two seconds, or thirty gallons per minutesnow, if he should work at this rate night and day without the slightest intermission. it would require more than seventy thousand years to dip out the number of gallons contained in a cubic mile.

In order, however, to form any just idea, of the inimitable grandeur on which Nature conducts her operations, we must bear in mind, that the water which she designs for the refreshing of the earth, she raises, not like our artificial water-works, merely one, That is promising more than you may be willing to perform. But to break the ice at to supply to every animal or vegetable existing on the face of the earth-from 13,000 to 14, 000 feet for some of the mining districts of South America, and not less than 16.000 feet for the highest inhabited region of Thi-The foregoing calculations may be relied

EAST POINT. Many of our readers who live within a few miles of this desirable watering place, are not aware that there is such a place in the counry. They have heard of East Point, and perhaps many years since, visited the place, but of late they know but little about it. In fact, we were very agreeably surprised a few days since in visiting the above named place. It had never been made known to us that such a beautiful and attractive watering place could be found this side of Cape Island. It is only about twenty-three miles distant from Bridgeton, fifteen miles from Millville, and ten miles below Egg Island light house. The Hotel is built upon an elevation a few hundred yards from Maurice River Cove, and within a few yards of East Point light house, a more desirable spot could not be selected. The Hotel was built a few years since by Mr. Jeremiah F. Zanc, who has employed an accommodating and capable person to take charge of it the present season. On our arrival at the place about 11 o'clock, A. M., we were recived by the host in a polite manner and had the pleasure of meeting with a company of about twenty males and females from article. It is not uncommon to see (at busy times among the farmers, the ladies young and old) coming in town with their butter and eggs, and returning with a supply of dry goods, purchased with the proceeds of their marketing. The farmer's wives seldom leave a storckeeper in debt to them for butter and eggs, as long as there is any dry goods or groceries left in the store to trade for.

But a short time since we were admiring the proportions and speed of a farmer's hors a short distance from Bridgeton, when he in formed us that his mother, an old lady about three score years, was in the habit o driving the spirited horse to mill during the present season. When such aged persons are entrusted with spirited borses, it is extremely dangerous for boys, as is too often the case in this town, to throw stones at, or make a hallooing, calculated to frighten even a docile animal.

We are indebted to Mr. M. for furnishing us with an item from which we have been lead to make the above desultory remarks,and are gratified to know that no serious consequences followed from the runaway, for us to relate, though we must say, that at the which we might spread out into an editorial

Politics in Camden .- Politicians of all parties in this city are actively preparing for the campaign, and as their nominating conventions meet early in September, much activity is manifested; and to put their best foot foremost, by placing before the people their strongest men, appears to be their determination. For Congress, the majority of the Democracy express their preference for S. S. Garrett, Esq , late Sheriff of the county; and it is pretty generally conceded he will be the man. For the Legislature, Messrs. A. Hugg, James S. Cassady, T. B. Atkinson and D. A. Hall, are among the most prominent of those The Americans talked of in connection with the same position, we are informed, are Messrs. D. W. Belisle, Samuel Scull and W. J. Miller. The Republicans have not as yet brought any of their men prominently orward, but an open field and a fair fight will, doubtless, be the order of the day .- Times.

Teachers' Institute.

THE Teachers' Institute for Cumberland Co., will be held in Bridgeton at the Conrt House mmencing on Monday the 25th inst., at 2 o' lock P M. The exercises are to be conducted by the State Agent, John B. Thompson, Esq , assisted by other distinguished teachers Public Lectures are to be delivered on each exening during the week. All the Teachers of Cumberland County particularly, are carnestly equested to attend and participate in the exerci es. Teachers from other counties are respectfulinvited to attend and assist in the proceedings. Bridgeton, Aug. 16, 1856.

To the Teachers of Cumberland County. TOU are invited to attend the Teachers' Institute, to be held at Bridgeton, in the County

Cumberland, during the week, commencing ugust 25th of the present year. A Teachers' Institute is an assemblage of Teachers for improvement in the studies they are to teach, and in the principles by which they are to govern. Its chief design is to teach Teachers hou teach. This is done by precept and by example. Under accomplished instructors. Teachers are tormed into classes, drilled in the studies they re expected to teach, and taught the best methods of imparting knowledge.

Whenever and wherever Teachers meet and interchange views respecting their business, compare aethods, suggest illustrations, discuss plans, relate incidents, and talk over the thousand and one petty, but important details of their duties, the ffect must be good. But when we add to all this that a Teachers' Institute is, besides, a model school, in which the rules of punctuality, order, diligence, attention and promptness are applied to Teachers themselves; in which all the points connected with the government, discipline, and classification of schools are examined; in which the rules and principles laid down in the text books are fully explained, and the best methods of impressing these upon the minds of children are pointed out, and from which Teachers return to heir schools with an increased fund of knowledge, with errors corrected, aims elevated, and understandings enlighted—the importance of such Institutes can hardly be over-estimated. Nothing can be further from the fact than the idea enterained by some, that the Teachers' Institute is the place for the exposition of faults, and yet it is to be feared that this idea has kept away from such meetings many who most needed the advantages to be obtained only there. The duty of preparing for whatever we underake; the rapidly advancing standard of education; the increased vigilance of Trustees in seeking out Teachers of high talents and attainments: the readiness of districts to pay higher salaries to good Teachers, the obligation to the government which provides such opportunities for improvement—all these considerations call upon every Teacher to avail himself of this opportunity for improving himself and others.

The momentous interests, public, and private. which depend upon the advancement of popular education among us, appeal to every patriot, phi-lanthropist and Christian, to lend all his influence to a measure which has proved so emineutly successful in improving the character of our schools, and awakening the interest of parents.

Every Teacher and School-officer in the county chould attend this Institute. It is provided for all. The citizens of the vicinity usually entertain the members of the Institute, and consider themselves sufficiently remunerated therefor by the good they derive from the exercises of the week. The evenings will be devoted to popular lectures on subjects connected with education. The expenses of Teachers will be so small, and the advantages so great, that it is carnestly hoped that you will do yourself and your profession the justice to attend.

Hoping to meet you at the time and place apointed, I remain, yours, in our common con JOHN B, THOMPSON, State Agent of N. J., Teachers' Association

The Queen's Speech.

The royal commission for the prorogation of Parliament was then read by the clerk at the table, after which the Lord Chancellor read the speech from the throne as follows:

"My Lords and Gentlemen - We are commanded by her Majesty to release you from further attendance in Parliament, and at the same time to express to you her warm acknowledgements for the zeal and assiduity with which you have applied yourselves to the discharge of your public duties during the

"When her Majesty met you in Parliament at the opening of the session, her Majesty was engaged, in co-operation with her allies the Emperor of the French, the King of Sardinia, and the Sultan, in an arduous war, having for its object matters of high European importance; and her Majesty appealed to your loyalty and patriotism for the necessary means to carry on that war with energy and vigor essential to success.

"You answered nobly the appeal then made to you, and her Majesty was enabled to prepare for the operations of the expected campaign naval and military forces worthy of the power and reputation of the country. " Hapily it became unnecessary to apply these forces to the purpose for which they had been destined. A treaty was concluded by which the object for which the war had been undertaken were fully attained, and an honorable peace has saved Europe from calamities of continued warfare.

"Her Majesty trusts that the benefits resulting from the peace will be extensive and during the contest, will gain strength by mutual interest in peace, those asperitics which inherently belong to conflict, will give place to the confidence and good will with which a faithful execution of engagements will inspire those who have learnt to respect each other as antagonists. "Her Majesty says that the prosperity o the nation was not naterially checked by the war, but expresses hopes that the general prosperity of her subjects will be augmented by the peace. The royal speech then proceeds to say that her majesty "is engaged in negotiations on the subject of questions in connection with affairs with Central America, arisen on those matters between her government and that of the United States may be satisfactorily adjusted."
