Never before had she heard such music; plaintive and soft, it sounded like the strings of an Ellian harp, swept by the hands of an angel. The night ingale sunk her head upon her breast, and service of their ruffian masters were placed in with her newly-found rival. Her curiosity was aroused, and she resolved to seek out the sweet throated aftranger, whose melodious like the music of whispering cherubiant. The nighingale noisiessly winged her way over the unrippled surface of the river, and guided by the sound, reached a little cove, whose waters were nearly concealed beneath a growth of lilies. Here, stretched pronoupon a mossy bank at the water's edge she found a snow-white swan, who with sorrewful eyes, was sending forth her dying song She ap prouched the singer; the swan lifted her head, now became impatient of plunder and rushed But, sir, you wished me to tell you the ic, that is, on the heigh seale. # The Canary Birds and the Cat.

Two Canary birds occupied an elegant and commodious cage, well provided with seats, water, and seed; and to all appearances they might have spent their lives in one continuous round of happiness. Both were excellent singers, and, what was surprising, neither was jealous of the other's talent; they sang in concert and none ever saw them quarrel. But on an unfortunate day, their owner suspended a ring from the top of the cage, and both Canaries, while singing, were determined to occupy this ring, because they thought it better adapted to their voices. The ring, however, was large enough for one only, and its occupation became a bitter question between them. Both strove to gain the coveted seat, and the victor announced his triumph, in a loud soug. The other, irritated by the success of his rival, flew at him, and a sharp battle ensued. A wise cat watched the combatante, with eager eye, and when they flattered near the wires, hastily thrust a paw through the bars and seized them. One she while the other eadly wounded by her claws, died soon afterwards. All this would not have happened bad both birds displayed that forbearance towards each other, so necessary

ELOQUENT EXTRACT.

We copy the following extract from a work entitled, "The Old House by the River:" "Go preach to the dead, ye who deny the immortality of the affections. Go reason with trees or bills, or images of wood, or with your own motionless, lifeless, icy souls, ye who believe that because there is no marry ing yonder, there shall be no embracing, or because we may not use the gentle words 'my wife," we may not clasp these sanctified forms in our holy arms! I tell you, man, that immortality would be a glorious cheat if with our clay died all our first affections if I could believe that when my head at length rests on its ceffin pillow, and my lips sink to the silence and repose of death, these loving eys will never look in mine again, this pure clasp never be around my neck, this holy caress never bless me more.

The difference between this year and last, is, that this year we have very little poor or damaged wheat; and last year there was very little but what was damaged. Wheat (good) is now selling from $1.00 to $1.10 per bushel. And it is probable that some crops of poor spring wheat will not command over 75 cts. Some forty years ago there resided in one of the New England States two emincut lawyers, who were bitterly opposed to cach other, especially in politics. The Episcopal Church of St. Paul, in New Haven, has in one of its towers two stones cut in the form of the clubs and the ace of diamonds devices taken from a pack of cards. The explanation given is this. The architect first employed in the crection of the building was a Deist, and a man of bitter cynical spirit. By way of burlesque, he resolved to cut the tones for structure into such figures that a huge pack of cards might appear flaming out growing younger. on the sides of the sacred structure. By means of scaffolding and other concealments, he veiled his design from the building committee till the walls were nearly carried up and his practical joke nearly played off. The discovery was at last made, and the whole structure, of course, taken down. In the course of demolition the architect fell from a scaffolding and was instantly killed. A most beautiful luxuriant woodbine mantles the present walls and nearly hides the two stones referred to, which being near the foundation of the massive tower, were suffered to remain.

The State of New Jersey is now having taken a comple topographical survey of all its territory, of which Lieutenant E. L. Viele is the engineer. It will be an exceedingly valuable work to the State when accomplished and we believe it is the first undertaking of kind, on so large a scale, in the Unite States. Separate maps will represent each county, and on them there will be given every possible topogrape cal feature, even to the smallest streams, farms, and residences. It is creditable to the State, to have ordered such a work, and, so far as finished, it is a fine specimen of taste and scientific scholar-

Teachers' Institute & Association.

During the present week our town has presented quite a city-like appearance. The State Teachers' Association, and the Cumberof the State. These gentlemen have been attending the sessions of these Associations, and taking an active part in the proceedings. --The lectures delivered in the evenings have been well attended, and as far as we are able to learn have given general satisfaction.

Teachers and others from a distance have been entertained during the week by our citizens, who always manifest a generous disposition towards those who assemble in our town for any good or praisoworthy object. Those of our citizens who have heretofore taken so active a part in the educational interest of the State, are the ones who at this time are doing most in the cause of education.-Men of wealth and influence who can have no selfish objects to attain in the education of the masses, have thrown open their doors and welcomed to their homes those who came to charge of the exercises. Salem County Teachers' Institute.

We learn from a correspondent of the Newark Daily Advertiser, that the Teachers' Institute of Salem county, closed its sitting on the 23d inst., and that the occasion was one of great interest; the members of the Institute, having entered into the various exercises with unusual spirit. The number of teachers present was about thirty. The evening lectures were well attended, by the citizens who were present, to some extent.

Lectures were delivered on Monday, Tuesdistinguished gentlemen from a distance, and that of Friday evening by Richard P. Thomp pondent further adds, that the State agent, and himself enjoyed during the week, the hospitalities of an influential member of the Society of Friends, who is a warm advocate of public education. He was agreeably surprised to find that the members of that religious body, in that vicinity, were decidedly favorable to public schools, as he had previously supposed that their peculiar views led them to regard the matter with coldness, if not aversion. The teacher who has been most active in the Institute just closed, is the principal of the Friends' School of that place. Several gentlemen well and widely known as friends of our State school system, have their residence in that ancient town; among whom are Attorney General Thompson, his brother, Dr. Thompson, one of the Trustees of the State Normal School, and Rev. Cumberland County Teachers' Institute.

The teachers of Cumberland, assembled at 2 o'clock, P. M., at the Court House, according to previous notice, and formed themselves into an Institute. In the absence of the State Agent, J. B. Thompson, Esq., who was unexpectedly called to conduct an Institute in Camden, Prof. Isaiah Peckham, day morning at 9 o'clock. Principal of the High School, Newark, took prayer, Prof. Peckham stated the object of Teachers Institutes and the happy influence they have exerted upon both teachers and public opinion, wherever engaged in, with the right spirit. O. M. Putnam, of Greenwich, and Mary A. Erricson, were appointed secretatries.

The Institute assembled regularly at 9 o'. clock, A. M., and held two sessions a day, of three hours each; thus following out the plan upon which all well regulated public schools are conducted.

The afternoon was spent in exercises of reading, penmanship and orthography, one or more intermissions, which were occupied in conversation and singing. Adjourned to cause was advancing everywhere and in some meet at 7½ o'clock, P. M.

A discussion of half an hour then took bet, after which, Prof. Peckham, Conductor, lectured on the subject of Education. He said: "It was no longer regarded the mere filling up of the mind with so much spelling, cading and arithmetic, but it consisted, as the word indicates, in the developement of the whole being-the moral, the intellectual and physical being. > The State agent submitted to the consideration of the Institute his method of teaching the alphabet, reading, spelling, writing and grammar concomitantly.

Prof. Peckham then conducted a class in geography, carrying out more elaborately his method previously submitted.

The closing exercise of the day was conducted by Prof. Sanders. He exposed the fallacy of some of the present systems of reading or elecution. Mr. Editor:-I would like to inquire of the writer of a piece signed " Pure Cold Water," in the Pioneer of the 16th inst., if he supposes that the student days of the respectable and talented Medical Practitioners of "old Cumberland," were spent in the manner he so vividly pictures, in the closing paragraph of his article. Probably he is ignorant of the fact, that

But possibly he meant to vent his spleen on some medical students who may be residents of his village; if so, he has made an awkward blunder, for there is a vast difference between a student and a regular Practitioner. I would also beg leave to inform him, that the Faculty of the present day are as much in favor of cold bathing, as he possibly can be; as all the modern standard works will show. For proof I would refer him to them, and also to an article in the "Sabbath Recorder," of last week, which is an extract from one of the Medical Periodicals of the day; and as that paper is taken in nearly every family in Shiloh, he may find it without much trouble. I should like to be informed why he pictures the medical student with a "moustache," but after graduating, he is 'beardless."

The State Savings Fund. OFFICE—Next Door to the Post Office No. 83. Dock St., Philadelphia, 1854. INTEREST FIVE PER CENT. All sums of money returned on demand.

THE State Savings Fund, No. 83 Dock Street, next door to Third Street, and adjoining the Post Office, receives money on deposit daily, from 9 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon; also Monday evenings, from 7 to 9 o'clock. Interest s'allowed on depesits at the rate of five per cent persannum. Deposits will be returned in whole or in part on demand, without notice. The popularity of this office with all classes of the community, both in town and country, and its mantillas, also a nice assortment of plain and figconsequent success, may be ascribed, in part, to the following substantial reasons: 1st. It offers a convenient, responsible, and profitable Depositovy to executors, administrators, ssignces, collectors, agents and all public offices to attorneys, trustees, societies and association whether incorporated or otherwise, to married o single ladies, to students, merchants, clerks and business men generally, to mechanics, farmers, minors of either sex, and all who have funds much or little, to deposit, where they may be had at any time with five per cent. interest added.
2d. Depositors receive books with an abstract of the by-laws and regulations, in which is entered their deposits, which books serve as vouchers They may designate, in case of sickness, death or absence, who shall receive their deposits, without the intervention of executors or administrators. Any one or more persons may deposit in his, her, r their name, or ron any other person or persons 3d. A report is made each year to the Legisla ture and councils of the city.

4th, The officers are sworn before they enter upon their duties, in addition to giving bonds with sureties. 5th. The State Savings Fund is a REAL Savings Fund—Not an Insurance and Trust Company.— Our large list of Depositors and the Philadelphi public have been careful to observe that the charter avoids the business and risk of insurance.
6th. In order to afford every reasonable facility to depositors who reside at a distance from the office, their deposits are permitted to be with-drawn by checks, after the manner customary with the Banks. Check books will be furnished o depositors without charge. The popular patrongge bestowed upon this of fice by a proverbial, cautious and discriminfiting community, and where the character of the institution is best known, is a gratifying fact to which the Trustees desire to call attention. GEO. H. HART, President. CHAS. G. IMLAY, Treasurer. Philadelphia, June 14, 6m.p.-1856.
