For the West Jersey Pioneer. MANY CHANGES I HAVE SEEN.

Many changes I have seen, Over many lands I've been, And I've learned a thing or two in my time: I never knew a knave Who went happy to the grave, Or reached the mountain top he meant to climb. Though I've travelled far and wide, And have waited time and tide, I never knew dishonesty to win, Or a heart, however hard, From all sympathy debarr'd, Or, that kindness could not touch and enter in.

Never yet in all my round, Though I've sought him, have I found A thriving man contented with his gold: Or the children of the just Lying homeless in the dust, Withont a friend to shield them from the cold. Never yet could I discern, Though I've struggled hard to learn, That the rich could bolt out sorrow from the door; Or that Wisdom-very wise In its own and other's eyes-

John Bunyan's Flute. - The flute on which John Bunyan beguiled the tediousness of his captive hours, is now in pasession of Mr. Howels, tailor, Gainsborough. In appearance it does not look unlike the leg of a stool, out of which, it is said, that Bunyan, while in prison, manufactured it. When the turnkey, attracted by the sound of music entered his cell to ascertain, if possible, the cause of the melody, the flute was replaced in the stool, and by this means detection was avoided.

MILLVILLE COTTON FACTORY.

Those of readers who have not had the opportunity of visiting Millville for some time past, would be somewhat surprised to see the great improvement that has been made in the upper part of the town. The place that was thought a few years ago to be too irrecoverably sandy to be put to any profitable use, has by the investment of capital been converted into a scene of bustling and profitable activity. The first object arresting attention upon visiting this part of the town, is the large cotton factory of R. D. Wood & Co. The walls of this immense edifice are constructed of stone and are of unusual strength and thickness; the building is two hundred and eighty feet in length, sixty feet in breadth, and covcrs an area of sixteen thousand eight hundred square feet, in extent equal to four town building lots of forty-two feet front and one hundred feet in depth. Upon the first floor are two hundred and fifty-six looms, which | like that of an orange, leaving the inner part are attended chiefly by girls, or more poetically speaking, are under the supervision of young ladies Their arrangement is so complete, that one person can attend several operation is of itself a sufficient compensation for travelling some distance to see, but when to this is added such an array of smiling loveliness, the temptation to visit must prove irresistible to those who like ourself are of susceptible temperament. But we are digressing. The Northern end of the first story is occupied by a large and very conveniently arranged machine shop, well supplied with a variety of lathes of the most approved construction. In the two stories immediately above this, are about ton thousand spindles attended

Mr. Wood has expended in the various improvements, nore than three hundred thousand dollars.-As our article is already extended beyond what we intended, we shall have to defer further remarks until another occasion.

Bombarded with Watermelons.

It may be surprising to some to learn that our office during the past week or two, has been besieged by a band of Pirates, who have showered upon us their missiles with unabated vigor, showing us no quarters or way for escape, but compelled us to stand to our post in the field, South side, rises some eight or and receive the deadly weapons.
