THE MODERN BELLE.

[Sung by the Brothers Hutchinson. It should he committed to memory, and repeated occasion-The daughter sits in the parlor,

And rocks in her easy chair, She's clad in her silks and satins, And jewels are in her hair; She winks and giggles and simpers, And simpers and giggles and winks, And though she talks but little, 'Tis vastly more than she thinks. Her father goes clad in his russet,

And ragged and seedy at that: His coats are all out at the elbow-He wears a most shocking bad hat, He's hoarding and saving his shillings, So carefully day by day, While she, on her beaux and poodles Is throwing it all away. She lies-a-bed in the morning

'Till nearly an hour of noon; Then comes down snapping and snarling, Because she was called so soon. Her hair is still in the papers, Her cheeks still dabbled with paint-Remains of her last night's blushes, Before she intended to faint.

And men with the "flowing hair;" She's eloquent over moustaches, "They give such a foreign air; She talks of Italian music. And falls in love with the moon. And though but a mouse should meet her, She sinks away in a swoon.

Her feet are so very little, Her hands so very white, Her jewels so very heavy, And her head so very light, Her color is made of cosmetics. Though this she will never own; Her body's made mostly of cotton, Her heart is made wholly of stone! She falls in love with a fellow, doin Who struts with a foreign air; He marries her for her money-She marries him for his hair; One of the very best matches-Both are well mated in life! She's got a fool for a husband, · And he's got a fool for a wife!

From the N. J. Farmer. BEAUTY.

Beauty is one of the good gifts of God, as much as any other blessing bestowed upon us; and those to whom it is given will be held accountable for its use. The beautiful genpleasing, if they choose to do so; yet how often imperious temper. A beautiful woman is too apt to forget, in the adornment of herperson, the more lovely qualities of the mind; and thus, while her person may be likened to a well kept flower garden, where nothing offends the eye of the most fastidious, her character is too much like a garden overgrown

It is said by some, that beauty and frivolity always are found together; and while this must in certain cases be admitted, it will not do to apply the rule too generally. The highest style of beauty depends not so much upon fineness and symmetry of features, or delicacy of coloring, as upon the expression and intelligence which give that changeful vivacity, which throws a charm over even a common face. It is because beautiful women depend on their beauty as a passport to the good-will and esteem of society, that so many and perfectly flat, and its whole ext of them are frivolous and vain. If they conmore than three miles in diameter. sidered the subject in its true light, they would know that good moral and intellectual and above all, good religious culture, would artificial adornment of dress. The handsome truly beautiful than the fair lady who spends her days in arranging jewels and laces and ribbons, to heighten the effect of her charms; for from the face of the one, the soul looks out, clevated and refined by self culture, giving a deeper and holier light to the bright eyes, a richer glow to the fair cheek, a more magical witching to the smile, and a more elegant and irresistible grace to the manners; while the other has only the unmeaning smile of satisfied vanity, and the animation of momentary excitement. Even a plain face becomes lovely when lighted up by superior intelligence and refined feeling; more beautiful by far than the doll face, which wears a smile put on before the mirror, never lofty sentiments by the quick flash of the eye, or the sudden mist of tears.

Real beauty is as often found in brown farm houses as in stately mansions; indeed. the farmer's daughter, with the light elastic step, the fresh color, and high flow of spirits which health and freedom give, even if her dress is only gingham or calico, is more truly beautiful than the pale, languid, spiritless lady, attired in silks and laces, whose delicate bands are guiltless of the marks of honest la-

Let not our farmer girls think that spending their lives in fashionable idleness, or rather laziness; or arranging themselves in rich and costly clothing; or doing as Jezebel did, painting their faces and 'tireling their and cocoanut leaves and the "ti" (braccena) heads, will make them either beautiful or respectable; but let them learn that beauty consists in good health, good morals, good intelleet, good taste and industry.

The American guano company, formed in New York, stated that their Island was more than five hundred miles from the main, and more than two hundred miles from any land, situated in a rainless region, and that its relative position to the trade winds, make it easily accessible to ships, for which the anchorage was good. This was stated to be on the oath of the discoverer.

The latitude and longitude of the Island were given to the agent who joined us at San Francisco, and by him communicated to the commodore only, who kept it secret, up to erally possess the power of attracting and the day when we descried the Island described to be fifteen minutes North of the Equator is a levely face but a mask for a discontented, and one hundred and seventy-six and a half degrees West from Greenwich. It was covered with vegetation and not a trace of guanowas visible; further, there never had been and never can be guano upon it. This Island is set down on many charts and is called New Nantucket. There is no anchorage near it, and the surf was so heavy when we were there that no boat could land. In calm weather persons may land; but when there is a fresh trade blowing, it must be dangerous. Our boat sounded close in the edge of the breakers with twenty five fathoms and found no bottom. A four knot current sweeps past to the Westward. On the 4th of April we anchored in the harbor of Apia, island of Upolu, one of the Sarroan or Navigator Islands. The rainy season was just closing. The whole island which is about seventy miles long, and three thousand feet high, is covered by a dense vegetation, and fringed on the lowland near the sea by groves of cocoanut trees. The men were tried by a court martial, and though it was quite clear, as anybody may see by reading the record of the proceedings of the court, that the commodore himself by his injudicious and undignified conduct, provoked the whole difficulty, they were sentenced to lose all their pay and pass the remainder of their enlistment in solitary confinement, and after the ship reaches the United States, to pass three years in any ponitentiary which the secretary of the navy may designate. They were charged with resisting the commander-inchief in the execution of his office, disobediency, &c. You know, dear Life, that mothers often speak of their daughters with pride and satisfaction, in view of their education and accomwhen they shall have finished it, as an era mistress of an establishment.

'Now, 12tis right that mothers should wish to educate their daughters, and to see them happily and honorably, married, but we foar there are many false notions about all this especially the education part. If boys should learn what they will need to know and practice when they become men, girls should learn what they will need to know when they become women. Education of girls should look farther than simply to secure a husband. It should look down through long years of happy union with him, and seek to fit them to become egrecable companions, faithfut

MODES OF DRESS.

Perhaps there is nothing more remarkable to be seen as we glance at the history of the world than the great diversity existing in the modes of dress which so universally prevail. Every nation has its distinctive peculiarity in this respect. To describe all the customs which have been introduced, admired, flourished and gone into disuetude would require a five hundred-paged volume. Each and every age has contributed to the general stock of new-style, revamped and modified, old ones giving not only the appearance of freshness, but originality. There scem to be and indeed there are no fundamental rules in respect to fanciful dress, but to a genteel, becoming mode of attire there are philosophical principles which all would do well to heed. Locality or place should be considered; natural laws founded on the physiology of the human system should be taken into the account, and the geometrical outline of dress should conform to the configuration of the person dressed

The Chinese may be seen under the burning rays of a tropical sun, minus either hat or cap to protect him, but plus a large fan which he uses to sever the seething sunbeams which pour down upon him. We will not, however, enter into particulars in reference to the dress of foreigners except as they migrate hither taking up their abode and identionly mention some of the manifold forms which obtain among us, and in which it is We need only glance so far into the retrospective as the times of the American Revolution, when the low crowned wide-rimmed hat, the long-waisted, single-breasted and dove tailed coat buttoned up close under the chin were "all the go." Musical Association, and Conventions.

During the present week our town has been enlivened with the presence of many who have been attending the Ministerial Association, Sunday School Convention, and the Musical Association, convered in this place. The proceedings of the Ministerial Association will be found in another column. The Musical Association commenced its sessions on Wednesday morning, conducted by Prof. Roor. The attendance during the day was large and continued to increase until the close. The arge town hall was filled each evening with an attentive and delighted audience, numbering on Wednesday evening about five bundred persons. In the morning of the same day, Prof. T. E. Perkins arrived and was grected with enthusiastic applause by his numerous friends of the Association. Many of the juveniles formerly under his instructions were affected even to tears, so great was their joy on account of his return among them.

Judging from the amount of poetry, or that which is intended for poetry, sent to our office for publication, it is an easy thing for persone to imagine themselves poets. Some of them must be amazingly mistaken, or perhaps we order at cannot appreciate their lofty flights. A piece has lately been received, consisting of eigh teen verses (on hoops,) with a request to point it to suit ourself. It is some poetry, and contains a few lines creditable to the author, but we are not "independent?" enough to publish poetry calculated to crush the present expansive fashion. Our system of pointing such poetry, is, to point it into our crucible—the stove-that which passes through the fire and comes out purified, we make use of; the re mainder goes to-ashes. MILL. This desirable Mill; the merits of which have been so fully, tested during the past two years, having been materially improved in all its important points, is now offered to the public with renewed confidence. Determined, if possible, to linve it right in every particular, every effort has been made to accomplish that designable object. The Screw for pressing has been greatly mproved, and the whole pressing arrangement so strengthened as to prevent the possibility of breaking. The Grinding arrangements, which are peculiar, and altogethe superior to any other. have been materially improved, so as to combine greater rapidity with greater case. Every part of the frame is tightened by strong joint bold. A very large and heavy fly wheel has been added, which is equally adapted to hand and horse power. In a word, it is no beasting to say, that in point of work manship, durability and complete adaptation to the purposes for which it is intended,

KRAUSER'S CIDER MILL Now stands without a rival in the market. We. therefore, confidently invite farmers and others to call, examine and compare them with any other Portable Mill in use, satisfied that such an examination will prove their decided superiority. Being portable, and at the same time of sufficient capacient capacity to make from 8 to 10 bar-rels of cider in a day, by hand power, every far-mer should have it. Price $42 00. Warranted

Philadelphia, Sedt. 8, 1855 .- 1 ypt The State Savings Fund, OFFICE-Next Door to the Post Office, No. 83, Dock St., Philadelphia, 1854. INTEREST FIVE PER CENT.

All sums of money returned on demand. Ill State Savings Fund, No. 83 Dock Street, next door to Third Street, and adjoining the Post Office, receives money on deposit daily, from 9 in the morning until 3 in the afternoon; also Monday evenings, from 7 to 9 o'clock. Interest s allowed on deposits at the rate of five per cent. per annum. Deposits will be returned in whole or in part on demand, without notice. The popularity of this office with all classes of the community, both in town and country, and its consequent success, may be ascribed, in part, to he following substantial reasons: 1st. It offers a convenient, responsible, and profitable Depository to executors, administrators, assignces, collectors, agents and all public effices, to attorneys, trustees; societies and associations, whether incorporated or otherwise, to married or single ladies, to students, merchants, clerks and business men generally, to mechanics, farmers, minors of either sex, and all who have funds, much or little, to deposit, where they may be had at any time with five per cent. interest added. 2d. Depositors receive books with an abstruct of the by-laws and regulations, in which is enter-ed their deposits, which books serve as vouchers. They may designate, in case of sickness, death or absence, who shall receive their deposits, without the intervention of executors of administrators Aux one or more persons may deposit in hie, her, or their name, or for any other person or persons. Sd. A report is made each year to the Legisla ture and councils of the city.

4th, The officers are sworn before they enter. upon their duties, in addition to giving bonds vith sureties. 5th. The State Savings Fund is a REAL Savings Fund—Nor an Insurance and Trust Company.— Our large list of Depositors and the Philadelphia public have been careful to observe that the charer avoids the business and risk of insurance.... 6th. In order to afford every reasonable facility to depositors who reside at a distance from the office, their deposits are permitted to be with-drawn by checks, after the manner customary with the Banks. Check hooks will be furnished to depositors without charge.

The popular patronge bestowed upon this of-fice by a proverbial, cautious and discriminating community, and where the character of the insti tution is best known, is a gratifying fact to which the Trustees desire to call attention. GEO. H. HART, President: CHAS. G. IMLAY, Treasurer. Philadelphia, June 14, 6m.p.-1856. Wew Arrangement. Cedarville, Bridgeton and Philadelphea. The Old Line of Stages!
