The subjoined poem, says the Knickerbocker entirely original. A greater mistake could not possibly be made. We, at least, have never seen anything like it anywhere, and whoever has let him point it out.

The night has come, but not too soon; Westward the star of Empire takes its way; Ye banks and braes of bonnie doon! Blue spirits and white, black spirits and gray

Rocked in the cradle of the deep, Old Casper's work was done: Piping on hollow reeds to his pent sheep, Charge, Chester, charge! On Stanley on!

There was a sound of revelry by night, On Linden when the sun was low; A voice replied, far up the height,

-Tall oaks from little acorns grow. What if a little rain should say, I have not loved the world, nor the world me;

Ah, well-aday! Woodman, spare that tree! My heart leaps up with joy to sce,

A primrose by the water's brim; Zaccheus, he did climb the tree; Few of our youth could cope with him

The prayer of Aiax was for light. The light that never was on sea or shore: Pudding and beef make Britons' fight,

Never more! Under a spreading chestnut tree, For hours together sat I and my Annabel Lee;

A man's a man for a' that. Truth crushed to earth shall rise again. And waste its sweetness on the desert air,

In thunder, lightning, or in rain; None but the brave deserve the fair. Tell me not in mournful numbers, The child is father of the man;

Hush my dear, lie still in slumber, They can conquer who believe they can. A change came o'er the spirit of my dream:

Whatever is, is right; And things are not what they seem; My native land, good night!

MORAL.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. MATERNAL INFLUENCE

Mothers, we would say a word to you. W wish therefore your serious attention while we attempt to say something about the responsibility which rests upon you, in regard to the training and education of those little ones, which are committed to your care.

What is the precise state of the infant mind during the first few weeks or months of its existence, is difficult to decide. That it is susceptible of consciousness and perception, is the child begins to reason and reflect, to trace effects to their proper causes, and to distinguish between right and wrong, we cannot say, probably at a very early period, much earlier than parents generally suppose.

As it enters upon this stage of its existence, thence it is that its history and destiny as an intelligent and immortal being, has really commenced. Then it is that its mind is soft and pliable, like clay in the hands of the potter, ready to receive any impression which is made upon it. Then it is like the streamlet as it bounds and sparkles along the mountain side, which even a pebble may turn in this or that direction. Then it is that all the inlets of knowledge are inside open, ready to hear and to see, to maste and to feel, whatever erb: A man must ask his wife's comes within the reach of perception. From Life Illustrated. APPRENTICESHIP.

In the business relations between young persons and old, as in the family relations, and indeed all others, there are progressing some curious changes. These are changes not only from the European customs to others but further, from the former customs here prevalent, toward others widely different.

The laws regarding the apprenticeships to

The regulations have gradually relaxed, yet even now they prevail to a considerable extent. The English laws relating to such matters were transplanted to the American colonies; and apprenticeships for trades, and a corresponding preparation for professions, have been not only in substance, common-sence preliminaries, but have been upheld in special forms by law, and by various associa-tions of those already escablished in the several pursuits.

But even within twenty-five years last past, men now in active business can trace ssential changes. Conversing lately with a well-known business man who served his time s an apprentice in a printing-office, he informed us of some facts in point. We prenise that we speak more particularly of the case in cities. A quarter of a century ago, and yet more, fifty years ago—an apprentice was measurably, at least, within his master's family; eating at his table, sleeping in his ome, and kept to orderly and sesonable regulations as to his hours and places of business and pleasure. It is now too often the case that the apprentice is left to his own wild and foolish will from shop closing at night to worknours next morning. Our hero could not obtain the requisite amount from his friends, and at last hit upon an expedient to put an end to the difficulty. He caused an advertisement to appear in one of the journals, as follows:

"A young man, occupying an honorable position, wishes to marry a lady well brought up, and possessed of two hundred and fifty

Two hundred and fifty francs are but fifty dollars, and as there are many women in the world who would be glad to purchase a young handsome and honorably connected husband on such moderate terms, it was quite natural that the advertiser, in the course of the three days during which his notice appeared in public, should have received many letters and applications. The young man addressed a note to each of the applicants, appointed a place and hour when he would meet them altogether; and politely inviting all to come and look at him. On the evening indicated they came, and it is said, the company numbered full two hundred women. When all had assembled, the young man "organized are all so charming, (many of them were horbligation to society than from any perception | and fifty francs each, and the gross sum realdraws the lucky number, and whom I pledge myself to marry immediately."

A GOOD JOKE.

A correspondent of the Lambertville (N.J. Beacon says that a short time ago, while staying at the borough of E-, he overheard the following, which he thinks is too good to be lost:

A number of politicians, all of whom were seeking offices under the government, were seated on the tavern porch talking, when an old toper named Jake D——, came up to them. Now the said Jake is a person who is very lequacious when "corned," but exactly the opposite when sober. > EVERY WORD TRUE. -The character of the young men of a community depends much on that of the young women. If the latter are cultivated, intelligent and accomplished, the young men will feel the requirement that they themselves should be upright, gentlemanly and refined; but if their female friends are frivolous, and silly, the young men will be found dissipated and worthless. But remember, always, that a sister is the best guardian of a brother's jutegrity. She is the surest inculcator of a faith in a women's purity. As a daughter, she is the true light of the home. The pride of the father oftenest is entered on his daughter. She should, therefore, be the sum and substance of all.

THE EXHIBITION.

The Third Annual Exhibition of the Cumberland County Agricultural Society held in Bridgeton, on Wednesday last, was admitted to be the best affair of the kind ever held in M. Brooks. this County. The heavy rain that fell the day previous, operated somewhat against the Exhibition; notwithstanding this it passed off in the most satisfactory manner; creditable to all interested in getting it up, and an honor to the County. The number of persons on the ground was larger than at any previous Exhibition in this County, variously estimat- blood and beauty mingled together. ed from five to seven thousand. The tent in which the Fruits, Vegetables, Manufactured | Hampton. Articles, &c., were displayed, was well filled with the choicest variety of articles ever brought together in this place. The Wheat, Corn and Potatoes, could not have been surpassed by any in the State. The Ladies deserve much praise for the interest manifested by them in contributing to the Exhibition. The Manufactured Articles were creditable to the Mechanics of the County. The Stock looked well but was not quite what it might have been. The trotting was one of the main features of the day and several fine nags were on the course making good time.

About four o'clock in the afternoon the multitude of people from all parts of the country began to disperse and the grounds were soon vacated. Many were present from Salem Co. and all admitted that Cumberland had not been equalled this year.

The following is a list of articles on exhibition, reported for the county papers: Road Horses.-One single Road 5 years, by Ephraim Moore.

> The display in this department, gave unmistakeable evidence of the great interest fult by the ladies in the success of the Exhibition. The competition in Bread and Butter was so extensive, that we are unable to give Heifer, Providence Ludlam, 3; 2d, Jonathan the names. The arrangement for awarding Fithian, 2; best 4 Steers, Christian Cook, 4. the premiums was good, each depositor' name being entered in a book, and unknown to the committee until the premium was awarded.
