TETE EESTAL EIDUR.

Come sing, 'tis a festal hour, Let us meet with sacred cheer: Preserved by a Saviour's power. We sing to the new-born year. The bird of summer is fled, And with it each twilight sigh, The frail smiling flower is dead, But joys of winter are nigh. Come sing, 'tis a festal hour, &c.

O'er fields no longer we roam, The snow and the cold are there, No more mid the meadow's bloom. Our steps to the streamlet repair. In hyms of evening we blend. And mingle in friedship pure, The joys of summer may end, But the joys of home endure. Come sing, 'tis a festal hour, &c.

With love our bosoms swell, To him whose name we adore, His mercy our songs shall tell, When joys of summer are o'er. Tis ours his kindness to know And grateful his praise we sing. Here in his temple we bow, The heart is the tribute we bring. Come sing, 'tis a festal hour, &c.

PROUM COOR

Now sweet the happy evenings' close! 'Tis the hour of sweet repose-Good night! The summer winds have sunk to rest. The moon, serencly bright, Unfolds her calm and gentle ray. Softly now she seems to say -Good night!

These tranquil hours of social mirth. Form the dearest link of earth--Good night! And while each hand is kindly pressed; O, may our prayers to heaven, With humble ferver be address'd. For its blessings on our rest-Good night!

O, how each gentle thought is stirred, As we breathe the parting word-Good night! O, would we ever feel as now, Our hearts with love up-raised. And while our warm affections flow, Hear, in murmurs soft and low-Good night!

STEEL.

From year to year in love we meet, From year to year in peace we part. The tongues of thousands uttering sweet, The bosom joy of every heart. But time rolls on, and year by year, We change, grow up, or pass away; Not twice the same assembly here Have hailed the children's festal day. Death, ere another spring, shall strike Some in our union, marked to fall: Be young and old prepared alike. The warning is to each, to all.

MORAL.

THE BLACK EYED BOY.

Two or three years ago, I went into a town in the State of New Hampshire, to give a temperance lecture. There were many persons in the village who drank intoxicating liquors. But many came to hear me; and I noticed, just as I commenced speaking, a little bright eyed boy, just about seven years old, who came into the hall, and sat down hear the doer. He listened very attentively; and when I spoke of the cruel treatment of wives and children from intemperate men, I saw him wipe away the tears. I told them the pledge would prevent all this, and make men kind and pleasant, and I told the children to sign it if they would prosper and be happy in the world. This little fellow was almost the first one to put his name down; and when I asked them who he was they told his father was one of the worst drunkards in

It was his custom every morning to mingle rum and sugar with water, and pass it around to every one of the children, who took a little as well as their father and mother. He would drink, at eleven o'clock, at noon-time, at four o'clock, and at supper-time, so that when evel and his feuds: such things do not interest him along by his companion. In a few minutes, drink, at eleven o'clock, at noon-time, at four ning came he would always be intoxicated, now. All these have left busy homes in yoncruel and revengeful; sometimes he would beat his wife, or sometimes his children, or to return. However unfinished their busi-and declined taking it.

Drink, Joe! said his father. 'I do not wish to drink any again, sir,' re-His father looked at him for o moment, and then said roughly, 'Did you go to that temperance meeting, Joe?'

'Yes, sir,' he replied.
'Did you sign the pledge?'

'Yes, sir.'

His father blushed, turned pale, stood confused a moment, and then opened the door and dashed both the jug and pitcher to pieces, say-

You shall have a father that you won't be ashamed to be like.'

From that hour he has never taken anything that can intoxicate; and is happy himself, and renders his family besides; and I will venture to say that Joseph will have an answer ready for any one who asks him, What good will it do to sign the pledge?

The King Father on all Fours.

Henry the Fourth, who was fond of his children, was one day found in a curious predicament for a monarch. An ambassador entering his apartment, found him upon all fours, with his children on his back. He relieved the ambassador from his embarrasment by saying:

"Sir, you are a father?"

"I am, sire," "Then I need say no more."

Henry the Fourth was a jewel; no matter f he did have faults, a thousand or so, he loved his children; and every man that loves dear little children, will go to Heaven, (if he does not commit too many sins to overbalance that one lovely trait of character.) We do despise your domestic bears, who growl every time a child comes in sight of them; who wouldn't e seen kissing a baby for a world-who never think of speaking at home unless to issue some royal edict; but sit there, so mum and gram, and solemn-choly, that nobody dates to say " boo" within a half a league of them, demure as so many whipped puppies.

"Papa's coming—hush! Nellie!" "Oh, Peter, there he comes-and before our play is out-isn't it too bad; there, put up those marbles. Billy, you know your papa can't bear the least bit of noise-how long do ! you think he'll be in the house, mamma?" And doesn't her countenance speak a vol-

Thank Heaven and common sense, such ausbands and fathers are few and far between. On the contrary, the world is full of good "King Henry's," who are the light and joy of the little family circle; whose children laugh a loud, wild laugh of joy at their ap-

THE LEAP FROM THE MAIN BRUCKE.

It was past midnight—the lights on th stone bridge which crosses the river Main at Frankfort were still burning, though the footsteps of passengers had died away for sometime on its pavement—when a young man approached the bridge from the town What did you do that for, Joe?'
Because, father,' said Joe, hesitatingly, 'if ever I am a man, I do not wish to be as other man advanced in years, was coming towards him from Sachsenhausen, the well known suburb on the opposite side of the iver. The two had not yet met, when the latter turned from his path, and went towards the parapet, with the evident intention of leaning from the bridge into the Main.

THE PERIL OF LISPING. The following is related in the experience of a Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A couple brought their little child to me one day to be baptized, on my inquiring the name chosen, to my astonishment I heard a name resembling that of the arch enemy of mankind. Thinking my cars deceived me, I inquired again, when to my horror, the same name was more distinctly repeated.

'Lucifer!' said I to myself, 'impossible cannot baptize a child by such a name.

I bent over once more, and asked the question a third time. The answer was still the same, and repeated louder, and with an emphasis as if the parents were determined to have that name or none. By this time my position had become more embarrassing, for there was I, in the presence of the whole cougregation, standing up with the baby in my arms, which, to add to my consternation, set up a squall as if to convince me he was entitled to the name.

I could stand the scene no longer, so hastily dipping my finger in the font, and resolved he should have at least a good name, I baptized the child George Washington.

I thought the parents looked rather queer at the time, but the ceromony was performed, the vestry, and the latter bursting into tears exclaimed.

'Oh thir, what have you done? Ith a girl, ith a girl, and you've called her George Washington! My poor little Lutby!'
Alas, the mother lisped and when I asked for the name, she had said "Luthy; thir," which I mistook for Lucifor. What was to be done? I consoled the afflicted parents as well as I was able and promised to enter the name in the parish registry and town records as Lucy, which I did; but for all that the girl's genuine, orthodox name is George have been his schemes, that scarcely a week has passed that he has not advertised. Onco in communication with a lady, he would obtain a snowledge of her pecuniary circumstancer, and if she had means, he would continue the acquaintance, ingratiate himsolf in hor favor, make a formal engagement, advise her as to the employment of her means, offer his services in making investments for her, accept her mency, pocket it, and discontinue his visits. In one instance which has come to our knowledge, he was engaged to two ladies in this city, both of whom were getting their wooding dresses made by the same accessmaker. It is stated that during left her. It is said, also, that he has married several wives, and, having possessed himself of their means, has left them to take care of themselves. Recently, he accidentally formed the acquaintance of a lady who contemplated going to California with her family. He volnuteered his advice and assistance, and she gave him $1100 to make the necessary preparations for their departure and procure the tickots.

> A tayorn keeper, who resides in a neighboring town, and who is a frequent customer at his own bar, was much annoyed by swarms of red ants, which, by dint of their perseverance, made sad havor with his sugar. As he was one day waiting on a traveller, the landlord, in no measured terms, expressed his indignation sgainst these little patterns of industry, adding, that he would give a generous sum to be effectually rid of them. Upon this the traveller said: "Sir, I can tell you how they may be destroyed in a very short time, without any expense." "Well," said Boniface, "let me know how, and I will try it instantly." "You must kill one of the ants," replied the traveller, "every time you go into the bar for something to drink and my word for it, you'll make an end of them in less than a week!"

Mr. Parker is closing out his stock of Books, Stationery, &c., at prices that cannot fail to suit purchasers. Many valuable books are still on hand, and Samuel is the man who will sell them right. Give him a lift.

At Wm. H. Thompson's may be found the largest stock of watches, jewelry and silver ware ever offered to the citizens of Bridgeton. His store is opposite Davis & Son's Hotel, and is fitted up in a style creditable to the town and the proprietor. Almost anything in the jewelry line may be found at his establishment, from a plain finger ring to a high-toned accordeon. His stock of flutinas and accordeons, as well as jewelry and silver ware, is extensive, and prices reasonable.

John R. Graham, by his perseverence and business tact, has succeeded in precuring a run of custom which is destined to make his establishment known as the Carpet Store of Bridgeton. When you want carpets there is the place to purchase them.

Attempt at Robbery in Bridgeton.

On Friday night of last week, an attempt was made to break into the office of Dr. J. Morgridge, of this town. It was between eleven and twelve o'clock when the family heard a noise at the door which was caused by the breaking of the pannels and forcing the lock. The robbers hearing voices within soon made their escape. The door had evidently been burst open by the pressure of an instrument against the pannels, which were staved in nearly far enough to admit the entrance of a man. Two hoop poles were found near the door in the morning, for what purpose they were intended may be conjectured, as the indenture on the pannels could not have been made with such instruments.

We have often thought of late while leaving our office about midnight, that some courage and less sense, would attempt to rob street to our domicil. Whether the robbers about here are wise enough to know that a printer never has enough money by him to be worth trying to steal, or whether they wish to keep on good terms with the craft we know not, but can assure them that we often leave our sanctum late at night with a pocket full of nothing and no weapon of defence to protect ourselves with. By calling on us just before we leave at night we will deliver, soon-. er than die, and save the robbers the risk of being shot with a printers shooting iron such as is kept in our office. As to breaking in that would be unnecessary as our office has not been locked a dozen times during the past year. There are many valuables there: the printing press which would not weigh much over a ton, the type, they too are not much heavier than lead, the stove, that venerable old air tight so highly prized, it has been in use only about twelve years in the Pioneer office although it was second handed when first put here, there too is our boots that cost our coat that for several winters past has hung on the door for want of a wearer, but we beyond Malaga, was attacked by three men nent peculiarities and dressing them up in a must not hold out any more inducements, in the language of the handbill we exclaim; ...many other valuable articles too tedious to the wagon, when he was struck suddenly by and young family to mourn his loss; his only

The first oyster taster was thought to have peen a bold man. This is said in ignorance of the legend which assigns the first act of eating oysters to a very natural cause; and few are aware that we are indebted to one of our most singular habits for this great lunury.

"It was related that a man walking one day by the sea-shore, picked up one of these savory bivalves, just as he was in the act of gaping. Observing the extreme smoothness of the interior of the shell, he inserted his fingers between them that he might feel their shining surface, when suddenly they closed upon the exploring diget with a sensation less pleasurable than he anticipated. The prompt withdrawal of his finger was scarcely a more natural movement than its transfer to his action, there, sure enough, was Gumbo, perchmouth. It is not so very clear why people when they hurt their fingers put them in their mouths, but it is very certain that they do, and in this case, the result was most fortunate. The owner of the finger tasted oyster juice for the first time, as the Chinaman in Elia's essay having burnt his fingers, first Robbing hen roosts is becoming quite a common practice in our town as the holidays general, and robbers in particular.

A German family residing in the west end of town, had missed some half dezen fowls, the loss of which they attributed to a certain "gemman ob volor" in the neighborhood. On Monday evening last, the German, thinking that forebearance had ceased to be a virtue, determined to ascertain to a certainty the perpetrator of the fowl deed. He fastened a string to the door of the hen coop, and let it lead to his bed room, to the end of which he attached a bell, which would ring on being disturbed. About midnight the good woman of the house was awakened by the tingling of the little tell tale. Hastening to the seene of ed like an over grown Shanghai, in search of his prey, his eyes shining like two silver dellars in a tar bucket. The woman awoke her husband, who got his gun, and but for her interference, would have shot Mr. "Nigger" on the spot. He finally assured him that if he ever came "bobbin' around" there again he would "schurely git schoot." Mr. Darking

Some unscrupulous editor charges us with saving "that the prettiest sewing machine we ever saw was about 17 years old, with short sleeves, low necked dress, and with gaiter boots on. The credit of the above assertion belongs to some other source, and we trust that our name will be stricken out, until the weather moderates some. Short sleeves and low necked dresses are not compatible with Snow storms and frosty weather.

M. E. Church, Millville, Dec. 11, 1856. The President, Rev. S. Y. Monroe, called the Convention to order, and Rev. II. B Beegle was appointed Secretary pro tem. Notwithstanding the heavy rain, which prevented the attendance of many delegates, the Convention was quite large, and manifested a deep interest in the Sunday School

A very interesting feature of the Convention was the representation of the state of the schools, as given by ministers, superintendents and teachers, in the various parts of the district.

Revs. II. M Brown and S. Y. Monroe each read to the Convention able and interesting papers on special features of the Sunday chool enterprise.

The following resolutions were adopted: Resolved, That those brethren, the arrangeemplary member of the M. E. Church about thirty ments of whose charges prevent them from rears.
