MACHINE POETRY. BT A. J. SHAMPANORE.

fCome, Simon, get out the old machine, and MUSIC AND BEAUTY.

There's music in the lightning's flash And in the thunder's rosr, And there's beauty in my black eyed boy Tast trots about the floor.

There's music in the wind's fierce howl, And in the rain's quick patter; And there's beauty in my blue-eyed girl, And masic in her chatter. There's music in the willow's moan

When autumn winds awake it; And there's beauty in a lump of dough, When wife's about to bake it.

There's music in the feathered tribes, Warbling their anthems sweet; And there's beauty in a frying pen-When it is filled with meat.

There's beauty in the waving gra The farmer's heart that circles; And there's music in a boy my size When mamma wacks my cars.

There's music in a Jersey girl When she is stinning yarn; And if there aint beauty in this poetry, Then I'll be dil-liedy doil, dod daind! St-st-stop the machine, Simon, or you'll break everything to flinders.

Supposed Discovery of the Tower of Babel!

The following interesting particulars of the supposed discovery of the Tower of Babel, we take from the Boston Traveller. The Traveller says that the official position of its correspondent, which gives him unusual opportunities and means of information, is a full all his statements:

BERIUT, December S, 1856. It is nearly two years since that I informed your will, or that I am not to have a place to hear Bridgeton, to Fairton, with the privilege your readers of the grand and instructive disbay my head, no bed upon which I may be of extending it to Cedarville, ending at the coveries in Ninevah, made by Mr. Place, the French Consul in Mosul. Following up the researches of Mr. Botta and Mr. Layard, he brought to light monuments of that long-en tombed city, which equally amazed and dethusiasm, he was encouraged by his successes to extend his researches, which he now clo ses with an achievment, which, if his opinions shall be verified, will add imporishable lustre to his name. The Tower of Babel was supposed to exist only as a Biblical souvenir a thing of memory and not of substance. And, indeed, to many who contemplated it only in its audacity and folly, it seemed a myth or a fancy only of Oriental imaginativeness or superstition. Besids, no locali great plain of Shinar, and no debris or ruins emained as the proof of its veritable reality. The substance of the information which 2d. The Newark Daily Advertiser. This unrivalled Daily, is not sufficiently known in the extreme southern part of our state to secure for it that extensive patronage which its merits so richly entitle it. We hesitate not in recommending it as one of the best and most reliable daily papers in the country, and for Jerseymen, who wish the news of their own State, the Newark Daily has no superior. The ability with which it is conducted, the important and reliable information which fills its columns, and the regularity of its arrival with the latest news, are but few of the many scatures which contribute to its unbounded popularity wherever it is known. It is not one of the papers which fails to come when most needed. It will happen however, that occasionally credit is given to other papers up Jersey, for articles which originate and truly

PRINTERS IN LUCK.

And why not? Why should not printers have an occasional streak of fat as well as so much lean? for certainly no set of men more deserve it than they-none work harder for the good of mankind. They are the architects of almost every person's fortune-the head and front of every measure that becomes noted-the harbingers of Fame and Honor .-The Statesman and Warrior are made by the printer, in nine cases out of ten, more than by their own merits. Hundreds and thousands who have figured in the world, and had their names handed down to succeeding generations would be mouldering in insignificant oblivion but for the art preservative of all arts.

How pleasant, after the toils and cares of the day are over, to pick up a paper and sit by your warm fire sides, while the winds are howling around your domicils, and read the transactions of the various parts of the world or in a favorite book to learn of things that occurred long, long years ago! To read of God. (except woman) and all the minor objects which were not beneath the attention of the Great I AM.

While enjoying these blessings and comforts, does it ever occur to you, kind reader, that you are luxuriating on the midnight toil twenty five cents, or in two volumes, paper of the Printer? But for him and his art, that Book of books, the BIBLE, would be unknown to thousands and millions of our fellow men who could not afford to buy it engraved on stone, or written on parchment; and the world would still be groaning under the demonical rule of Priestcraft.

But thank the fates, when darkness hung like a death pall over the world, when Mind was almost a non-entity, and superstition and bigotry ruled with iron sway, the art of the then persecuted Faust and Gettenberg, as is guided by the all-seeing eye of Omnipotence sprung into existence! Bearing the brave banner of Deliverance in one hand, with the other it tore the demon from his throne, and chained him 'neath the foet of hitherto down trodden man; and Light, pluming her pinions proclaimed her missionato be to disseminate her genial rays to the oppressed in the old world, and then to cross the mighty deep, and here in these western wilds to unfurl the ban. ner of Liberty; and the Printing Press should be her talisman-and here it should thrive, and excel all other places in its efforts to cs tablish universal Liberty, and be a terror to tyranny and oppression. It succeeded, and to-day nearly "all the world and the rest of passes its predecessors "Charity," a fine steel.

It affords us pleasure to see the good luck lin, the Philosopher-Statesman-Printer; we land should possess a copy. love to contemplate the genius and noble dar. ing of him as he stood on the open field, and dared the lightning of Heaven to combat, and how he took the forked element prisoner, fasted it in a bottle, and carried it in his pocket; and now, as lasting monuments to his memory' we see his bayonets raised from every steeple' in proud defiance to the storm.

And then, too, we love to contemplate a poor boy, with his wardrobe in his hand, com_ ing down the Susquehanna on a raft, in search of a future home, entering a printing office in Lancaster, and enquiring if they wanted a boy to learn the trade. We can see him, as with his clumsy fingers he picks at the types while the ex-devil (who is promoted by his coming) and the other boys stand back laughing in their sleeves, and wondering "if the boss don't want to borrow some editorial, or the press weights, or the italic sheep's foot of the other office." Soon he becomes initiated. We next find him an editor, then a Senator; then he retires to private life, but the name and fame he has acquired prevent him from remaining long so, and now we see him one of the representatives of the great State of Pennsylvania in the Senate of the United States. That man is Simon Cameron. His colleague (Wm. Bigler) is a printer, so that the old Keystone is now represented in the Senate by two printers, and we venture the prediction that no State is represented there by men of better judgment or common

The three brothers Washburne of the pre-

Our own Secretary of State-T. S. Allison is a printer. We used to know Tom, and right jolly fellow he was. He was a student Simon Cameron—that is, he served his Brooks. evilship under him.

The Speaker of the House of Representatives of Pennsylvania, Mr. Getz of the Reading Journal, is a printer, and we warrant that ne will discharge his duty like a gentleman. And last, though not least, there is our own 'Johnny Hood," who has just been re-elected Legislature. As no office held by a printer has ever been disgraced, to our present knowledge, we judge that his will not be in this in. stance. Indeed, the fact of his being re-elected is a proof of his efficiency.

No milk was spilled, or more than one pot of tea and coffee would have that morning been minus the usual supply of good rich milk, such as Mr. C. serves his customers with daily .-His best cow is not the "pump," which, in many milk dairies is the most prolific cow. But where is the place to get the horses shod? That's the question, and Mr. Jacob H. Brown is prepared to answer it satisfactorily. His shop is in Pearl street, near the belong to that excellent paper—the "Newark Glasshouse, where he has in his employ an experienced horse shoer who can do the business satisfactorily, at the shortest notice, and do it up "BROWN."

Seen through a microscope, a snow-flake is one of the most beautiful objects in nature. It equals in grotesqueness and variety of kaleidoscope; crystals, diamonds, eneralds, and rubies, besides mathematical shapes of every conceivable kind, are concealed from the naked eye in a tiny flake of snow.
