THE "MAN OF PLEASURE."

The following portrait of the " Man of Pleasure," is take from a sermon on "Christian Manhood" deriverd on Sundoy of last week, in New York, by Rev. Mr. Cuyler: "I trust that no young man here will need to be warned against that wretchedly false idea of 'manhood' which is so rife in certain circles of this million peopled city. The counterfeit ' manhood' of an oath and a cigar -a bottle of brandy and a pack of cards-a box in the theatre, and a bet on the racecourse. Hundreds of young men are constautly aspiring to such badges of social nobility as these! You may see these ambitious youths ordering, with a consequential swagger, their wine suppers at the fashionable hells." You may detect them at the midnight hour pulling the door bells of haunts of infamy, and whispering false names thro' the iron lattice; you may discover an infidel book in their trunks, locked up with an ob scene picture, a revolver, a sporting calender, a directory to brothels, a few French novels, and-no Bible! The poet's visions of evening are all of soothing and tender images. It brings the wanderer to his home, the child to its mother's arms; the ox to his stall, and the weary laborer to his rest. But to the gentle hearted youth who is thrown upon the rocks of a pitiless city, and "stands homeless amid a thousand homes," the approach of evening brings with it an aching sense of loneliness and desolation, which comes down upon the spirit like darkness upon the earth. Our readers were informed last week, that a reliable company had agreed to run the steamer Express, between this place and Philadelphia, and that she would leave Baltimore, about the 9th inst: since then several letters have been received from the company in reference to running the boat, one of which is now before us. In speaking of the boat, Mr. Reybold says:

"She was thoroughly overhauled and re built, at a cost of over $12,000. Her saloon was much enlarged, and fitted up in handsome style, her deck room was also made larger, making her (since the above improvements have been made,) one of the most pleasant boats I ever rode on, I think she is quite sufferers, which is well and gratefully reas still and as stiff as the "Major Reybold" ceived. in any kind of weather, no matter how rough, she will carry any amount of freight without relling, her sea going qualities are not surpassed by any boat of her class. INAUGURAL ADDRESS OF PRESIDENT BUCHANAN, Delivered at Washington, March 4th, 1857 FELLOW CITIZENS-I appear before you as can be understood and felt. It should be stitution of the United States." In entering plain but not it sipid, simple yet chaste and upon this great office, I most humbly invoke the God of our fathers for wisdom & firmness to execute its high and responsible duties in ventions have a tendency to arouse singers to cient friendship among the people of the sevvinced that I owe my election to the inherent love for the Constitution and the Union, which still animates the hearts of the American people, let me carnestly ask their pow erful support in sustaining all just measures calculated to perpetuate these, the richest political blessings which Heaven has ever bestowed upon any nation. Having deter. mined not to become a candidate for re-elecconduct in administering the Government except the desire, ably and faithfully to save my country, and to live in the grateful memory of my countrymen. We have recently passed through a Presidential contest, in which the passions of our degree by questions of deep and vital importance. But when the people proclaimed their will, the temptest at once subsided, and all was calm. The voice of the majority, speaking in the manner prescribed by the Constitution, was heard, and instant submission Reports, &c. - Mr. Rafferty, (Judicary, to followed. Our own country could alone have of the capacity of man for self government. What a happy conception, then, was it for Congress to apply this simple rule, "that the will of the majority shall govern," to the settlement of the question of domestic slavery in the territories. Congress is neither "to legislate a slavery into any territory, nor to ple thereof perfectly free to form and regulate their domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States, As a natural consequence, Congress has also prescribed that when the Territory of Kansas shall be admitted as a State it shall be received into the Union with or without shall decide the question for themselves .-This is happily a matter of but little practicai importance, besides it is a judicial question which legitimately belongs to the Su-preme Court of the United States, before whom it is now pending, and will, it is understood, be speedily and finally settled.— To their decision, in common with all good citizens, I shall cheerfully submit, whatever this may be, though it has ever been my individual opinion that, under the Nebraska Kansas act, the appropriate period will be when the number of actual residents in the Territory shall justify the formation of a Constitution with a view to its admission as a State into the Union.

. But be this as it may, it is the imperative and indispensable duty of the Government of the U.S. to secure to every resident inhabitant the free and independent expression of his opinion by his vote. This sacred right of each individual must be preserved. This being accomplished, nothing can be fairer than to leave the people of a Territory from all foreign interference, to decide their own destiny for themselves, subject only to the Constitution of the U.S. The whole Territorial question being thus settled upon the principle of popular sovereignty-a principle as ancient as free government itself-everything of a practical nature has been decided No other question remains for adjustment, because all agree that, under the Constitution, slavery in the States is beyond the reach of long about Beesley's Point, Cape May Co.

tion of the laws of this State to newspapers.

And human powers assent that of the respective States themselves wherein it exists.

May we not, then, hope that the long-agi-tation on this subject is approaching its end, have been exercised by Congress, these have try when the public mind shall be diverted from this question to others of more pressing and practical importance. Throughout the whole progress of this agitation, which has scarcely known any intermission for more than twenty years, whilst it has been productive of no positive good to any human boing, it has been a problic source of great evil to even seriously endangered the very existence of the Union. Nor has the danger yet entirely ceased .-Under our system there is a remedy for all mere political evils, in the sound sense and sober judgement of the people. Time is a great corrective. Political subjects, which but a few years ago excited and exasperated the public mind, have passed away and now are nearly forgotten. But the question of domestic slavery is of far greater importance than any more political question, becauseshould the agitation continue, it may eventually endanger the personal safety of a large portion of our countrymen where the institution exists. In that event, no form of Government, however admirable in itself, however productive of material benefits, can compensate for the loss of peace and domestic se-

the master, to the slave and to the whole country. It has alienated and estranged the people of sister States from each other, and has curety around the family alter. Let every Union-loving man, therefore, exert his best tufluence to suppress this agitation, which, since the recent legislation of Congress, is without any legitimate object. It is an evil omen of the times that men have undertaken to calculate the more material value of the l'uin; reasoned extinates have been presented of the pecuniary profits and local advantages which would result to different States and sections-from its dissolution, and of the comparative injuries which such tion, which prohibits the company from Ising an event would inflict on other States and sections. Even descending to this low and ompleted—was taken up.

Mr. Doughty moved to amend by adding calculation are at fault—the bare reference section that unless the road was completed to a sizule consideration will be conclusive on

We at present enjoy a free trade throughout our extensive and expinding country, medt of Mr. Doughty, so as to provide that if such as the world never witnessed. trade is conducted on railroads and canals, on noble aivers and arms of the soi, which bind together the North and the South, the East and the West of our confederacy. Annihiafter some debate, the question was taken late this trade, arrest its free progress by the geographical lines of jealous and hostile States and you destroy the prosperity and onward march of the whole and every part, and involve all in one common ruin. But such considrrations, important as they are in themselves, sink into insignificance, when we refleet on the terrific evils which would result from disunion to every portion of the confederacy. To the North not more than to the South-to the East not more than to the West. These I shall not attempt to portry, because I feel an humble confidence that the kind Provinence which inspired our fathers with wisdom to frame the most perfect formof Government and Union ever devised by man, will not suff r it to perish, until it shall have been peacefully instrumental, by its example, in the extension of cival and religious liberty throughout the world. Next in importance to the mainterance of this day to take the solemn oath "that I will the Constitution and the Union, is the duty faithfully execute the office of President of of preserving the Government free from the taint or even the suspicion of corruption,-Public virtue is the vital spirit of Republics; and history proves that when this has decayed and the love of money has usurped its place, although the forms of free Government may remain for a season, the substance has leparted forever.

Our present financial condition is without a erallel in history. No nation has ever before ents to obtain public money. The purity of vantage of the fortune of war against a sister ly, is suspected, and the character of the Gov- der the treaty of peace, for a sum which was

JAMES BUCHANAN. as to do as little injury as may have been practicable to our domestic manufactures, especially those decessary for the defence of the counry. Any discrimination against a particular branch for the purpose of benefitting favored orporations, individuals or interests, would have been unjust to the rest of the community, and inconsistent with that spirit of fairness and equality which ought to govern in the adustment of a revenue tariff. But the squandering of the public money sinks into comparative insignificance, as a temptation to corruption, when compared with the squandering of slavery, as their own Constitution may pre-scribe at the time of their admission. A noble an inheritance as we enjoy in the Public

In administering this important trust, whilst it may be wise to grant portions of them for the improvement of the remainder, yet we should never forget that it is our cardinal policy to preserve these lands, as much as may be for actual settlers, and this at moderate prices. We shall thus not only best promote the prosperity of the new States and Territories, by furnishing them a hardy and independent race of honest and industrious citizens, but shall secure homes for our children and our children's children, as well as those exiles from foreign shores who may seek in this country to improve their condition and to enloy the blessings of civil and religious liberty. Such emigrants have done much to promote the growth and prosperity of the country. They have proved faithful both in peace and in war. After becoming citizens they are entitled under the Constitution and laws, to be placed on perfect equality with native born eitizen: and in this character they should ever be kindly recognized. The Federal Constitution is a grant from the States to Congress to certain specific powers, and the question whether this grant should be liberully or strictly construed, has more or less divided political parties from the beginning: Without entering into the argument, I desire to state, at the commencement of my administration, that long experience and observation have convinced me that a strict construction of the powers of the Government is the only true, as well as the only safe theory of the Constitution. When,

have been exercised by Congress, these have never failed to produce injurious, and unhapyp consequences. Many such instances might be adduced, if this were the proper occasion .-Neither is it necessary for the public service to strain the language of the Constitution, because all the great and useful powers required for a successful administration of the Government, both in peace and in war, have been granted either in express terms, er by the plainest implication.

Whilst deeply convinced of these truths. yet conider it clear, that under the war-making power Congress may appropriate money towards the construction of a milstary road, when it is absolutely necessary for the defence of any State or Territory of the Union, against oreign invasion. Under the Constitution, Congress has power "to declare war"-to raise and support armies "-" to provide and maintain a navy," and to call forth the militia to "repel invasion". Thus endowed in an ample manner with the war making power, the corresponding duty is required that th United States shall protect /each of them (the States) against invasion! Now is it possible to afford this protection to California. and our Pacific possessions except by means of a military road through the Territories of he United States, ever which men and munitions of war may be speedily transported from the Atlantic States to meet and repel the in-

In the event of a war with a naval power nuch stronger than our own, we should then have no other available access to the Pacific coast, because such a power would instantly close the route across the Isthmus of Central America. It is impossible to conceive, that whilst the Constitution has expressly required Congress to defend all the States, it should yet deny to them by any fair construction, the only possible means by which one of these States can be defended. Besides, the government, ever since its origin, has been in the constant practice of constructing military conds. It might also be wise to consider is to whether the love for the Union, which now animates our fellow citizens on the Pache coast, may not be impaired by our neglect or keep on hand and for sale, a large and varied asrefusal to provide for them in their remote and isolated condition, the only means by which the power of the States on this side of the Rocky Mountains can reach them in sufficient time to protect them against invasion.

I forbear for the present from expressing an vinion as to the wisest and most economical node in which the Government can lend its lishing this great and necessary aid in accomp. ishing this great and necessary work. I believe that many of the difficulties n the way which now appear formidable, will n a great degree, vanish as soon as the nearest and best route shall have been satism torily scertained. It may be right that on this ocasion I should make some brief remarks in egard to our rights and duties as a member of he great family of nations. In our intercourse with them, there are some plain prinsiples approved by our own experience from which we should never depart.

We ought to cultivate peace, commerce and riendship with all nations, and this, not merev as the best means of promoting our own naterial interests, but in a spirit of Christian benevolence towards fellow men, wherever their lot may be cast.

Our diplomacy should be direct and frank, either seeking to obtain more, nor accepting ess than is our due. We ought to cherish a sacred regard for the independence of all nations, and never attempt to interfere in the domestic concerns of any, unless this shall imperatively be required by the great law of selfreservation. To avoid entangling alliances as been a maxim of our policy ever since the days of Washington; and its wisdom no one will attempt to dispute

In short, we ought to doğustice in a kindly spirit to all nations, and require justice from
