At last he came, with foot so lame Where learn'd men talk in heathen Greek And Hebrew lore is gabbled o'er To please the muses twice a week.

Awhile he wrote, awhile he read, Awhile he learned their grammar rules: An Indian savage so well bred, Great credit promis'd to the School.

Some thought he would in Law excel, Some said in Physic he would shine; But those who knew him passing well Reheld in him a sound Divine.

Others of more discerning eye, E'en then could other prospects show; And saw him lay his Virgil by And wander with his dearer bow.

Ah! why he cri'd did I forsake My native land for gloomy walls? The sylvan stream the limpid lake,

For musty books and College halls? A little could my wants supply Can wealth and honor give me more? Or will that "Sylvan God" deny The humble treat he gave before?

Thus spake and to the western springs His gown discharg'd, his money spent, His blanket tied with yellow strings, The Shepherd of the forest went.

Returning to the rural reign, The Indians welcom'd him with joy; His father took him home again, And bless'd the copper-color'd Boy. Cedarville, March 1857. LINA JUNE.

The following is the singular history of Mr. abouchere, late a member of the British Cabinet: In 1822 he was a clerk in the banking-house of Mr. Hope, in Amsterdam, and was sent by his patron to Lord Baring, the celebrated banker of London, to negotiate a oan. He displayed in this affair so much bility that he attracted the attention of the English banker. "Ah!" said he one day to Lord Baring, "you have a charming daughter; will you not accord me her hand?" Young man, no pleasantry! I like you much, but how could Miss Baring become the wife of a common clork?" "But," said Mr. Labouchere; "if I were associated with Mr. whether groping his way amid unbroken Hope!" "Ah, that is very different, and would most materially lessen the inequality between you." Mr. L. returned to Amsterdam, and said to his patron, Mr. Hope, "I must be your partner!" Of the Report of the Town Superintendent of Public Schools of the Township of Downe, read before the Town-Meeting, March 10, 1857, and published by request of said Meeting.

Fourteen teachers have been licensed and ing the period of the past year, ten male and Haley district has enlarged their school edifice by building an addition to their former house, which makes now a large and comfortable room for the accommodation of the pupils of the district. The Newport district also from the increase of children of legal age, have found it necessary to incorporate the district, and have made sale of the old building, enlarged the lot, and contemplate erecting immediately a suitable house, two stories in height and of such dimensions as may be deemed necessary, so that two separate schools may be taught, thereby giving greater facility to the work of instruction. By such a measure, the sum of $1500 (dollars) has been raised by the township for school purposes the past year, which added to the State fund and district funds surplus interest, makes the sum $2830,14 nearly all of which has been expended during the past year. 700 children have been taught. We have now closed the labors of another year in the work of general education; from the report of the State Superintendent, as well as from other sources we are gratified in saying that the system is advancing in its interests, and is gaining strength and confidence in the minds of the citizens of the entire State. The advantages of general education become more apparent as we contemplate them in different points iness. of light; if we view them in a personal sense as applied to the pupil himself, it is an admitted truth that the mind is the standard of the man, it is this that possesses the controlling power over the material objects of the world in which we live, and must subjugate and mould them to various and useful purposes of our present existence, the better it is cultivated the more is it qualified to compare one thing with another, and the clearer must be prayer."

The relative benefits are also regarded as vitally important by those who legislate for the welfare of a free government like our own, for those who in coming years shall be called to frame laws for the government of the country, should first learn how to govern themselves, it is required they should distinguish the difference between right and wrong, truth and error, virtue and vice, or how can they be qualified for such a responsible trust. And all Diseases of the Lungs and Throat are positively entable by inhalation, which conveys the remedies to the cavities in the lungs through the air passages, and coming in direct contact with the disease, neutralizes the thereular matter, allays the cough, causes a free and easy expectoration, heals the lungs, purifies the blood, imparts remeded vitality to the fervous system, giving that one and energy so indispensible for the restoation of health. To be able to state confidently that Consumption is curable by inhalation, is to me a source of unalloyed pleasure. It is against the current in the first stages, and fifty per cent, in the second; but in the thirst stages, and fifty per cent, in the second, but in the thirst stages, and fifty per cent, in the second, but in the thirst stage it is impossible to save more than five per cent, for the lungs are so cut up by the discusses as to bid defiance to medical skill. Even, however, in the last stages, inhalation affords extraordinary relief to the suffering attending this fearful scourge, which animally destroys ninety-five thousand persons in the United States alone; and a correct calculation shows that of the present population of the earth, eighty millions are destined to fill the Consumptive's grave.

Truly the quiver of death has no arrow so fatal as Consumption. In all ages it has been the great enemy of life, to be availed, the graveful and the gifted. It is believed that it possesses advantages enjoyed by few similar institutions in our country. Being in the outskirts of the town, it furnishes retirement to the student, and withdraws him from many temp tations to which he would otherwise be exposed. yet is sufficiently near to allow a punctual attendance at church on the subbath. The building is of recent construction, and has all the modern improvements designed to promote the health and comfort of the pupils. Facilities will be furnished for acquiring a thorough English, mathematical and classical educa-tion, preparing the student either for college or for the more active duties of life. Students will find all the comforts of a home in the family of the principal, with whom they will be required to attend church on the subbath, unless a wish to the contrary is expressed by their parents.
