VOL. X-NO 481

ADIES and gentlemen wishing to have their hair or whiskers of a beautiful dark brown jet black, can do so by calling at Samuel L. Fithian's drug and chemical store, and purchas-ing his superior Hair Dye, at a cost of 25 cts. per ottle. The dye is warranted not to injure the hair, but rather to improve its growth, and to make an unchangeable and natural color with but very little trouble or expense. Try it, and if it does not give satisfaction, if used according to directions, you can have the money refunded.

BRIDGETON, N. J. AVID THOMPSON, A. M., Principal and Instructor in the Classics. B. WOODARD, Instructor in Mathematics and the English Branches.

HENRY NEFF, Instructor in Music. THIS institution is located near the pleasant and healthy town of Bridgeton. It is believed that it possesses advantages enjoyed by few similar institutions in our country. Being in the outskirts of the town, it furnishes retirement to the student, and withdraws him from many temptations to which he would otherwise be exposed, yet is sufficiently near to allow a punctual attendance at church on the sabbath. The building is of recent construction, and has all the modern mprovements designed to promote the health and comfort of the pupils.

Facilities will be furnished for acquiring a thorough English, mathematical and classical education, preparing the student either for college or for the more active duties of life. Students will find all the comforts of a home in the family of find all the comforts of a home in the family of the principal, with whom, they will be required to attend church of the sabbath, unless a wish to the contrary is ressed by their parents.

For board and tuition in the English and Classical branches, together with light and fuel, $80 per session of 22 weeks. Washing $5.

The next session begins on Wednesday, May 6.

For the West Jersey Pions
TO SPRING.

Awakened from her icy bed, The Queen of Nature makes her bow Before an admiring world. The earth But yesterday, a marble mantle wore; And brooks lay cradled in an ice-bound The wind in fury swept the hills, And plains its piercing search Did not escape; but muddened as it were By its increasing strength And long continued force Rushed wildly on, o'er city dense And country waste, till not a stream was soon To cheer the hearts of weary men, Or slake the thirst of brutes-Save as the precious draught rolled on Within its crystal casement safely locked.

All Nature wore a shroud. The trees shook off their yellow leave And doned a robe of snow; The hills, where ever-greens had grown And rocks with blue-bells had been decked Where humming birds, and busy bees Had sipped from roses sweet-Were covered with a carpet white: And man, the noblest work of God, Shook like the reed, at Nature's Death The scene is changed.

The wind is calm, and brooks set free From out their icy tomb, Roll smoothly on towards the sea; And skipping lambs slake their young thirst From out the gurgling streams. The feathered songsters have come back, And flowers bloom again, The God of day sheds his warm teams nd right's bright diadems appear more bright; Reputy sits decked in gorgeous robes, And Nature is herself again.

A LECTURE,

Delivered before the Union Literary Society of Shiloh, by Dr. Enoch Fithian. Much has been said, and written, and sung of rural life, of its peculiar duties and employments, and its peculiar pleasures. It has in all past time been a theme for the pen of the moralist and philosopher, and, in holy flight, and the toils, the cares, and the plea-

Could some guardian spirit, gifted with prophetic vision, have warned such an one at the commencement of his career, of the dangers to which his principles of rectirude would be exposed by his residence in the city, and the temptations which would beset his path in the mercantile, or other business in which he was about to engage, he would have been ready to exclaim with Hazael, "is thy servant a dog that he should do this thing," and yet he has been led on by little and little to imitate tho practices of the great mass of those who buy and sell and get gain, till habits are fixed and practices allowed without remorse, which once would have occasioned the strongest remonstrances of the monitor within. Much of the immorality of cities is occa-

I have thus endeavored to recommend country life, its pleasures; and its more serious occupations, and to show that it has a more salutary effect upon the health, the happinces, and the morals of the community, than a residence in cities. With a few words to the members of this Literary Union, I shall close my remarks.

Although the country is not so munificently endowed as cities with libraries, schools, lyceums, and other facilities for storing the mind with useful knowledge, yet the highest literary attainments may be, and have been reached by those who were born, have lived, and died in the country. It is a mistaken notion that the city is the only place for the attainment of literary eminence. Let none of the young men of this literary association, for such a reason, be discouraged from aspiring to its loftiest eminence. Let excelsior be your metto, and by the means within your reach, which, probably, are more ample than you suppose, obtain all the seeful knowledge your minds are capable of grasping, with the settled purpose of making that knowledge and able for the wants of the community in eral, for your own country, for the place of your callvity, the home of your kindred and cribed to the polish of mental and moral train-friends in particular. Should you succeed in reaching the goal of your hopes, do not suppose that the only way in which your literary acquirements can be made conducive to your own benefit, or the good of the commumity, is by entering one of the learned prossions. It has been too much the custom for those young men who have made more than ordinary attainments in science and literacure, to turn their backs upon their rural homes and employments as not the spheres in which those attainments might be made avoilable for their advancement in wealth and distinction, and engage in the study of military or civil engineering, of law or medicine; and thus many a physician without practice, and many a briefless attorney is living in obscurity, and wearing away a comparitively useless life, who, in agricultural employments might have been accumulating property for himself, and conferring benefits upon the community. It has long been a desideratum that men of literary and scientific attainments should be more numerously located in rural districts and engaged in agricultural pursuits. Thus situated and employed, their superior acquirements would give them elevated social positions, influence in advancing the character of schools, in promoting the education of youth, in improving the manners and morals of society, and in many other ways honorable and useful to themselves, and of incalculable benefit to their fellow citizens. The benefit that one person, well educated in agricultural chemistry, and permanently settled in each township, would confer upon the county of Cumberland, cannot readily be estimated.-His knowledge of the analysis of soil and of its fertilizers, of the adaptation of fertilizers and culture to particular localities, would give impetus to the farming interest in every town-

Great, however, as it has been, it is not so great as the change yet to come. The capabilities of the country, so far from being exhausted, have but begun to be developed. That the inhabitants of this vicinity are not wanting in the elements of progress, is apparent from the great advance in agriculture that has already been made. The increased fertility of the country around us attests it-yonder beautiful church, these academic halls, this literary association attests it.

If they walk the streets of difficulties have been overcome, and obstacles the city, or tread the floors of its places of surmounsed, and in the onward march, there are more difficulties to be encountered, still greater heights to attain. "Hills over hills. and Alps on Alps arise." These heights, in the march of improvement, it may be the mity on their hearts. How often have such privilege of some of the young men present to reach, and thence look upon a country teeming with such harvests as art and science, when their powers taxed to the utmost, and brought to bear upon the soil, alone are capable of producing; upon the abodes of man improved institutions of learning, and sanctuaries for the Most High; on a country flourishing like Salem and blooming like Eden, with the delightful consciousness that their own heads and hands had been instrumental in effecting the wondrous change.

It is more than eighty years since a socie ty somewhat similar to this association, existed in the township of Greenwich, some of the members of which, subsequently, were among the most distinguished of New Jersey's sons. Several of them represented the county of Cumberland in the State Legislature. One of their number, after graduating with distinction at Princeton college, and giving large promise of future usefulness, became a cler gyman, was a chaplain in the army of the camp at White Plains. Another was the author of one of our most valuable works on Jurisprudence. Another became Governor. of New Jersey, and another, President of the American Philosophical Society. If it is asked what was it that gained for those men their distinguished positions in science, literature, and political life above the mass of their cotemporaries, we answer, that as "the only difference between the diamond which adorns Victoria's brow, and that which lies imbedded in the the earth consists in polish," so is their honour and usefulness to be principally asing. How often does the germ of all that is excellent in mind and character, for the want of education, remain dormant through life.

Other misrepresentations, falsehoods manufactured in his own imbecile and corrupt mind, are inserted in the slanderous sheet which he takes he responsibility of owning. His maliciousness in tempting to ridicule articles that appear in the Pioneer, and display his wisdom by criticising sentences which are so universally used and gramnatically correct, that no one but a wise man, such as the editor of the Chronicle is (in his own estination,) would venture to display his wisdom on. Not being able to use one sensible argument against, or find mything to criticise in our reply to his base and slanderous falsehoods, he undertakes to display his mighty talents (?) by attempting to ridicule the she will send him word. idea of a boat landing.

In a notice which we gave last week, of the Express arriving at this place on Wednesday last constructed with such artistic skill, and so we said, "As soon as the boat landed at the tastefully adorned, as to give charms to home wharf," &c. This we considered then, and do unknown before; upon enlarged and greatly still, not only a common expression, in use from history. His name was "Kings English," the time the May Flower landed at Plymouth Rock, until the present, but it is also strictly grammatical. If it were said that the boat landed, would be an active intransitive verb, conveying the boat landed, passengers understood, of course, by every one except the witty editor of the Chro nicle, who is so noted for his abilities

Persons should be very careful when they say the sun rises and sets, for if the talented and farfamed critic of the Chronicle should chance to hear of such a strange assertion, his sense of propriety would be wonderfully shocked. He it is that gives correct (critical) reports of all important Church, on Monday evening next, at 8 o'clk. revolution, and died from exposure, in the transactions, at the earliest date. We suppose the arrival of the Express at this place was an unimportant item, unworthy of notice by the Chronicle man. We looked at it in a different light; the fact of not having Steamboat communication between this place and Philadelphia for years past, and the arrival of one, in every way worthy the support of the farming community in particular, we considered of interest to the readers of the Pioneer. If the Chronicle is not patronized by any farmers in this County, and the editor is afraid the stage proprietors will refuse to carry him to the city any longer if he notices the arrival of a Steamboat, which the farmers are interested in, then his neglecting to say one word about the arrival of the Express may be accounted for. The stage proprietors have always treated us gentlemauly, and we have a better opinion of them than to believe they can be persuaded to do otherwise because we mentioned that a steamboat had arrived. The Chroniele man as an apology for his lack of editorial courtesy, informed his readers last week, that the Pioncer is generally issued some-was the Chronicle furnished the week before .-This is news indeed to those who know anything about the two papers, both of which "profess to be published on Saturday morning." It is customary throughout the country, for newspapers to be printed a day previous to the one on which they are dated. The Pioncer, also, will continue to be as long as we can furnish money to pay our hands for their services. The idea of news being published in the Chronicle a week previous, is pre- and warranted to give satisfaction. posterous! It is a fact generally admitted that he news of the week is circulated in the Pioneer almost invariably, a day ahead of the same news which appears in the Chronicle. During the entire session of our State Legislature, when there was anything worthy of notice in the proceedings, we gave to our readers on Friday morning, as late news as the Chronicle did on Saturday, and when any important news, such as the President's or Governor's Message, Inaugural Address of the President or Governor, or any matters of general interest were published, the Pioneer has invariably been, and will continue to be, in advance of the Chronicle. The editor of that paper should be ashamed to make ascertions, which to the reading public are so evidently false. The last annual nessage of Gov. Price, a document of some importance, which was to have appeared in the Chronicle in advance of the Pioneer, was printed and circulated throughout the county in our paper on cents for Southern yellow in store and affoat. Friday morning, in the afternoon of that day the Oats are steady; sales of Pennsylvania and smart editor of the Chronicle (the paper that gives Delaware at 59 a 60 cents per bushel. the news in advance) arrived from Trenton, went to his office and informed his hands that he had a copy of Gov. Price's Message, (in advance?) which was to appear in the Chronicle that week, he was soon reminded that in order to get ahead of the Pioneer, it was necessary to be wide awake and keep sober. He did however condescend to come to our office and offer five dollars for the use of the type from which the message was printed, the use of which enabled the Chronicle to make its appearance somewhere about Sunday morning We give the above as a specimen of the manner duct. Not being satisfied with the contempt in which the Chronicle furnishes the news in advance. We are graciously informed in that sheet, that we are "compelled to sell the Pioneer for eight levies per year!" Well, good sized sound petatoes meet with a ready sale at eight levies, while

"small ones, with few in the hill," and corrupt at heart, are a drug in the market at twelve levies, or any other price. Thus far we have been occupying a defensive position, in replying to the cowardly insinuations. and malicious falsehoods manufactured by the unprincipled scribblers that weekly adorn the columns of the Chronicle, After they have published another column or two of personal abuse, and laid before their readers all they have been gathering and leave the community to decide, who should "quit the country for his country's good."

The following letter from a prominent and respectable citizen of Millville, though unexpected, is appreciated by us; it not only speaks the sentipublication, if we preferred, which at present is withheld for reasons satisfactory to the writer.

THE Lotteries of Samuel Swam & Co., also chartered by the State of Georgia, and have sworn commissioners appointed to superinted their drawings, and certify that everything connected with the same is done in a strictly honorable manner. They offer to the public a fair opportunity for investment, the interests of the parties at a distance being as well protected as though they were present. The Managers would respectfully call-attention to the fact that all persons have a legal right to send orders for tickets to Georgia, as the lotteries of Samuel Swan & Co., are authorized by the Legislature of that State. A lottery will be drawn every Saturday throughout the year, all orders received being filled in the drawing next to take place after the same comes to hand. According to the scheme one ticket in every ten must draw a prize. Tickets are 10 dollars, halves, 5, quarters, 260. No ticket sent unless the money accompanies the order. The drawings are upon the principle of one number on each ticket, and are so simple that none can fail to understand them. There is no combination of numbers to mystify the buyer. Prizes vary from 40 to 50, thousand dollars; every prize being dawn, and result of drawing forwarded to all purchasers.

A list of the numbers that are drawn from the wheel, with the amount that each prize is critical to, will be published after every drawing in the following papers:—New Orleans Beltia Mobile Register, Charleston Standard, Nashville Democrat Minuta Intelligencer, and New York Weekly Day Book. Write your address plainly, and direct to S. SWAN & Co., Atlanta. Georgia.
