For the West Jersey Pioneer THE LOST SHIP.

BY MRS. S. S. SOCWELL.

A stately ship swept or the sea In majesty and pride: Hundreds of hearts kept joyous time To the ripple of the tide.

For bright across the heaving waves Gleamed the fair shores of home; And well-known voices seemed to call, In loving accents, "Come!"

But, ah! the wind which whispered this, Rose with a wilder wail; The sunny heaven grew black with storms, Till c'en strong men turned pale.

And soon upon the angry sea, The good ship helpless lay: And wearily and drearily Passed the long gloomy day. But not one heart shrank fearfully,

In that wild, awful hour: The strength which only comes from God, Nerved them with strange, calm power. Bravely and stendily they toiled,

Till every hope was gone; Then turned and calmly looked on death, Without one murmuring tone. They saw, without one selfish pang, Boat after boat depart, E'en while the angel's brooding wing Cast shadows o'er each heart. And now the night falls solemnly. Cheerless and wild and dark;

And slowly in the yawning waves Settles the fated bark. Upon her deck that noble band Stand silent, firm and brave: All earthly hope hath long since died,

'Tis God alone can save. One anguished shrick rings wildly out Above the voice of storms, And on the boiling ocean float Hundreds of struggling forms. Alas! alas! for the thousand homes

Now lone and desolate: Alas! for the tender, loving ones Who vainly ween and wait. Millions of precious gold went down To Ocean's treasure-caves;

But of far more worth is one true heart, Than all wealth beneath the waves. From the hiden caverns of old Earth Bright gold may still be won; But ne'er can the lost to us return,

With their joyous look and tone. But they are not dead-these noble menbeath is not for such as these-They will live while the sounding ocean's voice

Swells out on the wandering breeze. They will live while a noble deed can thrill The depth of a human heart; While Love can weave his gentle spells, Or the tear of sympathy start. La Prairie Centre, Marshall Co., Ill., 1857.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. AUTUMN WINDS. BY ELLIS AYRES.

Autumn breezes murmur gently, Pressing onward wild and free; And I listen to the breathings Of their varied minstrelsy. Mingled tones are sweetly blending, lu a mornful, mirthful strain. Trembling, mourning, gushing, dying; Then anon they swell again.

Aye! their tones, so sweetly thrilling, In my heart a spell have wrought; All their gushing harp-notes seeming With unearthly music fraught. Vague and fitful are the shadows O'er my secret spirit cast; Chords are swept within my bosom, By the music of the blast.

Summer roses all have faded, Flow'rets withered at a breath. By the autumn breezes shaded, With the gloomy hue of death: They have borne upon their pinions, Lavish treasures of perfume; Oft they chant in mournful murmurs, Requiems o'er the flowret's tomb. They have tinged with gold and purple, All the leaflets of the wood, And the wildwood boughs are waving To and fro in solitude:

They have shorn the forest monarch Of its leafy diadem; And its branches now are studded With the frost-pearls flushing gem.

Yet the autumn breezes whisper Truthful lessons to the heart; If we heed their golden precepts, We will "choose the better part," Aye! they teach us life is fleeting, As the Summer season past, That Life's autumn time is nearing, And Life's winter coming fast.

And they sing, in mirthful measures, Of sweet Spring-time's sunny hours. Which from earth, in beauty waken Lovely, fragrant, blooming flowers. Would we hear-they whisper to us Of a resurrection morn;

Moulded dust may then be quickened, And to "Life Eternal" born. Then to us should sighing breezes Messengers of mercy prove, Fanning sparks of Faith's pure sitar, Into glowing fires of love,

Calmly cooling Passion's fire,

Soothing wounds of Sorrow's dart; Giving life to plants of promise, Springing up within the heart.

Crystal fountains there unsealing, Welling up in rills of bliss, Purifying thought and feeling, Giving birth to inward peace. We should hail their angel voices,

As they chant each thrilling strain, Treasure up their holy teachings, Garner well each golden grain. Then the clouds of grief and sorrow,

May not shroud their souls in gloom,

Flowers, fadeless and immortal, In our hearts may ever bloom; Which the autumn winds of sorrow Cannot blast, though fiercely driven; Which shall bloom through life eternal, In the atmosphere of heaven. Plainfield, N. J., Nov. 11.

ORIGIDAL.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. Canadian Correspondence

Romeo, Michigan, Nov. 10th, '57. MR. Editor:-Since you see fit to accept lightened multitude, it becomes your correspondent to be respectful, and strive at torseness before this majesty of mind. Your in dulgent readers will not look for classical polish, or professional clearness and accuracy. Chastening that coarseness which made his presence repulsive and unappreciated, this may find acceptance with some in sections where he could not obtain an ordinary literary seat. Any thing in this the reader cannot understand; he can have resource to lay aside until the writer comes to explain.

There is a very free and friendly intercourse between the people of Canada and the States of both Michigan and York. Ferries are kept all along the River St. Clair, and skiffs are seen gliding to opposite shores. The cently custom house officers have been apto prevent nothing, collect nothing, and to Election. I seem to have come from a steady settled government to one of contention and between the snowy curtains, on the wide never exhibited a more stricking tableau vichange. In Canada they have Election but window scat—everything wears the home once in about four years; then none are permitted to vote without property qualification, so that with the great portion of the people there is little concern about it.

I perceive also, that difference in tone of birth, is gone, and a home-like sound of voice supplied. The mangling of English words in utterance by German or Gallic tongues, is excusable. Erroneous oratory we can account for and endure, but those preternatural, un defined inflections in converse by persons speaking their mother English, is provoking, and puzzles the mind to find what feeling, passion, or emotion of their souls they mean to express; or what use or impression the superfluous trill and drawl is intended to effect. Here too I catch the sight of embellished cards, diversified with letters in red and black that tell of ague cures, which I do not resolloct ever seeing in Canada. Here are fearful auxieties about the times expressed in every one you meet. All are filled with complaints and distrust; sermons are preached on "want of confidence" in man and God, and want of "faith to overcome the

From the Cincinnati Times. CAUGHT THE PANIC.

A tall, lank, Jerusalem sort of a fellow, pretty well under the influence of Mr. Alcohol, was observed swinging to a lamp post on Fifth street, last night. He was talking quite loudly to the aforesaid post, when a guardian of the night approached him. "Come, sir, you are making too much

SABBATH RAINS.

"It is very bad for the health to sit in church with wet clothes and damp feet." Well, it is. At the same time, Sabbath rain is not worse than the week-day rain, although there is apparently a much greater terror of it. The following considerations may suit the case of some "fair weather" church goers: 1. It is as bad for the minister as for the people, and yet he must be there. Through rain and snow he must go, dry if he can, but charges only a quarter, and it takes him two if not, he must go. His health is no better hours, besides he pulls you all around the than that of the male members of his con- room, and you get the worth of your money. gregation generally, usually not so good. And if the rain furnishes no excuse for his faces, peeped through their fingers—scream- absence, it furnishes none for theirs. If you ed again and declared they should die-they say it is his business to go, so it is theirs; there is one law for both. And,

Bad weather reduces a church congregation quite out of proportion to any other collection of people. Why, the other evening, a Thursday meeting was given up on account of the weather, no one but the minister and one lady coming (which was hardly enough that it was raining! And how they ever got there on foot without soiling their silk dresses or dampening their feet, has been a mystery to him ever since. Here was a religious meeting completely collapsed, and a social party reduced only about twenty per cent., and all by the same storm. How is it that the rain is much more terrible "hard by the synagogue," than it is about town? It is quite true that many "women and children" are precluded from attending church in year. storms. But, verily, four or five hundred per cent., is too much to allow for shrinkage, in common congregation. We should be less the sport of circumstances. Satau waits not for fair weather. He does his work in "thunsanctuary, except when it storms.'

Studying Human Nature. The Buffalo Republic tells a story which we don't believe, but it is so good that it is worth repeating simply as a joke:-

Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, dressed in very common clothes, was studying human nature as exhibited in the highways and bye-ways of New York. In the course of his philosophic perigrinations he went into a mock aucbe so lost to all sense of truth and honesty as the auctioneer in question, endervoring to palm off his worthless trash to the inexperienced in city ways, as good and valuable, and finally the auctioneer called out; "Mr. Beechtonished, as we can well imagine, at finding himself known in this place, and, as he had supposed, in his purposely careless dress. him in his disguise. FIRES:

Although we have as yet e scaped any very serious loss by fire, we have no guarantee that such an exemption will continue another day. Fire is a very essential element of comfort in every family, and is indispensably necessary in conducting the daily affairs system in general, which has been productive of domestic life. Like all other things in of such great public advantage, both in Eufrequent use familiarity with it produces insensibility of danger.

Little urchins hardly big enough to be called boys, strut round out house and barn yards, puffing their his mouth, and we are not aware that he ever set any buildings on fire by his recklessness. Yet we imagin there are but few farmers, however fond of the weed, who would wish to see such an experiment made in gathering their crops. Lighted segars around hay-stacks are no uncommon sights. In addition to these unintentional causes of destruction by fire, incendiarism has increased to a fearful extent in both town and country, particularly in the former. In the city of Philadelphia it has been found necessary to establish a detective fire police, whose special duty it is to take cognizance of this species of crime; scarcely a daily reaches us that does not record at least one instance of arson. But lately some of the most valuable part of this town but narrowly escaped destruction, through the presence of mind and coolness of the owner. Two weeks since two incendiary fires were kindled in a neighborin town. Are not these events sufficient to remind us that our fire equipments are sadly out of repair. Most of the towns in lower Jersey are built principally of weod, and the conflagration of an hour, may destroy more in value than the cost of a dozen engines with the proper equipment to make them serviceable. Firemen are always willing and ready to work when their services are needed. but to make their labor effectual, they must have something to work with. Hands however willing cannot put out fire without water and the means to apply it to the fire.

In both these particulars Bridgeton and probably Millvillo too are lamentably deficient. Except in the immediate neighborhood of the creek or pond, but little water can be procured, as the wells soon become exhausted. If a fire was to break out on a windy day, much damage to the town must ensue unless more efficient means of prevention are employed. It is criminal to allow preperty to lie so exposed, when such ample means are at hand for making it comparafively secure. We have frequently before alluded to the reservoir of water on the hill on the west side of the creek, belonging to the enterprising firm of Reeves, Nichols & Co. and the ease with which much of the town can be supplied with good and wholesome water for domestic use.

The water is already raised high enough to be made serviceable over two thirds of the town. With a very trifling expense it could be raised high enough to be available in case of coal boatmen en the deck. The wind was - of fire in any part of the town. Dissolution of the Camden and Gloucester Co. Agricultural Society

We learn, from the Constitution, "that is proposed to divide the society and its property, leaving each county to form its own society. This matter has been talked of for some time. If we judge by the working of the society, it is apparent that the union of the two counties in one society, is of no prac tical benefit. Its exhibitions show this distinctly. These have alternated between Had. donfield and Woodbury. The interest of each county has manifested itself in a direct ratio with the place of exhibition. At the last one, Camden county made no effort, and but for the public spirit of a few of its citizens, it would not have been represented at all. Gloucester county came far short of her duty the year before. A spirit of dissatisfaction has grown up, which will negative the the best efforts of the society to promote the great object it has in view. Hence the movement now on foot. Each county is fully able to mantain a society advantageously, and they had better stand alone, if they cannot act cordially together.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. DISASTER ON THE WATER,

As the sloop "Sarah & Hannah," of Bridgeon, was returning from Philadelphia on Saturday 21st inst., Mr. Smith Paget Long was accidentally thrown from the deck of the vessel into the water and could not be recovered.

I was alone on deck, about cleven o'clock . M., and called for some one to come up and give the vessel more sheet. Mr. Long came up and began to let off the main-sail. As he took the last turn of the rope from the cleat, the main-sail, under the force of the wind, gave a violent jerk and threw him clear of the vessel into the water. He did not shalt no more toil with the care worn of earth, become tangled in the tackling, nor was he struck by any of the timbers, but was thrown simply by the force of the wind on the sail. The wind was blowing fresh, and the deck and sails were so frozen, that by the time we could fairly begin to work for his recovery, we were a considerable distance from him. We launched the small boat immediately, but before any one could get aboard she nearly filled, and while we were getting down the sails of the vessel, the small boat itself got away. We tried hard to throw boards, but minutes, Mr. Long sank.

far from Reedy Island, about 11 o'clock A. peace. M., on Saturday the 21st inst., as has been

We remained in the neighborhood an hour and a half, or two hours, hoping that something might yet be done, or at least that the body might rise, but finding at last that there was no hope, we went on our way. Mr. Long was heavily clothed, and this circumstance no doubt obstructed his efforts in his own behalf. He had on flannel clothing, heavy boots, an overcoat, oil cloth overalls, and a new tarpaulin fastened under his chin. It may be well to add, to facilitate recognition, in case the body should rise before long, that Mr. Long had whiskers of perhaps month's growth, and rounded towards the lower part of the face.

JOS. BATEMAM, Capt. of the vessel. IIt is hardly speaking too strongly to say that the death of Mr. Long has thrown gloom over our community. It has plunged his family into the deepest distress. He leaves a wife and two small children. He was a valuable man. Though not disposed to make himself conspicuous, his amiable temper, and his uniformly irreproachable de portment, had won for him the respect of al who knew him. He was a christian toosincere, consistent, and zealous as a professed follower of Christ. He united with one of the Presbyterian churches of Cedarville, (the brick) in Aug. 1856, and since that time, he has adorned his profession, and secured a high place in our esteem for him as a faithful brother.

The circumstances of his death, are exceedingly painful. He was returning to his family after a few days absence, expecting, of course, to be with them on the afternoon of Saturday, and during the Sabbath. His family were as confidently expecting him.-One of the children had said during the day that "Papa will be home to night, and he will ask a blessing at the table." His wife. was preparing their evening meal, and looking for him every moment, when the tidings was communicated to her. It adds poignancy to his friends sorrow, that they have not the mournful satisfaction of laying his remains down decently and quietly in the grave. So much the more do our thoughts run forward to that august occasion when the sea, at the cial give some particulars of the burning of bidding of Him who made it, shall yield up its dead.

No doubt every thing was done that was possible, under the circumstances, to save him. The crew of the vessel, without an exception, esteemed him very highly, and are greatly afflicted in his death.

May He who bindeth up the broken in heart, and healeth all their wounds, be near to the bereaved family, proving himself the Judge of the widow, the Father of the fatherless, in his holy habitation.

Thursday last was observed in this town by all denominations, as a day of Thanksgiving. Services were held in the Frat Presbyterian, and Fayette street M. E. Churches, in the morning, preaching by Rev. Dr. Jones, and Rev. P. Cline. A sermon in the afterneon at the Baptist Church, by Rev. J. S. Commer and a the evening at the Second. For the West Jerry Pioneer. A FAITHFUL BACHER.

There is in the burial ground connected with the old Presbyterin Church of this place, a tomb stone bearing the following inscription, and commendation of the worth of a faithful teacher: "Breted in memory of Mrs. Elizabeth Ginemack, by the teachers and children of the Heward Sunday School. Philadelphia, as their estimony to her faithful, devoted and self-derying labors, for twelve years, in that school. Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord from henceforth; yea, saith the Spirity that they may rest from their labors, and their works do follow them." What volumes does this little momento tell of one who has passed away from the toils of earth. She was "faithful" How blessed the consciousness that God will not forsake or cast off any who are faithful in the work He has given them to do, but that they shall finally reap their reward is Heaven, and hear the good Master say, "Well done good and The New Brunswick Fredonian says, this faithful servant, thou has been faithful over society has, according to the fashion of the a few things, I will make thee ruler over times, suspended payment-not being able many things, enter thos into the joys of thy ECNOMY IN FUEL—Silver'S Air-tight Gas Burner—Improved by James Spear, January 18th, 1877. I would particularly call attention to this celebrated Stave for Farlors, Halls, Dining Booms, Chambers, Stores, offices, &c. The heating qualities of this excellent Stave are so well known, that it is useless to make further comments. But the great objection to the old pattern is that the holes where the air enters the cylinder to ignife the gas, frequently become stopped with ashes and canders and when this takes place, the gas burning qualities of the Stove a west are defined. stopped with ashes and canders; and when this takes place, the gas burning qualities of the Stove a w do trayed, and there is no way of elesning them out without rating the stove apart, and fragrantly the cylinder has to be lene well. To prevent this objection, I have placed on each side of the stove a perforate i cast from mane, with slides to open and close at pleasure, with this improvement, the gas-torming qualities of this stave cains of be impaired by over-filling, or failing into the hands of those unaccustomed to the principle of this stave, as there is no disfinalty in keeping these openings free from ashes or cind 48.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY CONSUMPTION

And all Discases of the Lungs and Throat are positively Curable by Inhalation, Which conveys the remedies to the cavities in the lung hrough the air passages, and coming in direct contact with the disease, neutralizes the tubercular matter, allays the ough, causes a free and easy expectoration, heals the cough, causes a free and easy expectoration, heals the lungs, purifies the blood, imparts renewed vitality to the nervous system, giving that ione and energy so indispensable for the restoration of health. To be able to state confidently that Consumption is curable by inhalation, is to me a source of unalloyed pleansre. It is as much under the control of medical treatment as any other formidable disease; ninety out of every hundred cases can be curred in the first stages, and fifty per cent to the second, but in the third stage it is impossible to save more than five per cent, for the Lungs are so cut up by the disease as to bid definance to medical skill. Even, however, in the last stages, Inhalation affords extraordinary relief to the suifering attending this fearful scourge, which annually destroys ninety-five thousand persons in the United States alone, and a correct calculation shows that of the present population of the earth, eighty millions are destined to fill the Consumptive's graves.

Consumptive's graves.

Truly the quiver of death has no arrow so fatal as Consumption. In all ages it has been the great enemy of life inhaling the ordinary burning gas will destroy life in a few hours.

The inhalation of a ammonia will rouse the system when fainting or apparently dead. The odor of many of the medicines is perceptible in the skin a few influences after being minded, and may be immediately detected in the blood. A convincing proof of the constitutional effects of inhalation, is the fact that sickness is, always produced by: breathing foul air. Is not this positive evidence that proper remedies, carefully prepared and judiciously administered through the lungs, should produce the most happy results? During eighteen years practice, mutry thousands, suffering from diseases of the lungs and throat, have been under my care, and I have effected many romarkable cures, even after the sufferers had been pronounced in the last stages, which fully satisfies me that consumption is no longer a fatal disease. My creatment of consumption is organal, and founded on long experience and thorough investigation.
