"Ask, and it shall be given unto you." Gentle maid, with auburn hair, Ask ye not for riches fair; For money's crimes, too many know Endless tears unceasing flow. Loving heart, ask not a name Sounded by the trump of fame; The noblest word that nature cries When in his grave, is-"kere he lies." Fairest one, ask not a face Beaming with unnatural grace, Beauty's flame will soon grow cold, When the flesh and blood get old. Favored one, ask not a mind By genius trained,-at home unkind, For talent only, can distill The deepest woes, from every ill. Gentle maiden, ask for love, Pure as that which reigns above, That shall last while youth decay, And other hopes shall fade away. From realms above, was love sent down, And where it rests 'tis holy ground. Aye! those who in love's bosom rest, Are by heaven remembered, by heaven blest.

MARSHALL Co., Ill., 1858 There is one thing the farmers do out here, which it would be well for Jerseymen to imitate; they allow their calves to live.— The mania for killing calves, and thus making people unhealthy with unhealthy food, has not yet reached here, and it is to be hoped it never will. DRESS Most young ladies think that to be well dressed they must be fine, or rather gaudy; must wear ribbons flounces, jewelry, and what not, in profusion, and have a new and different dress for every possible occasion.

Never was there a more mistaken idea. No lady who dresses gaudily, dresses well. One who strives to adapt her dress to her com-plexion and stella of fasturas is sollidar not cloud-like laces, or a gingham wrapper and linen collar. And one who dresses for mere show, is illy dressed, though she carry the wealth of a gold-mine about her person. A single flower, or spray of green leaves, is a much more tasteful and elegant ornament for a young, fresh farmer's daughter, than a circlet of pearls or diamonds. What can be more appropriate for the gay, rosy country girl (and for such we write,) than the beautiful ornaments nature zavishes so bountifully wherever she finds a nook to accomodate them. Almost any young girl, however plain she may be, looks well in a neat calico or gingham dress; indeed plain por-sons always look best in plain clothing, and a lovely face and form can well dispense with gay adornings, which only serve to draw attention from the natural to the artificial loveliness of the wearer. I will not coursel young ladies, as very all things; the adaption of means to ends is many do, to avoid extravagance in dress, that they may procure better husbands by doing; for I believe that young ladies should have something of more importance than husband-catching to occupy their minds; but I do counsel them to make dress a secondary consideration. One who spends her girlhood in dressing, and thinking of dress, may expect a restless, dull, unhappy womanhood, and a querulous, vacant-minded, disagrecable old age. All strong and inharmonious contrasts should always be avoided and all colors and styles which do not harmonize with the complexion and figure; no matter what Dame Fashion and Miss Vanity may say. Any lady possessing the least a large family. The children of one as they tas e can soon ascertain what will best become her, and every one should do so. The trious and moral men. ROMANTIC MARRIAGES

The Brooklin Eagle, in commenting up-on the recent suicide of Heury W. Herbert, thus dwells opon the unwholesome results of the modern romantic marriages;

"The case of Herbert is a gloomy commentary on a certain class of romantic marriages which are on the increase of late years, and form the staple of nine-tenths of the trashy literature that deluges the community. Romantic young lady assailed by ruffians and on the point of being ruined; gallant champion rushes to the rescue; villains fly just as young lady faints and falls into deliverer's arms; clandestine corresponness, and love. Mike is a little darkey of a dozen years, who was purposely left alone in the store one day, and watched through a door that stood ajar, to test his honesty. Finding himself alone, he began to canvass the apartment for something good, and slipping behind the counter, he soon helped himself liberally to nuts and candy. Upon being caught in the act, and reprimanded, he began to justify himself by saying:

POLITICAL CONVENTIONS AT SALEM

The American and People's Conventions met at Salem, on Thursday afternoon last, the former at Brown's Rall, and the latter at the Court House. Forty-nine townships were represented, from which Hon. J. T. Nixon, of this place, received forty-five votes, on the first balloting, and the unanimous vote on the second.

The Peoples Convention organized by appointing as temporary Chairman, Thomas H. Dudley, of Camden, and Geo. B. Cooper of this county, Secretary. Abraham Browning of Camden, and Mr. G. B. Cooper, -were subsequently appointed

The Convention adjourned about } past three. At the American Convention S. C. Harbert of Salem was elected temporary Chairman, after which Judge Porter, of Camden, took the Chair. F. F. Sharp, of Millville, was the permanen

49 townships were represented, 34 of which voted for Mr. Nixon. The principal part of the Camden Delegation withdrew and held their meeting at the Nelson House, and nominated J. H Jones who addressed them.

Mr. Nixon being called upon, addressed th American Convention, at Brown's Hall. Both Conventions were well attended, and with but one exception, harmony prevailed. * This result arrived at with so much more unanimity than was expected, will undoubtedly be recoived with great pleasure by our readers gener-

Mr. Nixon is a man of ability, just in the prime faithfully and ably represented, by one who will manfully grapple with all the questions now agiat ing the public mind. Courteous and gentlemanly in manners and bearing, his example can not fail to have a good influence in checking the scenes of violence and outrage of which the house is so often the scene.

We earnestly wish him success in the canvass to the office which he is so well qualified to fill-His nomination so nearly and unexpectedly unanimous by the convention, has been hailed in this place with feelings of delight. The delegates from Camden went in a steamboat chartered for the occasion, and accompanied by ver. a fine band of music, which discoursed most excellent music through the city.

The Arniversary of Union Academy, at Shiloh, will take place on Thursday, the 8th day of July next, in the church at that place, further notice of which will be given next week.

It was brought to our sanctum for inspection. and there is no humbug about it, each head being of large size and well filled.

New Potatoes and Strawberries .- We are indebted to Capt. H. Shropshire, of Bricksboro', for a handsome lot of new potatoes; they are the largest and best that have made their appearance in this market the present season. RUNAWAY.

On Saturday last after most of our cicizens had partaken of their evening repast, and many were promenading the sidewalks, a couple of young gents of this place concluded to take a moonlight ride in the country with their lady-love, but unfortunately while coming down Commerce street, in front of our office, their horses commenced running; one of the gentlemen in order to assist the other took hold of the lines and consequently brought them up rather suddenly against an open wagon, belonging to Mr. Fisher, standing along the road near the County Clerk's office, breaking the open wagon to some extent, and demolishing the carriage in a shocking manner. Fortunately, however, no bones were broken, but one lady being in the carriage at the time, in company with the gentlemen who were going after others. LETTER FROM THE GOVERNOR. His Intended Remarks at the Highlands, ALLENTOWN, June 11, 1858.

To C. S. TUNIS Esq. Editor of "Daily Inquirer," &c. Dear Sir:-I was prevented, by a severe indisposition, from responding to the call made upon me at the entertainment given at the Highlands, on the 10th inst. The occasion was, in my judgment, an important one, and I went there, far from being well to give utterance to my sentiments upon the topic chiefly under discussion. Lest my si-lence should be misunderstood or misconmade, had I been able to remain at the table. I am, very truly, your friend, WM. A. NEWELL.

I have been informed that this entertain ment is given in honor of those friends to New Jersey who have refused to grant the this County. My individual views, as to the impropriety and impolesy of removing the New York Quarantine from its present location to Sandy Hook, have already been freely expressed, but I must take this occasion to

To say nothing of the considerations of state pride involved in this question; of the doubts as to the power of a state, to yield jurisdiction over any portion of its territory to a foreign state; of the unfitness of the proposed site for the purpose desired, and of the general injurious effets, of the proposed removal to the state at large; but viewing it with reference to this county alone. I am free to assert, that no other event could possibly occur, which would be attended with such disastrous consequences as this. The shore of the county of Monmouth, is as salubrious as any other in the world. We find here this incomparable watering place known as the "Highlands," and also, "Long Branch," "Deal" and "Squan," whilst at intermediate points, and for miles inland are numerous establishments, especially designed as summer resorts for health and recreation All these cannot be but injuriously affected if not indeed rendered valueless, by the vicinity of a great restilental depot. It is folly to tell us who have looked out from these hill tops-to-day, that there would be no increased danger to us from infections diseases. So long as the wind shall blow, and the tides shall set, would infected articles find their way along our soa-board, and be carried upon the waters of the "Navesink" and "Shrewsbury," to the very heart of our county. So long as yonder beach shall remain, would innumerable lazaroui travel along its track, and into our midst, plundering our property filling our prison and poor louses, and spreading crime poverty, pestilence and death. The resources of Monmouth County, in its varied and fertile soil, its inexhaustible beds of marl, its sea shore, rivers, bays and harbors, and its intermediate proximity to the best market on the con inent, are superior to those of any other agricultural county in the States. These extraordinary elements of prosperity and wealth, should not be jeopardized by any unwise act of legislation, but rath Hotel and proceed to the grove in the rear er fostered and protected by every means, calculated to promote their speedy and full development. Instead of having a pest house let the general government improve our rivers, harbors and inlets; let our county be intersected with railroads and turnpikes, and our waters filled with vessels laden with the products of our soil. But I trust that this question is forever get at rest by the decided action of our Legislature, at its last session. I believe that action to have been in accordance with right. with the wishes and interests of the state. -The people of Monmouth are grateful for that action, and in their name I take the liberty, gentlemen of the Legislature, to give

I entertain for our sister State of New York, all the consideration to which her unparalleled energy and greatnes entitle her; for my distinguished friend, her excellent Chief Magistrate, sentiments of the most profound respect; I wish for her people the fullest measure of prosperity and happiness but "self-preservation is the first law of nature." and I hope that should this application be renewed in the future, the response of New Jersey will be "No," decided and irre-

This may be called strong language; but as a citizen of Monmouth. I must speak my sentiments plainly. This County is endeared to me as the scene of grand Revoluionary reminiscences and associations, as the birth-place and home of my ancestors, and as the burial place of my nearest and dearest kindred. I ask but to spend my allotted time amongst her warm hearted and magnanimous people; and when I forsake or forget her, may I, too, be forsaken and forgotten.

Huge Spake Captured near Centerville. Salem County.

MR. EDITOR: This morning just as the sun began to show his brightness, in the eastern horizon; my attention was attracted by the singular action of one of our scientific men. He was moving slowly and gracefully up and down a vacant lot of one of my neighbors to the surprise of all that happened to see him. The singularity of his doings, and the gracefuliness of his movements, called me to the spot where to my surprise. I found him training a Hugh Snake captured by him the day before. He had him halt ered, giving him the word of command, which he instants neously obeyed; I suppose partly by instinct, but mainly by the assistance of his halter.

Now Mr. Editor, I am afraid of those creeping things, and thought he had better be afraid to, and told him he was a fool, for pulling that wicked looking thing about in that manner, and that he had better come away from that open-mouthed, forked-tongued long-bodied and slim-tailed animal. But no, the more I remonstrated, the more general like be appeared, fear seemed to be a stranger to him. He had faught the battle, conquered the enemy and captured the snake; then said he why should I be afraid while I have the enemy in my power. At that moment Oh how his eyes brightened, and his whole man seemed to be clothed with pride at so great a conquest, raising himself tip-toe, and inflating bimself ar much as possible and then with a dignity that would do justice to a conquerer of all the Eastern powers combined, said, look here Jim, the capture of this snake was a tragedy not paralled by any upon record; the particulars of which I must

I approached a little nearers he clevated his head to a level with mine, his forked tongue bid defiance, his firey eyes said stay, or distruction shall be your end. But this stout heart of mine would not stand the threat, no; my courage strued, I send to you, for publication, the re-marks, in substance, which I should have I struggled with him; he wreathing with fury, beating the ground with his tremendous rope-like frame; but it was no go, I conquered him, and he is here.

About this time many aching heads and fevered frames demanded his presence. He location of a pest house upon e shore of then handed the monster over to Jacob and William, with instructions that they must finish his education, prepare his mind, store it with a sufficient amount of Latin, and other dead Languages, that he may be able remark that time and circumstances have to understand, and speak properly those hard works.

To those directions they both responded 'Yes Sir," which was accompanied with a were assenting to the command.

Now Mr. Editor, you would have laughed until your sides would have resembled a lot of broken earthen, to have seen those men who had the care of that poor reptile, there they stood with the most solemn countenances, pondering over the great responsibility resting upon them, their mind apparently had left all the doings of man, and cencharacter in after life depended upon them, and well they knew it.

William, the first to arouse from their deep train of thoughts, looked up. and said, Jake, to you I assign the whole tuition, take full charge of that department, and I will endeavor to give bin those instructions necessary to-make him accomplished in graceful movements. Now Jake you know he must be learned the figures, he must know how to move in a graceful manner when the word shall be given promenade all, and to squirm himself beautifully when ballance all is said.

Each commenced the performanc of their respective duties, and the poor snake was oon stored with sufficient knowledge to be sent to a higher department, which was promptly done. .

The whereabouts of this monster snake can be known by calling upon Clark, one of Jim. our stagemen.

For the West Jersey Pioneer. Incidents of a Trip to the Bay Shore.

MR, EDITOR .- Dear sir, will you be so aind as to allow me a short space in the colamns of your widely circulated paper, to communicate to its numerous putrons some interesting incidents which occurred in conxion with a trip which we were favored t make to the Delaware Bay, near the mouth of the Cohansey, on Tuesday 22 inst.

Early on the above morning, we arose from our bed to make preparation for our anticipated trip, having been hospstably entertained over night by Judge Woodruff and is amiable lady, who were the prime movers and leading spirits in the pleasant trip we are about to describe. Stepping out into the beautiful flower decked garden adjoining the mansion of Judge Woodruff, just as the first grey streaks of morning light began to appear in the eastern horizon. We were delighted with the fragrant oders with which the almost endiess variety of flowers surrounding us had filled the air, and were forcibly reminded of the days of mans inno cency, when our first parents revoled amid the bowers of Elen, strangers to mortal

ssemble from the adjoining country, at Judge Woodruff's, which had been agreed unon as the starting point of the party. At about six o'clock the necessary arrangements having been previously completed, the line was formed and marching orders given, when off we started, a pleasant, happy company, to spends the day in the delightful exercise of fishing and bathing. As we passed through Bridgeton we funcied that we must have presented to the eyes of its staid citizens quite an inposing appearance. The country through which we passed presented to the eye of the traveller unmistakable indications of the industry and prosperity of its inhabitants; large fields of yellow waving grain were seen on every side, demonstraing not only that the soil was productive, but also that it was carefully cultivated .--We noticed quite a number of clegant dwellings displaying great architectural skill, and standing as beautiful monuments of the trade of their owners. About 9 o'clock A M . we reached "Big Island," a lofty eminence, rising as if conscious of its superior claims n the midst of an almost boundless tract of salt marsh, situated near the mouth of Cohansey Creek. Some annoyance was anticipated by the party from the numerous swarms of green headed flies, who claim undisputed possession of the Island and revel ainid the luxuriant meadows surrounding it. But to their credit and to our pleasure be it said, they quietiy retired at the first approach of our formidiable force, giving us undisputable posessession of the ground .-Mesers Garrison, Hutchison, Wood and others, baving reached the Island the day before, had we found upon our arrival al ready caught an abundant supply of fish -From an oyster boat lying near the shore we obtained a supply of these delicacies, so that nothing remained to be done but to enjoy ourselvee, and strive to promote the happiness of others. The first thing that claimed our attention after we had obtained peaceaole posssion of the Island, was the preparation of dinner, for which after our morning ride, we began to feel a keen relish. While some of the gentlemen were erecting tables for our accommodation, others were engaged in cleaning fish, opening ovacors, or building homes, while others fried the fish, stewed the oysters, fr made the coffee, which was to complete the bill of fire on this decision.

The teams were hitched out and after a ride of half a mile over the meathe scorching heat of the sun, which sometimes proves a serious annoyance to bathers at noonday. As we gazed upon the wide waste of water which lumed up before us we saw many a noble craft spreading her canvass to the breeze and gliding like a thing of life upon the deep blue waters; bearing their precious freight to some distant port; and as we thought of their noble crews who so gallantly brave the dangers of the sea, we fancied they were looking back upon the scenes they had left behind and thinking of the homes which their absence had made desolate; and as the form of a loving wife or prattling bake came floating up in wife or prattling bake came floating up in section of the best advantage, and you will find it to your advantage. ing wife or prattling babe came floating up before their vision, I could in immegiaation see the tear trickling down their bronzed cheeks which was but the outward and visibie expression of the warm and sympathetic feelings of their hearts to which sailors (no more than other men) are not stranonly tended to confirm and strengthen them. Technical names found in all our medical gers. Having satisfied our bathing propensities we repaired again to the Island and commenced active preparations for supper, which being completed the whole company again regailed themselves with the good very low bow, as though their whole man things which the ladies had prepared for our consumption, after which the fragments were | CONSUMPTION OLD DR. > Petty Larceny. On Saturday afternoon last, a Gemmen and Lady of Color, came down to " Bridgefashionable resorts, called at Mr. Grosscup's Clothing Emporium, where they overhauled the goods, and left for parts unknown. Some time after, Mr. G., discovered that a fancy vest was missing: sent the efficient marshall, ofter the fugitives. In a short time he brought the gentleman of color down, who not only denied the charge, but stated that his colored companion was not his wife. Her whereabouts being ascertained, the Marshal! suggested a plan whereby the vest was delivered by the "lady of color," to Mr. Gross. cup the same night, notwithstanding her ladyship pretended to be very innocent of the charge of theft, and expressed herself surpris ed to think that any one would suspicion her of such a crime.

It would be of no use to pleas an accident and the great importance of the instrument to the community for iney would drawn your voice in a moment with the voice of their launcies.

would drawn your voice, in a moment with the voice of their inauris.

As an Prinearly all of the cases of disease there are perfieds or repose which are invariably followed by periods of exertement or riew are more or less intermittent and the intermissions mere or less complete.

Now those facts are well known to the medical profession, and physicians whose principles are as loose as as bashap's sleeve, never full to take advantage of that knowledge. Let the treatment of a case by as good as possible and the progress of the case never so prosperous the moment their attention happens to be directed to it in the period of exertement in the absence of the attending physician they never fail to condemn the treatment—to see clearly that it is all awong, or to advise a different treatment, and they will always continue to practice such impositions upon the novies, the weak and the ignorant.

Magnetisers should therefore, never fail to direct the attention of their patients to their changes in their sensations in the periods of excitement and repose to guard them against these impositions. All eminent sound practical, unbiases of positions know that no harm can arise from electricity when properly or scientifically, applied.
