And how it inspired with new courage and al, and rallied in increasing numbers around he fresh-raised banner of Independence, the Patriots, when they heard the elevating spirof its centiments and its bold announce ment of their emuncipation. Were they not exalted in their own estimation? Did they not feel as if chains hed fallen from their limbs? Did they not, inspired with the lignity of freemen, almost imagine that they reathed the air more freely and moved with greater elasticity? The humility and timidity of serfs had departed from their spirits. But yesterday they felt as if their patriotism were reason, to-day they feel that it is allegiance. allegiance to the country of their birth, to the government of their choice and not to an oppressor in a distant quarter of the globe, with whom they could have no common interest and who for them, could have no fellow feeling. Of the soil on which they trod, they were now the paramount lords. Before the Liberty. "Oppression's iron reign is o'er, Our bonds are burst we're slaves no more, Let the triumphant clarion swell Abroad, the glorious news to tell. And let our heart-felt jubilee Declare our native land is free."

Although the revolutionary war termiated glorious for the American Army, yet ike most other wars, it was checked with alternate successes and reverses. At one period a general gloom hung over the affairs of the Patriots, consternation and despair seemed to have seized on almost every breast. Without resources and the half-fed, halfclothed army reduced to a handful of men. flying before the victorious enemy, there ap. peared to be but little room for the patriot to rest his hope for the ultimate safety of his country. But the clouds were soon dispelled. Confidence again imparted, and Washington, the Joshua of America, who commanded the armies of liberty and won the battles of freedom, soon gave new presages of eventual success. Nay, after many a hard fought battle; in which the blood of friend and foe, indiscriminately mingled, drenched the soil-after seven years' expenditure of valor and suffering and blood, he wrested this fair inheritance from a foreign Potentate, and bequeathed it to the American People for the "land of the free and home of the brave."

Yes, this common beritage of ours has been the arena for the rush and shock of contending armies, for the struggle of sanguinary combatants and the welkin has rung with the direful clang and uproar of war. The bones of the slain on many a mountain top and in many a vally deep, are mouldering to dust, but the places where they repose are hallowed graves, and round them cluster volumes of historic associations and the greatful heart of a great nation throbs with a remembrance of their virtues and their deeds. "death to liberty" as his aim, despatched and blood and sword. But England's arards and faint-hearted dastards, for at the sound of the clarion of war, chieftains and braves and heroes and patriots rallied to defend their wives and their daughters, their homes and their firesides;" and at the signal of the battle-kindling trumpet on many a plain and in many a dell, the proud warriors of Albion bit the dust and left their bones to bleach under a foreign Sun. And the stern struggles of our heroic fathers and the persevering efforts, were crowned with sucss commensurate with their sacred aims and lefty patriotism, for before the powers and deeds of valor of the "Liberty-or-Death" battles, even England herself quailed and said, "Justice, Laccept thy Terms." "Thy spirit, Independence, let us share, Lord of the lion heart and eagle eye.

Thy steps we'll follow with our bosoms bare, Nor heed the storm that howls along the sky."

CONCLUSION.

FELLOW CITIZENS-Another anniversay of our "National Independence" is near at and, and on each return of which our "pure minds" should be "stirred up" "in remembrance" of the toils endured in obtaining it and the valuable blessings secured by it.-The morning of our existence as a nation, was tempestuous and dark; but it has ushered in a day of glorious tranquillity, when the fruits of our fathers labors have diffused joy and peace and happiness over a grateful land, and the blessings of millions shall crown their memories with immortality. To those who consecrated our cause with their blood, who sacrificed their lives in the estabishment of our Independence, who immolated themselves on the alter of freedom, should our sacred homage of respect and veneration be annually raised. May the patriotism and renown of the "Patriot Martyrs" live in imperishable lustre—their epleudid deeds be recounted with pride and pleasure by millions yet unborn, as examples of public virtue and courage, far more illustrious than the ancient models, and more worthy of the emulation of their offspring, and may the admiration and republican gratitude of succeeding ages be an endearing monument to their unblemished fame. Sacred be their ashes, and hallowed be their sepulchres. Most of their compeers in glory and in the affections of their countrymen, have already passed away, closing a well spent life with the sweet recollection of having successively devoted their best days to the service of their beloved country, and crowned with the merited plaudits of a grateful people Since our last "National birth-day," the last Revolutionary Patriot in Fairfield. has descended to the Tomb. His life protracted almost a century, he lived to enjoy the priceless legacy secured by the hard-fought battles of the Revolution, and after seeing us nationally augmented in population from 3,000,000 to 25,000,000, in territory from "The old Thirteen," to more than a score and a half of States, extending from the rising to the setting sun, and washed by the waters of two mighty oceans, in improvements and importance, in wealth, influence, commerce, agriculture, literature, arts and manufactures, outstripping all the nations of the earth. The Rev. Ethan Osborn, like Abraham "gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people." Let us rejoice then fellow citizens and Americans, that we are now a nation. The The mighty voice has gone forth which tyrant with dismay, that we are free and independent,"-a great, auspicious, glorious

"How many nations, in their ripest days, Knew not that halo of success which plays Around thy cradle, Young America; Sprung, like the ancient Pollas, into day. All armed; and even in thy natal hour The world beheld thy lineage and thy power.

Numerous and bright are the stars in the grand constellation of our national glorious confederation. Consumate is the wisdom evinced in the Magua Charta of our rights as citizens, and high the merits of our civil and religious institutions. The extension and power of our country, and its unprecedented progress in all the elements of national greatness, is but the development of the great principles which are embodied in our political institutions, incorporated and adjusted in the grand Charter of the Union -the Constitution of The United States. "Still may thy flowers untrammelled spring,

Thy harvests wave, thy cities rise, Till time shall fold its latest wing Remain earth's loveliest paradise." "Stand up for the Union." Frown down the first indication of disunion. Have no fellowship with Northern Disunionists. nor Southern Seceders; political madmen and lunatics, who would apply the incendiary torch to the most glorious fabric which human wisdom ever conceived. "United we stand, divided we fall." Let. us be ever distinct like the billows, but one like the ocean."-'Eternal vigilence is the price of Liberty." When unprincipled demagogues, for the "loaves and fishes" bring dark days on the Republic, and the ship of State is rocked too and fro on the angry waves of sectional and political strife and bitterness, threatening to engulfit. Then let the American people, actuated by fraternal love, rise in their strength and by the potency of the elective franchise, calm the lowering storm, and les all the favored daughters of America become vestals to keep alive the fire of patriotism-these our bulwarks of safety.

Sail on, O Ship of State! Sail on, O Union, Strong and great! Humanity, with all its fears. With all the hopes of future years, Is hanging breathless on thy fatel We know what master laid thy keel, What workmen wrought thy ribs of steel. Who made each mast, and sail, and rope, What anvil rang, what hammers beat, In what a forge and what a heat Were shaped the anchors of thy hopei Fear not each sudden sound and shock, 'Tis of the wave and not the rock; 'Tis but the flapping of the sail, And not a rent made by the gale! In spite of rock and tempest roar, In spite of false lights on the shore, Sail on, nor fear to breast the Sea! Our hearts, our hopes, are all with thee, Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears Our faith triumphant o'er our fears. Are all with thee, -are all with thee.

Let us arouse then all our energies to naintain these glorious privileges, these exalted and sacred blessings, to do which our 'lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor' are pledged in the sight of heaven and the world. Let demonstrations of public and national rejoiceing and gratitude be ever continued on the day which gave freedom to our nation. o'clock A. M.

By reference to advertisement in another column, it will be seen that the Annual Mowing and Reaping Match will come off on Wednesday of pext week, on the farm of Jonathan Fithian Esq. The committee have done well in selecting the farm of our worthy Sheriff, who will undoubtedly have everything in his power, satisfactorily aranged for the impartial trial of the different machines which will be present on that occasion.

A New Invention.

Mr. Henry Meyer, of this town, exhibited to us a few days since a new combined Sugar Cane Mill, which combines several advantages over all mills yet patented. It is not only the most complete Sugar Cane Mill, with elastic strippers unequalled by any other, but can in a few minutes be converted into a Corn Stalk or Straw Cutter, and with but a slight change, can be made to grind all kinds of feed in the most appproved manner. The price of the machine will be made known to the farmers in due time, it will not exceed that of mills with but one third of the advantages which it combines.

A Rich Treat.

Monday afternoon of this week being one of the hottest of the season, the mercury ranging at about one hundred degrees, and we "poor printers" being almost melted with the heat while tugging at the printing press, with nothing but visions of "better times coming" to cheer us in our disconsolate state, our "visions" were suddenly converted into happy realities, by the entrance into our sanctum of one whose generosity had prompted him to remember the printers in their "low estate." And what do you think reader, was his mission, as he smiling. MR. EDITOR:-I take the liberty, as resident of Fairfield, of asking the insertion in your columns of a few thoughts on the subject of the caption.

The erection of the Monument has been objected to by many here, who sincerely rever the memory of this sainted Minister of the Gospel, on the ground that "he would not have wished any such thing," that "it is contrary to his notion of things," that "the money had better be given to Missionary or other benevolent objects," that "it will be different from anything else in the grave-

That he would not have wished it, is granted, for he never sought for honors, and we love him the more that he did not, but that it is contrary to his notion of things, I do not admit. He possessed a large share of public spirit, and did not object to moderate expenditures to commemorate what was wise, great and good, though he would never have thought of himself as the object of any such expression from the community. Many of INSON. us have witnessed his enjoyment of the festivities of the Fourth of July, for instance, and so long as he was active, we always expected the sanction of his presence. There has already been expended on this Fortification shout $300,0001. By the end of the present year it will reach a million it is estimated that five hundred thousand dollars more will be required for its chundred thousand dollars more will be required for its chundred thousand dollars more will be required for its chundred thousand dollars more will be required for its chundred.—In case of an mount three tiers of gins when finished,—in case of an emergency, two tiers could now be mounted.

Our Government, in addition to the experience of more than half a century, has had the benefit of the important and valuable information derived from the Commissioners despatched to Europe during the siege of Sebatopol for the examination of the Fortifications of England France and Russia, from all of which we may safely conclude that Fort Delaware combines all the improvements of the age. An examination of the srell work alone will amply repay any one for the trouble and expense of a binner and REFRESHMENTS will be provided on the Boat.

Opposite Davis' Hotel ATTENTION FARMERS! Manny's Improved

THE Subscriber having assumed the Agency of Manny's Improved Mower and keaper, is now prepared to receive orders for them, the coming season. The attention of Farmers is invited to the superiority of this Machine over all others, as it is of light draft, easily adjusted, and managed, has a reel, can be worked by either horses or exen, or great durability, free from side draft, no clogging of knives, and can be changed in one minute from Reaper to Mower.

It is supported on two wheels, which allows of its being moved from field to field, or town to town, with the eare of a Cart.

IMPROVEMENTS.

The Improvements for 1868 are, a Castor Wheel under the longue, by which means all the weight is taken from the horses' necks when the cutters are taked from the ground, which materially lessons the draft of the Machine—a new and simple mode of throwing out of gear, which can be done by the driver without stopping the Machine or getting from his seat.—Strongthening the Guard Fingers and also the eye of the Soythe or Gitter, rendering it impossible to break them—a more efficient trace clearer,—a new mode of tightening the belt without stopping it impossible to break them—a more efficient react clearer,—a new mode of tightening the belt without stopping the motion of the Machine.

From Prof. McCLOSKEY, ormerly Professor of Theory and Practice of Medicine in the Female Medical College of Pennsylvania and late Professor of Surgery in the American College of Medicine, &c.

Ma. Joseph E. Hoven:—A trial of your LIQUID HAIR DYE will convince the most skeptical that it is a safe, elegant, and efficacious properation. Unlike many others, it has in several instances proved serviceable in the cure of some cutaneous cruptions on the head, and I have no hesitation in commending it to those requiring such an application.
