For the West Jersey Pioneer. Songs of the Sacred Mountains. SINAI.

Alone, in the wide howling waste, Renowned in story of yore; A monument grey, of the past, A notable relict of war. How like an old castle forlorn; Deserted and left to decay: Of glory and grandeur long shorn, Infested by wild beasts of prey.

Once, on thee stern Justice assembled The powers that minister death, Before thee, the twelve armies trembled, And shrank from the mutterings of wrath. If the canon of Judgement burst forth, 'Twill spread devastation around; Human ruins will cover the earth. Nor refuge nor safety be found.

Then Apollion from Tophet brought up; llis legions of hell in the rear; To murder man's last forlorn hope, And shut up the race in despair. O Israel, encompassed around, By armies o'erwhelming in power! Where shall thy deliverer be found, To save in this perilous hour.

Behold, from Mount Calvary comes, The Prince of the Tribes of the Lord; The right to command he assumes, And dominions must bow to his Word. See! He leads on his well chosen band, And scatters the legions of sin, Apollion unable to stand, Confounded, escapes to his den.

Immanuel, his bosom now bares, And challenges Justice to fire; The mountain with fierce lightning glares, Suci vomits most terrible ire. The wounds' in his hands and his head, The scars in his feet and his side; Show wherefore his garments were red, And why in his anguish he cried.

Still onward he pressed to to the charge, And captured the castle by storm; Ilis people are now set at large, Even Justice submits to his his arm. Now Sinai, in honor no more,

Thy glory dismantled and gone; Thy thunderings and threat'n And thou, in the desert alone. Oct. 8th. '58.

From the Atlantic Monthly. THE WHIRLIGIG OF TIME.

My friend Jameson, the lawyer, has frequently whiled away an evening in relating incidents which occurred in his practice during his residence in a Western State. On one occasion he gave a sketch of a criminal trial in which he was employed as counsel; the story, as developed in court and ly, made so indelible an impression on my mind that I am constrained to write down its leading features. At the same time, I must say, that, if I had heard it without a young that its authorisist. I all without a lyoung man !" thought Katrine. "I shall not need to encourage him any more suretions. But the observing reader will remember that remarkable coincidences, and the signal triumph of the right, called poetical justice, are sometimes seen in actual life as well as in novels.

Proch was an honest farmer, who tilled a small tract of crown land and thereby supported his aged mother. Faithful to his duties, he had never a thought of discontent, but was willing to plod on in the way his father had gone before him. Filial atfection, however, did not so far engross him as to prevent his casting admiring glances on the lovely Katrine, daughter of old Rauchen, the miller; and no wonder, for she was as facinating a damsel as ever dazzled and perplexed a bashful lover. She had admiration enough, for to see her was to love her; many of the village young-sters had looked unutterable things as they met her at May-feasts and holidays, but up to this time she had received no poetical epistles nor direct proposals, and was as cheerful and heart free as the birds that sang around her windows. Her father was the traditional guardian of beauty, surly as the mastiff that watched his sacks of flour and his hoard of thalers; and though he doted on his darling Katrine, his heart to all the world beside seemed, to be only a chip from one of his old, mill-stones.— When Carl thought of the severe gray cyes that shot such glances at all lingering youths, the difficulty of winning the pretty heiress seemed to be quite enough, even with a field clear of rivals. But two other suitors now made advances, more or less openly, and poor Carl thought hinself ening. Carl had never fought a duel, -and he had not saved so much as a thousand

But Hans was perpetually kept at a distance; the humaning-bird would never alight upon the outstretched hand. He had not the wit to see that their natures had nothing in common, although he did know that Katrine was utterly indifficient toward him, and after some months of hopeless pursuit he began to grow sullenly angry. He was not long without an object on which to yent his

Carl lay by the roadside, not far from the mill, insensible, covered with blood, monning feebly at first, and afterwards silent, if not breathless. Ghastly wounds covered his head, and his arms and shoulders were livid bruises. The neigh-boring peasants surrounded the apparently gentle and unfortunate Katrine. That evening, when Carl Proch returned from his field, after his usual hard day's la-bor, he found his wife on the floor, solbing, pecchless, and the child unnoticed, crying in his cradle. His dog sat by the hearth with a look of almost intelligent sympathy, and whined as his master entered the room. He raised Katrine and held her in his arms like a child, covered her face with kisses, and implored her to speak. She seemed to be in a fearful dream, and shrunk from some immagined danger in the extremest twice for the same offence. You are safe, error. Again we would call the attention of ou caders, especially those who feel interested n the advancement of the science of music, to the Musical Convention, to be holden here next week. The exercises will be held in the Town Hull, commencing on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock. Prof. G. F. Mrs Root, likewise will be with us, besides many of the best singers in our county. We regret that there is not a Convention. At former Conventions the hall has been crowded, and from present indications we believe this will supercede all previous Conventions. Members should be tirely unknown. Since the introduction of these now celebrated Canand Jars, over HALF-A-MILLION HAVE BEEN SOLD, and notwithstanding all sorts of contributes for the accomplishment of the same object, most of which were little less than frauds upon housekeepers, have been offered to the public, the simplicity of Aranches, the case with which they are managed, and the certainty of result, have made them the favorite Cans and Jars overywhere; and now in

THE FOURTH YEAR ence their introduction, their reputation stands, by ger and acknowledgment, far above any other can or juri the market. In proof of this, we quote, from almost in accorable testimonials, this one from tec EDITOR OF THE LADY'S BOOK, in the number for July, 1858. He says:—

"These celebrated Cans and Jars, the first introduced and, by all olds, the best, are steadily coming into general use. Thousands of housekeepers, who, in past seasons, were tempted to try other cans and jars, and who more or less of their fruit in consequence, will be gird to learn that Arlbur's never fails. For two seasons we have said, use no other, and we repeat the advice,"

Arthur's Cans and Jars are

ALL PREPARED FOR SEALING. They have a channel around the mouth, outside, filled with coment when, and all ready for scaling. You have, after filling your vessel with he first fourly to heat your lid, and press it into the coment, when the work is done if directions are followed carefully, success is always certain.

PATENT STAMP.

Take Notice, that Arthur's Cans and Jars all bear the Patent Stamp. On the Tin Cans you will find it impressed in the metal: on the cauthenware Jars, in an oval on the bottom; and in raised letters on the sides of the Glass Jars.

NOTICES OF THE PRESS. From ameng the hundreds of favorable notices from the most respectable journals of the country, of our cheapedition of "Livingstone's Travels and Explorations in Africa," we take the following:

"It is emphatically an edition for the people; and, judg-ing from the rapid sale with which it is meeting, it is fully appreciated by them."—"Christian Freeman," Boston. "The book is having a great run, and will be read by very reading man, woman and child, in this as well as a other lands."—Ashtabula (Ohio) "Telegraph." "The work is finely illustrated, well printed, and firmly ound, thus answering in every respect the demand for a opular and chean ed toon of the Journeys and Researche in South Africa." Those of our readers who would have delightful book for reading at any hour, will not be appointed in this work.—"U. S. Journal." "With truth we can say, that seldom is presented to the reading public a work containing such a vast amount of solid instruction as the one in question. The volume is handsomely illustrated, and presents that unique appearance of exterior for which Mr. Bradley's publications are noted."—"Family Magazine."

"The edition of Dr. Livingstone's Travels, published by J. W. Bradley, is just what it purports to be. Like all Mr. Bradley's publications, it is excellently gotten up."—"Tiuga Agitator," Pa.

CAUTION.—The attention of the Publisher has been called to spurious editions of this work, put forth as "Narratives of Dr. Livingst-no's Travels in Africa." FOR LADIES AND CHILDREN. JOHN FAREIRA & Co., No. 818 (new no.) Narket street, above Eighth, Philad's,—Importers, Manufacturers and Doalers in Fancy Furs, for Ladies and Childrenialso Gent's Furs, Fur Collars, and Gloves. The number of years that we have been engaged in the Fur business, and the general character of our Furs, both for quality and price is so generally known throughout the Country, that we think it is not necessary for us to say anything more than that we have now opened our assortment of Furs, for the Fall and Winter sales, of the largest and most beautiful assortment that we have ever offered before to the public. Our Furs have all been imported during the present season, when money was scarce and Furs much lower than at the present time, and have been manufactured by the most competent workmen, we are therefore determined to sell them at such prices as will continue to give us the reputation we have born for years, that is to ell a good article for a very small profit.

Storekeepers will do well to give us a call, as they will find the largest assortment by far to select from in the city, and at manufacturers prices.
