LECTURES.

The lecture by Rev. Mr. Willits, last Friday evening, was listened to by one of the most intelligent and appreciative audiences we remember to have seen together in Bridgeton upon any like occasion. It is to be followed by others, from equally popular speakers. Such courses of lectures are becoming an established feature in the entertainments of most of the cities and towns of note throughout our country, and in many cases are taking the place of more questionable amusements. We know of no good reason why they may not be fully and profitably sustained in our own thriving town. There are hundreds among us who seek their evening amusements away from their own homes, and, unless some place of wholesome entertainment be provided, many will resort to places of doubtful reputation, with which Bridgeton is being infested, where habits will be contracted and practices indulged in which can but destroy the happiness of families, and end in the ruin of souls, may find food for the most fastidious taste, and loftiest aspirations, the man of the world may find matter for profitable contemplation and study, which shall raise his thoughts higher, and increase his capacity for enjoyment, the young men will receive encouragement and incentives to greater diligence and still higher attainments in that preparation so necessary to act properly their parts in the great drama of human life.

Then let all attend and reap the benefits of the course of lectures so auspiciously begun; for we are assured that none will be employed except those of tried and known ability to amuse and at the same time instruct.

The next lecture of the course will be delivered in this place on Thursday evening next. The name of speaker, subject, etc., will be announced in bills, in a day or two, not having been decided as yet. Rev. F. Moore of Philadelphia, or Rev. J. Dowling of New York, will probably be the speaker, on Thursday next; both of whom are noted speakers and classed with the ablest and most popular lecturers of the day.

UNION ACADEMY.

We have been requested by Mr. Tomlinson, Principal of Union Academy, to state that on account of sickness and death, the Winter Term, which was expected to have begun on Monday, Nov. 29, will be postponed two weeks, so that it will commence Monday, Dec. 13.

We always take pleasure in serving in any possible way the interests of an Institution of learning, especially of a worthy one as Union Academy. Four days of the past week have been occupied in examinations. The system of written examinations practised there is extremely rigid, and under their graded system and energetic management, seems peculiarly successful in exciting the ambition and energy of the student. The system of education in this Institution is the Analytical, on that has great advantages, but which has yet been introduced into but few schools in our country, except the Normal schools. It is thorough and very practical. We are gratified to learn that under the energy and determined perseverance of its present instructors, the school is rapidly increasing in numbers—the past Term having been at least one-third fuller than usual, and the prospect for next term brighter than ever. A third teacher has been added to the list. In languages, either ancient or modern, mathematics or natural sciences, excellent opportunities are afforded of acquiring thorough knowledge. For instruction and drill in Literary Exercises, Mr. Tomlinson is peculiarly adapted, and we venture to say that there is not another school in the country, where so much attention is given to this branch. It is a matter of common report, that the literary production of his students are of the very first order. Send your sons and daughters to Shiloh to Union Academy. Tuition is low. Board can be had for $2.00 per week.

The Ladies of Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, in Fayette street, intend having a supper on Christmas eve, in the lecture room of their Church, the proceeds of which will go towards liquidating the debt.

ANNOUNCEMENT.—We learn from the Philadelphia Daily News, that D. C. Taylor, Esq., formerly of the Neptune Institute of that city, has bought the agency for Dr. Cogswell's Calculated Antiphlogistic Salt, in N. J., Pa., Del., Md., Va., and N. C. This valuable medicine has been introduced in our range, and is now forwarded by the Drug Store of Samuel L. Bitham.

Every one afflicted with inflammatory diseases should remember that it is prescribed for that class of diseases only, and that medical and character recommend it to their notice and favor. It is well worth a visit.

That you may know its nature and virtue call and get a sample. Once taken, the medicine is decided and intelligent, and remains in the system for a long time.

Remember that it is a safe and reliable medicine, and that it is a safe and reliable medicine.

The Standard Men Recovering.

EARTH WITHOUT HEAT.
About two months ago, we alluded to the improper use of the Salem County Agricultural Society—the meeting, practiced thereto, and the crowds of idlers drawn thither to witness the performances. Believing however racing to be morally and socially injurious to society, without any corresponding benefit whatever, we renounced it so. This roused the ire of the Standard man so that he received a milk and water criticism. We rejoined so effectually that his mouth has been completely closed until last week, when he again shows some faint signs of vitality.

From a contemptible little article in that number afflicting personality to us, we fear that he has been nursing his wrath against us ever since, & unable to find anything in our editorial columns that he dare attack, he pounces down on our advertising columns with Lilliputian fury. We must confess, it is with a new mode of attack, that we shall not at present follow his example in imitating. We shall not examine the columns of the Standard, to hunt out advertisements of gift lotteries, "lotteries," horse racing, or lumber medicines, for certain diseases, etc., whether exhibited in the regular advertising columns or in the reprehensible form of puffing, which now forms the practice of present Journalism. We will only say, that any one who will take the trouble to examine the columns of the Standard, will find at least three-fourths of these matters published and puffed there within the last twelve months. That he should feel jealous that advertisements should flow from him to papers of much larger circulation, is perfectly characteristic. It is not the first time this jealous feeling has been exhibited towards us, and we feel fully able to survive the shock now, dreadful as it is. In addition to the vast equestrian knowledge previously displayed, he now edifies us with a specimen of his profound legal acquirements, which is equally as various and reliable. He says "the very laudable business of puffing lotteries" is "direct violation of, the statutes of this State" respectfully refers us. The law we believe does forbid the establishment and sale of lottery tickets. So it prohibits slavery, betting on elections, and his favorite amusement, horse racing. But who ever before heard of its prohibiting "puffing" or advocating any or all of these things? He points to Delaware as a place "where lotteries and their advocates are considered respectable." (We doubt whether he would pass for "respectable" even in Delaware;) but where, within the bounds of the United States, can he point us to a spot where gambling and horse racing are. The idea intended to be conveyed (if the individual has any ideas, above horse racing) we presume is, that, he, the horse racing advocate, is too moral to publish gift book and lottery advertisements. Now, if there should be an individual green enough to swallow such an idea for a single moment, we refer him, not to the advertisements in the Standard, but to the beautiful, chaste, and pious editorials, very wittily devoted to his contemporaries. An inspection of his choice productions will show his moral attainments. After another two months search among our advertisements, cut and carve again, neighbor.

PETERSON'S MAGAZINE.

This popular Lady's Magazine will be greatly improved for 1859. It will contain nearly 1000 pages; from 25 to 30 steel plates; and about 800 wood engravings—Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, author of "Fashion and Famine," and Charles J. Peterson, author of "Kate Aylesford" are its Editors, and write exclusively for it. Each will give a new Novelty next year; and all having unused accounts, will call before his tenth, requiring payment, which will be left with a collector after that date.

TRIUMPHS OF LABOR.

The following eloquent tribute to LABOR is from the pen of the gifted CHAPIN.—Hear him:

"And who can adequately describe the triumphs of labor, urged by the potent spell money? It has exalted the secrets of the universe, and trained its powers into myriad forms of use and beauty. From the bosom of the old creation of industry and art, it has been its task and its glory to overcome obstacles. Mountains have been levelled, and valleys exalted before it. It has broadened the hill tops with fruit and verdure, and bound around the very feet of oceangoing ridges with golden corn. Up from the sunless and hoary deeps, up from the shapeless quarry, it drags its stolid marbles and rears its palaces of pomp. It tears the stubborn metals from the bowels of the earth, and makes them ductile to its will. It marches steadily on, over the swelling flood, and through the winds of ocean, and rules the stormy surges, and unites the globe with links of iron. Civilization follows in its path. It achieves grander victories, it wears more durable trophies. It holds wider sway than the conqueror. His name becomes tainted and his monuments, crumble but live; converts his red battle-fields into gardens, and erects monuments, significant of better things. It writes, with the light of day, its crowns as a queen in the sun, and sends cities and sends up its roar of triumph less than 18 rods, but the calculation is made for 18 rods, which gives a yield of four hundred and forty-three bushels, and a score. Mr. Sheppard's statement, and your request, I went this morning and measured the ground, and found it a fraction less than 18 rods, but the calculation is made for 18 rods, which gives a yield of four hundred and forty-three bushels, and a score. NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

From among the numerous periodicals of the country, of our cheap and most popular journals of the country, of our cheap edition of "Livingston's Travels and Explorations in Africa," we can assure you that it is the best book of its kind ever published.

"It is a series of descriptions of strange and wonderful scenes, among a people and in a country entirely new to the civilized world; and books sold within the past year, the sales of which have exceeded 100,000."

"Daily Democritus," Paterson, N. J.

"It is emphatically an edition for the people, and indispensable for those who like to meet it in meeting; it is fully illustrated, and is a book that will be read by all, and appreciated by them." "Christian Freeman," Boston.

"The book is having a great run, and will be read by every one who likes to meet it in the world, as well as in other lands." "Athalithic" (Oxon) "Telegraph."

"The work is fully illustrated, well printed, and firmly bound, and is a very popular and cheap edition of the 'Journeys and Researches' in South Africa. These of our readers who would have a copy of the original may do so, at a moderate price."

"This interesting work should be in the hands of every one. Its interesting pages of adventure are full of interest, and will be read by all who like to meet it in meeting; it has been sold in one month." "Autumn" "American."
